South Baymouth harbour depths will satisfy needs of Chi-Cheemaun

by Michael Erskine

OWEN SOUND—Water levels in Lake Huron and Michigan remain far below the recorded monthly mean for this time of the year and the Canadian government's best case projected rise in water levels for May 2013 lies some 25 centimetres below what was found at the dock in 2012, but the Owen Sound Transportation Company is maintaining its position that the MS Chi-Cheemaun ferry's schedule will go forward as planned. An important consideration for the Manitoulin economy as the ferry accounts for as much as $30 million of the local economy.

Water levels in Lake Huron last March were sitting dead centre on the 176 metre mark, but after dropping precipitously below the bottom of the chart on recorded levels this past December and January, the rebound has been modest at best. Although the rise in levels has been roughly in line with last spring, the levels are starting from a much lower level. The best case scenario presented on the government charts for this spring and summer would see water levels return to last March's level sometime in mid-June while the worst case rise would lie anemically below the minimum historical average for the lake.

Latest measurement figures at the Port of Little Current seem to indicate the more pessimistic view is ascendant. The water isn't coming back very fast, at least to this point. But the best case forecast range does show the rise in water levels coming on very strong through the latter part of April, so optimism may not be misplaced. Water level measurements at Thessalon do show a significant rise in water levels over the course of April, having gained some 10 centimetres on those levels reported at the beginning of April.

Owen Sound Transportation Company CEO Susan Schrempf confirmed that the OSTC plans are to still open the 2013 ferry season on schedule with a May 3 sailing.

The company's main concern for the 2013 season centres on the bumpers which fender the ferry from the dock and the OSTC is currently discussing solutions to the issue with the owners of the facility (the Ontario Ministry of Transportation). "This all has to do with the rub rails on the ship

De-baj Theatre's high-tech resources available to Island

by Michael Erskine

MANITOWANING—Technology is bringing a revolution to collaboration in the arts and Debaejehmujig Theatre Group of Manitowaning plans to surf the leading edge of that revolution.

Local businesses and arts groups will benefit from the company's acquisition of state-of-the-art technology, as the company plans to offer up any spare capacity commercially as a social enterprise endeavour to augment funding.

Administrative Director Joahnna Berti admitted to a personal philosophical divide when it comes to social enterprise as a driver and support for the arts, but fiscal realities in the current funding climate have created fertile fields for the concept to take hold. The opportunities for collaboration and extending the artistic reach of the company do create excitement for her though. "The population in the area is not large enough to support everything the company would like to do," she admitted, but adds the reach of hi-speed Internet tools helps to expand both the reach of the company and its collaborators in the North. "The technology provides the opportunity to operate outside the narrow confines, expand artistic relationships and creates opportunities for diverse relationships that might not have otherwise been possible."

Chris Desforge is the technical guru behind the technology. "Talk to Chris about anything technical," laughs Ms. Berti. "He has the scoop on that end of things."

"It's funny," agreed Mr. Desforge. "I probably know the least about what is going on around here artistically." But when it comes to any technological feats of daring, the Debaej crew just consult on what they want or need accomplished and

Health Centre's strategic plan seeks Island input

Opinions on two-site model, other important issues can be registered online until the end of this week

by Michael Erskine

LITTLE CURRENT—The future direction of Island hospitals was the focus of public consultation sessions held in Little Current and Mindemoya recently as a consultant retained by the Manitoulin Health Centre (MHC) board sought input into the hospital's proposed new strategic plan.

"I have 13 questions for health service organizations and 11 for the general public," said Ms. van Valkenburg. Things have been going well in the process despite the dearth of turnout at the Little Current public meeting at the recreation centre, as the consultant has been canvassing employees and community partners of the MHC, such as the family health teams in the Northeast Town and Central Manitoulin.

"Typically health centres have strategic plans looking ahead three or five years," said Ms. van Valkenburg, adding that the MHC already had a five-year plan. "This is really a 'refresh' of the strategic plan."

Part of the process is conducting 'environmental' scan, including the external environment in which the health centre operates such as Ministry of Health policies and procedures, the financial milieu of the government, population and health statistics and a host of other external parameters. The environmental scans also assess 'internal' factors, strengths and weaknesses in areas such as employees and the organization's financial position.

Taking into account all of these factors, the strategic plan looks at the current state of the organization and what it sees as its vision, noted Ms. van Valkenburg.

The MHC wants the process of constructing its strategic plan going forward to be a highly col-

Island farmers again have local sales barn as livestock auction outlet

by Alicia McCutcheon

ASSIGINACK—So far, upwards of 70 head of cattle have been booked in for the first spring sale of the new Manitoulin Livestock Exchange to be held Friday, April 26.

The Manitoulin Livestock Exchange, comprised of Dave McDowell of Assiginack and Dean Millsap of Evansville, has its sales barn at the property of Mr. McDowell on Sim's Road, just south of Manitowaning on Highway 6, the former Al Frank farm.

"There's been lots of talk of getting it (cattle sales) going again, but nobody was willing to jump in and do it, so we did," explained Mr. Millsap. The last cattle sales barn, Little Current Sales Barn, was owned and operated by the late Jack Orford.

While close to 70 cows have been booked in for sale, the Evansville farmer said he believes the weather is playing a factor in farmers not wanting to move their cattle, "but it's coming."

"If things works out, we could do herd dispersals too," Mr. Millsap added, noting he and Mr. McDowell are also thinking of adding equipment sales to their list of offerings, which would coincide with the cattle sale dates. "We'll just get the first few sales under our belt."

Mr. Millsap said he understands Island farmers are pleased to see "something up and running again. It's going to take a couple of years to get it going, though," he added.

This isn't the first sale for the Manitoulin Livestock Exchange, however, as a December date was held with great results.

Manitoulin educator recognized with national award

Lakeview's Neil Debassige one of 12 educators across Canada to receive Indigenous Educators Award

by Robin Burridge

M'CHIGEENG—Last month Lakeview School principal Neil Debassige was presented with a Guiding the Journey: Indigenous Educator National Award by Indspire at the inaugural awards of the National Gathering for Indigenous Education in Calgary.

Mr. Debassige was one of 12 educators from across the nation recognized for their work in the education sector.

"Neil Debassige's approach to leadership in his role as principal of Lakeview School on Manitoulin Island is rooted deep within Ojibwa culture," stated a release from Indspire. "During the school day, he shares knowledge about cultural traditions like the Seven Grandfather teachings. In learning and teaching partnerships between Lakeview teachers and Laurentian University education students, Mr. Debassige shares his vision for Indigenous education."

"Every year, fifth year Laurentian students spend a day at Lakeview," continues the release. "He guides and supports three to seven candidates each year and by being a partner with non-Indigenous teachers, learners and leaders, Mr. Debassige creates respect and appreciation for Indigenous knowledge, culture and languages."

"I was very honoured to have received the award," Mr. Debassige told The Expositor. "Though I received the award, I accepted it on behalf of my colleagues and the community of M'Chigeeng. I think the phenomenal staff are what set the bar so high and make this school what it is."

Mr. Debassige explained that he was originally asked to present at the awards, a ploy to get him there and surprise him, but in the end organizers were forced to tell him.

"It was very nice," Mr. Debassige said of the award ceremony and the trip to Calgary. "They (Indspire) flew myself, my dad, wife and two daughters all out to Calgary and put us up in a hotel. They really gave us the royal treatment."

The award was presented to Mr. Debassige by Indspire Patron his Excellency the Right Honourable David Johnston, Governor General of Canada.

"Indspire is the former National Aboriginal Achievement Foundation," said Mr. Debassige. "It's re-launching its continuing education network resource and data bank with Roberta L. Jamieson, who is the president and CEO, and this year was the inaugural award ceremony and first annual National Gathering for Indigenous Education."

"The contributions of all of the award recipients honoured here can be an inspiration to all Canadians," said Ms. Jamieson in an Indspire release. "These are people who day in, day out, are there for our students, helping them realize their potential."

Mr. Debassige has also received Laurentian's Aboriginal Educator Award for the partnership work between Laurentian's School of Education and Lakeview School. His effective speaking engagements and presentations in the Northern Ontario School of Medicine and at Laurentian University were also recognized.

Mr. Debassige was principal of Wasse Abin High School in Wikwemikong and at Francine Wesley Secondary School in Kashechewan. He taught school for five years, from 1995 to 2000.

Maggie King receives award for her efforts recognizing Canada's aboriginal veterans

by Robin Burridge

ESPAOLA—This weekend, Comrade Maggie King of the Little Current Royal Canadian Legion Branch #177 received a special award from Gordon Moore, president of the Royal Canadian Legion Dominion Command, in appreciation of her efforts to recognize Canada's aboriginal veterans.

The award was presented to Ms. King by Ed Pigeau, Dominion Command vice president, on behalf of Mr. Moore, who was unable to attend the ceremony.

In 2008, Ms. King brought a motion forward to the Western Manitoulin Legion Branch #514, of which she was a member at the time, for the Legion to create a pin in honour of the First Nations, Metis and Inuit veterans of Canada," read the original motion.

to recognize aboriginal veterans."

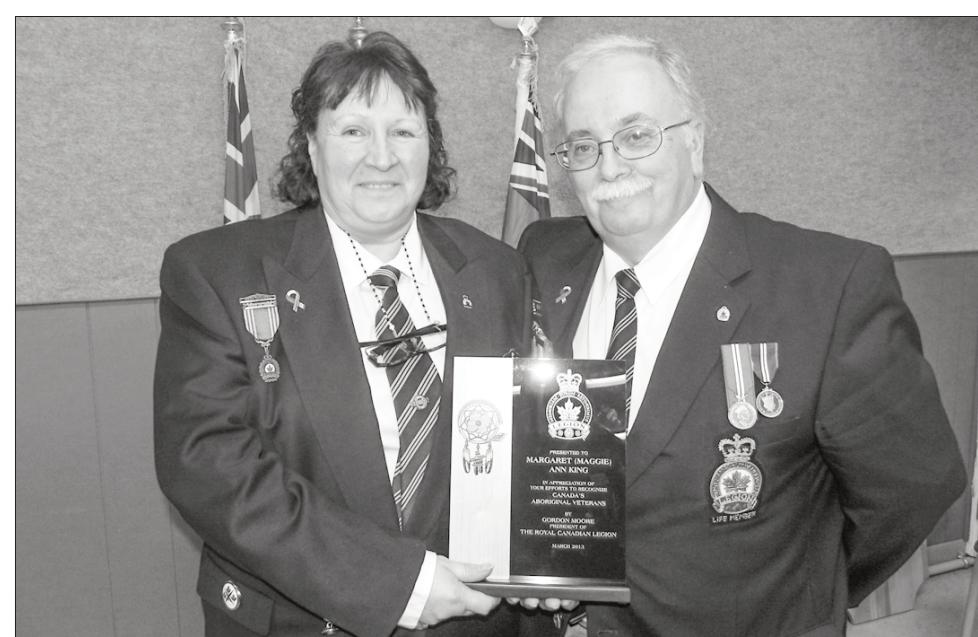

"The Royal Canadian Legion strikes a pin each year, so I put a motion forward back in 2008 to create a pin to commemorate the efforts of aboriginal veterans," added Ms. King.

"Whereas there were some 4,000 Canadian aboriginal men who joined the allied forces on the European battlefield during WWI and more than 3,000 Canadian aboriginal peoples served during the Second World War, and whereas it has been the practice of the Royal Canadian Legion to strike a different commemorative pin each year, therefore be it resolved that the Royal Canadian Legion strike a pin to honour the First Nations, Metis and Inuit veterans of Canada," read the original motion.

"The design is wonderful," Ms. King told The Expositor of the commemorative pin. "It is a dreamcatcher with a poppy in the middle, with a Metis sash around the dreamcatcher's edge, two hanging feathers representing the First Nations and an inukshuk representing the Inuit."

Ms. King further explained that the commemorative pin design also led to a t-shirt, both of which are for sale within the Legion.

"When I was presented with the award I was also given some of the pins to hand that I can get a pin to them."

Northeast Town to move office into Waterfront Artisan Incubator and Technology Centre in Little Current downtown post office

by Robin Burridge

LITTLE CURRENT—At its last meeting, the Northeast Town council approved the moving of the town offices from its current location on Manitowaning Road to the new Waterfront Artisan Incubator and Technology Centre within the Little Current post office building, in addition to approving the architectural plans for the new centre and the project budget.

CAO David Williamson talked council through the layout of building, which will still house the post office and the Child and Family Centre on one side, and the new town offices and Waterfront Artisan Incubator and Technology Centre on the other.

The plans by Perry and Perry Architects Inc. show a lobby, reception area, office, washrooms, a kitchenette area and the large 700 square foot technology and gallery space which will double as the new council chambers.

The second floor will house five offices, a meeting room, lunchroom, washroom, file room and a copy print room.

Council was also given a copy of the construction cost estimate, totaling $281,312.43, including improvements to the building (heating and vents in the building need to be updated), Mr. Williamson noted, plus $28,131.24 in contingency costs, and $73,500 in professional fees and charges, including architect/engineering costs, project management and technology equipment. In total, plus an addition $19,147.18 (or five percent) project contingency, the project budget has been set at $402,090.85.

Mr. Williamson explained that the cost of the project will be paid

Trudeau 2.0 will make for fascinating political drama

Quite the weekend: Mr. Mulcair, at a national policy meeting of the NDP, gets a 92 percent approval rating while the Liberals give the leadership of their national party to Justin Trudeau by what it would be an understatement to call a landslide victory.

While the Liberals' second-place finisher in the leadership race espoused a "unite the progressive parties" stand, her runner-up position was so far behind Mr. Trudeau's support that it's clear that the mainstream Liberals currently have no stomach for making common cause with the NDP, especially since they once again have a Trudeau at the helm.

We'll see.

We have predicted in this space a couple of times that Mr. Harper should be good for one more majority government following the 2015 election while the 2019 tilt should be up for grabs not least of all because by then the Tories will have been in office long enough for the country to want a change.

Having awarded Mr. Harper another mandate in 2015, we should also hasten to say that his government could just as easily stumble and fall between now and then in spite of the great lengths the Prime Minister's Office goes to to avoid embarrassing missteps by back-benchers through the vigorous authority of the party whip who is not at all shy about telling MPs precisely what they can and cannot do.

This is no doubt in large measure because Mr. Harper does not enjoy an enormous amount of bench strength, in spite of his large caucus.

Indeed, the ministers closest to him, who are clearly very loyal, are almost all from Ontario where they honed their talents as part of Progressive Conservative Premier Mike Harris' cabinet between 1995 and 2002.

While Mr. Harper keeps his caucus, by and large, in check, he has had this past winter some embarrassing moments with several Conservative senators (joined by at least one Liberal) who have made financial claims for which at least a few of them are not entitled.

The next couple of years will be particularly interesting as the Conservatives will, predictably, try to advertise Justin Trudeau into political oblivion with attack ads (they began before he won his party's leadership, in fact) while the New Democratic Party will be doing everything possible to maintain all of those Quebec seats that propelled them to Official Opposition status while simultaneously denying the Conservatives much more than a foothold in this keystone province.

We're unlikely to see the young Mr. Trudeau elevated to the near-cult status that his late father engendered in the heady days of Trudeaumania nearly 45 years ago (many of us thought at that time that this ostensibly new word "charisma" had been coined purely in PET's honour) but nevertheless it will be more than a little bit interesting to see how Justin Trudeau grows into the job for which, other than being born into 44 Sussex Drive, he really has not a lot of practical experience. Some, yes, but not a lot.

One thing is for certain: the young Mr. Trudeau will be doing everything possible to show Canadians that he is just as capable of managing his caucus and eventually serving as prime minister as Mr. Harper and Mr. Mulcair.

And these two gentleman will not lose a step in trying to trip him up, likely especially Mr. Mulcair for if the New Democrats can succeed in eating the Liberals' lunch, especially when the lunchmaker is a Trudeau, they'll be seeing the way clear to absorbing the Liberal brand and giving Canada a two-party system in which they'll eventually be guaranteed to form the government.

The next two years in particular will make for fascinating political drama as Mr. Trudeau gets his leadership legs under him while the other national parties do their best to false-foot him (and one another).

