8 cattle beasts lost to Green Bay farmer after single lightning strike

by Michael Erskine

GREEN BAY—Small family farms bring with them a wealth of deep satisfaction and delight for those hardy individuals who nurture their fields in the face of all that Mother Nature tosses their way each season. But the joys of watching the literal fruits of your labours grow and prosper can be offset with heartbreakingly abrupt tragedy, as months and years of labour are arbitrarily wiped out in a flash by a chance turn in the weather.

Tragedy came calling in Green Bay farmer Bruce Wood's fields this past weekend when a neighbour knocked on his door to tell him that some of his cattle were lying still under a tree in one of his pastures. When he went to investigate, he found that a bolt of lightning had struck a tall cedar under which eight of his cows were sheltering from the storm—instantly killing eight bred heifers and their as-yet unborn calves.

Climbing toward where the cattle carcasses lie forlornly packed together under the shattered cedar rising from a rain-soaked pasture on a steep hillside overlooking the road below, farmer Bruce Wood points to an outcropping of dolomite bursting up

Manitowaning's Cardwell Street gets $1.8 million in major upgrades

Wikwemikong chief calls it 'good news'

by Alicia McCutcheon

MANITOWANING—The street with the worst standing on Manitoulin, and at one time the province, will soon ditch its old reputation as the Township of Assiginack received good news earlier this month that it has been approved for round three funding from the Municipal Infrastructure Investment Framework to the tune of $1.8 million specifically for Cardwell Street.

Clerk-treasurer Alton Hobbs explained that this funding will see the road completely rebuilt and asphalted—a long term solution to a problem that has gone unsolved for years, despite both the municipality's and Wikwemikong's best efforts to raise awareness of the issue of the deteriorating main thoroughfare into Manitoulin's largest community. Cardwell Street was also a constant source of front-page news over almost a decade in this newspaper, and The Expositor also often encouraged the improvement of the street as part of its editorial commentary.

In October of 2007, Cardwell

LITTLE CURRENT—It's not every day that someone unselfishly helps a stranger without the desire for recognition (or financial gain), but that is just what Little Current nurse Victor Ching did earlier this summer when he offered the use of his Toronto condo to Ryan and Karrie Graham and their seven-month-old baby girl Harper who required chemotherapy treatment at Toronto's Sick Kids Hospital.

"I work with Harper's great aunt Judy (Ferguson) here at the hospital," explained Mr. Ching, who is originally from Toronto but who has been working at the Manitoulin Health Centre (MHC) in Little Current for the last eight months. "Judy was one of the people who mentored me here and she mentioned in passing what was happening with Harper and since my condo was free, I offered it to her family."

Mr. Ching was modest during a party that was held in his honour last week at MHC, organized by

Two vie for chief's position in M'Chigeeng First Nation

Joe Hare bases campaign on experience

by Michael Erskine
M'CHIGEENG—Incumbent Chief Joe Hare is putting his long tenure as chief of the M'Chigeeng First Nation central to his bid for reelection and touting his many years of experience at the council helm under the theme of 'Experience Counts.'

Chief Hare cites what he characterized as the "excellent progress" the community is making under his leadership and he credits the support of the band council members who he said "support a new way of doing business."

"There has been a shift to broadening skills and education support so that just about anyone who wants to further his/her their education or learn a new skill can access this support," he says in a written statement sent to The Expositor in response to a request for comments.

Chief Hare said his goal is to see M'Chigeeng "become an education and skills centre and have other First Nations members come to M'Chigeeng to better their education."

To that end, the M'Chigeeng community has been building infrastructure that also serves and benefits "our own band members and businesses."

Chief Hare cites a new program for band members currently on social assistance that will provide "training and work opportunities to anyone who wants to get ahead" that will soon start in the community as an example of the forward looking focus on building a better local economy.

To further that end, the band is developing a labour

Martin Debassige promises to listen

by Michael Erskine
M'CHIGEENG—"My main focus is on the community and community input," said candidate for M'Chigeeng chief Martin Debassige, who noted that he has been visiting households where he has been sitting and listening to the people of his community. "It is important to be able to listen to people," he said. "Listen to every individual that has something to say."

What he has been hearing at the doorstep and in the kitchens and living rooms of people in the M'Chigeeng community is first and foremost a desire to see a local grocery store outlet in the community. "People have been asking about this for many years and they have seen no progress, they hear a lot of promises and a lot of talk around election time, but none of it has ever come to pass," he said. "People are getting tired of promises instead of

He noted that the community believes that a large grocery outlet in the community would not only serve the community with fresh food at reasonable prices, but also provide jobs for members of the community. "Economic development has always been an important consideration and it always will be important for everyone in the community," he said. "It has to be done in line with community input, not just the ideas of a few people without consultation of the community members."

Mr. Debassige cited concerns that he has heard from elders in the community that he has visited. "They are saying that there is nothing there for them to ...continued on page 10

Help the Stop the Drop campaign reach its Labour Day goal of 20,000 members

by Robin Burridge
LITTLE CURRENT—Jim Nies of the Manitoulin Area Stewardship Council (MASC) was the guest speaker last Wednesday night at the annual Cruisers' Net Rendezvous Pot Luck dinner where he spoke on Stop the Drop, a campaign to "engage users in sustained self-education, dialogue and activity to address water level issues in Georgian Bay."

The stewardship council has teamed up with the campaign with the goal of having 20,000 registrants by this upcoming Labour Day weekend.

"Stop the Drop was started by Colin Dobell, a resident of Southern Georgian Bay," Mr. Nies explained. "He contacted us (MASC) and we met with him this past spring. We realized we had a similar goal in addressing water level issues in Georgian Bay and joined with him in the campaign."

Mr. Nies explained that Stop the Drop is a non-profit campaign to bring attention to the low water level issues in Georgian Bay, Lake Huron and other Great Lakes, encouraging leaders to take action.

The campaign is seeking all lake users over the age of 10 from cottagers, boaters, shoreline residents and business owners to sign up and help the cause.

"The campaign wants to engage all users of the lakes and bring people together so that everyone is aware," continued Mr. Nies. "We want leadership to know that there is a large group of constituents watching with expectations for something to be done about the dropping water levels. We don't want to lose the Great Lakes."

The group that assembled for the presentation was mostly from the boating community, many of whom had already registered with the campaign or were looking for more information on the campaign.

Mr. Nies explained that the campaign presently had just over 15,000 signatures and was hoping for all present at the meeting to sign up, if they hadn't already done so, and to also encourage their friends and family to join the campaign as well.

To register, visit www.stopthedrop.ca. Registration takes only a few minutes, and as Mr. Nies pointed out, has the potential to make a big impact.

MINDEMOYA—Alma and Allan Tustian are a popular Mindemoya couple and a great many people stopped by to say hello and buy a book signed by Mr. Tustian at the Island Foodland store on August 24. Edited by Mr. Tustian's daughter Jeanne Lefebvre and his good friend Wayne Neal, the book is titled 'Allan Tustian and The Battle of the Atlantic' and tells the story of the exploits of the Royal Canadian Navy and Mr. Tustian's role in the war against Germany for control of the ocean.

As Ms. Lefebvre explained, Mr. Tustian starting writing his memories down and then she put his notes on the computer and did some editing. Mr. Neal, who has an interest in military history, added technical details, helped with the editing and put the book together and stressed the importance of this account. "Allan is a good friend and a good friend to a lot of people," Mr. Neal said, "and I think it's important that young people know about this and know that Allan made 43 crossings."

Mr. Tustian had a few months of army training and joined the medical corps before hitching up with the navy. He had always been fascinated with boats, ever since his first boat ride to Mindemoya Island, now called Treasure Island, when he was eight-years-old. Mr. Tustian worked at the island lodge until 1940 when he headed off to Toronto to find winter work which included a job at a service station, a lamp store and at Bowls Lunch counter. In the spring of 1941, Mr. Tustian decided to enlist and underwent basic training in Newmarket that summer. His hut corporal was a World War One vet by the name of Jones and Mr. Tustian ran into him years later in downtown Mindemoya talking to his father-in-law Watson Smeltzer. "It turns out that he had married Watson's sister Violet Smeltzer," Mr. Tustian explained. "Small world, isn't it?"

It is obvious throughout the book that there is nothing wrong with Mr. Tustian's memory as he talks about his army and medical corps

Cardwell Street improvements could use cycling paths

Who knows the names of individual streets and roads within particular municipalities? No one, usually, except for the people who live in the towns and often even they are hard-pressed to know the name of an individual street in their own town, unless they happen to live on, or near, it.

The exception is Assiginack Township's Cardwell Street, the roadway that runs from the intersection diagonally across from the southeast corner of the Manitowaning fairgrounds to the Wikwemikong border. It passes the former Manitowaning Lodge and the entry road to the Assiginack Curling Club and the Rainbow Ridge Golf Course.

It's not very long, not quite three kilometres, but many Manitoulin people have at least a vague idea of where it is, not least of all for the reason that it topped the annual "Ontario's Worst Roads" competition three years ago.

It's become well known because it had deteriorated through use and, because it connects with Wikwemikong Way, that large First Nation community's main thoroughfare, it is the only access in and out of Wikwemikong.

Wikwemikong council made the issue a prominent one with their neighbouring municipality, asking with some urgency that the road be upgraded and citing reasons of safety. That campaign began nearly a decade ago.

Suddenly Cardwell Street was in the news, often on the front page of this paper, and has remained so for several years as Assiginack council went to the extent of meeting provincial cabinet ministers on the issue at the annual Ontario Good Roads Convention and, failing to see much progress, Wikwemikong even investigated the possibility of building its own new road which would have connected directly with Highway 6.

That's how one fairly short, but important street became locally famous.

In the way of these things, though, Assiginack Township has finally accessed the money it needs to properly rebuild and resurface this busy and now famous roadway without placing a large financial burden on its taxpayers. (It has also made patchwork improvements over the years.)

It's a testament to the persistence of everyone concerned.

But is the story over?

We have also reported much on adding paved shoulders to provincial highways when they are being rebuilt and resurfaced in the interest of safety for the bicycling community and to encourage more cycling activity.

Cardwell Street, at least from its Manitowaning end down to the curling club and golf course intersection, would also be a good candidate for paved shoulders/bike lanes as the street is improved as this could be part of a useful cycling route that could also include the sideroad that runs past the length of the Rainbow Ridge Golf Course and over to McMullan Road and then across to the paved shoulders on Highway 6 and back to Manitowaning.

The sideroads are less well travelled and Highway 6 already has the paved shoulders.

This short stretch (about half) of Cardwell Street, with paved shoulders, would give the people of Manitowaning and visitors a safe and useful circuit, long enough to be a source of meaningful exercise.

Since Cardwell Street has become well-known on Manitoulin in a negative context, what a powerful message would be delivered should this much-aligned street be turned into part of a cycling route that would be the envy of other communities.

It's worth thinking about.

NEMI Taxpayers group calls for think tank to approach tax rates

It is up to council to work to find a satisfactory solution to tax differentials

To the Expositor:

The NEMI Taxpayers' Association would like to applaud the efforts of the McGregor Bay Association in speaking up about taxation in NEMI. That is what associations such as ours are about—speaking up for our members and taxpayers and that is why we spoke about the retirees in Wards 2, 3 and 4 at the August 7 public meeting. This was a decision made by our board unanimously at their June meeting. The CAO presented at the public meeting the exact figures for municipal taxation based on $100,000 worth of assessment per wards. It was interesting to see this since it was the first time in the 7.5 years we have voluntarily attended municipal meetings and budget deliberations for our members that we can remember having seen the exact figures. It clearly showed that Ward 1 taxpayers pay about $500 per $100,000 worth of assessment less than property owners in wards 2, 3 and 4. On an assessed property value of $300,000 which is a realistic figure for properties on the water including in Wards 3 and 4, the cost of municipal taxes are approximately $1,500 more for Wards 2, 3 and 4 and keeps growing each year. We agree that Ward 1 brings in $683,312 in taxes yearly to NEMI and we all appreciate their contribution to keeping our municipality viable and healthy. We also appreciate the contributions of Ward 2 taxpayers whose taxes amount to $1,217,556 and their many volunteers who keep our organizations and clubs working to better our lives. We also appreciate the contributions of Wards 3 and 4 taxpayers whose taxes amount to $1,831,256 in 2013 and provide countless volunteer hours to community halls, organizations and clubs both in their wards and also in Ward 2. What we are saying is that all of the taxpayers play an important role in keeping our municipality healthy and viable for the future but this must be at an affordable price for all.

The province changed the taxation picture in Ontario when it empowered MPAC (Municipal Property Assessment Corporation) to do the property values assessments for municipalities. According to a municipal adviser at the Ministry of Municipal Affairs on August 23, MPAC has a formula for assessing values based on waterfront availability plus services plus roads. Simply put, if there is no road access, the value is less. If there are limited services, the value is less. If the property is not on waterfront, it is less. Ward 1 taxpayers have no road access to the islands and limited services other than the Ministry of Natural Resources Fire Protection Package purchased for them and Wards 3 and 4 this year through the municipal budget. So that benefits them when their assessment is determined. The municipality then determines what they need to run the municipality and divides it up between their taxpayers. It is our council that decides how the taxes are distributed to the wards, not MPAC. So when Ward 3 and 4 taxpayers hear that they pay for 66 2/3 percent of the 1.4 million dollar roads item in the budget, Ward 2 pays for 33 1/3 percent, and Ward 1 pays 0 percent, understandably taxpayers are upset.

Ward 4, the old Howland Township, readily amalgamated with Little Current. They saw the value in working on a united front. They made no deals with council and continue to pay their share regardless as to how they feel about the taxation. One councillor stated after the August 7 meeting that amalgamation has not worked. Well then it is up to our council to ensure that it does work. According to Municipal Affairs and Housing, there is no process for de-amalgamation. That means that taxpayers must work through their municipal councilors for equality of rights. Speak to every councillor about your taxes; it is your right to do so. Councillors have indicated to us that they want to hear from you, the taxpayer. The Think Tank approach to solving this problem which was suggested by the NEMI Taxpayers' Association in February was turned down by council. This would have been a proactive opportunity for a committee (with stakeholders from all wards) to brainstorm ideas and suggestions about the taxation dilemmas we face in NEMI. Council rejected this idea without explanation. The NEMI Taxpayers' Association is once again calling on council to reconsider striking a municipal committee and give business people and regular taxpayers who want to solve this problem, an opportunity to make suggestions. Our hats are off to the Ward 1 property owner who stood up at the August 7 meeting and stated that surely there must be a solution to this problem. We agree with her. It's up to council to work to find it.

Wind turbine editorial decried

'A cheap shoddy shot concerning a subject about which you have little knowledge'

To the Expositor:

While vacationing on the Island a few weeks ago, I read with interest the editorial of July 31, 2013 about the building of additional industrial wind turbines on Manitoulin.

If I were to choose one word to describe the content of this editorial, it would be the adjective sophomoric, to be understood in its plain meaning of shallow, immature, and juvenile. I say this because I live in a community in which a compliant municipal council welcomed the hucksters of green energy, which led to the building of more than 150 wind turbines with more to come, in an area much smaller than Manitoulin, known as the Municipality of Chatham-Kent. The result has been that property values here have fallen, there has been an increase in reports of people suffering mental and physical difficulties and sadly the building of the turbines has caused a sense of enmity amongst many members of the community.

The jobs created in building the turbines were temporary and many of them went to workers from outside the community and as for the industry that was expected to follow in the turbines' wake, we are still waiting 10 years later.

The moral of the story is that the citizen who placed and paid for the full page ad which prompted your editorial should not be held up to ridicule but listened to. In case I have not made myself clear, I think your editorial of July 31 was a cheap, shabby shot concerning a subject about which you have little knowledge let alone the competence to understand. If the building of the turbines proceeds, it will bring grave harm to a beautiful part of the world.

At least you have partially fulfilled Tom Paine's saying on your mast head, "who dares not offend cannot be honest" by offending in the interest of a qualified sense of honesty.

Islanders capture exotic cats and return to owners

Proof positive that Manitouliners care about their community members

To the Expositor:

We wish to convey to the citizens of Bay Estates our deepest gratitude for your many calls, tips and support in helping us find our lost male Savannah cat Rusty. We are overwhelmed with the volume of calls since publishing our missing exotic cat article in the Expositor on August 14. Chris Brownlee originally photographed Rusty in late July on her property thinking it may have been a young cougar. This would photo would have made an excellent submission for a $500 Expositor reward had it been verified as such. Unknown to readers, the cat seen in that photo was but one of our two escaped Savannah cats. We were hoping that the newspaper article would have been able to locate and uncover both of them. The male cat near Bay Estates was a three-year-old F2 Savannah named Rusty who was roaming Bay Estates lakeshore properties hungry and disorientated. The other lost cat was a spotted F3 Savannah female cat named Tabitha whose whereabouts were unknown. We offered a $250 reward for each cat should someone manage to safely capture them. The fate of our cats was completely out of our control; however citizens of Manitoulin should never be underestimated when it comes to action!

Since the article, we would like to thank the many people who have called and responded to sightings within the Bay Estates area. On August 14 (after reading the missing cat article) I received an email from a South Bay neighbour a few streets away stating that a wandering spotted cat befriended the couple six weeks ago. They believed this spotted feline might be one our cats and had been hanging around their home for weeks. As it turns out, Dave and Shirley Nelder of Lonesome Pine Trail were very correct for they had located our dearly missed Tabitha. We owe the Nelders a sincere debt of gratitude for their kindness and neighbourly goodwill in swiftly responding given our circumstances. Rusty, the Bay Estates nomad, we thought would be almost impossible to catch. We were greatly mistaken! The elusive Rusty was caught in a raccoon trap last week by a very caring Bay Estates resident, Gary Desbarais, who was single-mindedly determined to catch Rusty on our behalf after reading the article. After days of setting traps and catching his share of skunks Mr. Desbarais gave us the call on August 20 excitedly proclaiming that Rusty was safely contained and safe in his house. We would like to bless Gary and his wife for their compassion and selfless effort trying to get our Rusty back for us given his skittish temperament. Yes, we are happy to have our pets returned but as we learned through this journey, lost and found cats are not the real story. In any context of loss, it remains the kind, persevering spirit of area Manitoulin residents such as Dave and Shirley Nelder and Gary Desbarais for helping fellow neighbours in distress that really constitutes the actual feature story of this article! Let us remember that The Manitoulin Expositor's coverage of our story is also directly responsible for making this all happen. Whether you lose a pet, a wallet, your house keys or leave something behind at a Manitoulin store, you can rest assured that your situation of a missing item may only be a temporary condition. Should a loss misfortune become your reality, don't be surprised by the swift personal response you will receive about your missing item for one fact is historically immutable living this side of the bridge—Islanders genuinely care about their community members!

History once again made at the Dodge Lodge

Couple have opportunity to celebrate a life denied to automotive newlywed heir and his wife

To the Expositor:

On Saturday, August 24, an important wedding took place at the legendary Dodge Lodge just outside of Kagawong. Heidi Schwarzli and Rob Martel were married at the former home of Daniel Dodge, heir to the Dodge Motor Company Fortune. The bride was given away by her father Bernie Schwarzli, the current owner of the Dodge Lodge along with his wife Cindy.

It was just over 75 years that a great tragedy happened at the lodge that still haunts the memory of this famous property. As a result, a bride and groom never got the chance to celebrate the life they could have had. Now an opportunity has befallen this historic site that will correct that injustice. A new chapter has now been written in the story of the Dodge Lodge because never before had a wedding taken place there. Happy times are back and Daniel and his bride Laurine are undoubtedly giving their blessing to Heidi and Rob for a long life together. May their spirits always watch over you.

The Billings Museum Board would like to congratulate Heidi and Rob on their marriage and offer their appreciation for choosing this location to celebrate it.

Sincerest wishes,

The Billings Museum Board

Higher water levels should not lead to complacency over Stop the Drop campaign

One warm winter and spring can undo all the gains made this year

To the Expositor:

Good winter ice coverage, a wet spring and cool periods this summer have all contributed to our higher water levels this year. That has been much to the relief of us all. However, one warm winter and spring can undo all that gain.

The IJC recommendation to slow the water loss at the St. Clair River is in the hands of the American Secretary of State and our Minister of Foreign Affairs. Although both parties have a lot of important tasks at hand, we must keep attention on the plight of Lakes Huron-Michigan. The best way for you to do that is by registering with www.stopthedrop.ca

The Stop the Drop campaign has been in operating in Georgian Bay and Manitoulin all summer. Despite the added pressure of higher water levels, the Stop the Drop team can see the goal of 20,000 registrants in sight. But they need your help to make it.

Joining Stop the Drop.ca is free. Our message does not advocate a specific cause or solution to the water level issue, but rather asks politicians to notice that their voters are paying attention to this issue, and to what they do, or do not do, about it. The website has strict privacy policies in place to ensure information is not shared with outside commercially-oriented parties.

Please join us. Get the kids, the grandkids and anyone you know who enjoys this sweetwater sea to register at www.stopthedrop.ca. Thanks and chi-miigwech!

Divisions amongst churches are not the will of God

It should be about spreading the Good News of Jesus Christ and God, not church buildings on Sundays

To The Expositor:

Further to the editorial in the Wednesday, August 14, 2013 Manitoulin Expositor "Succession challenges present ecumenical opportunity," Page 4.

Quote: "This is a ticklish topic because people are very closely tied emotionally to their own church buildings and the religious traditions that they've grown up with and which, to a large extent, defines who they are."

This paragraph outlines why the problems of one God and too many religions have God's world divided and destroyed. It seems to be about all the different types of denominations and not about the one true Saviour Jesus Christ and God. Everyone is divided by denominations not by God. It should be all about God and his worship and spread the Good News of Jesus Christ and God around the world, not just the church buildings on Sundays.