Enniskillen mayor skeptical of openness on Green Energy Act

Contact your MPP and ask them to support the Ensuring Affordable Energy Act

To the Expositor:

During the Ontario Liberal leadership campaign, Kathleen Wynne promised to give municipalities across Ontario more say when it comes to wind farms, after the Green Energy Act of 2009 took that power completely away. To date my correspondence with the new premier leads me to believe that she is not planning to live up to that promise. It would seem that the common trend of making promises during campaigns and then renegeing on those promises once in power is happening yet again.

On March 26 Lisa Thompson MPP (Huron-Bruce) introduced a private member's bill called "Ensuring Affordable Energy Act" which would give municipalities like ours, and many others, democracy back where it belongs. The residents of many communities have been torn apart by whether or not to build wind turbines in their neighbourhoods. Whether or not you believe that wind turbines are the right answer to Ontario's future energy needs, there are communities that are willing hosts and there are communities who are not.

There is much anticipation that on April 18, 2013, both Liberal and NDP members will support a return to democracy in Ontario's rural areas by supporting this bill. With the political climate at Queen's Park if these two parties do not support this bill, then a spring election would be more than welcome. This is not a bill that concerns whether or not Ontario should support green energy; it's about having something very important and fundamental to Canadians restored and maintained, namely democracy.

I strongly suggest everyone to contact their MPP and ask them to support this very important piece of legislation.

Mindemoya Conservative weighs in on Liberal leadership

Liberals marketing Justin Trudeau as second coming of Christ

To the Expositor:

This past weekend the federal Liberals elected Justin Trudeau as leader of their party. This hardly came as a surprise.

Like three out of four such contests that this once mighty political party has held in less than 10 short years since their political fortunes went into the dump, this one was again more in the nature of a coronation than a leadership race in any real sense of the term. Witness the 80 percent first ballot victory by the winner.

For the past eight months the Liberals have trotted out Justin Trudeau as a cross between a modern day rock star and the second coming of Christ. For better or for worse, the Liberals have cast their lot with a 'show pony' to lift themselves out of the doldrums. Only time will tell if Justin Trudeau has more to offer Canada than charm, good looks, and name-brand recognition.

Another federal election is looming as early as the year 2015. Let us hope by that time the dust will have settled, and that the only Canadians still star-struck will be limited to those of the hard core Liberal variety.

The rest of us would be wise to take heed of what Stephen Leacock, the great Canadian writer and humourist once said about one hundred years ago: "Many a man who has fallen in love with a dimple, makes the mistake of marrying the whole girl."

CMPS students participate in Regional Science Fair

Over the weekend, Grade 7 Central Manitoulin Public School student Grace Duncanson and Grade 8 students Savanna Webb and Brynn Kiley participated in the 44th annual Sudbury Regional Science Fair in the Great Hall at Laurentian University, along with 100 other budding scientists from Grade 7 to Grade 12. Grace presented her topic of 'fixing fabrics forever' with Savanna and Brynn showcasing their topic of the 'strength of natural dye.' Brynn and Savanna were chosen for the Laurentian University Chemistry/Biochemistry Award by a panel of the university's chemistry professors. "It's a great opportunity for them to showcase their communication skills and opens their eyes to other projects as they become budding scientists," said Bruce Lindsay, CMPS Grade 8 teacher.

Lifelong Island political observer dissects the body politic

EDITOR'S NOTE: Perry Anglin, a lifelong political observer and proud resident of Manitoulin, has kept an eye on the recent national maneuverings of the three major political parties. His observations, based on both current events and the precedents each party has in its baggage, follow here.

by Perry Anglin

Like family sagas sprawling over the first two generations of television, the Liberal, New Democratic, and Conservative parties have opened a new political season with episodes leaving us guessing.

Does Justin Trudeau have the right stuff? Will his party organization unite and expand?

Will Thomas Mulcair lose Quebec to Trudeau? Has the NDP cast off a taint of socialism?

Is the Harper government faltering? Will the Conservatives change leaders?

On the last question, the current decline in the polls for Mr. Harper and unrest on his back benches may signal the beginning of the end.

After reducing the GST by enough to have otherwise balanced the budget, Mr. Harper has shot his bolt on tax cuts if he wants to track toward a balanced budget. He can still limit government, but not enough to satisfy the radical right and will pay some political price for doing so.

Above all, he will lose much support from evangelicals and other opponents of abortion and equality of marriage. That will cost him votes and political donations, with no corporate funding allowed to make up the loss.

He is the only member of his cabinet with enough stature to end his political career. Any battle by little-known hopefuls to succeed him would be bitter and messy. He still has cards up his sleeve, such as negative attack ads and trying to split the progressive vote over free-trade with Europe. He may even be tempted to force an early election on the issue, claiming its importance to the economy.

As to the Liberals, Justin Trudeau overwhelmed a mostly feeble field, except perhaps for Martha Hall Findlay, who was engaging and comfortable with the Liberal right wing. She finished behind distant runner-up Joyce Murray. Murray had urged cooperation between the opposition parties in order to defeat Harper, as did BC MP Nathan Cullen in getting almost half as many votes as Mulcair at the last NDP leadership convention.

Although some of their followers may choose to vote tactically, Thomas Mulcair and Justin Trudeau condemned any formal co-operation. Mulcair gave as a reason his distrust of the Liberals since they had reneged on an agreement to form a coalition government to oust the Harper government.

(Harper also survived by catching a dubious cooling off break from then Governor General Michelle Jean. In another such situation, he could expect another break from Governor General David Johnson, whom he appointed. When he was president of the University of Waterloo and had been appointed to lead the inquiry into issues that followed former Prime Minister Mulroney for many years, Johnson had given Conservatives a break by framing the terms of a public inquiry—into controversial payments to Mulroney—to exclude examination of Airbus lobbying, a suspected source of the money. "Well tilled ground," said Mr. Johnson, implausibly.)

Some speculate there could indeed be another attempt at a coalition if Harper were to come first next in two years in the now-mandated 2015 federal election, but without a majority. If so, would the coalition—against the pale, bland Harper, by then 53—be led by the pleasant and experienced Quebecer Thomas Mulcair, 58, or by the eloquent and magnetic Quebecer Justin Trudeau, 41?

With actor's hair, his father's cheekbones, and his mother's warmth, Justin Trudeau can tone it down, as he did Sunday, but is at times the most theatrical orator in our politics since John Diefenbaker.

Dief, as his fans called him, was electrifying on television, pointing at us with a bony finger and a curly-haired widow's peak.

"I have a vision," he intoned.

was that until a generation ago Liberals always circled the wagons to protect their leaders, and then began in the 1980s to aim some bullets inward.

Pierre Trudeau was the last Liberal Prime Minister to command loyalty from the Liberal family, unless you count the time when John Turner resigned as Trudeau's Finance Minister over something that few can remember.

Loyalty to the leader and smooth succession planning were Liberal hallmarks beginning with Mackenzie King, the longest serving Canadian Prime Minister. Madding on small matters, and patient in waiting for public acceptance on large ones, he

to both moves.)

Although the leadership convention won by Trudeau was hotly contested by eminent cabinet ministers and a rising Eric Kierans, it was more a less an affair among gentlemen, with the exception of the acid-tongued Judy LaMarsh, caught on camera wanting to "stop that bastard Trudeau!"

(Pearson, the former diplomat, was indignant that a TV camera had intruded into that private exhortation, and argued the point later with those of us reporters who invoked the virtues of transparency.)

Gentleman is not a word Pearson would have used when Trudeau stopped the Commons in

Then Toronto Star reporter Perry Anglin, of Mindemoya, the author of this piece, was in the room as a member of the media when this iconic photograph of four past and future Canadian prime ministers was taken. Mr. Anglin has spent a lifetime at the epicentre of many historic moments in Canadian history, as a journalist, as a political operative and as a top senior civil servant. Pictured are, from left, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, John Turner, Jean Chretien and East Algoma's own Mike Pearson, then (in 1967) in his final year as prime minister and MP for Manitoulin.

Caricatured by cartoonist Duncan MacPherson as a disdainful Marie Antoinette, and by Peter Newman as a "Renegade in Power," the first gossip bestseller on Canadian politics, Diefenbaker's vision turned out to be pretty much the status quo. He did almost nothing.

Perhaps his most memorable legacies are a "One Canada" credo of "un-hyphenated Canadianism," mirrored, with more intellectual rigour, by Pierre Trudeau, and Diefenbaker's weak Bill of Rights law, superseded by the powerful Charter of Rights that Trudeau embedded in the constitution.

"I stood!" Diefenbaker would declaim time and again. He was the first post-war Conservative leader seeming to stand for much more than lower taxes.

He was brought down from within his party, which had made a habit of decapitating the head of the family. It revived the custom when Mulroney forces unseated Joe Clark.

New Democrats have had fierce fights over policy, but also a tradition of loyalty to their leaders, revering some, including Tommy Douglas and Jack Layton, as secular saints. Still, Mulcair pleaded tellingly for party unity during his speech last Saturday—to a cheering policy convention that distanced the NDP from socialism, gave him an impressive 92 per cent confidence vote and chose a party president by acclamation.

To weigh Justin Trudeau's chances, it is important to appreciate the declaration, in his acceptance speech, that Liberals are no longer "focused on fighting each other."

So it is worth rehearsing how it recruited and groomed his successor, Louis St. Laurent.

King also recruited Lester Pearson to his cabinet, perhaps reluctantly, since his diary records that he had counseled Pearson to get elected first as a backbencher. But Pearson was already the foreign minister when he sought his first election, in the riding that included Manitoulin.

After a leadership convention chose St. Laurent, King stayed on for a few months as Prime Minister in order to make a farewell tour of Europe to collect honors and medals. (As a small boy, this writer and his father accompanied Mr. Pearson and Mr. St. Laurent to see King board a train to begin his journey.)

St. Laurent groomed Pearson to succeed him at a lightly contested leadership convention. Pearson's genial personality and Nobel Peace prize helped immensely.

None of Pearson's ministers challenged him personally in the course of his tumultuous government, ridden by minor scandals and policy battles—over foreign investment and when to bring in medicare. It was, Pearson laughed ruefully, "the only ship of state that leaked from the top."

Pearson mentored Jean Chretien, promoted John Turner and recruited Pierre Trudeau, whom he appointed Minister of Justice. Very shortly before a leadership convention held to choose his successor, Pearson put the spotlight on Trudeau at a lively constitutional conference and sent Trudeau to tour provincial capitals beforehand. Pearson leaked news of the tour in advance and later quietly tipped his hand in favour of Trudeau in the leadership race. (As a political reporter at the time, this writer can attest its tracks by announcing a snap election before the opposition leaders could pay customary tributes to an outgoing Prime Minister—tributes, as Pearson said later, with characteristic wit, to his contributions to Canada, to the world, and to "the entire interplanetary system."

He kept quiet publicly when he was incensed that Trudeau was profoundly undiplomatic on national television in confronting the Quebec crisis precipitated by political kidnapping (followed later by murder). Pearson had always preferred finesse in coping with Quebec nationalism.

Trudeau had a reasonably congenial cabinet, though John Turner apparently put his own reputation above party interest when he resigned as Finance Minister—possibly the worst blow that a Finance Minister can deliberately deal to a government.

Turner succeeded Trudeau very briefly as Prime Minister, after agreeing to make some patronage appointments at Trudeau's request. (To his claim in a TV debate that he had no choice, his Conservative opponent Bryan Mulroney thundered triumphantly: "You had an option, sir. You had an option!")

The patronage agreement was apparently the price of a quick transition. Did Trudeau, no fool, know that it would cost Turner dearly?

Midway in an election campaign, rumours of insurrection by some Trudeau loyalists helped to defeat Turner. And he was on the wrong side of history in opposing Mulroney's free trade agreement with the United States.

Gentlemanly conduct perished after Jean Chretien defeated Paul Martin to win the leadership.

Martin, named Finance Minister by Chretien, allowed his supporters to undermine the Prime Minister. (One such rebel publicly bragged during a dinner in Providence Bay that he had refused repeated invitations to have lunch with Prime Minister Chretien.)

Martin decided to deal the body-blow of a Finance Minister, like Turner before him, and resigned for obscure reasons.

His supporters seized party machinery and signed up most of some 500,000 new members to the party. (They later vanished without a trace.) Chretien won three majority governments, but was forced by Martinites in the Liberal caucus to say publicly in advance of the third election that it would be his last.

In contrast to King's gentlemanly transition to St. Laurent, Martin pushed to get Chretien out the door as soon as possible after Martin won a perfunctory leadership contest. That push meant he inherited the sponsorship scandal (over a mismanaged program to burnish federal identity in Quebec). Had he been given another month or two, Chretien could have buried a damning Auditor General's report presumably, on his desk by then, referring it to the RCMP.

How hard did Chretien, also no fool, try to warn Martin off?

In the event, Martin magnified the whole affair, and in Quebec destroyed his chance at a majority government. Party infighting also took its toll on the subsequent leaders - Stephen Dion and Michael Ignatieff —who were surrounded by feuding old men. Even in the last ten days, Chretien chose not to share stages in Toronto with Turner and Martin.

Justin Trudeau, whose staff reportedly doesn't answer calls from factious old supporters who carry a grudge, may now have an otherwise united party. He is still handicapped in Quebec, however, by Martin's zeal in amplifying the feckless sponsorship program that was part of Chretien's efforts to combat separation.

He is also handicapped by his father's legacy of attacking Quebec nationalism. He is almost alone on that, except for Deborah Coyne, his half-sister's mother, who ran poorly against him on the slogan "One Canada."

In another challenge, Justin Trudeau inherits a ramshackle, broken party.

An emphatic vote at the leadership convention that chose Stephane Dion decided to continue to select future leaders by delegates to a convention. But party managers got that reversed at a lightly attended convention in Vancouver which anointed Michael Ignatieff as leader. He had already been selected without involving grassroot members.

In order to dress up a one-member-one vote selection process, a free "supporter" category was invented. It would enlarge the total number of votes cast for a leader, create an illusion of strength, and provide a data base that it was hoped could be mined for donations.

This gave genuine party members, already disregarded on policy, less reason to belong, except to perform chores at election time and to choose local candidates—a far cry from having a significant say at exciting leadership conventions. Paid-up members could even be outvoted by "supporters" at annual association meetings.

Put in perspective, the party recently signed up some 300,000 of the so-called supporters, compared with the 500,000 paid-up members reported on this page when Martin was selected as leader.

Of the recent 300,000 support-

Manitoulin Sporting Life

CMPS Eagles take the bronze in RDSB's Tournament

Last Wednesday the Central Manitoulin's boys' basketball team went to Sudbury to play in the Rainbow Board tournament. The team worked hard and played incredible defense defeating both Pinecrest and Northeastern to advance to the semi finals on Thursday. They outplayed and outshot Princess Ann in the semis but lost 24-21 by a close 3 point margin. The Eagles advanced to the bronze medal game and defeated A.B. Ellis with a score of 21 - 14. Mason Pine was the high scorer for the team with several impressive 3 point shots and incredible steals. Greg Doane was also a force on the court with countless interceptions and strong defence. The whole team showed amazing hustle and determination. On top of that they were good sports and represented the school in CMPS style! Members of the team are Adam Robinson, Eric Robinson, Mason Pine, Greg Doane, Dawson Campbell, James Scott, Cole King, Matthew Redmond, Chris Haner, CJ Wilson and coach Tracey Chapman.

Mustang Minute

The Manitoulin Secondary School badminton team competed at NSSSA in Elliot Lake last week. All of the team members gave it a great effort against a competitive field. Congratulations to Tyler King in Junior Mens' Singles and Jamey Van Horn in Senior Ladies' Singles who both qualified for NOSSA.

CrossFit Regional hopefuls

The CrossFit Regional qualification format is a little different this year. Instead of taking the top 60 this year, it is a 2-stage process; they invite the top 48 and then invite more a week later to fill in the spots for those that declined in the top 48. Lucas Proulx, who finished in 54th out of 2800 men in Canada east, and Tina Balfe was 49th out of 1850 women both await their invite. Both athletes finished in the top 2 percent worldwide in their respective categories!

Quite an accomplishment especially when you consider that the field continues to get more competitive year after year. For example one male competitor at last year's Eastern Canada Regional's who finished 7th could only muster 55th this year. Lucas, relatively speaking, was way behind this athlete last year and beat him this year so it makes our local athlete's results all the more impressive.

Other athletes on par with their peers are Ann Beam and Peter Tallman. The pair finished 3rd and 6th respectively for Eastern Canada in their Master's Divisions.

Once again the CrossFit Open was a great experience for everyone who improved by leaps and bounds, especially the students. Coach Tina Balfe is really encouraged for the future of CrossFit Genetic Potential. With such a strong core of keen Grade 9s out this year they hope to be able to register in the Team Division in again in 2016. Everyone that participated is looking forward to comparing their scores again next year to see their improvement!

Local player to skate for Ontario

Congratulations to Little Current's Dylan Callaghan, who has been chosen to represent Ontario at the National Aboriginal Hockey Championships held in Kahnawake, Quebec from April 29 to May 4 in a couple of weeks. Good luck Dylan!

Panther Points

The Manitoulin Panthers have two more days of their spring try-outs. In the meantime the organization has announced their roster of coaches for the 2013 – 2014 season. Hats off to Atom Coach Jonas Bondy, PeeWees – Craig Abotossaway, Bantams – Steve Doane and the Midget skipper will be Mike Meeker. Good luck, guys.

Also note that the Panthers annual general meeting (AGM) will take place on May 15 at 7 pm in the Little Current Arena. If anyone would like to propose amendments to the Constitution they need to be forwarded to Sherri Cristo no later than 14 days prior (May 1st) to be considered for ratification. Visit the Panther website at: www.manitoulinpanthers.ca.

Local runners stunned by Boston bombing

by Michael Erskine

MANITOULIN—Steve Fessenden of Little Current knows the thrill and exhilaration of crossing the finish line at the Boston Marathon, he and his wife Laurel Leconte have completed the race a number of times, but he can only guess at the feeling of horror when that moment of glory turns to terror in the wake of a terrorist attack.

"I am absolutely amazed that only two people were killed," said Mr. Fessenden, who had seen media coverage of the location of the explosions close beside the finish line. "That is an area that is absolutely packed with friends and family gathering to congratulate the runners as they cross the finish line."

Mr. Fessenden noted that the length of the Boston Marathon, which attracts more than 500,000 spectators during its annual run, is heavily crowded. "The whole scene is chaotic without the terror of an explosion," he said. "It is normally difficult to get to people who are injured. The place where the bombs were planted were where the maximum number of people gather."

Mr. Fessenden spent much of the time following news of the attacks frantically phoning friends and colleagues in the running community. "All of the people we know seem to be okay," he said. "We have called everyone we can think of and they are all accounted for."

There were close calls, however, one friend's time was listed at four hours and nine minutes. "She was five minutes past the finish line when the bombs exploded," said Mr. Fessenden.

Mr. Fessenden recalled the moments before he stepped across the finish line for the first time in his own personal triumph, a feat he accomplished no less than four times in Boston. "I remember seeing the finish line coming up and thinking 'I am going to make it' but that line just didn't seem to be getting any closer," he recalled.

The streets of Boston were on lockdown and a no-fly zone had been declared over the city at press time Monday, with three people declared dead, among them an eight-year-old boy. Runners were being redirected to a new staging area and a new location for friends and family to meet had been arranged and announced.

Both Mr. Fessenden and his wife have planned to return to the race, which is the second oldest running event in North America, but the pressures of a young family and their careers have precluded that happening this year. Mr. Fessenden competed in the Boston Marathon between 2007 and 2010.

Espanola hockey plans require Island support

by Michael Erskine

NORTH BAY—Plans to move a Northern Ontario Junior Hockey Association League (NOJHL) Junior A team from North Bay to Espanola for next season are nearly complete. Both the Northern Ontario Hockey Association and the NOJHL boards have granted approval for the move, with only Hockey Canada's signature remaining outstanding, but if Manitoulin hockey fans don't buy in, plans to bring Junior level hockey to Espanola may not go forward.

NOJHL franchise owner/governor Tim Clayden met with the Espanola community on March 18 to answer questions and share his program's philosophy.

"We did look at Little Current (as a site for the team) first," said Mr. Clayden. "But when it came to facilities, the gym, pool and library, Espanola was chosen."

According to Mr. Clayden, plans are at an advanced stage. "The ice contract with the town (Espanola) is in the final stages of negotiations," he said. "Payment plan collection is delayed until the contract is solidified, but over 102 season seats have been sold to date." There is still a way to go before the goal of 200 season tickets is needed, but the deadline of April 30 still a way off.

The overall target is to sell 300 season tickets to make the team truly viable, but the 200 ticket milestone is the first that needs to be crossed. In order to induce people to sign up, the team is offering some great incentives. Purchase a ticket before April 30 and fans get a chance to win two tickets to the Central Canadian Championships in North Bay this May, or two Manitoulin Country Fest Tickets. There has already been an early-bird winner. Kevin Kay won the first two tickets to the Dudley Hewitt Cup for purchasing his ticket before March 15.

"The Junior 'A' Hockey Club needs to know that we have the backing of the community to risk the investment," said Mr. Clayden. "We think it is fair to ask 200 area Junior hockey fans and 50 local businesses to purchase their very own preferred seating season tickets. If you want a sustainable Junior A hockey team in Espanola for years to come, we urge you to show your support with your purchase of a season's ticket pass before April 30. The $40 deposit is held in trust by the town (Espanola) and refundable should the deal not close."

Manitoulin Island and the North Shore are a vital part of the mix. "We need Island hockey fans to come on board," said Mr. Clayden. "It is important to have the Anishinaabe communities involved, particularly for the Anishinabe component of the team. There are four kids from the Island now playing triple A, one in the Sault and three in Sudbury," he said.

"Having a team in Espanola would be a definite asset for those players and their families."

For season ticket information, hockey fans should contact the Espanola recreation complex at 705-869-1961 or visit www.espanolajuniorhockey.com online.

Education is key in making healthy food choices

by Sharon Jackson

KAGAWONG—Representatives from Island municipalities were invited to a workshop to listen to and participate in a presentation from Mary Pheasant, healthy food policy project coordinator, and Linda Belton, public health nurse from the Sudbury and District Health Unit. The two were among 21 key health service providers (and interested community members) who provided valuable input and guidance into the realization of this policy.

Ms. Belton began by welcoming everyone for coming to the presentation. There was representation from Billings, Burpee-Mills, Gordon-Barrie Island, Assiginack, Gore Bay, and community reps from Aundeck Omni Kaning (AOK) and Wikwemikong.

Ms. Pheasant introduced herself, explaining she was brought in a year ago by the Noojmowin Teg Health Centre through the Heart and Stroke Spark Advocacy Development Grant Program to work on a food policy project. "It is hoped that this project will increase access to healthy food by encouraging municipalities, agencies, community organizations, and other leadership on Manitoulin, to encourage policies of offering healthy food choices, including traditional Indigenous foods when appropriate, for families and children attending programs and events," stated Ms. Pheasant.

"Three meetings have been held so far," commented Ms. Pheasant, both on and off reserve. A lot of people were involved in the process which included experts/educators in diabetes, agriculture, children's services, health and physical education, registered dietitian, registered nurses, and organic farmers. "Everyone is keen to move forward with the project that began in 2012. The questions to be addressed today are what is the policy and how do we implement it?"

The purpose of the tool kit that was handed out is described: "as community organizations, we are leaders in the promotion of health and well-being. Nutritious, healthy, and safe foods should be provided at all organizations and community events, gatherings, and catered functions. This toolkit (which is designed for organizations, aboriginal and non-aboriginal interested in promoting healthy eating in the workplace and at organization led events) will provide guidelines and resources to support the implementation of a healthy eating policy at your organization."

The Healthy Food Policy will encourage a positive focus on quality nutritious foods that are appropriate for various lifestyles. Part of this policy will focus on re-establishing the principles of health promotion, which used to be more common in many communities and cultures. Manitoulin's own culture is embedded in First Nation teaching, of which can have positive impacts on how communities may approach food and nutrition.

Ms. Pheasant found making the policy "culturally relevant" a challenge. Having worked for many years to promote healthy eating as a counsellor in the social work field, the topic of food always came to the forefront. "Food is one of the basic necessities of life," she stated. Ms. Pheasant often found a lack of access to enough food and nutritious eating to be a real issue. "Food was a really high priority. Food is very important and has a high impact on our lives."

"Traditional eating, as taught by our ancestors, was through the gathering of nuts, berries and hunting wild game. It became necessary to make it relevant: to learn scientific aspects of what was in traditional food. There were no stores: everyone had to hunt, gather and fish."

"Teaching our young children to make better choices is where it must begin," stated Ms. Pheasant. Children in school are introduced to the Canada Food Guide (four food groups vegetables and fruit, meats and alternatives, grain products and milk and alternatives) and sometimes are more educated than their parents if they were never exposed to it.

"It is not our children who are preparing the food. Parents need to learn what kids are (learning) so they prepare healthy food for them at home," she continued, commenting "it starts from inception."

"We need to get back to the knowledge our ancestors had. We have been thrown off track and we need to pick it back up again and use the Healthy Food Policy as our tool," stated Ms. Pheasant.

"I knew it would be a challenge, however it is very exciting. A lot of people want to do this (eat healthier and get back to the basics taught from our ancestors)."

One of Ms. Pheasant's stories was of an elderly man who insists, "I am Penti Palonen, representing Burpee-Mills, shared that he had been raised on a farm and that he "started eating what we could grow. We still do it. I am interested in maintaining a relatively healthy diet." He felt that a lot of people are not very adventurous when it comes to experimenting with new and different foods like kale or kohlrabi.

Ms. Pheasant stated "it's about balance: too much of anything is not good for us."

Putting the policy together has created "lots of interest and involved work done by many, many people." The next step is how to implement it and get it out into the communities.

Ms. Belton summed up by saying parents and community leaders need to be a role model. "Don't be afraid to experiment. Involve kids, ask them to shell peas from the garden, or shuck corn so they have a sense of having made a contribution. Let them have their own patch of garden."

Ms. Belton and Ms. Pheasant's next step is to present their concept in person to each municipality.

Billings council was their first stop the same evening as the morning seminar.

"We wanted it to be user friendly," she shared with members of council. "We have had a lot of feedback and guidance in putting the policy together. We are asking the municipalities to adopt the food policy to encourage residents to eat healthy. When groups are renting the Park Centre for events, it is a good idea to make a copy of the policy available to them. This is a good guide and tool for caterers for their food preparation."

Mayor Austin Hunt asked if they had many people in the community out to the meetings. Ms. Belton advised the turnout was actually low as it involved developing policy and it is sometimes difficult to attract people at that stage of the process.

Mayor Hunt and members of council were receptive to the Healthy Eating Guideline and Tool Kit for Manitoulin and told the delegation, "I'm sure we'll do what we can to help you."

Councillor Kim Bilbija said the township is in the process of implementing a new website and they could "link out website to theirs." This would make it possible for residents to have access to a community food directory and be added as a resource.

Ms. Belton ended by saying, "we look forward to seeing policy from Billings."

The policy's mandate states: "challenging all Manitoulin organizations and communities to become a community role model by having, and using, a healthy eating guideline or policy." Visit them online at www.noojmowin-teg.com.

This 9th grader is a multi-talented athlete and puts a lot of dedication into the work he does. 15 year-old Carter Noble of Gore Bay used to go to C.C. McClean Public School. He was involved in all the sports possible, from cross-country to baseball. During cross-country season, Carter placed 1st in the Wiky Invitational and 2nd at the Gore Bay meet. In addition, during track season, he was rewarded with a silver medal overall.

When Carter came to high school this past September, he joined the cross-country team right away. The midget boys of grade 9 did extremely well, and advanced to OFSAA down south. Not only did Carter do cross-country, he was also on the badminton team. Just last month, MSS went to Elliot Lake Secondary School for NSSSA. Carter went into the midget doubles division with Isaac Sloss. With little practice, the boys did well, placing second. Although the boys made it to NOSSA, they both couldn't attend it because of other commitments. Carter is now looking forward to track season in the upcoming month.

Carter's all-time favorite sport is hockey. He played for the Manitoulin Panthers this year, in the bantam division. His team did tremendously well, placing second overall. They ended up losing to Blind River in the finals. In addition, his team has also won the silver medal in three different championships.

In Carter's spare time, he likes to go dirt biking, fishing, hunting, and play hockey. He really looks forward to all the school sports and involvement around MSS. In addition, he is looking forward to getting an education, but isn't sure what he wants to do in the future. Good luck on all of your future goals and wishes, Carter!

NDP convention ignores Liberals to target Tories

by Alicia McCutcheon

MONTREAL—Paying no mind to the simultaneous Liberal leadership convention and subsequent election of Justin Trudeau as Liberal leader, New Democratic Party (NDP) leader Thomas Mulcair led upwards of 2,000 party faithful in a policy convention over the weekend in Montreal—a symbolic choice of location considering the NDP's push into la belle province during the last federal election. The gathering supported Mr. Mulcair's continuing leadership, giving him a 92 percent approval rating.

Among the many resolutions passed, the NDP also adopted a new preamble to its constitution, removing the word 'socialist.'

"Canada is a great country, one of the hopes of the world," the introduction of the preamble states. "New Democrats are Canadians who believe we can be a better one—a country of greater equality, justice, and opportunity. We can build sustainable prosperity, and a society that shares its benefits more fairly. We can look after our seniors. We can offer better futures for our children. We can do our part to save the world's environment."

The preamble reflects New Democrat traditions and pays tribute to Canadians who worked within the "farmer, labour, co-operative, feminist, human rights and environmental movements, First Nations, Métis and Inuit peoples, to build a more just, equal, and sustainable Canada within a global community dedicated to the same goals," it continues. "New Democrats affirm a role for government in helping to create the conditions for sustainable prosperity. We believe in a rules based economy, nationally and globally, in which governments have the power to address the limitations of the market in addressing the common good, by having the power to act in the public interest, for social and economic justice, and for the integrity of the environment."

The convention passed two resolutions in regards to the Idle No More movement, put forward by the Aboriginal Commission.

The first, with regard to the crisis many First Nations communities face, such as Attawapiskat in Northern Ontario, states:

"Whereas the continuing inaction of the Conservative government has pushed the already heightened sense of frustration felt by First Nations expressed through the Idle No More grassroots movement to a tipping point; and whereas in a country like ours, no one should have to risk their health to be heard by this government; and whereas the path that this Conservative government has chosen unnecessarily escalates tension among First Nations and sets the stage for future confrontations; be it resolved that the New Democratic Party demands the immediate fulfillment of commitments made by the Government of Canada at both the January 24, 2012 and January 11, 2013 meetings; and be it further resolved that a New Democrat government would renew the Crown-First Nations relationship on a respectful nation-to-nation basis."

The second resolution regarding Idle No More states: "Whereas years of inaction and broken promises from successive Liberal and Conservative government has led to severe social injustice and shocking poverty in too many communities; whereas as a consequence we are witnessing an historic and growing grassroots movement joining Indigenous peoples and other Canadians in a long overdue conversation; be it resolved that the New Democratic Party continues to work towards building a new relationship on a nation-to-nation basis with First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples; be it also resolved that the NDP engages with grassroots aboriginal activists who are calling on the Government of Canada to repeal legislation like omnibus bill C-38 and C-45 that diminishes environmental protections of land and water and affect aboriginal and indigenous rights and title."

Also on the topic of First Nations people, a resolution on aboriginal education and the realization of the Shannen's Dream motion (Shannen's Dream is named for the late Shannen Koostachin, a First Nations youth who lobbied the federal government regarding equal education after her Attawapiskat school was condemned) was passed which will see the NDP work towards the realization of this motion with the help of First Nations leaders, guaranteeing First Nations children access to the same standard of education as other Canadian children.

A resolution calling on the federal government to launch a national inquiry into missing and murdered aboriginal women, by consulting aboriginal women, was also approved by the delegates.

New Democrat members voted in favour of a resolution calling on the Conservative government to cancel the gutting of environmental protections and adopt concrete measures to ensure a healthy environment for future generations, the NDP website states.

"New Democrats urge the Conservative government to cancel its amendments to fish habitat protection, the Navigable Waters Protection Act and the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act," said NDP Environment critic Megan Leslie (Halifax). "These measures go against the interests of future generations. Instead of reinforcing our environmental protections, the Conservatives chose to gut our existing laws, make cuts to science and research and refused to take action on climate change."