Yours truly,

Monarch butterfly decline has gone beyond cyclical anomaly

Planting milkweed and controlling dog strangling vine populations is required to help stem extinction

To the Expositor:

It is sad, but not surprising, that the monarch butterfly is on the decline. The decline in the monarch population now marks a statistical long-term trend and can no longer be seen as a combination of yearly or seasonal events. Last winter there was a 59 percent decline in Mexico in the number of monarch butterflies that arrived at their wintering grounds. Rather than their numbers covering approximately 14 acres, their numbers occupied only slightly less than three acres. There are now only one-fifteenth as many monarch butterflies as there were in 1997.

Research shows that the monarchs have been in decline for the past decade for many reasons. In the US and Canada, it is noted that extreme climate variation, farming practices involving corn and soybeans that eliminate milkweed from the growing fields and the increase in the growth of strangling dog vine, a milkweed cousin, on which the butterflies lay their eggs, but the larvae do not survive have contributed to the decline. I have always kept a patch of milkweed in my yard in Sheg and have noted in the past three years that there have been no larvae or chrysalis on my plants. I was somewhat uplifted this year to note that the milkweed was being consumed only to see that it was the larvae of the milkweed tussock moth—a bit disappointing.

Omar Vidal, the World Wildlife Fund director in Mexico, said: "The conservation of the monarch butterfly is a shared responsibility between Mexico, the United States and Canada. By protecting the reserves and having practically eliminated large-scale illegal logging, Mexico has done its part. It is now necessary for the United States and Canada to do their part and protect the butterflies' habitat in their territories." It is thought that both planting milkweed and trying to control the Dog Strangling Vine population would help to provide the environment the butterflies require to successfully breed in North America. 'Can we do it and will we do it' is my question.

MIDRA on home turf

The Manitoulin Island Dirt Riders Association were extremely pleased to see an increase of riders from their recent races as well as welcoming some of their old(er) riders and even brand new ones out to show support for MIDRA at the Providence Bay Fair Motocross Races. Placings are a little sketchy at this point but it is just great to see so many local riders participating. Jacob Nichols placed second and had a great race against first time rider Brady Dearing from Gore Bay running in third. Hunter Cranston, who just back from Nationals at Walton, put on a great show as usual. Bradley Stapleton is always amazing to watch and he too had a great battle in his class. Zac Nichols and Jarvis Debassige unfortunately both had bike troubles again. Other Midra riders were Alyssa Cranston, Derrek Debassige, Jason McMurray, and the newest members to Midra were the amazing Christopher and Steven White brothers from Manitowaning who did a great job for their very first race! The team is still crossing their fingers that Alayna Cranston can return as soon as possible after her injury at the beginning of the summer. Once again, MIDRA really appreciated all the riders and supporters who made the trip to Manitoulin's amazing course.

Manitoulin Minor Hockey Registration

It is that time of the year when the six members of the Manitoulin Minor Hockey Association need to know how many players and therefore, teams will make up their local association's fleet of teams for the 2013 – 2014 season. Most community associations need to know by mid-September how many NOHA player cards they need to purchase or forfeit. Manitowaning's registration is taking place next week for sure but most other communities will also need to get their stats together soon as well. If you are unsure, please contact your local minor hockey executive to get their local registration information soon as most offer an early registration incentive to save the organized some money.

Island racers shine at Providence Bay track

by Derek Debassige, No. 444
 PROVIDENCE BAY—As the trucks roll in and begin to unload the amusements of the annual Providence Bay fair, Robbie Cranston's crew works tediously behind the attractions, putting the finishing touches on one of the few remaining motocross (MX) race tracks in the Canadian Moto Sport Racing (CMRC) Central Series.

The Providence Bay Motocross track has been a staple in the series for the better part of a decade. Prior to its inception to the series, only a handful of avid racers left the Island each summer weekend in pursuit of competitive racing action. The Island now sends a caravan of race trailers and a solid contingent of competitive racers to each Central Ontario series race and has proven to be a development hub for young racers. Over this period Manitoulin riders have won Central Series championships in nearly every race class CMRC has to offer. With a few years of racing under my belt, I can attest to the time commitment, practice, fitness, focus and parts catalogues it takes to win. Notable Islanders among the list of past series points champs who have, at one time or another, pounded lap after lap at the Prov location include Neil Debassige (long retired), Jenna and Andrew Wood, Rob Sheppard, Brian Stapleton and Greg Chaytor, to name a few.

This race day however, was defined by a new generation of Manitoulin's fastest. With track conditions at their all-time best, throngs of fans enjoyed the exciting bar to bar action. Thunderbird Racing rider Bradley Stapleton and Jason McMurray, two of the Island's fastest competitors in recent history finished second and first respectively in the intermediate MX2 and MX1 classes.

The Nichols brothers were on hand to keep any challengers honest: Zach's effort unfortunately ended early as his steed succumbed to ATV gremlins, and Jacob, despite a pair of mid-pack starts showed the crowd his speed as he picked off riders all day to finish second in a talent stacked class including Jarvis Debassige and Bradey Dearing.

Alyssa Cranston has ridden much of the season in unfamiliar territory without her sister Alayna lined up in the gate beside her. Alyssa has had a breakthrough year mastering obstacles most grown adults wouldn't dare attempt on her potent little red Honda. This speedy young woman was rewarded with a first place finish in the 85cc class, a result made possible by many practice nights of focused effort.

Thunderbird Racing rider Hunter Cranston qualified again this year for the Walton Transcan Amateur National. After racing all week to a successful 19th place finish out of the provinces 39 fastest up and coming MX racers

Hunter and his father Derek Cranston rushed home to line up in Providence Bay. Hunter took the top spot in both his age category and the supermini by winning all four motos.

When the dust settled, the racers who spend a good part of their summer in Providence Bay defended home dirt. Many thanks to Robbie C, the slew of volunteers, the Agricultural Society and the parents who make Manitoulin MX a reality. The future of the Providence Bay Motocross track is unclear. Rumbblings have surfaced throughout the race season that perhaps this race may be the last race held at the storied location. If it is Prov's last race, it's been a heck of a ride. If it isn't, I'll see you at the races.

Jacob Nichols, John Nichols, Bradey Dearing and Jarvis Debassige line up at the motocross races held recently at the Providence Bay Motocross track.

First annual All Ontario Native Horseshoe Championships toss a ringer in M'Chigeeng

by Robin Burrige
M'CHIGEENG—The first annual All Ontario Native Horseshoe Championships (AONHC) organized and hosted by the Rainbow Ringers Horseshoe Club in M'Chigeeng First Nation earlier this month was an overwhelming success bringing together almost 100 players from First Nations across the province.

"The event went great," AONHC tournament convener Nicole Fox reported to The Expositor. "We had participants from M'Chigeeng, Wikwemikong Unceded Indian Reserve, Mattagami First Nation and Upper Mohawk Six Nations in Brantford. We planned the whole thing in only two months so we didn't know what to expect, but everything came together really well."

The idea for the tournament came from one of the Rainbow Ringers' founding fathers, Cheyenne Migwans, who helped organize the tournament along with his wife Cecile, daughters Ashley Migwans and Nicole Fox, and the other members of the club.

"My dad wanted to organize something like this for a few years now," explained Ashley Migwans. "The club has been doing so well and we just wanted to start something to get leagues together and there is nothing else like this out there."

Cecile Migwans shared that the Rainbow Ringers was founded in 2007 by "four founding fathers" Cheyenne Migwans, Ken Migwans, Edward Debassige and John Ense.

"It originally started some summer residents from across Canada and the States."

The master of ceremonies for the weekend was Jerry Debassige, with Grand Council Chief of the Union of Ontario Indians Patrick Madahbee attending the opening ceremonies.

The tournament kicked off Friday night with 10 players competing in the men's master division, 55 plus. First place was won by Rocky Taibossigai, while second place went to Cheyenne Migwans, and third went to Malcolm Simon.

Saturday the tournament started back up with the men's double division. Fourteen teams competed with Eugene Eshkwawkogan and Rodney Lavallee taking home the first place trophy. Second place went to Rodney McKay and Larry Naveau and third went to Ken Migwans and Jimi Bebonang.

In the women's single division, Cecile Migwans took home the first place trophy while Ashley Migwans came in second and Gail Animikwaan, third.

Finally, in the mixed doubles division Ashley Migwans and Wade Debassige were the champions. Lee Taibossigai and Carissa Taibossigai came in second, followed by Cecile and Cheyenne Migwans in third.

"Many of the matches were very close," said Ms. Fox. "In the mixed divisions there were many upsets as the top seeded teams were put out in the first playoff round."

"I am really happy with the tournament," Edward Debassige told The Expositor. "It has just been a good time for everyone to come together. It is nice to see people from different reserves here."

"I love the great camaraderie," added Ken Migwans. "It's been a lot of fun."

"It has been great making new friends and getting reacquainted with old ones," added Cheyenne Migwans.

The oldest participant in the AONHC was 76-year-old Morris Emery, while the youngest was 21-year-old Carissa Debassige.

The Rainbow Ringers will be the 2014 AONHC hosts again next year and wanted to extend a special thanks to this year's sponsors who made the tournament possible.

The sponsors included Tammy and Edward Debassige, Crystal and Ian McCauley, Jake's Home Centre, Lillian's Arts and Crafts, Paul's Corner Store, Parkinson Electric, Island Promotional Products, Anishnawbek News, E. Fastball season winding up with Wiky and AOK rivals meeting in the finals

by Michael Erskine

MANITOULIN—The final round of the Manitoulin Fastball League championships were to begin last night (Tuesday, August 27) with traditional rivals the Wiky Lumberjacks meeting the AOK Raiders in the finals in Wikwemikong.

The results of the 2013 regular season won/loss standings were Wiky Lumberjacks, 14-1; AOK Raiders, 11-4; Mindemoya Brewers, 9-6; Gore Bay Merchants, 4-11; Kaboni Tigers, 3-12; and M'Chigeeng Legends, 1-14.

As a result of the regular season standings, Wikwemikong and AOK both received a bye of the second round.

In the first round the Mindemoya Brewers beat M'Chigeeng two games to none in the first round, while the Gore Bay Merchants also beat the Kaboni Tigers two games to none in the first round.

In the second round of the semi-finals, the pattern repeated itself with AOK dominating their series with Mindemoya three games to none and Wiky triumphing over Gore Bay three games to none.

The Wiky Lumberjacks met the AOK Raiders to start the final series on Tuesday in a best of five series. Games two and three are scheduled for this evening (Wednesday, August 28) in AOK and are scheduled to return to Wikwemikong on Thursday (August 30).

The series promises to be as exciting a matchup as has been seen in recent years, building on the long-standing rivalry between two of the strongest fastball teams on the Island.

...Tragic pool mishap claims child's life

child who had fallen into a pool and CPR was being administered.

Officers arrived on scene and observed the father administering CPR to his six-year-old son. OPP officers relieved the father and continued resuscitation efforts before paramedics arrived on the scene and continued resuscitation. Members of the Assiginack Volunteer Fire Department also arrived on scene to assist. The child was immediately transported to the Manitoulin Health Centre in Little Current. After an extensive attempt at resuscitation by the medical staff at the hospital, the boy was pronounced dead by the attending doctor.