Justin Trudeau wins landslide Liberal leadership victory

by Michael Erskine

OTTAWA—In one of the least surprising results in the history of Liberal Party of Canada (LPC) leadership races, Justin Trudeau, son of the late Canadian former Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, won a landslide victory over his six remaining opponents. Mr. Trudeau the younger received more than 80 percent of the vote to secure a first ballot win.

The Liberal leadership vote took place online and by telephone over the course of a week, culminating in Sunday's announcement ceremonies held at the Westin Hotel conference centre in Ottawa. The turnout for the vote also surpassed 80 percent, engaging more than 105,000 participants; with more electors voting in this Liberal leadership contest than for any Canadian leadership contest in the nation's history.

Those electors were made up of both federal Liberal party members and those who signed up as supporters of the party, expanding the LPC base and providing a fertile fishing ground for volunteers and fundraising efforts to bring the once mighty electoral juggernaut into the 21st century.

"It is with great pleasure that I offer my congratulations to Justin Trudeau on his election as Leader of the Liberal Party of Canada," said outgoing interim leader Bob Rae in a statement on Mr. Trudeau's election. "Justin's victory is a testament to his industriousness, personal appeal and the resonance of his message that with hope and hard work we can make our party and our country better."

Critical to the LPC going forward are keeping the 12,000 new volunteers that were engaged in the leadership process, including those of Mr. Trudeau's rivals. The overwhelming victory by Mr. Trudeau has been cited as driving stake through the heart of the internecine squabbling that has ensnared the party's internal workings since the Martin-Chretien divide.

In that spirit Mr. Trudeau's second acknowledgement, following a tribute to his wife and family was to reach out to his rivals' supporters, including three of those who withdrew before the final vote. "To my fellow candidates, Joyce (Murray), Martha Hall Findlay, Karen McCrimmon, Deborah (Coyne), Martin (Cauchon), David (Bertshi), George (Takach) and Marc (Garnier), and to the thousands of Canadians who worked on your campaigns, I want to say: 'we are not adversaries but allies'. Your courage, intelligence and commitment will continue to bring honour to the Liberal Party of Canada," he said.

The new leader went on to fire a preemptive shot across the bow of the Conservative Party of Canada, referencing an anticipated wave of negative advertising such as that which met his predecessors upon their ascension to the Liberal leadership. "The Conservative Party will now do what it does. It will try to spread fear. It will sow cynicism. It will attempt to convince Canadians that we should be satisfied with what we have now," said Mr. Trudeau. "For at the heart of their unambitious agenda is the idea that 'better' is just not possible. That to hope for something more from our politics and our leaders, more humanity, more transparency, more compassion, is naive and inevitably, will lead to disappointment. And they will promote that divisive and destructive idea with passionate intensity. They will do so for a simple reason. They are afraid. But, and I want to make this perfectly clear, my fellow Canadians, it is not my leadership that Mr. Harper and his party fear. It's yours. There is nothing that these Conservatives fear more than an engaged and informed Canadian citizen."

The election of the new LPC leader followed a general election of registered electors (members and supporters both had to register in order to receive a PIN to vote) weighted by riding. Each of the 308 ridings across Canada were awarded 100 points, with those points divided among the contenders according to the number of votes cast in their favour in that riding. Justin Trudeau received 24,668.71 points (80.09 percent), Joyce Murray received 3,130.76 points (10.16 percent), Martha Hall Findlay received 1,760.43 points (5.72 percent), Martin Cauchon received 815.86 points (2.65 percent), Deborah Coyne received 214.14 points (.70 percent) and Karen McCrimmon received 210.08 points (.68 percent).

The Liberal leadership race played against a backdrop of rising fortunes in the polls, largely attributed to the celebrity of Mr. Trudeau and his popularity as the date of the leadership vote came closer and the general anticipation of his win. Those polls show the Liberals once again in contention with the governing Conservatives, essentially bringing the party back to where it stood in the polls upon the election of Michael Ignatieff as leader.

...Island farmers again have local sales barn

as high as 965, but were typically within the 750-950 range," Mr. Millsap explained. "We had a good response that day. They got as good, or better, than they would have got down south." A Manitoulin sale also saves on trucking costs, which means more money in the farmer's pocket, he added.

Mr. Millsap said he and Mr. McDowell are open to all suggestions for sales, even sheep.

For now, the Sim's Road sales barn will act as a depot for meat cows before they are shipped to southern Ontario, as there are simply not enough here. "We're probably going to do some bulls in one of these sales this spring too, and in the future we'll probably have a bull sale," he continued.

The Friday, April 26 sale will begin at 10:30 am on the McDowell farm on Sim's Road and lunch will be available. Auctioneer Kevin McArthur of Orangeville (who also acts as an Ontario Stockyards auctioneer and cattle dealer) will run the sale.

The Manitoulin Livestock Exchange is also fully licenced as a tagging facility and has all the proper legal documents and bonds to run the sales, Mr. Millsap assured.

As well as the April 26 date, sale dates for May 17 and May 31 have also been set with more planned for the fall.

Should all go well, the pair hopes to see a dedicated sales barn built down the road.

For more information, or to book your calves, yearlings or bred cows, contact Mr. Millsap, 705-282-6283, or Mr. McDowell, 705-859-1944.

...De-baj Theatre's high-tech resources

Mr. Deforge and his team make it happen.

Mr. Deforge practically grew up in broadcast. At age 17 he approached the principal of Manitoulin Secondary School after the audio visual tech left and offered to straighten out the department for AV credits. "It was quite a mess," laughed Mr. Deforge ruefully. That early involvement in all things audio visual set him on the path. That summer he hitched a ride down to Toronto and began shopping his resumes to a variety of broadcast studios. A call came from the religious broadcaster Crossroads. "I called my mom and said 'I guess I am not coming home for a while,'" he said. But something always drew him back to the Island and his home community of M'Chigeeng.

Stints with CTV affiliate CJOH in Ottawa grew out of unsolicited references, he filled in some of the years as an Apple tech for Northstar Computers out of North Bay and cabled much of the infrastructure in Northern Ontario over the years.

But it was the opportunity to work for Debajehmujig that brought him home again. In order for his family to be able to return to the Island, his wife needed to find employment as well. Luckily, she is a seamstress and there just happened to be an opening in the costume department. Sometimes the stars just align.

Debajehmujig's technological capabilities are impressive at the moment, but plans are in play to expand them even more.

"Right now we can do high definition video production in the studio 'Sini style,'" said Mr. Deforge. He explains that involves setting up cameras at various angles, shooting a scene and then resetting the cameras for the next scene. "We want to move into live production."

Debajehmujig has a dedicated fibre optic line with essentially unlimited upload and streaming capabilities. "We can literally match Netflix capability," said Mr. Deforge. "I can get 100 megabit right through to Toronto." During the interview, he is sitting in front of a bank of monitors and a control panel that allows remote adjustment of camera angles. If a pending funding proposal comes through, those banks will expand dramatically.

"There is no such thing as standing still in this business," said Mr. Deforge. "If you are standing still, you are falling behind."

As The Expositor tours the facility, we come across Debajehmujig Theatre's website developer Justin Deforge and executive director Ron Berti in the company's technology office, the duo are watching a 2011 TEDTalk by Grammy winning composer Eric Whiteacre. The story behind the incredible YouTube collaborations that have brought thousands of choral singers from across the globe together to perform Mr. Whiteacre's works unfolds through the talk. It is a serendipitous illustration of the kinds of artistic collaborations being opened up by the world wide web.

As an added bonus to local businesses, or even businesses located across the globe, any open room in the studio schedule can be accessed for a wide range of services. Those services provided as a social enterprise will provide a welcome additional revenue stream for the theatre company.

The possibilities are bounded only by imagination, but include artistic collaborations, YouTube productions, remote video conferencing and presentations, hosted locally or accessed from just about anywhere on the planet. "As long there is a sufficient connection to the Internet, we can work with it," noted Mr. Deforge.

Those wishing to explore how the technology centre at Debajehmujig can be made to work for their company should start by contacting Mr. Deforge at 705-859-1820 to discuss the concept and begin the process.

...harbour depths will satisfy needs of ferry

which protects it from structural damage," she said. "It has to make contact with the fender to provide protection for the ship. If the rub rails are so low in the water that they could go below the fenders, there would be a problem." Such an eventuality could result in serious structural damage to the vessel, she notes.

The lowest Lake Huron water levels in history have come at a bad time for the Island's link to the Bruce Peninsula as ridership on the ferry has plummeted in tandem with the water gauge. The OSTC has embarked on a marketing strategy to turn those numbers around, including a recently released market feasibility study and a yet-to-be-released economic impact assessment.

The market feasibility study suggests the ferry's salvation lies in tourism, local stakeholder partnerships and targeting the burgeoning, and largely untapped, Toronto market.

Callers to the Chi-Cheemaun booking office are firmly assured that everything is proceeding as normal—it is business usual for the MS Chi-Cheemaun. To make a reservation contact: 1-800-265-3163.

Blues gives boost to services

Manitoulin Family Resources executive directors Eleanor Charlton and Andy Smith join Sons of the Blues drummer Darren Madahbee and the Anchor Inn's Kelly O'Hare in a cheque presentation to MFR for $500. The popular Island blues band raised $300 from the gate at a night of song and entertainment at the Little Current bar and the Anchor Inn Hotel topped up the amount to $500. The Sons of Blues have a few of their most popular songs available online, with half of the proceeds of those sales going to the Canadian Cancer Society.

...Health Centre's strategic plan seeks input

laborative effort, she explained.

The 11 questions being put to the general public are pretty fundamental to how the hospitals interact with the community and they include: What MHC services do you value the most?; The board of directors of MHC believes that Manitoulin Island residents are served best by MHC having two sites, please rate your level of agreement with this statement; What do you identify as MHC's greatest strengths?; What do you identify as MHC's greatest weaknesses?; What existing programs and/or services should be expanded, if any, and why?; What existing programs and/or services should be discontinued, if any, and why?; What new programs and/or services should be established, if any, and why?; What are the factors affecting your health? If MHC were to do only one thing differently in order to make the most positive difference to the people we serve, what would you suggest it be?; An organization's vision statement is meant to describe to the public, its employees and other organizations what it is striving to become. MHC has crafted one that says 'Putting patients first, as we lead within our health care network.' We would like your feedback concerning this potential vision statement—do you understand what this vision statement means. Do you think that this is a good vision statement for MHC? If not, why?; And finally, an organization's vision strategic directions identify broad categories of actions that an organization will take to move toward achieving its vision. MHC has identified three potential strategic directions: enhance our patient's experience; live our leadership role; and foster an environment that supports knowledgeable and engaged staff. Do you think that these are good strategic directions for MHC to adopt? If not, why?

Manitoulin Health Centre consultant Sharon van Valkenburg is ready and willing to incorporate community input into the hospital's strategic plan.

The questions for community partner organizations and employees are very similar, but also include requests for assessments of MHC as a community partner or employer and requesting examples of potential collaborations with the organization.

Although public input at the session might have been light, interested members of the Island community can still have their input into the process. An online survey will remain up at www.surveymonkey.com/s/mhcpublicinput until this Friday (April 19), an extension of a week from originally planned so that community members can provide their input.

Northeast Town Council Notes

Council supports Manor auxiliary campaign

The Northeast Town council reviewed a letter from the Manitoulin Centennial Manor Auxiliary, asking council for support towards a fundraising campaign to raise funds for the purchase of an intravenous pump for the Manor.

The auxiliary explained that the cost of the pump will be $10,000 and that they have already reached their half-way mark, having received $2,500 from Manitoulin Transport, $1,000 from the doctors of the Northeast Manitoulin Family Health Team, $500 in other donations, plus $1,000 that they kicked the campaign off with.

"As fundraising chair, I would like to hold a country western music event on Sunday, May 26 in the Northeast Town Recreation Centre hall from 1 to 4 pm to assist with fundraising," wrote Manor Auxiliary fundraising chair Linda Bowerman.

Some of the councillors expressed concern over the Manor having the properly trained staff to operate the machine and future costs. However, Councillor Michael Erskine expressed that "the merit of the pump is out of the scope of the donation request."

"They are half-way to their goal and are just asking for support," added Councillor Erskine. "I don't think we need to hold things up because at the end of the day, it will be a benefit to our community."

Councillor Paul Skippin tried to add a friendly amendment to Councillor Erskine's motion to grant the donation request, but changed the donation to $200 instead.

Councillor Erskine did not agree with the amendment, nor did Councillor Bill Koehler who reminded council that they had donated the hall in the past to the Little Current Yacht Club for its Mac Man banquet and that the auxiliary's cause was definitely deserving of the hall donation.

Council agreed and the motion was carried to donate the cost of the hall, $650, to the Manor Auxiliary for their fundraising event.

K. Smart hired for Hayward drain

The Northeast Town council carried a motion to appoint K. Smart Associates Limited, Consulting Engineers and Planners, as the engineering firm for the new Hayward Street drain. The company has also been hired as the engineering firm for the Ashley drain, which will join the Hayward drain.

Council approves Lagoon report

The Northeast Town council approved the Little Current Lagoon annual report after reviewing it with town CAO David Williamson.

Mr. Williamson noted key factors in the report to council, such as a spike in raw flow in March, explaining that it was due to snow melt and spring rains.

The report prompted Councillor Erskine to inquire when the sewage system would be 'smoked' (the Northeast Town was scheduled to smoke the town's sewage system last fall as a way to identify residents whose roof drains or weeping tiles were hooked up to the town sewer system, but due to the weather conditions the smoking was rescheduled for this spring).

Mr. Williamson responded that the town was in contact with the company that was going to be doing the smoking and was looking at rescheduling the project for late May or June.

BridgeFest receives funding from Trillium Foundation

Council was informed last Tuesday night that the Northeast Town had been approved for a grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation (OFT) for this year's BridgeFest celebrations, in honour of the Little Current Swing Bridge's centennial.

"We have received $25,000 towards BridgeFest, but council needs to understand if they accept the funding it must go towards the specific activities outlined in the funding application," explained CAO Williamson. "The events outlined are the tug boat rendezvous, the wakeboard competition, the RCMP (Royal Canadian Mounted Police) Musical Ride, the air demo/flyover, the Little Current main street festival, the community picnic and marketing and promotion of the festivities."

Council approved the events and carried a motion to accept the funding.

Mr. Williamson also noted that the town has another funding application in for the event with Heritage Canada for $40,000.

Parking bylaw amended to move parking on Meredith Street East

The Northeast Town council passed a bylaw amendment, moving parking to Meredith Street East, away from the Meredith Street and Worthington Street intersection.

Included in the discussion was a letter sent to council from Linda Rosato, owner of the TLC Home for Seniors. Ms. Rosato expressed concern with the intersection of Meredith and Worthington streets and the parking zone, requesting that the intersection be made into a four-way stop or traffic lights be installed.

"There are many visitors and workers who frequent our home on a daily basis," wrote Ms. Rosato. "Pretty much everyone has voiced their concern with parking in the driveway or even on the roadside due to this hazard. We also have had several visitors who walk over and have, as pedestrians, also voiced their fears of that intersection."

After a great deal of discussion, council decided that for now, the 'no parking' sign would be moved an additional 150 feet away from the intersection.

Council resolves to stay out of MTA and MCC amalgamation discussions

The Northeast Town council reviewed a letter from the Manitoulin Tourism Association (MTA), explaining that the town may have received a letter from the Manitoulin Chamber of Commerce (MCC) concerning the amalgamation of the two organizations (a letter has appeared at some Island municipalities) and a request for the town to intervene by the latter. However, the MTA informed the Northeast Town that they had yet to receive a proposal themselves as to the amalgamation, but at that point would consider the proposal.

Mr. Williamson noted to council that the town had not received a letter from the MCC.

"Hasn't this been a discussion for a long time?" questioned Councillor Dawn Orr, adding that the MTA had not been in favour of the amalgamation in the past.

"I was at the Central Manitoulin council meeting last week, and they also received the MTA's letter," said Councillor Erskine. "It's always remarkable the different interpretations people have because they passed a motion in support of the amalgamation, when I don't believe that was what the MTA was indicating."

Council decided that the discussion of amalgamation of the two organizations should be between the MTA and MCC.

Northeast Town receives reconciliation credit from OPP

Town Treasurer Sheryl Wilkin explained to the administration and finance committee last Thursday that the Northeast Town would be receiving a reconciliation credit from the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) from 2012 for $136,368. She added that the town had actually already received $14,475 of that, but would receive the additional final year-end reconciliation of $121,893 shortly.

When asked by council why there was a reconciliation, Mr. Williamson explained that the money was from times when the OPP had been pulled away from Manitoulin in 2012 to help other dispatches, such as the Elliot Lake Mall collapse and the Timmins forest fire last summer.

Committee reviews council donations

As directed by council, town staff presented the administration and finance committee with council's donations over the last five years.

"You have in front of you the history of donations by council from 2007 to 2012 and the totals budgeted for 2013," explained Mr. Williamson.

"I'm personally concerned that we are giving so much away," said Councillor Bill Koehler. "And I don't know how I feel donating to for-profit groups like Manitoulin Country Fest."

Mr. Williamson clarified that he believed that Manitoulin Country Fest was a not-for-profit group.

Councillor Melissa Peters questioned if council could have a copy of the donation policy and that perhaps in the future the donation policy could be used as a basis for giving donations to organizations in the future.

Councillor Orr asked if the organizations that council donates to are required to provide information back to council on the finances of the event, to which Mr. Williamson responded that yes, it was policy.

Get 'down to earth' in Kagawong this weekend

by Sharon Jackson

KAGAWONG—"Down to earth" by definition means "not pretentious or affected; straightforward; not overly ornate; simple in style." Members of the Billings recreation and waste management committees have joined forces to partner in hosting a day long event at the Park Centre focusing on just that, getting down to earth.

Guest speakers will cover topics that include composting, soil and making a garden.

To start the day's activities, clear garbage bags will be available at the Park Centre beginning at 9 am. Members of the community are encouraged to go ditch divin"—clean up their street, neighbourhood or take a walk through the community or hiking trail to clean up shared space. Items brought in will be sorted and a special prize is being offered for the 'most unusual find.' Past years' items have included an (empty) OPP evidence bag and an old liquor bottle. A trailer will be on site for bags to be piled on when they are turned in. Any recyclables will be taken to the landfill site.

Chris Theijssmeijer, chair of the waste management committee, will lead off the program at 10:30 am with 'Trash Talk' following a short welcome period where the general public can enjoy a complimentary coffee and muffin beginning at 10:15 am. 'Lug a mug' is encouraged.

Jill Ferguson, one of the recreation committee members, will be on hand (downstairs) at 10:30 am to teach children how to make crafts from recycled items.

Guest speaker Ed Burt has been asked to speak about composting and will take to the podium at 11:15 am with Composting 101.

There will be a composter on site for sale and a sign up sheet for anyone who wishes to purchase one.

Lunch menu includes hamburger soup, a vegetarian option, rolls, dessert and beverage for $7. Kids under 12 eat for $4.

After lunch Brian Bell, representative of Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs, will speak about soil.

Rounding out the day's guest speakers is Jean Narozanski, who will be speaking on making a garden.

For those who want to stretch their legs, they can enjoy a nature walk down the Bridal Veil hiking trail (weather permitting).

Everyone is welcome to attend. There will be door prizes (including a composter) and plenty of interesting thought provoking speakers and demonstrations.

CSAC organizes second annual Little Current Litter Blitz clean up

by Robin Burridge

LITTLE CURRENT—The Northeast Town Community Services Advisory Committee (CSAC) will be holding its second annual Litter Blitz community clean up in honour of Earth Day this upcoming Sunday, April 21 and Monday, April 22.

"The original idea for the clean up came from various people in the community expressing how they felt the new waterfront was not as clean as it should be," explained CSAC chair and Northeast Town Councillor Melissa Peters. "CSAC felt that it would be a good way to help, in addition to promoting the waterfront trail, and the idea ballooned from there."

Ms. Peters added that CSAC "was surprised and pleased by the amount of community participation last year" and that they hope to get an even better turn out this year.

for using municipal capital reserves, in addition to FedNor funds that the town will receive, though an official funding announcement has not yet been made.

"I'm certainly in support of this idea," commented Councillor Marcel Gauthier. "I think it's a great idea."

"I agree that this is a great idea," added Councillor Michael Erskine. "We are cutting down on the property we own. It looks like it will work out well, but I think the estimated construction cost of $81 a square foot is a little optimistic."

Through the discussion it was also noted that the current town office building would become surplus and be sold, with the costs acting as a buffer if the project's costs prove higher than estimated.

The new Waterfront Artisan Incubator and Technology Centre will provide a venue to the Island community to stay connected with the world interactively through fibre optics, smart boards and an interactive business space, while also servicing as an open space for the Island's artistic community to showcase work, featuring an art gallery hanging and lighting system.

MSS presents workshop on Internet safety

M'CHIGEENG—A free Internet safety workshop for parents will be presented at Manitoulin Secondary School on Monday, May 6 from 7 to 8:30 pm. Internet safety expert Steve Chapelle will focus on user account security, Internet content control, social networking, file sharing and cyberbullying. A parent's handbook will be distributed to all workshop participants.

"Our School Council identified Internet safety as a key concern. We are delighted that our School Council is sponsoring this essential workshop for parents with the support of a Parents Reaching Out grant from the Ministry of Education," said Manitoulin Secondary School Principal Laurie Zahnow. "Parents will learn how to protect their children and their family computers from Internet threats."

Steve Chapelle will show parents how to maintain control of their computers by setting proper security measures. Parents will learn how to configure accounts and how to use available controls for managing each stage of their children's Internet activities. They will also learn about security settings and safe behaviour for Facebook, Messenger, Skype and Twitter.

The risks associated with the unrestricted sharing of copyrighted material and inappropriate files will be covered during the presentation. Parents will also learn how to protect their children against cyberbullying, including appropriate responses to harassment online.

Steve Chapelle has held management and analyst positions in the information services sector for more than 25 years, from corporate environments to the home office. He has experience with Microsoft, IBM, Apple and Novell operating systems.

The father of two school-age children, Mr. Chapelle has been providing Internet safety training to southern Ontario schools since 2006. He has been featured on CBC Radio One by parenting columnist Karen Horsman and has provided information security training for the Court Reporters' Association of Ontario and the Certified General Accountants of Ontario.

...NDP convention targets Tories

"If they want to do something for future generations, the Conservatives must immediately implement the 75 recommendations of the Cohen Commission and cancel budgetary cuts to fisheries science and ecosystem management," said deputy critic Anne Minh-Thu Quach (Beauharnois-Salaberry).

On the topic of water, the NDP also passed a motion calling for the Conservatives to update the federal water policy, being respectful of provincial, municipal and First Nations jurisdictions.

A resolution was also passed regarding Employment Insurance (EI), calling on the federal government to hire more Service Canada staff to administer programs as well as to reduce EI wait times; to improve the 'working while on claim' pilot project and to reinstate the 'extra five week' pilot project.

The NDP also called on the government to increase investment in social housing and create a registry of social housing units available in Canada.

In regards to the Health Accords, which are set to end in 2014, the NDP passed a resolution demanding that the federal government enter into talks with provinces and territories to renew the health agreements and that the next health accords include necessary reforms for better health care and health professionals, including family doctors.

Two omnibus resolutions were also passed on veterans' rights and children's rights.

In regards to food, a resolution was passed on maintaining Canadian food policies and inspection standards kept at the highest level possible, as well as one on Northern food security in which the NDP pledges to continue its consultations with Northern communities so they might "finally have access to quality and nutritious foods at a reasonable price."

Rebecca Blaikie was re-elected as the NDP's national president.

The essence of all that We have revealed for thee is Justice, is for man to free himself from idle fancy and imitation, discern with the eye of oneness His glorious handiwork, and look into all things with a searching eye.

Canada's First War fallen remembered in solemn ceremony

War Pensioners of Canada president Colin Pick lays a wreath at the foot of the Manitowaning War Memorial Cenotaph to honour the fallen at Vimy Ridge during the annual April 9 Vimy Ridge Day remembrance ceremonies. Mr. Pick read aloud the poem In Flanders Fields. Vimy Ridge was a World War I battle in which the Canadian Corps captured a major redoubt in the greatest allied victory up to that time. Strategic Vimy Ridge had repelled the herculean efforts of the veteran armies of both Britain and France. The Battle of Vimy Ridge is often cited as one of the historic foundations of a distinct Canadian national identity. It came at a cost of 10,602 Canadian casualties, with some 3,598 dead. Four Victoria Crosses were awarded to Canadians for their heroic efforts in the battle. Vimy Ridge Day was enacted following a private member's bill presented by former Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing MP Brent St. Denis. The bill passed with unanimous assent.

Carpentry graduates celebrated in AOK

by Michael Erskine

AUNDECK OMNI KANING—The Canadian skilled trade shortage got a little lighter recently as 18 graduates of the Sault College Basic Green Construction and Retrofitting Skills Program 2012-2013 were celebrated at a ceremony held at the Aundeck Omni Kaning Community Centre.

Elder Marty Shawanda opened the proceedings with a prayer and a cleansing ritual before master of ceremonies Kathy Bebamash (AOK economic development officer) introduced Sheguiandah's Nimkee Ngumsai Drum Group who performed a welcome song.

Chief Patsy Corbiere welcomed the students and dignitaries to the community. "I am proud of all of the participants," she said. "In the end always remember that your success is our success." Chief Corbiere thanked the sponsors of the program, Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, Mnidoo Mnising Employment and Training, Sault College's Northern Ontario Training Fund and the AOK Ontario Works program.

Leo Tiberi, vice-president of Academics Sault College, addressed the students on behalf of the college. "Don't stop learning," he exhorted, noting that the college and the First Nation are contemplating a three-year program. "Get ready to take your learning to a higher level," he said. Mr. Tiberi noted that the demand for skilled trades is immense and that the training students are receiving will help meet that demand. "These are very, very, very good occupations," he said.

Mr. Tiberi reminded the students that the college has become affiliated with television personality and contractor Mike Holmes. "As Mike Holmes says, when you build it 'make it right, make it safe, make it last,'" he said. "Congratulations, you made it, but this is just the beginning."

Instructor Jim Smith said he was very proud of the students in the program and noted that the students had brought with them a wide range of previous skills, knowledge and accomplishments, leading to a very interesting teaching experience. "Education is so much more than just the math, English and carpentry skills you have learned," he said. "It is being responsible, getting there on time and being willing to do whatever an employer wants you to do." Completion of a college program demonstrates to employers not only that a potential employee has the skills that they need, he said, but also that a student possesses the ambition and tenacity to see projects through.

Mr. Smith cited the Dead Poet's Society, a movie critiqued by the students as part of their program. "It is a movie that every educator should see," he said. "Keep your goals in mind and things will work out for you. Carpe diem, seize the day!"

Construction skills instruction teacher Rob Seifried said that when he first started the program he was more of a carpenter than a teacher. "I am pretty proud of you guys," he said. "We have all grown together."

Program coordinator Vern McGraw said he was very grateful to have been associated with the program and noted that the students had toured the new hotel under construction in Little Current.

Student Adam Madahbee spoke on behalf of his classmates. "It was a long 24 weeks," he said, "but we have come a long way from building birdhouses." He delivered a message of thanks from the students to teachers Mr. Smith and Mr. Seifried.

Ms. Bebamash announced that the host of products produced by the students through the program will be on sale this summer, including octagonal picnic tables, chairs and tables. "Any funds raised through the sale will be put back into the program," she said.

Aundeck Omni Kaning will soon be embarking on a construction project to build a multi-use centre, she said.

The graduating students were presented with gifts of new Sault College jackets by Sault College coordinator Lori Amendola and Mr. Tiberi before an honour song was performed by Nimkee Ngumsai and everyone settled into a feast of roast beef.

Graduating from the program were Thomas Anderson, Dillon Abotossaway, Delbert Corbiere, Logan Corbiere, Sean Cranney, Phillip Corbiere, Adam Madahbee, Drew Madahbee, Dylan Madahbee, Cole McGraw, Dennis McGraw, Ervin McGraw, Nicholas McGraw, Keith Nahwegahbow, Alfie Nawegahbow, Aaron Owl, Kyle Owl and Gordon Shokan.

Lakeview School continues to grow theatre program

by Robin Burridge

M'Chigeeng—Lakeview School in M'Chigeeng presented their production of The Wizard of Oz last Thursday evening to a packed auditorium of students, parents and community members.

From the full house to the round of applause after each solo, it was evident that the audience was captivated by the theatrical magic created by the Lakeview cast.

Starring Grade 3 student Darci Debassige as Dorothy, the musical follows Dorothy and her dog Toto on a journey over the rainbow to the land of Oz where she meets the iconic Tin Man, Scarecrow and Lion and embarks on a quest of self discovery and finding her way home.

The role of Toto was played by Darci's younger sister Aspen Debassige,

The Tin Man (Pierre Debassige), the Lion (Bordell White) and the Scarecrow (Aysia Francis-Debassige) prepare to say goodbye to Dorothy.

while Aysia Francis-Debassige played the role of the Scarecrow, Pierre Debassige the Tin Man and Cordell White the Lion.

Other leads included Eden Beaudin as the Wicked Witch of the West, Travis Corbiere as the Wizard of Oz, Jada McGraw as Glinda the Good Witch and Brandon McCauley as Cabby Carl.

Not only was the acting impeccable, especially considering that the cast had only two months to pull the production together, the singing, choreography, sets and costumes were all on the mark, creating a memorable show.

In addition to working on the Lakeview production, the entire cast has been busy fundraising, along with the help of staff and parents, in order for the cast to attend Mirvish's production of The Wizard of Oz in Toronto in May. Even the coin collection at the door Thursday evening went towards the students' trip.

The Expositor spoke with one of production's directors and a few of the cast members following the performance about the production and the upcoming trip to Toronto.

"I really wanted the role of Dorothy because she likes to sing and she is adventurous," explained Darci, who performed effortlessly. "It's been a lot of work and it was hard getting past my nerves today, but it's been fun."

As for the upcoming trip to Toronto, Darci said that she is "excited about seeing

The Lakeview School cast of The Wizard of Oz sing the finale.

photos by Robin Burridge

the play and knowing the lines and how it feels."

"And that it was us and could be us in the future," added Brandon, who played Cabby Carl. "I auditioned for the part of Cabby Carl because he has a solo and really like to sing."

Brandon told The Expositor that he had been in Lakeview's production of Cinderella last year, but he felt this year's production was "even better" because he and the other students had more experience under their belts.

Aysia commented that she had enjoyed playing the role of the Scarecrow, even though it wasn't the role that she had originally auditioned for.

"It's been great," said Aysia of being in the production. "A lot of fun."

Tin Man Pierre is no stranger to the stage, having starred as Prince Charming in last year's production of Cinderella.

"When I watched the movie (The Wizard of Oz), I really like the role of the Tin Man because he was funny," explained Pierre. "I'm really excited to go to Toronto and go to the city with my friends and see the real play."

Dorothy, played by Darci Debassige, tries to get into the Emerald City with her friends.

Director Connie Freeman told The Expositor that she was very proud of the cast and crew of The Wizard of Oz.

"We have students from Grade 2 to Grade 8 and they have all worked so hard," said Ms. Freeman. "They are good actors and have really grown throughout the production."

Ms. Freeman explained that the theatre arts program at Lakeview has also been developing well, with the team of directors, parent volunteers and students really "ramping things up" for the most recent production.

"Parents have been working so hard to collect donations too for the trip to Toronto," added Ms. Freeman. "The kids are so excited

The Lakeview production performed to a full house last Thursday.

...Lifelong political observer dissects the body politic

ers, only about 100,000 bothered to vote. Perhaps significantly, the majority of them are more than 50 years old — old enough to remember Pierre Trudeau's government.

In contrast, about half of the 125,000 paid-up members of the NDP voted in the process that chose Mulcair as their leader. The NDP can also count on many union members, such as teachers, to volunteer services. They are visible on the ground across Canada, especially in Quebec. They have gained some cooperation and support from Obama organizers on grassroots fundraising, on sophisticated methods to persuade voters in person, and on how to get them out to the polls.

Liberals will pursue the same techniques. Much depends on whether they can muster large numbers of volunteers and donors. They and the NDP will be competing for donations from progressives who burn to defeat Harper. Obama supporters had a monopoly on opposition to the Republicans.

Conservatives in Canada have had a zealous cadre of committed donors and workers — so far.