After investigation, police learned that the parents and their five children were present inside the home at the time of the incident. The child had briefly made his way outside of the residence and was quickly discovered in the pool by his parents.

The local coroner attended the hospital and ordered a post mortem examination at Sudbury Heath Science North for Monday, August 26 to determine the exact cause of death.

...Cardwell Street gets $1.8 million in upgrades

Street took home the top honours in the annual Canadian Automobile Association's (CAA) Worst Roads list. It made the list in the years following too and in June of 2008, a special meeting was held with former Indian and Northern Affairs Minister Chuck Strahl with both then Wikwemikong Chief Robert Corbiere and Assiginack Reeve Leslie Fields in attendance.

Also that same year Assiginack gave Cardwell Street a band-aid solution of tar and chip thanks to emergency funding from the Ministry of Transportation, which helped to smooth the ride.

The municipality is currently consulting with its engineers but, Mr. Hobbs explained, work might have to wait until 2014.

Cardwell Street falls within the boundaries of Assiginack, but is the sole road into the Wikwemikong Unceded Indian Reserve. Both parties have tried over the years to draw attention to its importance, but until now have been turned down.

"I think it's really good news, especially considering we are one of the driving forces of the economy of Assiginack, as well as the entire region," Wikwemikong Chief Duke Peltier told The Expositor.

The chief said that having the main thoroughfare in suitable shape is important for all kinds of reasons, among them the fact that his community has made significant investments in tourism infrastructure. Having a smooth ride into Wikwemikong makes it more welcoming for people to come, he added, as well as to do business.

...cattle beasts lost after single lightning strike

through the thin soil underfoot. "We can't even bury them here," he said. "We have to take them down the hill and over to another pasture where there is some deeper soil."

As we arrive at the site of the lightning strike, the bodies of the dead cows are badly distended from the gases building up within. The legs of an unborn calf protrude from one of the heifers. The carcasses had already started to bloat within hours of the deaths and that was yesterday. "It's hard to even look at," said Mr. Wood.

The financial hit to the Wood farm from this tragedy is likely to be substantial, even though he does have insurance, he doesn't know how much of the loss will be covered and it is pretty certain that the coverage will not extend to the loss of the unborn calves. "These are $1,600 cows," he notes, their actual value lying somewhere in the range between $1,600 and $2,000 apiece. But the farmer's loss extends far beyond the initial financial hit.

Mr. Wood shakes his head as he ducks under the tree to begin pulling tags from the ears of the cows. "This here was my best cow," he said, pausing to look down over a still pale white body lying right next to the tree trunk.

These are the animals that Mr. Wood hand-picked to be the future foundation of his small herd of 55 cattle. He knew each one of these animals well, understood the various quirks in their personalities and their individual character habits. "They are almost like pets," he said.

Mr. Wood looks out across the valley below the hill back toward the road. "I wish I could move them out of sight of the road at least." But he can't. Mr. Wood has to wait for the insurance adjuster to come and verify the loss before he can begin to move the bodies. All morning he and his uncle have been waiting by the phone in the farmhouse for the call from the insurance company. Meanwhile the cattle are deteriorating fast in the hot August weather.

"They will start to smell soon," notes Mr. Wood as we begin to walk back down the hillside. "It is tricky to move them. You have to be careful how you do it." The methane buildup within cattle can actually cause the bodies to rupture and even explode, with very unfortunate results.

Like most farmers Mr. Wood is taciturn in most of his communications and not much for complaining, he takes the loss of his herd with the resigned air of a seasoned tiller of the soil and there is little to read of emotion on his face. But the farmer notes that he would prefer to make the connection with the insurance adjuster sooner rather than later. Mr. Wood wants to make the rounds of his other pastures and check on the rest of his small herds. "Right now I don't even know if they are alright," he said.

His son had reported seeing one calf born to one of his heifers in another field, but when Mr. Wood went to check, the calf was nowhere to be seen. If the animal has fallen victim to a wolf or bear, he will need to find the carcass to prove the loss to the government.

The damage from the storm could have been much worse. "The lightning hit the house too," he said. "We could smell smoke in the bathroom." Mr. Wood shut the breaker to that area of the house as the family checked for where the smell of smoke was coming from. The smell abated, but he will still have to have the wiring checked for damage.

"My father always said, 'if you can keep it down at the barn and out of the house, you are doing alright,'" said Mr. Wood.

The loss of cattle to lightning, particularly in such numbers, is rare. Mr. Wood recalled that his father had once lost five animals to a similar situation. "But that was over 40 years ago," he said.

Mr. Wood admitted that he was at first reluctant to talk to the media about the loss of his cattle, but he relented in the interest of helping to educate those who know little about the challenges facing small family farms.

He has spent much of the last week chasing black-birds out of his sweet corn and a neighbour is walking his dogs around Mr. Wood's grain fields to scare off the hordes of sandhill cranes that are ravaging the plants. "His wife doesn't want me to shoot them," he said. "So he is chasing the cranes off."

For his part, Mr. Wood recently made a representation to the Ministry of Natural Resources to encourage the government to institute a loss program to compensate grain farmers for losses to flocks of birds similar to one that is in place in Alberta. He found the reception from the MNR officials to be encouraging, for a change.

In addition to the normal challenges of weather and disease that can afflict living things despite all best efforts, farmers must constantly deal with government decisions too often made by those who have little understanding or empathy with realities facing small family farms.

"There are fewer small farms every year," Mr. Wood said. "Sometimes it seems like the government does its best to make it even harder to make a go of it."

Mr. Wood closes the gate and looks back up the hill at the tight group of pale and dark brown bodies lying under the tree on the hillside before climbing back in the car for the trip back to the farm and the vigil by the telephone, waiting for the insurance company to call.

Today, farming is more than hard enough.

New Asian carp Great Lakes entry identified by Army Corps

GREAT LAKES—The threat of introduction of the Asian carp in the Great Lakes has struck fear in the hearts of many and, according to an article in the latest edition of Ontario Out of Doors, the United States Army Corps of Engineers has identified a previously overlooked possible point of entry of this most dreaded of invasive species.

According to the article, a permanent multi-million dollar project is being proposed to block the entry of the Eagle Marsh in Indiana, which is located on the continental divide. Waters to the east of the Eagle Marsh flow east into Lake Erie west into the Mississippi River basin, where the Asian carp is already established. While these two watersheds do not normally meet, flood conditions could cause them to intersect.

Asian carp have been discovered in Indiana, through the Wabash River, 100 kilometres below the Little River but not in the Eagle Marsh, the article continues. From here the carp would have to find their way over two dams in the Little River and enter the Graham McCulloch Ditch to access the marsh. "From there it's just one ditch and a river to access the Maumee River, which flows directly into Lake Erie," reporter Jeff Helsdon writes.

The Army Corps of Engineers is suggesting a $12.6 million solid wall that would span across the marsh to permanently block the invasive fish.

market strategy that will map out a pathway to bring together skills, training and labour programs.

Chief Hare cites the recent band approval for a retail grocery outlet to be built on the property beside Castle Building Supply. "The property has been purchased and design planning has begun so a grocery store will finally become a reality," he said of the response to the long time wishes of the community.

Major investments into the Manitoulin Hotel and Conference Centre, the McLean's Mountain wind project and an apartment building in Sudbury are all building blocks toward a strategy to see $20 million in band income to be realized by 2020, moves he said will benefit all of the community.

In the area of social investment, Chief Hare pointed to the development of the Anishnaabemowin

Gamig elders building. "The elders have spear-headed the construction of this fine facility, scheduled to open this fall," he said, adding that "chief and council have given their full support to this project," going on to laud the work of the elders who "have worked hard to get this project to where it is now."

Chief Hare has long cited the importance of North Channel lakebed land claims as central to the band's future financial well-being as well as the unfairness of annuity payments remaining static over the course of the past century-and-a-half. "Ever since the Robinson-Huron treaty was made in 1850, the treaty payment has not increased," he said. "Meanwhile the government and corporations continue to extract resources from our treaty area."

Chief Hare noted that the "Robinson-Huron First Nations have now launched a claim against the governments of Canada and Ontario for a court ordered increase in annuity payments." He pointed out that the claim will be in the hundreds of millions of dollars. "The claim will take years to settle," he said. "But when settlement occurs, annuity payments will increase and payments will be made to all of the members of M'Chigeeng, treaty and non-treaty alike."

As to the lakebeds (including rights to water), he noted that they have never been surrendered, "yet the governments of Ontario and Canada somehow have convinced themselves that they own the water," he said. "Like the elders say, show us the proof of title to the lakebeds, otherwise it is all ours." This claim, he notes, also runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Under his leadership, the future of M'Chigeeng is looking bright, he said.

...Martin Debassige promises to listen

do but go back into their houses every day and look at the four walls," he said. "There needs to be something for them to do, activities and programs that mean something to them."

The same situation can be found with the youth, he noted, pointing out that the arena, a central focus of the community, especially the adolescents, closes too early. "Once the the games are done, the place closes down," he said. "It should be staying open with things for the youth of the community to do."

When it comes to youth engagement, Mr. Debassige noted that he walks the walk. "I coach Little NHL, I do things to engage the youth, but we need to do more," he said. "We need to keep them away from the drugs and alcohol. I don't smoke and I don't drink, but I am far from being perfect and I was young once too. I know it can be hard to stay away from those things, there is a lot of pressure. We need to help create the kind of community where there are better things to do with your time than get into the drugs and alcohol lifestyle."

Mr. Debassige noted that he has a significant amount of experience on council. "I served for 14 years on council," he said. "I ran for chief twice, but I am not giving up. I am going to keep at it because I believe in the community and I believe we can do better than what has been happening."

That community, he said, extends beyond just those who are resident today. "There are a lot of band members that live outside of the community who care a lot about what happens here," he said.

The candidate said that he knows the issues and that he understands that band members who live off the reserve are aware of the issues. "They read the news online and they pay attention to the issues just like I do," he said. "When they come home to the community they know what the issues are, they don't need someone spelling it out for them."

The importance of experience is something Mr. Debassige said he understands. "I have sat for 14 years on council," he said.

"I have the experience and I know how to listen to people of the community." Now, he said, he is seeking an opportunity to put his experience and what he has learned to work for the people of his community.

training and his time in the navy. As he soon found out, things were done differently in the navy as compared to the army, but some things came easy for him due to experiences on Manitoulin. As Mr. Tustian spelled out, the men were taken out in Toronto Harbour in lifeboats called whalers. "We had to row," Mr. Tustian explained. "This was fun for me as I had done plenty of rowing on Lake Mindemoya."

Mr. Tustian was drafted to Halifax on January 26, 1942 and the tales of his experiences on the HMCS St. Francis, the HMCS Timmins, and the HMCS Wasquesiu make for fascinating reading, not only for wartime exploits, but also for the other experiences such as seeing the sights of London, going to dance halls and attending Easter Sunday mass in New York City. Interspersed with Mr. Tustian's accounts are paragraphs of technical details supplied by Mr. Neal, of the ships sunk and the lives lost as well as the radar, sonar and anti-aircraft accessories on board the frigates and corvettes.

"We had some good equipment," Mr. Tustian explained, "if we didn't we wouldn't be here today. Wayne did a great job with all the info he got."

"I read it a few nights ago," Rochelle Neal added, "and I laughed because Allan's personal memories are funny. And then I really liked it because Wayne put a technical side to it and put a framework around it."

Mr. Tustian stayed in touch with a group of about 20 sailors after the war and there are now seven men left who meet from time to time. He stays active by curling and golfing and swims every day in Lake Mindemoya.

His engaging book sells for $8 and is available at The Expositor, The Recorder and Guardian Drugstore in Mindemoya.

Election Day

I write this letter as a concern in regards to our future here in M'Chigeeng. As you are all aware, you all know that I work at Lakeview School and have been there for 25 years. My concern always has been our children's (my grandson and future grandchild) future.

I nominated a lot of young people as I believe that they can bring many positive benefits to our community. Our community must move toward the future. We can't change the past, but we can learn from it. Let's move forward as the world continues to move with changes.

I would also like to take this opportunity and ask for your support in going forward with the plans of a swimming pool facility as it is in the talking stage, but only there. This venture would benefit all age groups from babies to elders. It can also be a place where our young children can go and make better use of their time. This could be the answer to the drug and alcohol problem that exists here in our community. Let's all get together and see this opportunity become a reality.

"VOTE for people who will represent all of us and make their decisions based on information, not personal gain."

When you mark your box at the advance poll and the day of the election – PLEASE remember to vote for people who will keep an open mind and put their personal feelings and beliefs to the side and treat EVERYONE with respect. As RESPECT is one of the Seven Grandfather Teachings.

Harper's great grandparents Georgina and Godfrey Lovelace of Little Current and Ms. Ferguson.

"What Victor has done means so much to our family," Ms. Lovelace told The Expositor. "Ryan and Karrie are just a young couple starting out and Harper is their first child. When they found out they would have to travel from their home in Sault Ste. Marie to Toronto for Harper's treatments, they didn't know what they would do. It would have been so expensive for them to have to stay in hotels and Victor generously loaning his home to them was a huge help."

During the party, the radio was tuned into 100.7 The Island when a surprise dedication was made to Victor of Terri Clark's song 'Unsung Hero' by Harper's family.

"Victor really has been an unsung hero to our family," said Ms. Lovelace, as she, her husband and Ms. Ferguson presented Mr. Ching with a Manitoulin blanket. "He deserved recognition for what he has done for us."

"Thank you so much," responded Mr. Ching. "I was happy I could help."

Harper is a really cute, bright baby and I hope she gets the help she needs."

Harper was born on January 8. In early June, a small lump was noticed forming on her right forearm. Harper was diagnosed with infantile fibrosarcoma, a cancerous tumor that originates in the connective tissue found at the ends of bones of the arms or legs and then spreads to other surrounding tissues.

Since the end of June, Harper has been undergoing chemotherapy treatment in both Sudbury and Toronto in the hopes of shrinking the tumor prior to surgery to have it removed this fall.

"Harper has now finished her treatments in Toronto and has just had two more in Sudbury," explained Mr. Graham during a phone interview on Monday. "When we met with Victor at his condo in June, we assumed we would have to pay rent, but he just said 'no, I'm happy someone is able to use it.' He was a complete stranger and for him to do something like that for us, without wanting anything in return, meant so much to us. Harper will be having her surgery in late September or earlier October and Victor even called the other day to say that if his condo is available, we can stay there again. He has just been so generous."

There will be a benefit for Harper at the Grand Gardens in Sault Ste. Marie on Wednesday, September 4 to help raise funds to help alleviate some of the financial stresses of the Graham family, such as travel costs.

Weengushk Founder Receives Diamond Jubilee

M'CHIGEENG—Weengushk Film Institute's Founding Artistic and Executive Director, Dr. Shirley Cheechoo, was recently awarded the Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee medal.

Earlier this month at an intimate gathering at Weengushk Film Institute, the Honourable Michael Mantha, MPP Algoma-Manitoulin, presented Dr. Cheechoo with the award, recognizing her commitment to education.

The Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal, created to mark the 60th anniversary of Queen Elizabeth accession to the throne, is presented to individuals who dedicate themselves to their peers, their community, and to Canada.

"You need to know how much you have given to so many in this area," said Mr. Mantha to Dr. Cheechoo. "Your teaching doesn't stop when the classes end. You will never know how many lives you have affected...you have touched many lives. You have touched mine."

Dr. Cheechoo founded Weengushk Film Institute after shooting her feature film toulin Island. During production, Dr. Cheechoo was amazed at how many local youth were interested in getting involved in filmmaking. This observation was the spark behind the concept of Weengushk Film Institute, and the inspiration for Weengushk's mission of igniting emerging filmmakers to tell their stories and participate in community initiatives through arts-education.

Weengushk is the Ojibwe word for Sweetgrass—an Indigenous purification medicine that is burned in ceremonies for healing. Sweetgrass enhances creativity, opens doors, and welcomes helpful energies to sustain a meaningful journey. Weengushk Film Institute embraces this purification ritual as a symbol for clearing the path to professional sustainability and cultural advancement for communities with limited resources in Canada and abroad. The mission of Weengushk Film Institute is to create independent and award winning alumni who are trailblazers in the media industry.

Turbine parts delivery to start following Labour Day

LITTLE CURRENT—Construction of the McLean's Mountain Wind Farm, a joint project between Mnidoo Mnising Power General Partnership Inc. and Northland Power Inc., is moving along on schedule, with August having been a busy month.

According to a release from project manager Paul Kaminski, 20 of the 24 wind turbine foundations have now been poured and are being back-filled.

The submarine cable connecting the wind farm to the transfer station on Goat

Island has been laid along the North Channel.

Ninety-five percent of the transmission line pole foundation holes have been drilled and blasted and the turbine access roads have now been completed. As well, 70 percent of the road improvements along the Green Bush Road have been completed.

The next phase of project will be the delivery of the wind turbine components, which are scheduled to begin on Tuesday, September 3, following the long weekend.

This barge and its crew have been hard at work this summer installing submarine cables that stretch from the Goat Island transfer station, beneath the North Channel to the end of Harbour View Road.

Lightning strike shatters tree at golf tournament

by Michael Erskine

MINDEMOYA—The excitement of golf tournaments rarely extend beyond the boundaries of the greens, but participants in the annual Campbell Volunteer Fire Team fundraising golf tournament got a front row seat to a spectacular performance by Mother Nature this past weekend when a lightning strike literally blew a large tree into to pieces.

"It was a little bit of a light show," admitted Gloria McCallister, a dispatcher with the fire department who was at the fundraiser. "I was standing outside under the canopy and heard it hit," she said. "Derek Stephens was inside and came out to tell us lightning had hit the tree."

Sarah Bowerman of Spring Bay saw the lightning hit the tree and definitely heard the strike. "It was the loudest thing I ever heard, there was smoke coming off it," she said. "I have never heard a bomb, but it was loud enough that it's what I imagine it would sound like. It was really something."

Merv Bowerman, Sarah's husband, also saw the strike. "It came down and struck the tree and then went off horizontal like," he said. A number of people said they thought the lightning had hit a tin shed first, but Mr. Bowerman said he was fairly certain the strike hit the tree first and then went toward the shed. "There was chain lightning all around that day, out on the North Channel and the like."

Lightning not only destroyed the tree at the golf course, it knocked a clock off of the wall in one of the cottages and destroyed a television that one of the staff at the golf course was watching to check on the weather."

"I saw the pieces of the tree," said Jamie Delange, who said the strike came early in the morning. "It wasn't just split, it fractured it good."

Fran Cox, who also just missed seeing the actual strike, noted that some of the people in the clubhouse thought that the strike hit a tin shed before going on to hit the tree. The tree was about 300 yards away, estimated Mr. Delange.

Mr. Bowerman confirmed the distance. "The tree was about 300 yards from the clubhouse," he said. He estimated that the tree itself was about 14 inches wide at the butt. "It was a good sized tree."

The crack of lightning may have been the first indication some of the golfers might have had of the strike, but Mr. Bowerman heard a precursor to the hit. "There was a crackling and another crackling and then it just went bang," he said.

Golfers were secure during the event, the golf course having sounded the alarm to call golfers in off the links well before the storm struck.

"We were lucky," said Ms. McCallister. "We heard the rumblings off in the distance and the golf course blew the horn to let everyone know to take shelter."

Although the storm was short and intense, as the weather system moved through the region the participants in the tournament took the matter in stride. Most simply moved on to the '19th hole' a bit early. "It was the ninth hole for some who didn't finish the first round," admitted Ms. McCallister, "but everyone still had a good time."

Funds from the golf tournament, which is sponsored by the Central Manitoulin Fire Fighters on behalf of the Campbell Fire Team, go toward purchasing equipment that does not fit into the Central Manitoulin municipal budget.

The storm system resulted in a number of small outages on Sunday and continued lightning and thunder storm events led to a number of outages on Monday, including two that impacted Sheshegwaning, Burpee and Mills, Allan West, Billings, Gordon, Cockburn Island, Allan East, Robinson, Barrie Island, Central Manitoulin, Gore Bay, Dawson and Cockburn Island.

MNR and DFO confirm detection of grass carp in the Grand River

LAKE ERIE—The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources and Fisheries and Oceans Canada confirmed a single live grass carp was caught near Dunville, Ontario in the Grand River, near Lake Erie on August 16. This specimen follows an earlier catch of a grass carp on April 27 in the same area. Testing has confirmed that this specimen was sterile and therefore not able to reproduce.

The grass carp specimen captured in April 2013 was also sterile and not able to reproduce. Extensive monitoring activities undertaken by Fisheries and Oceans Canada and the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources immediately after the April capture did not discover any additional grass carp at that time. "Ontario's Ministry of Natural Resources and Fisheries and Oceans Canada work closely together to respond quickly to all threats to our ecosystem from invasive species," said the Honourable David Orzietti, Ontario Minister of Natural Resources. "Ontario has prohibited the possession of live Asian carp, including grass carp, since 2005 and has vigorously enforced these regulations. We continue to work with our colleagues to coordinate prevention efforts and ensure that all pathways for possible Asian carp introduction are addressed."

Biologists from Fisheries and Oceans Canada found the grass carp while conducting monitoring for Asian carps in the Grand River. The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources performed biological sampling on the specimen and samples were sent for testing. The Whitney Genetics Laboratory at the US Fish and Wildlife Service in La Crosse, Wisconsin has confirmed the fish is sterile.

"Our continued vigilance against all species of Asian carp is critical to ensure that our Great Lakes stay protected," said the Honourable Gail Shea, Minister of Fisheries and Oceans. "Due to our Asian Carp Sampling and Monitoring Program, we were able to target this area for a follow-up assessment, and our rapid response program was initiated immediately upon finding this latest grass carp. Our partnership with the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources, and our US counterparts, continues to demonstrate the high value of sharing expertise and activities in our continuing efforts to prevent Asian carp from getting any foothold in our waters."