All three parties suffer from a long term decline in membership in all sorts of clubs, associations and team activities. Some social scientists attribute the decline to the passive pleasures of television and the Internet.

There are few policy differences between the Liberals and the NDP. A read through the scores of the policy resolutions submitted for last weekend's NDP policy convention found little that most Liberals would reject out of hand, and the

NDP Leader
Thomas Mulcair

into an efficient central organization, as the NDP and Conservatives have done. To do so, though, would strain party unity.)

Much depends upon the unknown qualities of the people who will be close to Justin Trudeau. But no one should expect brilliant innovation from a policy conference or convention.

The policy process in the NDP may be more robust. It

Liberal Leader

sticky ones were buried. The issue of free trade with Europe (or China!), however, may prove to differentiate the two parties.

Grass roots policy input is broken in the Liberal party. In Ontario, for example, party managers smothered input to the decision of a divided caucus on whether to prolong our mission in Afghanistan.

(There is speculation that Justin Trudeau will sensibly fold the party's antiquated federal structure is said that Jack Layton had no strong preference about fighting in Afghanistan, but deferred to overwhelming sentiment in the party opposing it.

Some say that the Liberals and New Democrats will slug it out to destroy each other's leader over the next two years, with Conservatives pivoting, as necessary, to finally prevail. That is certainly conceivable.

But there may instead be a race to the bottom, with any of the three parties ending up there.

Indeed, it is also conceivable that the Liberals could form a majority government, if Justin Trudeau's initial appeal endures longer than his father's Trudeaumania. If not, the NDP could well win a majority, provided that the NDP can hold its base in Quebec and make inroads in the cautious, multi-ethnic belt around Toronto.

There will be a lot of phone calls to numbers beginning with 905, and a lot of sneakers worn out on the doorsteps in Quebec.

Perry Anglin covered the Pearson government and the start of the Trudeau years as a political reporter for the Toronto Star's Ottawa Bureau and, later, as chief of the Standard Radio System Bureau. As a civil servant in Northern Affairs, he advised Mr. Chretien on setting up the landmark Berger Inquiry into a Mackenzie Valley Pipeline. In the cabinet office he advised Prime Minister Trudeau and took minutes at many of his cabinet meetings. In the Treasury Board secretariat he attended many cabinet committees under Mr. Mulroney. After a career as a non-partisan civil servant, he became a business consultant, a municipal politician, and a Liberal, active locally and on the federal party's policy committee in Ontario. He lives near Mindemoya.

Assiginack Council Notes

Rodeo support received

Following a letter from the Manitoulin Rodeo Committee asking council to consider waiving the rental fees for municipal property for the weekend of June 21-23 in exchange for a sponsorship package and also that Assiginack council defer payment of the requested $2,000 down payment for the rodeo until after the event has taken place, council passed a motion which states: "We inform the Manitoulin Rodeo Committee that we support the 2013 rodeo in principle, with the understanding that the committee has completed the facilty's rental agreement with arena staff and that the committee can provide the necessary insurance coverages with a hold harmless cause protecting the Township."

"It's just nice to get a letter asking for that," stated Councillor Brenda Reid.

"I hope the event is successful," Reeve Brad Ham added, with the rest of the council table in agreement.

Healthy Eating Guidelines launched

Assiginack council welcomed a delegation from Sudbury and District Health Unit (SDHU) public health nurse Linda Belton who spoke on behalf of the 'Healthy Eating Guidelines: A tool kit for Manitoulin organizations and communities,' a document created by Noojimowin Teg Health Centre in partnership with the Heart and Stroke Spark Advocacy Development Grant Program, the SDHU and the Healthy Food Policy Working Group.

"As community organizations, we are leaders in the promotion of health and well-being," the toolkit states. "Nutritious, healthy and safe foods should be provided at all organization and community events, gatherings and catered functions. This toolkit will provide guidelines and resources to support the implementation of a healthy eating policy at your organization."

Ms. Belton said she hopes council would consider adopting the policy, which will be of benefit to all residents of Manitoulin. She made the suggestion to council that Assiginack make a local producers list and post it to the municipal website. This was done in Gordon/Barrie Island, and the site has since provided the impetus for a farmers' market.

Ms. Belton suggested adopting the policy into the canteen at the arena so that besides the standard arena fare of hot dogs, healthy choices could also be made available.

Lottery licence approved

Council passed a motion to approve an Alcohol and Gaming Commission licence for the purpose of running 16 draws by the Burns Wharf Theatre with the proceeds going to that group. The draw dates will run from June to August. Motion carried.

Assiginack Horticultural request

Council received a letter from the Assiginack Horticultural Society requesting assistance from the municipality to purchase plants and to maintain the flowerbeds and barrels around Manitowaning.

"The members get a lot of personal satisfaction and enjoyment in caring for these beds and we trust that it is helping to enhance our town," the letter states.

Council agreed to again support the society in this endeavour.

Council sets new mileage rate

Assiginack council passed a motion to, effective immediately, set its new mileage rate at 52 cents per kilometer and that, in future, the mileage rate be set to mirror that of the Manitoulin-Sudbury District Services Board.

Council accepts lagoon operating report

Council passed a motion, accepting the 2012 Manitowaning lagoon annual operating report from the Ontario Clean Water Agency.

Dan Clark, process and compliance technician, writes: "The Assiginack lagoon system continues to operate properly, producing a quality effluent and well under the rated annual average daily capacity. The anticipated work (clearing of vegetation) and system monitoring will continue to improve operating conditions."

The conversation turned back to Country Fest, with Councillor Paul Skippen stating that the event was a form of economic development for the town and that most of the donations to Country Fest were 'in kind donations.' Mr. Williamson clarified that the $1,000 annual hawkers and peddlers fee that is waived is a forfeited cost and that the $600 annual fee for bins and manpower is a donation because the town does have to pay staff for their services.

"I think what Dave (Williamson) is saying is that the fees aren't 'in kind' donations, it's money we should actually be getting so the costs are donations, but I don't disagree with you that Country Fest is an event that helps with economic development."

Council will review the donation policy at a future meeting.

GAILBRAITH—In loving memory of Ransford Galbraith, July 21, 1930 – April 21, 2012.

I feel a warmth around me Like your presence is so near, And I close my eyes to visualize Your face when you were here.

I recall the times we spent together And they are locked inside my heart,

For as long as I have those memories We will never be apart.

Even though we can speak no more

Your voice is always there, Because every night before I sleep

I have you in my prayers.

Love you always, Lavina, Esther and Chuck, Paul and Evelina and families.

Death Notices

ANNA DIANE HALL

DECEMBER 27, 1950 – APRIL 6, 2013

In loving memory of Anna Hall, 62, of Spring Bay, Ontario who died peacefully at the Manitoulin Health Centre after a lengthy illness. She was born in Mindemoya to the late George and Margaret (Edmonds) Gilpin. Anna leaves behind her cherished and devoted husband of 42 years, Ian. Loving mother of Bob (Lisa), Greg (Deborah) and George (Melanie). Very special grandma of Spencer, Elaina, Sophia, Morgan, Olivia, and Ellie Anna, and predeceased by her grandson Johnathon. Dear sister of Jim Gilpin and sister and best friend of Peggy Trimmer. Always remembered by close and special friend Sally Cox. The Hall family wish to express their heartfelt thanks to the doctors, nurses and staff of the Manitoulin Health Centre in Mindemoya. Anna was famous for her homemade bread, buns and knitted sweaters. Anna wishes that everyone stop and take a minute to hug someone and tell them you love them. A private family memorial has already taken place. If so desired, memorial donations to the SIDS Foundation would be appreciated by the family. Online condolences may be set to www.culginfuneralhome.ca.

JULIA GENEREUX (DOMINIC)

Julia Genereux (Dominic) passed away peacefully at her home at 8:50 am, on Sunday, March 24, 2013 at the age of 65 years. She was born at Sheshegwaning First Nation, daughter of the late Noel and Mary (Sagon) Dominic. Julia had a number of interests and hobbies including music, gardening, quilting, travelling, reading, baking and cooking, camping, and shopping. She was a very generous spirit, with a great sense of humour. She was ready to give and volunteer in her community at any time. Julia will also be remembered as a loving and caring wife, mother, grandmother and friend. She especially cherished spending time with her grandchildren. Beloved wife of Don Genereux. Loving and loved mother of Lisa Hoppe, husband Dan, Emilio Tomaselli and Frank Tomaselli. Proud grandmother of Jonathan, Dieter, Dietrah, Tara, Kaitlynn, Naomi, Mia, Tala and Tyla. Dear sister of Joan Noganosh, husband David of Magnetawan First Nation, and Emily Norton, husband late Isadore of Christian Island. Predeceased by brothers Lawrence, Henry, Mike, and sister Shirley MacDonald. Will also be missed by relatives, nieces, nephews, great grandchildren and friends. Relatives and friends called at the Sheshegwaning Community Complex after 7 pm on Monday, March 25, 2013. The Funeral Mass to celebrate Julia's life was conducted at the Complex on Wednesday, March 27, 2013 at 1 pm with Fr. Jim Kelly as celebrant. Cremation followed. If so desired, donations to the Cancer Society or the charity of your choice would be appreciated. Online condolences may be left at www.culginfuneralhome.ca.

HELEN IRENE CHISHOLM

APRIL 18, 1938 - APRIL 9, 2013

In loving memory of Helen Irene Chisholm who passed away on April 9, 2013. Loved wife of husband James and children Bonnie (Richard Cardiff) of Terrace Bay, son-in-law Michael and the late Kimberly of Espanola. Beloved grandmother of James (Emiley) Cardiff, Alex-Andrya, Mitchell (Elana) Bourcier, and Eric (Aimee) Bourcier. Special great-grandmother of Avery, Wyatt, Emmett and Scarlett. Survived by sisters Lois Bond of Little Current and Brenda Chisholm of Rockville and brother Russell Cosby of Little Current. Predeceased by parents Alec and Pearl Cosby and sister Phylis Norris. Visitation was Wednesday, April 10, 2013 from 2 pm to 4 pm and 7 pm to 9 pm. Service was Thursday, April 11, 2013 at 11 am, all at Island Funeral Home. Spring burial. Donations to Canadian Cancer Society would be appreciated. Arrangements entrusted with Island Funeral Home, Little Current. www.islandfuneralhome.ca

JONATHAN JOSEPH HARWOOD

AUGUST 15, 1939 – MARCH 27, 2013

In loving memory of John Harwood, a resident of Britainville Road, Spring Bay, who passed away peacefully at his home with his loving family at his side, on Wednesday, March 27, 2013. He was born in Timmins, son of the late Jonathan Joseph and Mabel (Convery) Harwood. John had worked as a custodian for the Sudbury Board of Education from 1972 until 1996. He had a variety of interests, which included hunting, woodworking and he loved to go for drives in the evening looking for deer. Anyone who knew John will also remember him for enjoying playing practical jokes on everyone. John was predeceased by his beloved wife Sharon on October 7, 2010. Loved and loving father of Kathy Pitre (husband Leo) of Sudbury, Tammy Gaudet (husband Jerome) of Sudbury, Tim Harwood (wife Lesa) of Garson and Kelly Harwood (husband Robin) of Garson. Proud grandfather of Melissa, Lisa, Jason, Kayla, Tyler and Josh and great-grandchildren Braxton and Ashtyn. Also survived by siblings and their spouses Sid and Lou Brown (both predeceased), Gwen Longpre (Bill predeceased) of Kitchener, Ron Brown (wife Dorothy predeceased) of Garson, Stella Botting (husband Earl predeceased) of Huntsville, Lenora and Clifford Provincial of Garson, Martin and Sharron Harwood of Huntsville and Christina and Ron Steffler of Kitchener. Also survived by a number of nieces and nephews. In keeping with John's wishes there was no funeral service. Cremation will take place, with burial of ashes beside his beloved wife at Providence Bay Cemetery. If so desired, donations to the Daffodil Terrace or the Mindemoya Hospital Auxiliary would be appreciated. Online condolences may be left at www.culginfuneralhome.ca.

ANTOINE RICHARD BEAUDRY "AUTWEN"

MARCH 4, 1939 – APRIL 12, 2013

In loving memory of Antoine Richard Beaudry "Autwen", 74 years, who passed away peacefully on Friday, April 12, 2013 at the Manitoulin Health Centre in Little Current. Predeceased by parents Mary (nee Kinoshameg) and Patrick Beaudry. Survived by sisters: Annie Shawana (Robert predeceased), Sr. Kateri Terry Beaudry. Predeceased by siblings Parmenta (Vincent predeceased), Agatha (Lawrence), Stanley, Joseph, Dominic, Violet, Mary and Georgina. Nieces and nephews Rose Shawanda (Armando), Dominic Beaudry (Brenda), Adolphus Wemigwans (Judy), Lorraine Baker, Darlene Wemigwans (Wayne), Marilyn Trudeau, Caroline Wemigwans (Nixon), Wesley Wemigwans (Carol), Justin Wemigwans (Darlene), Bonita Trudeau, Julian Wemigwans, Terrence Trudeau (Abby), Robbie Shawana (Denise). Godchildren: Dominic and Boniface Beaudry, Caroline Wemigwans. Antoine will be missed by many great-nieces, nephews, relatives and friends. Antoine worked with lumber companies and sawmills throughout his life until his retirement years. Antoine enjoyed spending time with family, most of all his sisters. He was part of the old boys club sitting beside the house on Wiky Way watching the cars and life pass by with humorous commentary. He enjoyed riding his motorcycle, a Honda Super Sport, in his younger years. As well, he enjoyed collecting vehicles, but his favourite past time was patrolling. His many collectible interests intrigued people. Visitation was at the St. Ignatius Church, Buzwah from 5 pm Sunday, April 14, 2013. Funeral Mass was at the Wikwemikong Holy Cross Mission on Tuesday, April 16, 2013 at 11 am. Burial at the Wikwemikong Upper Cemetery. Arrangements entrusted with Island Funeral Home, Little Current. Online condolences at www.islandfuneralhome.ca

R. MARJORIE MARTIN

"ABSENT FROM THE BODY PRESENT WITH THE LORD"

II CORINTHIANS 5

In loving memory of a wonderful wife and mother, Marjorie Martin, who passed into the presence of her Lord and Saviour at Mindemoya Hospital on April 13, 2013. Beloved wife of Elgin Martin for over 71 years. Very loving and greatly loved mother of Marie Kirk (husband Harold). Marjorie is survived by her youngest sister Jean Siberry, brother-in-law Rex Ward, and several nieces and nephews. Predeceased by her parents Harvey G. and Ida (Leeson) Arnold, sisters Rhea Ward, Gilda Russell and, brothers-in-law Grand Russell and Ken Siberry. From a very young age Marjorie worked hard and rarely took time for pleasures. She enjoyed music, driving her car, attending Sunday School and church, studying the Bible and singing praises to God. While we'll no more hear her oft spoken "I love you", she has left us many cherished memories and a Godly influence. If so desired, memorial donations may be made to Tehkumma Pentecostal Church or charity of your choice. Visitation was from 6 pm to 8 pm Tuesday, April 16, 2013 at Tehkumma Pentecostal Church. Funeral Service at the church on Wednesday, April 17, 2013 at 2 pm. Interment at Hilly Grove Cemetery. Arrangements entrusted with Island Funeral Home, Little Current. Online condolences at www.islandfuneralhome.ca.

with an earpiece or Bluetooth device;

- global positioning system (GPS) device mounted on the dashboard;
- portable audio player that has been plugged into the vehicle's sound system;
- pressing the button of a hand-held wireless device to activate hands-free mode for incoming or outbound calls;
- commercially used logistical transportation tracking systems;
- viewing display screen used for collision avoidance systems; and
- viewing display screen used for an instrument, gauge or system that provides information regarding the status of systems in the motor vehicle.

Emergency services personnel such as police, fire and ambulance will be permitted to use hand-held wireless communications devices in the normal performance of their duties.

Drivers may place 9-1-1 calls in an emergency situation, but if possible, drivers should pull off the road before making the call.

The legislation doesn't ban the use of these electronic devices in vehicles but rather prohibits their use in a way that may cause driver distraction while driving. Drivers will be permitted to utilize their cell phones without a hands-free system if:

- the vehicle is off the roadway or is lawfully parked;
- the vehicle must not be in motion; or
- the vehicle is not impeding traffic.