This grass carp was pulled from the Grand River earlier this month, one of the species of the invasive Asian carp.

The grass carp caught on August 16 was 104 cm long (41 inches) and weighs 14 kg (31 pounds). Grass carp is one of four species of Asian carp, which are highly invasive and a significant threat to the Great Lakes ecosystem. The others include bighead, silver and black carps. All live Asian carp are banned in Ontario. Sterilized grass carp are stocked in some places in North America to control aquatic plants. In the Lake Erie basin, several US states allow stocking of grass carp if they are sterilized, making them unable to reproduce. All fishermen in the Great Lakes, particularly Lake Erie, are encouraged to become familiar with this species, and to report any new findings to Ontario's Invading Species Hotline at 1-800-563-7711.

Child and Family Services deputy minister visits Wikwemikong

by Michael Erskine
 WIKWEMIKONG—Child and Youth Services deputy minister Alexander Bezzina dropped in to visit the Wikwemikong Unceded Indian Reserve recently to tour the community and learn more about programming currently being developed in Wikwemikong by Kina Gbzehgomi Child and Family Services.

"We had a very good visit," said Chief Duke Peltier. "We took him around and showed him the programs we have running here in our community. It remains to be seen which ones his ministry will decide to fund."

Mr. Bezzina had the opportunity to meet with Anishinabek Nation Grand Council Chief Pat Madahbee and Deputy Grand Council Chief Glen Hare and youth centre manager Lawrence Enosse as well as a group of outdoor adventure youth leadership program participants.

"I would say it was a very successful meeting," said Chief Madahbee, who noted that he and his deputy chief were on hand to lend moral support to the Wikwemikong band. "There was an open exchange of ideas with the deputy minister. Full credit has to go to Chief Duke Peltier and his council and the staff of family services as well as to the staff at Kina Gbzehgomi."

a number of his senior staff were presented with a first hand look at the work being accomplished by Wikwemikong and Kina Gbzehgomi that are working with very limited resources, as they explained to the deputy minister.

Chief Madahbee noted that the meeting in Wikwemikong was one of a number of productive meetings happening recently between First Nation leadership and the province.

Chief Peltier also said that he was optimistic that the meetings could produce some positive results, particularly with regard to programs designed and built within the Wikwemikong community aimed at the particular needs of the community.

Assiginack PS welcomes new principal Margaret Stringer

by Michael Erskine
ASSIGINACK—The new principal of Assiginack Public School, Margaret Stringer, is a familiar face in Island schools and happy to be back on Manitoulin.

"I always saw myself finishing my career in the classroom," said Ms. Stringer, taking a break from the numerous details of getting her school ready for the start of classes. Ms. Stringer has spent the past several years as the Rainbow District School Board's principal of special education, a role she admits she loved and she will still be teaching at a staff development level in the special education field, but she is relishing the chance to be back in the classroom, albeit only part of the time. "I loved it, it was a great job," she said. But she admits the distance between her Sudbury office and her home on Bidwell Road did take a toll. "I like to sleep in my own bed," she laughed. "I stayed over most of last winter, which was a good thing because last winter had terrible weather for travelling."

Assiginack Public School enjoys a reputation as being one of the most beautiful locations within the board to work. "You look out the window over the water, the view is gorgeous," she said. The location also means a lot less time travelling back and forth.

When she learned that former Assiginack principal Wayne Murdock had decided to retire, Ms. Stringer made her interest in the position known. "The superintendent likes to keep abreast of the interests of the staff," she said, and it just so happened that her stepping into the position fit well with the staffing needs of the board, providing the ideal win-win situation for both Ms. Stringer and the board.

"I am thrilled," said Ms. Stringer. "I am looking forward to being back on the Island."

Ms. Stringer has a strong background as both a teacher and as a principal, having taught for several years in Island schools before taking on the vice-principal role at Central Manitoulin Public School and then principal of Little Current Public School before accepting the position of principal of special education with the Rainbow District School Board.

Although Ms. Stringer is at the point in her career where she could retire, she said that she was not yet ready to consider that option. "I love teaching and working with young people," she said. Having a career where you look forward to going into work each day is a precious thing, but she said there was one thing she was not going to miss with her previous posting, the two hour commute.

Meet this year's Kids in the Hall MSS columnists

Expositor seeks writer(s) for Wikwemikong High School's Writings on the Wall

by Robin Burridge
M'CHIGEENG—Since the mid '90s, The Expositor has published a weekly column named after the popular CBC show 'Kids in the Hall,' written by one, or in the past few years, two, Manitoulin Secondary School (MSS) students on the clubs, sports teams and events at the school.

Past columnists have even gone on to pursue a career in journalism such as Stephanie Burt Hillyard who not only wrote for the 'Kids in the Hall' during her time at MSS, but went on to take the journalism course at Canadore College and interned with The Expositor earlier this year.

This year's columnists are Grade 12 students Abigail Taibossigai of Little Current and Kayla McFarlane of Providence Bay.

The Expositor caught up with both ladies last week to get to know more about them and their plans for this year's column.

Sixteen-year-old Abigail is a Haweater born in Little Current. She lives in the gateway town with her twin 14-year-old brothers Ethan and Hunter and her mom and stepdad, Tammy Bryan-Walsh and Luc Walsh.

In her spare time, Abi like to hang out with friends, sing, draw, paint, do gymnastics and try new things.

"I like adventures—trying anything new," Abi explained. "That's why when Kayla asked me if I was interested in writing 'Kids in the Hall' with her I said 'yes.' I wanted to get involved and push my limits trying something new. I like writing and I thought it would be a good opportunity to explore that more."

Kayla is also a Haweater, born in Little Current and raised between Simcoe and Manitoulin, with Providence Bay now her home.

Kayla comes from a blended family of four siblings, including 12-year-old brother Hunter, 2-year-old brother Aiden, 7-year-old sister Abby and three-month-old baby brother Jaxson.

Abigail Taibossigai

Her hobbies include four wheeling, hanging out with friends, reading and writing short stories. Kayla was also a contestant in this year's Providence Bay Fair Ambassador pageant.

Not only are the two columnists Haweaters, they are also cousins and co-presidents of the MSS Best Buddies club, which pairs intellectual or developmental disabled students with their peers to create friendships and promote inclusion.

"Abi worked with a special needs class during her peer teaching placement and really enjoyed the connections she made," explained Kayla. "My grandmother works with special needs individuals and I grew up getting to know the individuals she worked with and really enjoyed the experience also. We both wanted to get involved this year and are very excited. Our goal is to get enough members so that everyone in the special needs class has a buddy."

To assist them with their new roles, the two will be attending a Best Buddy's leadership workshop on Saturday, September 14, hopefully sharing the experience through their column.

The girls say that as this year's 'Kids in the Hall' columnists they will be covering all topics from adjusting to life back at school, sports try outs, clubs to special events.

Look for their first column in the Wednesday, September 11 edition of The Expositor.

The Expositor is also seeking a writer or a writing team for the Wikwemikong High School column 'Writings on The Wall.' If you are an interested Wikwemikong High School student, contact McCutcheon at 705-368-Expositor editor Alicia 2744.

Heart and Stroke Foundation wants to help Canadian parents get an A+ for healthy snacks and lunches

ONTARIO—A recent poll from the Heart and Stroke Foundation found that the majority of Canadian parents (81 percent) provide their children with lunches and snacks at school that are packed for them at home. However, with 22 percent of parents saying their children are picky eaters, the challenge is ensuring they eat what is packed for them. The Heart and Stroke Foundation's Time to Start campaign, running until September 8, is arming parents with the tips and tricks they need to pack healthier options that their kids will love.

"Picky eaters can be a challenge," says Carol Dombrow, Heart and Stroke Foundation registered dietitian. "Try engaging your kids by getting them more involved in snack and lunch preparation. Kids that are included and have a say in the process are more likely to want to eat what you've prepared." As part of the Time to Start campaign, the foundation is offering weekly meal plans developed by its registered dietitians on healthcheck.org. The plans come complete with shopping tips and helpful hints for parents to get their kids on the right track this September.

"Our free downloadable meal plans offer parents three weeks worth of healthy snack and meal ideas," continues Ms. Dombrow. "Healthy eating options have never been so easy to find."

Visitors to healthcheck.org and the Heart and Stroke Foundation's Facebook page (facebook.com/heartandstroke) will have the opportunity to enter the Time to Start contest for the opportunity to win daily prizes or one of 10 $1,000 grocery gift cards. Visitors can also sign-up for the Heart Smart Families newsletter for parents, and learn more about the Health Check program.

Other key findings from the poll:

- The majority of Canadian parents (83 percent) feel it's very important that their children eat healthy snacks and lunches every day at school.

- Fourteen percent of parents cited lack of time as the biggest challenge they face in trying to make healthy packed lunches and snacks for their children to take to school.

- Ten percent of parents said that a school cafeteria or lunch program is the main source of lunches and snacks for their child at school.

Please visit the Heart and Stroke Health Check website (healthcheck.org) for more information on how to make informed and balanced food choices. The site contains ideas, tips and recipes to help give your kids a healthy school year.

Drivers be prepared to stop as back-to-school season is here

MANITOULIN—The Canada Safety Council would like to remind motorists that yellow school buses are back on the roads this fall. Remain vigilant, patient and responsible so that everyone gets where they are going safely.

The Highway Traffic Act in each province and territory states that every driver, approaching from both directions toward a school bus with overhead red signal-lights flashing, must stop and shall not proceed until the bus moves or the overhead red signal-lights have stopped flashing (except on highways separated by a median strip, whereby oncoming traffic is not required to stop). Also, school buses are required by law to stop at all railway crossings; motorists should likewise be prepared to stop behind school buses.

Breaking the law is costly. Fines are as high as $2,000 and motorists can expect up to six demerit points for the first offense.

Travel by school bus is 16 times safer than travelling in a family car per passenger per kilometre of travel, according to a study by Transport Canada. In addition, each school bus made and imported into Canada has approximately 40 standard safety features built into the design and construction. These include specialized brake systems, lighting, emergency exits, escape hatches in the roof, and high padded seatbacks that cushion the impact of a crash.

It is most common for injuries to be sustained once children are outside the bus. Children may be hit by their own school bus or other vehicles, underlining the need for all motorists to abide by the laws and be vigilant with student pedestrians and bicyclists.

Here are a few tips to help ensure that children reach their destinations safely:

- Abide by the school bus traffic laws.
- Watch for children running to catch their bus. They have been known to pay little regard for their own safety and may dart out in traffic.
- Respect the crossing guards and slow down in school zones.
- During the school year, be especially cautious during periods of the day when students are travelling to and from home.

- Watch for cyclists and pedestrians on roadways.
- When turning at intersections, watch out for students using the crosswalks.
- Teach your own children about safe conduct in roadways and on school buses.

Prevention is the key to safety. With education and awareness, all children should be able to get safely to school and home again. Take the time to review, remember, follow and share these valuable rules and tips with other drivers and your children.

NOTICE

Smoke Testing of Sanitary Sewage Systems September 2013

As part of the ongoing maintenance of the Town's sanitary sewer system the Public Works Department has contracted the services of the Ontario Clean Water Agency (OCWA) to conduct smoke testing of the sanitary sewage systems in the Town of Little Current (Ward 2). It is anticipated that this smoke testing will be conducted during the week of September 9, 2013. A non-toxic smoke will be blown into the sanitary sewer system via the manholes to reveal leaks that possibly allow storm water and other surface water to enter the sanitary sewers. Large quantities of storm water in the sewers use up part of the pipe capacity needed to carry wastewater. This system overloading can cause sewage backups and increases the cost of wastewater treatment that affects each homeowner through increased sewer charges.

Hand delivered notices will be provided several days prior to the smoke testing to residents within the smoke testing area. On the day of smoke testing in your area a representative will knock on your door and provide a reminder by means of a door hanger. These notices will provide detailed instructions related to this process.

If you require further information, please contact the Manger of Public Works, Glen Case at 705-368-2093

Cherished grandfather of Andrea (Randy), Craig (Connie), Elton (Alanna), Melissa (Vince), Brett (Sarah), Kendra (Chad) and Kelsey (Riley). Great-grandfather to Lauren, Cain, Maddie, Alivia, and Eric. Also survived by many nieces and nephews. Born and raised on Manitoulin Island, Dad was a "haw-eater" at heart. He left the Island as a young man of 17 to serve in the Second World War, 85th Bridge Co., RCASC. He served in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany. After the war he was a courier at the Nuremberg Trials. He was a past member of the Azilda Lions Club, St. Andrew's 111 Seniors, and a very proud member of the War Veterans of Canada. He will be dearly missed by all who knew him and will be remembered as a kind and thoughtful man. He retained his sense of humour to the very end. As per Irving's request, there will be no service or visitation. Cremation with interment at a later date. The family would like to thank Dr. Cano and Dr. Labonte. Very special thanks to the doctors, nurses, PSWs, and staff at the Maison Vale Hospice for their outstanding care and compassion for our Dad. Donations made to the Maison Vale Hospice would be greatly appreciated. Arrangements entrusted to the Jackson and Barnard Funeral Home. Fallen Manitoulin OPP Constable Lloyd Lackey honoured with bridge dedication

by Robin Burridge

LITTLE CURRENT—Last Friday, friends, family, Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) officers past and present and government officials gathered for a special ceremony for fallen officer Constable Clare Lloyd Lackey and honoured him by dedicating the Graham Creek Bridge in his memory.

Constable Lackey was killed while on duty with the Little Current detachment of Manitoulin OPP on July 16, 1972 in a head-on collision with an impaired driver while returning from a call in M'Chigeeng.

Constable Lackey was 41-years-old and is survived by his wife Jean and four children.

"Today is a day filled with mixed emotions," began Superintendent Fern Labelle, director of operations for the OPP North East Region who was the master of ceremonies for the dedication held at the Manitoulin Hotel and Conference Centre. "Constable Lackey unselfishly dedicated his life in the care of others and paid the ultimate price, laying down his life for others."

The ceremony began with the piping in of the colours and dignitaries by Sergeant Geoffrey Johnson.

The blessing was given by Auxiliary Inspector Gerald McMillan, Ontario Provincial Police Chaplain, followed by an opening prayer and drumming from Whitefish River First Nation Elder Leona Nahwegahbow and the Mniidoo Mnising Kwewag Drum Group.

Algoma-Manitoulin MPP Michael Mantha and Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasung MP Carol Hughes were also on hand for the ceremony.

"Today's tribute to Provincial Constable C. Lloyd Lackey in the dedication of the Graham Creek Bridge in Honora is a testament to our society's continued efforts to raise awareness about the impacts of impaired driving," said Ms. Hughes, noting that her parents were also hit by an impaired driver, surviving, but greatly affecting her family. "This gesture posthumously recognizes Constable Lackey for courageously and selflessly giving his life in the line of duty to preserve a safe society. Although the loss of Constable Lackey is still being felt by his family, colleagues, friends and community, this bridge will be a constant reminder of those who have given their lives in the line of duty. Equally as important, it will serve to remind every driver about their responsibility to make the right choice."

Mr. Mantha revealed the history behind the bridge's dedication, noting the tireless work of Retired Ontario Provincial Police Officer Robert South and retired Manitoulin Staff Sergeant Ron Roy who first brought the idea of the bridge dedication to Mr. Mantha's office.

Northeast Town Mayor Al MacNevin was also present to speak at the reception.

"A very special thanks to the Lackey family for being with us here today," said Mayor MacNevin, "and the efforts that were put into this well deserving dedication."

"It is very humbling to be a part of this event," said Deputy Commissioner Scott Tod, Provincial Commander, Investigation and Organized Crime, who was there on behalf of Commissioner Chris Lewis. "One hundred and five officers have been killed in the line of duty or on duty and over half of these instances have been in motor vehicle collisions," said Deputy Commissioner Tod.

"This bridge dedication serves as a memorial to the sacrifice that this OPP officer made and also serves as a reminder of the risks that all police officers face on a daily basis as they serve communities across the province," said Commissioner Lewis in a press release.

The Lackey family, including Constable Lackey's wife Jean Mulville and daughters Robin Gillespie, Mary-Jayne Kerfoot, Kim Gauthier and Cathy Rivoire, spoke as well, noting what the bridge dedication meant to them, followed by the presentation of a commemorative plaque to the family and the unveiling of the commemorative bridge replica sign.

"Forty-one years ago seems like a really long time ago," said Ms. Rivoire on behalf of her family. "Today I am taken back to the morning that changed our life. My dad was only 41-years-old and it seems fitting that he is honoured exactly 41 years later."

"Because of what happened we don't take anything for granted," added Ms. Rivoire, noting that her mother is "the strongest, most courageous woman I know."

Ms. Mulville spoke next, supported by not only her daughters, but also her brother Brent Saunders.

She thanked everyone for attending and for the individuals behind the dedication and ceremony.

"It is wonderful for us to know that his memory will live on here with this bridge dedication," concluded Ms. Mulville.

After lunch, The Expositor spoke further with Ms. Mulville and some of her daughters about her late husband's life and what the bridge dedication meant to them.

"Lloyd wanted to be an OPP officer," Ms. Mulville told The Expositor, adding that he didn't become an officer until later in life, in 1966, having been a sales clerk at Sankey's Office Furniture in Smiths Falls. "I think he wanted to follow in his brother's footsteps, who was also a police officer. At first we thought he was too old (he was 36-years-old at the time), but he just made the cut off. He was a great person and loved being a police officer. Many times he would pick up kids that needed a ride to one of the First Nations and he would stop by the house and get them dinner or call me to bring dinner down to someone at the station."

"He was very proud of his job and loved his work," continued Ms. Mulville. "He was very dedicated."

Mr. Mulville explained that Constable Lackey grew up in Smiths Falls, where he played softball, golf and played in a band. "He was very musical," she said. "A gift that he has passed on to his children and grandchildren."

Despite his busy professional duties and family life, Constable Lackey was also involved in baseball and curling on Manitoulin and was a member of the Manitoulin Light Horse Club.

The wife of the late Constable Lackey, Jean Mulville, thanks the friends, family, and OPP officers who were in attendance at the bridge dedication ceremony.

OPP Chaplain Gerald McMillan says a prayer at the crash site along Highway 540 where Constable Lackey lost his life 41 years ago prior to the Lackey family laying flowers.

INSET: Flowers lean against a tree in the ditch where Constable Lackey's life ended 41 years ago.

"We have attended many memorials for him over the years, but this one is the most meaningful to us because this is where we lived and he will always be remembered thanks to this dedication," added Ms. Mulville.

"This dedication means a lot to us," commented Ms. Gillespie. "I hope it helps bring attention to drinking and driving and reminds people to be safe. I think it would make my dad happy to know that he helped save future lives."

"I was only 20-months-old," said Constable Lackey's youngest daughter, Mary-Jayne Kerfoot. "It's hard to explain what today meant to me. I never really knew him, only through the memories of my mom and sisters. I didn't expect today to affect me the way it has. It is such an honour."

Following lunch, the family was led in a police procession to the Graham Creek Bridge, stopping to lay flowers at the crash site on Highway 540, just outside of Little Current.

Wikwemikong youth conference focusses on the future

by Michael Erskine
WIKWEMIKONG—A two-day Nongo Eshiwaabm-damang Miiwafezhiwebak (today's vision, tomorrow's reality) 2013 Youth Conference and Trade Show in Wikwemikong sought to engage youths between the ages of eight and 18 to seize control of their destinies.

"By the end of the conference, we hope that you come away with valuable information to help you plan your career aspirations," said Patricia Trudeau, youth conference coordinator with Enaadmaagehjik (Wikwemikong Development Commission) in her welcoming address to the youth participants. "This conference was designed entirely with you in mind. The intention of the youth conference and tradeshow is to encourage and inspire you, as the youth of the community, to reach your business and economic goals."

Although the trade show is an annual event, the youth conference is a new endeavour instituted by the Wikwemikong Development Commission (WDC) aimed specifically at engaging youth. "WDC wanted to get input from youth about what they are looking for in jobs and careers," said Ms. Trudeau. The concept is to encourage youth to look at a wide range of career options, particularly in the area of skilled trades.

"There is a huge gap in the skilled trades and the proportion of the aboriginal population of working age is the largest in Canada," she said.

Ms. Trudeau herself is currently studying sociology at the University of Guelph and is in the third year of her degree program. Although this is the first time she has coordinated a conference of this length and size, Ms. Trudeau exudes a solid calm demeanor. She attributes her confidence to the experience she gained on the Wasse Abin student council and the support of her team of volunteers.

"I had five assistants that worked very hard on this project," she said. "Eleanor Ominika in designing the posters and pamphlet, Christine Trudeau helping with correspondence with the speakers and presentors, Abbie Peltier who helped with the students, along with Brett Panamick and Rodney Fox. Everyone worked very hard to make this youth conference happen."

Ms. Trudeau noted that in keeping with the WDC mandate, as much of the infrastructure and materials for the youth conference were sourced locally in the community, including the innovative conference bags designed with backpack-like straps to hold materials. "The bags were made locally in Wikwemikong by Fox Quilting," said Ms. Trudeau.

"The posters and pamphlets were made by Aboriginal."

Facilitators and presenters at the conference brought with them an impressive roster of credentials.

Rod Jefferies is a member of the Mohawk Nation who has worked for the last 28 years in the field of substance abuse, healing and wellness and is a familiar face internationally whose services have been engaged in New Zealand, the US and Europe. Mr. Jefferies is particularly known for his expertise in lateral violence and is chair of the International Indigenous Council for Healing Our Spirit Worldwide. Recently, his focus has been on promoting workplace wellness.