Therefore, drivers cannot use their cell phone in a handheld manner if stopped in traffic or at a red traffic light.

The fines that will be applied to a driver who will be issued an offence notice are $155. However, the legislation allows for fines up to $500. In addition to this legislation, drivers who place others at risk as a result of using a hands-free device can be charged with careless driving and face fines can range from $400 to $2,000, six demerit points, a driver's licence suspension and possible jail time. If convicted of dangerous driving, drivers could face a penalty of up to $2,000 and five years in jail. The OPP in the province laid 2,393 charges under Section 78 of the Highway Traffic Act (HTA) during the week campaign in February 2012.

Constable Allan Boyd, Community Services Officer for the Manitoulin OPP, states: "Drivers who use cell phones are four times more likely to be in a crash than drivers who are focused on the road. By driving wisely, we can improve the safety of all Ontario roadway users. Officers would like to remind drivers who don't have a hands-free device to use your cell phone only when parked, have a passenger make or answer the call or let the caller go to voice mail. Simply put anyone caught breaking this law will be charged as to the name of our campaign 'phone in one hand, ticket in the other.'

Right to Play

Famous Canadian athletes lead sports workshops as part of Right to Play

by Robin Burridge with files from Andy Gilchrist

LITTLE CURRENT—Earlier this month, Right To Play (RTP) brought their Promoting Life-skills in Aboriginal Youth (PLAY) program to Manitoulin Island and the area, delivering hockey, basketball and soccer workshops to area First Nation youths, led by professional Maple Leaf Sports and Entertainment (MLSE) athletes, and helped enhance area recreational spaces.

Aundeck Omni Kaning (AOK) was the host of the first day of the visit of RTP and MLSE to the Manitoulin region, with events held at the Northeast Town recreation centre.

After the official launch of the program with speeches by visiting dignitaries Minister of Aboriginal Affairs David Zimmer, RTP CAO John Koss, Larry Tanenbaum, owner of the Toronto Maple Leafs, Toronto Raptors and Toronto Football Club, MLSE CEO Tom Anselmi, former captain of the Toronto Maple Leafs Wendel Clark, and two-time Olympic hockey champion Sami Jo Small, the elders of the AOK held a feast of traditional foods, welcoming the special guests to Manitoulin.

AOK Chief Patsy Corbiere explained that AOK was a recent recipient of RTP funding, allowing her community to have hired a Right to Play intern, Stephen Nahwegahbow. "The young man has acquired special training through the program and offers the community's youth many great experiences to get moving and get active," the chief said.

"Right to Play is getting people off their seats and out of the house and active," the chief continued, noting MLSE is RTP's largest funder.

Chief Corbiere first learned of the RTP program last year when she was invited to attend a session through the Sheshegwaning First Nation, also at the Northeast Town recreation centre, led by Right to Play program lead Leonard Generoux.

As well as an on-ice hockey session from Leafs great Wendel Clark, outdoor activities were also held for youths whose number one sport isn't hockey during their lastest visit to Manitoulin. The group also toured the AOK outdoor arena, and in typical RTP style, helped the community by repainting the change rooms and supplying rubber matting for the floors, helping to keep those blades sharp throughout the season.

Besides providing a day of fun and games, the RTP contingent also promotes leadership, mentoring "and a different approach to getting moving," Chief Corbiere added. "They promoted the idea that kids can do something if they put the effort into it."

"It's my first time on the Island," admitted Mr. Clark to The Expositor in between the hockey sessions. "It has been really great so far. All the kids have been having a lot of fun. RTP is all about bringing kids back to being active and making it a part of their lives."

Mr. Clark also said he would like to return to the Island in the future to take in some of Manitoulin's famous fishing.

On Saturday, RTP and MLSE travelled to Mississauga First Nation where Raptor alumni Jamaal Magloire led basketball workshops and game stations.

"These kids have a lot of obstacles," said Mr. Magloire. "I think basketball can help them in a number of ways. Basketball promotes leadership, teamwork, structure and discipline. These are the values that were instilled in me and that we are trying to pass onto the youth here today."

Sunday, the team travelled to Whitefish River First Nation where Toronto FC player Danny Koevermans worked with youths on their soccer skills.

"I was very excited that I was picked to be a part of RTP and come here," said Mr. Koevermans. "It is a beautiful place and it has been a fun day playing with the

and its MLSE Foundation announced a million dollar contribution to RTP's PLAY program. With this partnership, MLSE and the MLSE Foundation became PLAY's largest single private sector donor.

Over the next three years, this investment will increase the reach of the program by 25 percent and will boost its reach to 45 Ontario aboriginal communities and as many as 10 urban Ontario centres.

"Right To Play is incredibly proud and honoured to receive such a transformative gift from MLSE and the MLSE Foundation," said Mr. Koss in a release. "This investment will strengthen our partnerships with over 45 First Nation communities and urban aboriginal groups, and allow us to expand the PLAY program's reach in Canada."

"The PLAY program is a multi-faceted program using sport and play activities as a tool to build on the strengths of aboriginal children, youth and their communities while supporting the value of culture and identity," states a RTP release. "Each component of the PLAY program is tailored to the specific needs of each community, and is designed in partnership with communities and develops and strengthens essential life-skills in children and youth. Since its inception in 2010, PLAY tackles a number of challenges facing aboriginal youth, including: poor quality and lack of consistency in youth programs; a limited sense of opportunity and narrow vision for the future; inter-personal conflict; addiction to alcohol and drugs; and a lack of healthy activities for youth."

"Since its creation, the Ontario government has been a proud partner of the PLAY program which recognizes that recreation is a powerful tool that builds trust, prosperity and hope by expanding opportunities for aboriginal youth," explained Minister Zimmer. "We welcome this new investment and look forward to seeing this great initiative impact the lives of many more aboriginal youth across the province."

"RTP and the MLSE Foundation already enjoy a strong community investment partnership," said Mr. Tanenbaum.

Mr. Tanenbaum has been a long-standing supporter of aboriginal issues in Canada, specifically in Ontario, and was excited to bring this opportunity forward for consideration.

"The strong symmetry between the organizations' mandates will ensure that the lives of thousands of aboriginal youth are improved, thanks to this commitment," he added.

"The involvement of our staff in the delivery of the PLAY program's positive outcomes demonstrates MLSE's core value of being a leader in the community," said Mr. Anselmi. "Together, we are improving the lives of Ontario's aboriginal youth through the sports we operate—soccer, basketball and hockey."

News from the Mindemoya Library Book Mice

by Claire Cline

1. 'The Fast Metabolism Diet' by Haylie Pomroy
2. 'The Hungry Ghosts' by Shyam Selvadurai
3. 'The Boyfriend' by Thomas Perry
4. 'Suspect' by Robert Crais
5. 'Don't Go' by Lisa Scottoline

'The Fast Metabolism Diet' (Eat more food and lose more weight) by Haylie Pomroy. Lose up to 20 pounds in 28 days. This book was an interesting and informative read. We are reminded that food is not the enemy but medicine needed to rev up your sluggish, broken-down metabolism to turn your body into a fat-burning furnace. On this plan you're going to eat a lot—three full meals and at least two snacks a day, and you're still going to lose weight.

'The Hungry Ghosts' by Shyam Selvadurai. Mr. Selvadurai is a Giller Prize shortlisted author of 'Funny Boy' and 'Cinnamon Gardens,' both of which we have in your library. 'The Hungry Ghosts' is a beautifully written, dazzling story of family, wealth and the long reach of the past. It shows how racial, political and sexual differences can tear apart both a country and the human heart—not just once, but many times, until the ghosts are fed and freed.

'The Boyfriend' by Thomas Perry. This novel is a riveting, sexy novel of unbearable suspense, Jack Till, a retired LAPD homicide detective, now works as a private investigator, comfortable chasing down routine cases and caring for his daughter with Down syndrome. But when the parents of a recently murdered young woman ask for his help when the police come up empty, it touches a nerve within Till, who reluctantly takes the case. Till must risk his life to find a ruthless killer whose murderous spree masks a far deadlier agenda.

'Suspect' by Robert Crais. I really enjoyed this novel. LAPD Scott James is unfit for duty after a shocking nighttime assault by unidentified men killed his partner Stephanie, and nearly killed him. Maggie is not doing so well, either. The German shepherd survived three tours in Iraq and Afghanistan sniffing explosives before she lost her handler to an IED and sniper attack, and her PTSD is as bad as Scott's. They are each other's last chance. He was a young cop on the rise, she was bread to guard and protect. Now they are shunned and shunted to the side. Together they will set out to investigate the one case that no one wants them to touch: the identity of the men who murdered Stephanie. Thrilling, emotional, intense, this story will keep you reading far into the night.

'Don't Go' by Lisa Scottoline. This is a story of a soldier who discovers what it means to be a man, a father, and ultimately, a hero. A good read.

Assiginack Public Library Feature

by Debbie Robinson

'A Life Wild and Perilous: Mountain Men and the Paths to the Passage' by Robert M. Utley is the dramatic tale of survival, adventure and progress. This is a well-written chronicle of an exciting period in American history, it is also beautifully illustrated with drawings and maps.

Russell Peters is an international comedic superstar, born in Toronto and raised in nearby Brampton. His book, 'Call Me Russell' reveals the real person behind the punch-line. It is the story of a man who dreamed, hoped and worked towards a career that he loves and excels at.

'Still Alice' is a debut novel by Lisa Genova. This is a book that you won't put down—the tale of a brilliant woman who has it all. She begins to realize that her mind is becoming disoriented somehow, fractured. This is a terrifying yet loving insight into the devastation of Alzheimer's disease.

Matthew Hooton's book, 'Deloume Road' is set on beautiful Vancouver Island during the time of the Gulf War. The story focuses on a small rural community that is haunted by tragic events of the past—a novel that offers up the full scope of emotional paths in human experience.

Young Adult Reads: 'Haunted' by Barbara Haworth-Attard and 'Cupidity' by Beth Goobie.

DVD Pick: 'The Incredible Hulk' starring Edward Norton, Liv Tyler and Tim Roth. Scientist Bruce Banner comes face-to-face with his aggressive side—an action-packed film from comic book lore!

The Library has free wireless Internet during Library hours for patron convenience, so bring your Internet device and log on!

farm facts and furrows

by OMAFRA Ag Rep Brian Bell

Growing Forward 2

The provincial and federal governments are working to help Ontario's agri-food industry grow profits, expand markets and manage risk through Growing Forward 2. Premier Kathleen Wynne, in her capacity as Agriculture and Food Minister, signed a five-year, multi-million dollar agreement with the federal government focusing on innovation, competitiveness and market development. It includes $2 billion for federal-provincial-territorial strategic initiatives, which is a 50 per cent increase in cost-shared funding. Ontario's Growing Forward 2 programs will help the industry capitalize on opportunities and contribute to economic growth. Information sessions and workshops will be available in May 2013, with applications opening in June 2013 for provincial programs. Governments will continue to offer ongoing funding for a complete and effective suite of business risk management programs under Growing Forward 2. This will ensure farmers are protected against severe market volatility and natural disasters.

Providing the right climate to attract investment, create jobs and expand industries is a key priority for the Governments of Canada and Ontario. For more information, visit www.omafra.gov.on.ca/english/about/growingforward/gf2-index.htm

Controlled Grazing Guidelines: Part 2 of 2

Maintain Short Grazing Periods: Step three is to keep the grazing period in any paddock to less than 5-6 days (ideally one day). Grasses start to re-grow a few days after being grazed. This new growth is very palatable and will be readily eaten as soon as it emerges. This "re-grazing" will significantly slow any subsequent re-growth. The longer animals are on a pasture, the more the plants will have been fouled by manure, urine, walked on or laid on. These plants will not be readily consumed, which reduces the amount of available forage. Adequate Rest and Recovery: Step four is to allow adequate rest and recovery time for your pastures once they are grazed. By maintaining a 10-15 cm (4-6 inch) residual in the pasture, plants will be able to maintain active growth and be ready for the next grazing much sooner. In some parts of Ontario, managed pastures are providing 5-6 grazings and suffer less impact from poor growing conditions during July and August. Temporary or semi-permanent electric fence is easy to erect and will allow you to have control of your grazing livestock to maximize productivity. By following these basic steps, a producer will realize a significant increase in pasture productivity.

I came home from grocery shopping and did a "Rick Mercer rant" on what people put in their grocery carts. Of course it all came about because of an article I had just read explaining that up to half of baby boomers will have high blood pressure in the near future, and a CBC interview I heard about the number of children being diagnosed with ADHD.

What was put in the shopping cart (is only a start)—pop, canned soup and cereal. So let's take a look at the cereal. My take, cardboard covered in sugar. Nutritional value? Hardly any unless you can say sodium and sugar has a value. The only "type" of cereal you should be eating is large flaked oats and even better is using Loon Songs oats. As close to nature as possible.

Crunchy Granola

No chemicals, sodium, and extra sugar in this recipe. There are lots of good omega-3 fatty acids in the mixture from all the seeds and nuts and adequate fibre. When the quinoa is toasted, it adds a unique flavour and texture. It doesn't take long to make and if you make a large batch you have breakfast and snacks for more than a week.

3 cups large flake oats (Loon Song has better flavour)
1 cup shredded, unsweetened coconut
1/4 cup pumpkin seeds
1/4 cup sunflower seeds
1/4 cup flax seeds
1/4 cup quinoa
1 cup roughly (unsalted) chopped almonds
1/4 cup honey
1/4 cup maple syrup
1/4 cup olive oil (I used coconut oil)
1 cup dried cranberries or raisins or blueberries

Mix the oats, coconut, pumpkin seeds, sunflower seeds, flax seeds, quinoa and almonds together in a large bowl. Mix the honey, syrup, and oil and then stir into the oat mix.

Pour the mix onto a large sheet pan lined with parchment paper.

Bake at 300°F for 45 minutes, stirring every 15 minutes to ensure even cooking. The mix will become nicely browned.

Stir in the cranberries after baking. Let cool before storing in a glass container. The granola will be good for roughly three weeks or store in your freezer for longer.

Live Rolled Grain Porridge

This is a staple in our household, always a container in the fridge. All my kids know how to make it and they can't believe how simple and good it tastes. It has become one of their staples, including using Loon Songs oats, which we send out Calgary on a regular basis.

1 cup large flake oats, kamut or spelt (or a combination of these)
1/2 cup chopped or whole dried fruit (apricots, figs, dates, currants, prunes, goji berries etc.)

1/4 cup raw nuts and/or seeds (almonds, sunflower seeds, pumpkin seeds, walnuts, pecans etc.)

Place all ingredients in a bowl and cover with water by approximately 1/2 inch. Let soak overnight in the fridge.

The next morning, add a sprinkling of spices like cinnamon or nutmeg plus sweetener if desired. Top with nut milk or yogurt if desired.

Tehkummah Talk and Times

What a glorious shade of coral the sky is this Wednesday morning, April 10. I've got to get a move on and bake a cake, a very special cake for Don and Lois Arnold. We're presenting it prior to our cribbage game today. Everyone has been anxiously awaiting the first game of the season.

My granddaughter (the great one) eyes were like saucers yesterday when she came through the door. Grandma your table! I could hardly believe my own eyes either. It's been a while since we saw that much tabletop! It looked springy too with its small bouquet of snowdrops and crocus. Have you looked at Reta's yard for crocus? Anyway, sometimes having a reason is good!

I hosted our April Sr. UCW. There were four beautifully decorated Easter bonnets (Mum's had real flowers and Pauline's had real eggs on top, coloured). Bev's was Minnie Pearl style with a Western flair, and Audrie's was very floral. Great artists. Too bad no prizes. I got a photo of the hat ladies. Reta, Joan and I were hatless. Reta had just got back from a doctor's appointment in Espanola with Cassandra. We, as always, had a great visiting time after. I hadn't made marshmallow squares for about three year. That and raisin squares for our lunch.

Cal came in for leftovers and some of Carol's and Earl's chicken noodle soup. We lucked out! A "Deer Watch" drive in the rain netted a total of 40.

On Monday evening we celebrated a seven year birthdate next door! Skylar had a delicious chocolate birthday cake after a delicious chicken dinner. She got lots of clothes and gifts for her birthday. I promised my cats a party later! Amanda Arnold, happy birthday too! Same day I think. Pauline's birthday is later this month.

Hello Colleen Moodie, howarya!

For some reason I seem "tired" this morning.

Norris how are you keeping? I guess I owe you a thank you, do I?

Mollie and John's phone call came while I was whipping up my icing, so I couldn't talk but called them back. John is very excited about their purchase of a house in Elliot Lake. Sounds good guys!

I just told the cat she's not helping. She keeps bumping my arm and trying to get my attention.

This Thursday is the euchre tournament in Tehkummah.

Middle of the month already yet, certainly still in the "throes" of winter.

Forty-four years ago today (Monday, April 12) since my Dad died. Still seems like yesterday.

Just a couple of weeks until the Chi-cheemaun's arrival. Is there enough water to float her in?

Snowbirds where are you all? Speaking of birds, we finally have loads of little ones around, all the seed we saved all winter is finally going down.

Golly actual sunshine on Sunday. A busy day. Our church at South Baymouth had the most beautiful singing and Hymns again today. Rummy was finding it difficult to say "I'm sorry!" It's an easy, yet difficult word, isn't it? Martin talks to Rummy and we almost believe he is real...is he?

But Quillan is, our real live boy! Today he celebrates his first birthday. A party afterwards at the Sandfield Hall. Many guests helped this young fellow through his first birthday party. A lovely potluck luncheon, a great social time, drum and chant, puppet show (a puppet sang a song of Manitoulin), Eensie Weensie Spider and a real small one. Joan and I sat with Linda and Georgina and Mary. He had a bumblebee birthday cake. The most fabulous desserts and they had lots of crafts for the youngsters. Happy Birthday was sung first at the church and then at the party. The young star faded out before the guests left. Lots of gifts.

Joan said her sister Pat broke a bone in her ankle. Get better soon!

Brooke Rennie celebrates her fifth birthday today. Susan and Simon go over. I'm sure there is a party (Sunday).

Well off to Carol's and Earl's for our supper. We meet Gib and Florence there, and soon Keith and Kathy Size join the table as well. Needless to say some good visiting time. Kathy is still having trouble with her back. Gib and Florence came to Cal's afterward and the guys beat us by a slight half a skunk (if there is such a thing?). Fun anyway.

A smaller deer count tonight, about 45. Last evening we counted 90, most of them in McNaughton's fields. And a bald eagle soaring over Roger's Creek. Very beautiful. Mum beat me at cards Friday, but I had been doing pretty well most days during the week.

Our first cribbage tournament was a lot of fun. There were four tables and a celebration of Lois and Don Arnold's seventieth wedding anniversary with a special cake and ice cream served during the afternoon and many "more" photographs. High hand, 24, Bill Case; first, Cal and I, 950 points; second, Dorothy and Ted, 940; third, Lois and Margaret, 914; low, Gib and Florence, 853; door prize, Barb Lawrence. Barb kept us entertained with her jokes. She had come to challenge Mum to cribbage but ended up playing the afternoon away. Come and join us again!

At the restaurant Sunday evening Grandpa Kevin showed me a photo (camera) of the newest addition to their family. Great Aunt Lynn looks on. Congratulations to Harley James and Raymond Overfield on the birth of "Marcus" who weighed in at 6 lbs 4 oz on Friday afternoon. Welcome to the world little one!

No cribbage on Wednesday, April 17 due to a funeral luncheon at the hall for the family of Marjorie Martin who passed away on Saturday. Sympathy to the family.

Wednesday evening deer count was 120 plus.

Saturday—A game of sequence (after a fashion show by narrator Sherry and model Skylar Reckahn) with guys against the women. The games are getting much tougher. If anyone can block they sure do. A lot of fun. We were at the Cases until 11:30.

I stopped and had a visit with Susan and Simon on Friday.

Saturday afternoon Cal picked me up and we visited Sherman and Eileen in Mindemoya. Visits with them are always fun. They've had quite the winter with health challenges but "spring" is coming soon! Should put some spring in all our steps!

I hear there was a good crowd for the music afternoon at the hall for Town Line Group on Saturday.

Hello Bev Hyde! Made your move eh!

Manitoulin Transport acquires Matco Transportation Systems of Edmonton

EDMONTON—Manitoulin Transport announced last week that it has acquired Matco Transportation Systems of Edmonton. Established in 1966, Matco is a fully integrated Canadian transportation services company providing domestic and international freight, household goods relocation services and warehousing. Its geographic focus is Edmonton and Calgary in Alberta, the Northwest Territories and Yukon.

Matco is the second transportation company Manitoulin has acquired in the last four weeks and its fifth acquisition since May 2012. This demonstrates Manitoulin's continued push to further strengthen its service portfolio and its reach across Canada. The acquisition of Matco also signifies Manitoulin's entry into the household goods relocation market, an area it considers to hold significant growth opportunity.

"We are delighted to announce that we have purchased Matco, a company known for more than forty years for its exceptional customer service, professionalism and expertise," said Don Goodwill, president, Manitoulin Transport. "This brings together two highly complementary businesses which should significantly benefit both Manitoulin and Matco customers. Manitoulin customers now have the benefit of accessing expertise in the household

We will never be able to predict the weather! The surprise snow day was a gift for all students, especially after all the Grade 10 students wrote the literacy test on Thursday. Because of this, badminton participants had a two-day week. That doesn't happen very often!

ALIVE Group

This is the second year that the ALIVE group has been together (ALIVE stands for Always Living in View of Eternity). This is a group of Christian students who want to meet together and discuss religion. This is not exclusive, as everyone is able to join and share their opinions. Both this year and last year, these students got together and made freezable meals for those in need in various communities around Manitoulin Island. They also did a free baked goods give-a-way right after Easter. No profits were collected as the whole point is to show God's love.

Badminton

Our Mustangs started practicing for badminton a week before the NSSSA competition! This meant many late night practices every day of the week. But dedication in that short amount of time pays off, with Tyler King winning the junior boys' singles and Jamey VanHorn taking second in senior girls' singles. This means that both of these athletes qualify for NOSSA, which is the next level up. The rest of the team put up a good fight, with many teams and individuals losing in the semi-finals. Good luck at NOSSA, and well done everyone else!

Literacy Test

The literacy test comes around once a year, every year. However, it only applies to Grade 10 students. Everyone must write and pass this test in order to graduate from high school. Even if students don't pass the first year, or are away and miss the test, you are allowed to take the test every year until Grade 12. This test is designed to evaluate your reading and writing abilities. This is done so in the form of multiple choice, essay response to a text and short answer questions. During the time the test is being taken, the rest of the school is contained to the cafe and library. After lunch, when the test is finished, there are half hour classes for the rest of the afternoon. There is no way that students can physically study for this test. Attending your English classes and getting a good sleep the night before is almost all you can do! At least you only have to do it once!

Prov Bay News and Notes

We had a visit from our friends from Kirkland Lake area. Carrie and Albert De Smit. We had a great time travelling around the Island as they have not been up here for over 15 years. They used to camp at Mac's Camp outside Spring Bay.

We wish Erma McAllister all the best and hope she will be feeling better soon.

Correction to last week's news. Our sympathy goes out to the whole family in the passing of Anna, Jim Gilpin's sister, and Peggy Trimmer, also a sister to Anna.

MANITOULIN WIND NEWS

By Rick Martin,
Senior Manager, Business Development Wind Energy
Project Manager, McLean's Mountain Wind Farm Northland Power Inc.
rick.martin@northlandpower.ca

NEW TEAM MEMBERS AT MCLEAN'S MOUNTAIN WIND FARM

Despite the spring snow, we are getting ready for the spring/summer construction phase of the McLean's Mountain Wind Farm. There are three things you may have already noticed last week: extra trucks and people; additional brush clearing; and, someone new at the project office. I would like to officially introduce the new members of the team to you and to welcome them to Manitoulin Island.

After more than 60 years of growing a family-owned business, White Construction saw an opportunity in 2011 to join forces with Infrastructure and Energy Alternatives (IEA). Infrastructure & Energy Alternatives, LLC (IEA) was formed in 2011, chartered with building an integrated portfolio of energy and water infrastructure service companies. It is based out of Illinois, USA.

I wanted to share with you the history of our construction partners to give you a sense of the people working on this project and the pride we all share in doing a job well. The White Construction team is housed in newly rented office space in Little Current.

The clearing activity underway is focused primarily on removing brush from Gammi Road as part of the preparation for the transmission line.

McLean's Mountain Wind Farm's New Construction Site Manager Stan Stret and Long-Time project manager, Rick Martin

Like Northland Power, White Construction is a reputable Canadian company with entrepreneurial roots. White Construction Inc. traces its roots back to just prior to World War II. Its founder, Herman White, began his journey into entrepreneurship with the purchase of a dump truck which he used to haul coal and gravel in the early 1940s. Herman noticed a growing need in his community for excavation work. In 1946, he purchased two non-functioning bulldozers. Over the long winter, he worked diligently, taking parts from each dozer to make one working machine. By the spring of 1947, Herman began advertising as White Trucking and Excavating – adding the now functional bulldozers to his business offerings.

The construction phase will ramp up quickly in the next little while. This is why Stan Stret has arrived to serve as construction site manager. Stan hails from St. Catharines, Ontario. He is a professional electro-mechanical engineer. Prior to joining the McLean's Mountain Wind Farm, Stan worked for Northland on two gas plant projects in Spy Hill and North Battlefield, Saskatchewan.

As the fledgling enterprise grew, the White family's life revolved around the business. The office was located in their home and the maintenance shop was in their back yard. The 1960s brought about further growth for the company. During the 1970s the company continued to expand into new markets and was growing by leaps and bounds when an unexpected tragedy hit – the company's founding leader suddenly passed away. The company had been left in the hands of Herman's wife, Coriene, and their children. The company's leadership role was assumed by Herman's son, Herman "Buddy" White II.

Those of you used to dropping by the project office to speak with me about any issues and concerns may find me out in the field more often. I will remain responsible for community relations, municipal relations with the Town of NEMI, with First Nations, with the Community Liaison Committee, and, of course, with our landowners.

In 1983, the company name was again changed to its current name of White Construction Inc. (WCI) to better reflect its growth beyond earthmoving into a broader range of construction services. When the 21st Century dawned, White Construction answered the call to investigate methods of energy independence. Entering into the renewable energy market would propel White Construction to grow over 600% in just six years. As a pioneer in wind energy construction, White Construction is proud to have helped shape the common practices of the wind industry, including instilling proactive efforts to ensure employee safety.

I'll keep this column as a communication vehicle with Manitoulin Island residents. I'd also like to invite you to visit the Project booth we have booked at the Manitoulin Trade Fair at the end of May.

Northern Bluegrass Tour comes to Espanola

by Alicia McCutcheon

ESPAÑOLA—Manitouliners who can't wait for this year's Bluegrass in the Country event in Providence Bay will have the chance to wet their bluegrass whistles when the Northern Bluegrass Committee tour stops in Espanola on Saturday, April 27.

John Featherstone, or Brother John as he is known in bluegrass circles, is a member of the Northern committee and is excited to see Ralph Stanley II of Virginia, son of bluegrass legendary great Ralph Stanley, take to the stage at the Espanola Legion on April 27.

"He is heads and shoulders above everything," Mr. Featherstone shared.

The tour, which is over 30 years old, is also pleased to welcome Hard Ryde, recent winners of the Central Canadian Bluegrass Awards and the group that holds the most wins over any other Canadian bluegrass group in the nation's history.

The concert begins at 8 pm, but the stage opens up at 2 pm with a jam session on the Legion stage. The Espanola Legion Auxiliary is also hosting a dinner before the 8 pm show for music fans looking to make a full day of it. Brother John is the emcee.

Tickets are $22 in advance and $25 at the door and can be purchased by contacting Mr. Featherstone at 705-282-8158 or by emailing brotherjohn@manitoulin.net.

Tickets are also now on sale for the now well-established Bluegrass in the Country event which takes place at the Providence Bay Fairgrounds from June 7 to 9.

"The bluegrass fan base is building across the Island each year," Mr. Featherstone, the event organizer, said proudly.

And the lineup has already been set too. Georgian Blue, which hails from the North Bay area, will open the show on Friday, June 7 followed by Northern Opry hall of famer Glen McDougall of Providence Bay and the Manitoulin Connection—a group of talented Islanders—with the evening ending with the sweet sounds of Honeygrass.

Saturday, June 8 will see the return of crowd favourite Tyler Marshall, teenage wonder, and Brandon Ladd. The Allen Family Reunion is up next, with fiddle player John Allen of Prairie Oyster fame. The family also has a connection with Mr. Featherstone, as they grew up on the same road in southern Ontario.

"This is Manitoulin Special Olympics' biggest, and up," he explained. "When John Allen left for Prairie Oyster, it died off, but now they're back." The group is comprised of John, sister Julie, John's daughter Bev and Julie's son Paul. The group is set to perform Prairie Oyster favourites, including the 'Auctioneer's Song.'

Manitowaning's Robbie Shawana will follow the Allen Family Reunion set, with the Canucky Bluegrass Boys the next act.

While the Canucky Bluegrass Boys were once the show closers, they have been moved to take to the stage just before the supper break as fans urged organizers to give these favourites an earlier time, as not everyone has the stamina for a full day of bluegrass music. After dinner, Mike Trudell of Elliot Lake (and who has worked out of Nashville) performs followed by Honeygrass and the Good Brothers.

Sunday will see the Allen Family Reunion back on stage and the Good Brothers will close the show. Sunday, Mr. Featherstone reminds, is free of charge.

While some rough camping is available on site, Mr. Featherstone reminds campers that Providence Bay and area plays host to numerous full amenity campsites.

Sunday will see the Allen Family Reunion back on stage and the Good Brothers will close the show. Sunday, Mr. Featherstone reminds, is free of charge.

only, fundraiser," the organizer explained, praising the sponsors for their help in seeing this event to fruition each year.

Mr. Featherstone noted the direct correlation between having three world class athletes in his son Austin Featherstone, Kelsey Mellan and Regan Millsap and having money to help these athletes train, and 2013 will see 12 Manitoulin Special Olympians qualify to compete in the provincials—the biggest number yet.

"Success is due to the tremendous drive and will to train that our athletes have," he said. "These athletes also have the resources necessary to train for world competition. These resources come in a large part from Bluegrass in the Country, which is the main fundraiser for the Manitoulin Special Olympics program. Those of you in Bluegrass who have contributed to the success of our show either as performers or sponsors or ticket buyers can be very proud. We humbly thank you very much."

New this year, gold sponsors will receive tickets to Bluegrass in the Country.

Advanced tickets are $35 for the weekend for adults, $20 for youths aged 10-16 and free for children under 10 when accompanied by an adult and can be purchased at The Source in Gore Bay, Season's Restaurant in M'Chigeeng, D.A. Williamson and Sons in Mindemoya, Manitowaning Mill Home Hardware in Manitowaning and 100.7 FM The Island in Little Current.

Thank You

From Richard and Barbara Edwards

The Edwards family would like to thank the many individuals and organizations that provided their generous support in the past year. Your thoughtfulness was very welcome and appreciated during this difficult time. We look forward to personally thanking you in the coming summer. Thank you friends and neighbours.

Snowmelt reveals oil spill on waterfront

by Robin Burridge

LITTLE CURRENT—The melting snow early last week revealed a large oil stain on the grass in front of the Edgewater restaurant along the Little Current waterfront, leaving town residents concerned at its origins.

A call to the Northeast Town provided clarity to the situation, with CAO David Williamson explaining that the mark was left from an incident with a town machine on March 5.

"During snow removal on March 5, the hydraulic hose blew on a piece of equipment (the town's trackless sidewalk snow removal machine)," Mr. Williamson told The Expositor. "Staff did exactly what they should have done and shut down the equipment and cleaned up the oil."

Mr. Williamson further explained that some of the oil must have leaked into a nearby snow pile and when the snow melted last week, it revealed a stain on the grass.

A leak of hydraulic oil had some Little Current residents concerned recently, but Northeast Town staff assure the spill was cleaned before seeping into the soil, or the water.

"As soon as the town was notified, the oil was cleaned up," continued Mr. Williamson. "It looked a lot worse than it was, but it did not go past the dock or into the water. The area soil was removed and replaced."

He added that since the ground was frozen, the oil had not leaked into the soil, however a great deal of the soil was removed to ensure the spill was contained.