Jeremy Dias is originally from Edmonton but now hangs his hat in Sault Ste. Marie where he founded that region's first LGBTQ youth group. At 17, he began a legal challenge over discrimination at his school and school board and by age 21 had won Canada's largest human rights settlement. Mr. Dias used that money to build Jer's Vision: Canada's Youth Diversity Initiative, the International Day of Pink and the Jeremy Dias Scholarship. Holding degrees in psychology and political science from the University of Ottawa, Mr. Dias continues to volunteer his efforts with organizations such as Housing Help and Imperial Court while being a columnist with Montreal's 2B Magazine and serving as executive director of Jer's Vision.

Local entrepreneur Luke Wassegijig, owner of Giizhik Tours and Accommodations and a central figure in the promotion of the tourism industry in Wikwemikong through his day job, delivered a keynote address on entrepreneurship from a practical hands-on perspective.

Gina Simon is an electrical apprentice working toward her 'red seal' certification who first became interested in her trade through her work with the M'Chigeeng Wind and Solar Project. "We have the population and the brains," said Ms. Simon. "We just need to take advantage of the opportunities to enter this amazing trade."

Preparing and planning for a future in the modern economy can be enhanced by the inculcation of traditional values and the opening prayer for the conference was provided by Frank Odjig and honour and travelling songs were provided by the drum group Sitting Bear.

As part of the conference and trade show an open mic and fashion show were held at the Holy Cross Mission ruins and a giant mobile screen was set up for a drive in movie night at Thunderbird Park.

Visiting Manitoulin?

The 20-kilometre journey: Providence Bay/Spring Bay

PROVIDENCE BAY/SPRING BAY—This week's tour leads us to Providence Bay, home of the famed Providence Bay white sand beach, and its neighbouring community, Spring Bay.

When travelling from Mindemoya, drive west from Manitoulin's hub along Highway 542. The Manitoulin District Cenotaph is on your left before coming to the stop sign at the intersection locally known as 'Dryden's Corners.' Take a left here, onto Highway 551, and it will lead you to Providence Bay.

Shortly after your sojourn on Highway 551, Papa's Meats will appear on the right. Papa's Meats has been acquired by the newly built Manitoulin Island Community Abattoir (located nearby at the intersection of Blue and Monument Roads). Papa's Meats (along with Hayden's Meats in Little Current) are the two outlets that sell the Manitoulin Island beef from the abattoir, so stop by and pick up a fresh steak and find out why Manitoulin is known for its grass fed beef cattle.

Carrying on, at the sign marking the entrance to Providence Bay you will find the fairgrounds and arena, home to the annual Providence Bay Fair; this year its 130th, held the third weekend of each August. This Island tradition boasts a midway, Fair Ambassador pageant, horse pulls and shows, exhibits showcasing the best Manitoulin has to offer in baking, canning and gardening and so much more. Plan to come back next year.

Continue along Providence Bay's main drag until the sign for nicely named Eliza Jane Street and the home of Huron Sands and La Maison du Hawberry. Proprietor Stu Cuthbertson is well known across Manitoulin as the creator of the famed Hawberry Farms jams and jellies, which in recent years have branched out to include chutneys, spreads, hot sauces, nut butters, popcorn seasoning and so much more. The Hawberry Farms products are a real Manitoulin success story and can be found from coast to coast and are always a source of pride for Islanders when they see the familiar jars when they're far from home.

Continue along Eliza Jane to McNevin Street. There one will find, nestled among the trees, the School House Restaurant which offers 'elegant dining in a casual atmosphere' in the century-old community schoolhouse.

Drive south along McNevin Street. Located on your right is the Auberge Inn, Manitoulin Island's only hostel. The Auberge Inn offers other perks such as yoga on the beach and cycling tours as well as bike, canoe and kayak rentals through its sister business café Huron Island Time, which is located in the Providence Bay Harbour Centre.

At the next stop sign, visitors will discover Huron Fish and Chips and it is highly encouraged that one sample this delicious take on Manitoulin whitefish. Immediately next door on Point Simcoe Road is Pickers of Prov, a store offering an eclectic mix of art, fashion and fun.

At the stop sign take a left back onto Highway 551 and head for the beach! According to the Manitoulin Tourism Association website, early Native inhabitants of the area called the bay Bebekodawangog, which translates as 'where the beach curves around the water.' In later years, after being shipwrecked offshore, survivors of the wreck reached the beach and called the bay 'Providence' in an act of pious gratitude.

The beach is also the home of the Annie McNichol Community Playground which boasts state-of-the-art playground equipment, and plenty of it.

Have a look inside the Interpretive Centre during the summer months, located inside the Harbour Centre and staffed by knowledgeable summer students. Special exhibits as well as interesting facts on flora and fauna of the area can be found within. A boardwalk that follows the beach can also be found here and visitors are encouraged to take a hike along it, paying special note as you cross the Mindemoya River. Special rehabilitation efforts have seen a rise in the return of spawning salmon, and Providence

Bay residents will tell you fishermen are reaping the rewards.

Follow Highway 551 to the government dock and marina and cast a line from here. Harbourmaster Ken Niles has a special board for the biggest catch of the day, so try and get your name up there!

Providence Bay is also home to plenty of great places to stay, including the Providence Bay Tent and Trailer Park, On the Bay Bed and Breakfast, The Dunes Bed and Breakfast, Red Rooster Inn, Fulford's Cottages, Sullivan's Cottages and Woodside Beach Cottages.

Head back to Dryden's Corners and follow Highway 542 to Spring Bay (it is here that the highway changes numbers, no turning necessary).

Follow Highway 542, drive through Spring Bay (continuing on 542) until you see the sign for Whitechurch Road. Take a left here and look for exactly that: a little white church.

Whitechurch Gallery is located in a renovated century-old church featuring only Manitoulin artists and artisans and Canadian-made gifts.

Whitechurch Road will take a sharp right, follow this until you see the signs shores until you reach the Perivale Gallery. A must-see destination for any art lover, Perivale Gallery offers a feast for the senses along the beautiful southeastern shore of Lake Kagawong and is also the place to find well-known Manitoulin artist Ivan Wheale's works, among many others.

Spring Bay and area accommodations include Dawson Cottage Resort, Mac's Camp, Bass Creek Resort, Fred's Camp, Oakes Cottages and Trailer Park, The Osprey Nest Bed and Breakfast, Santa Maria Trailer Resort and Stanley Park.

Turn around and follow Perivale Road East back toward Spring Bay, taking a left along the Learmont Road. Follow Learmont until you reach Monument Road along the shores of another lake, Lake Minde-moya. Take a right and follow Monument Road until you reach Highway 551 and the Manitoulin District Cenotaph, where this journey began. A left will lead travellers back into Minde-moya.

It's called turn off the stove. Try some fresh, easy vegetable side dishes that don't need cooking. The key to great-tasting no-cook sides is to buy fresh summer vegetables that are as good raw as they are cooked, such as tomatoes, carrots, zucchini, and cabbage. Then, all you have to do is toss them with a generous amount of fresh herbs and light olive oil dressing made with citrus juice or vinegar to bring them alive. It's that simple.

Marinated Tomatoes with Pickled Red Onions and Gorgonzola

- 1 1/2 cups re-wine vinegar
- Sea salt
- 1 small red onion peeled, halved, and very thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup thinly sliced chives
- 2 Tbsp olive oil
- 2 tsp. balsamic vinegar
- Ground black pepper
- 2 lb. ripe tomatoes, preferably heirlooms of various colors
- 3 oz. Gorgonzola or other blue cheese, crumbled (3/4 cup)

In a medium bowl, stir the red-wine vinegar with 1 1/2 tsp. salt until it has dissolved. Add the onion. If the vinegar doesn't cover the onion, add water to cover. Let sit for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, in a small bowl, whisk the chives, olive oil, and balsamic vinegar. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Cut the tomatoes into 1/4-inch-thick pieces. Put the tomatoes in a wide serving bowl. Pour the vinaigrette over the tomatoes and marinate them for 15 minutes.

Drain the onions, pressing them lightly to squeeze out any extra vinegar.

Add the onions to the tomatoes and toss. Season with salt and pepper, top with the cheese and serve.

Shredded Carrots with Jalapeno, Lime and Cilantro

The best carrots to use are fresh from the garden since they are the sweetest.

- 8 medium carrots (about 1 1/2 lbs.)
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 3 Tbsp fresh lime juice
- 1 medium jalapeno, cored, seeded and minced
- Sea salt and ground black pepper
- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped fresh cilantro

Peel and then grate the carrots using the large holes on a box grater or a food processor fitted with a medium grating attachment. Put the grated carrots in a large bowl.

In a small bowl, whisk the oil and lime juice. Add the jalapeno and season to taste with salt and pepper.

Another successful year for the Little Current Fish and Game Club

SHEGUIANDAH—The Little Current Fish and Game Club (LCFGC) had a very successful year in its walleye rearing ponds which saw walleye eggs fertilized from local live release captures well as fry from the Blue Jay Creek fish hatchery raised by members of the club.

After 38 days club members began to harvest the fingerlings, which took a total of 63 days to complete, explained LCFGC president

Bill Strain. Each week a few fish were removed from the ponds, and as the population is reduced the remaining fish grow longer. "This is because there is more feed for the small walleye due to less competition,"

Mr. Strain said.

Approximately 65,000 fingerlings, along with 500,000 fry, have been stocked in area waters this year thanks to the efforts of the club. Since 1986, the year the club's hatchery began operating, just over one million fingerlings plus several million fry have been raised and stocked in area waters by the LCFGC.

Little Current Fish and Game Club members Jack Ferguson, Collin Debassige, Ken Madahbee, Jim Griffin, Bruce Burnett, Lynn Hughson, Todd Strain, Tom Collie and Ron Bowerman use a seine to remove walleye from a rearing pond.

INSET: Sixty day-old fingerlings range in size from 50 to 65 millimetres.

The Celebrate Summer art display featured at the Little Current Library will be taken down by volunteers this Saturday, August 31. Be sure to get in and view this representative show if you haven't seen it yet. Participating artists are reminded to collect their pieces on Saturday afternoon or early next week. The library is grateful to the many local artists who made up this interesting show.

A reminder to artists out there who may be looking for a space to show your work: the Library Art Committee is meeting the first week of September to plan the coming year. Please leave your name at the library, or contact a committee member if you wish to reserve a time to exhibit.

Meanwhile, Judy Kift reports that the Art for Seniors program is in full swing. Posters can be seen around town or at the library showing the various sessions being offered. So far, acrylic painting, mixed media, jewellery making and watercolour have been well attended. "I am getting lots of feedback", says Sophie Edwards, program manager, "and everyone is so gracious and thankful—it is really rewarding." Seniors are invited to check out upcoming sessions and register for fun and learning with local artists. Drop into the library or contact Sophie at seniorart@vianet.ca. From absolute beginners to those who have a bit of experience, everyone can join in this art happening at the library.

MANITOULIN WIND NEWS

CONSTRUCTION UPDATE - by Paul Kaminski, Project Manager

McLean's Mountain Wind Farm construction activities are progressing well and I would like to take a moment to share with you significant milestones accomplished during the month of August 2013:

- Twenty (20) out of twenty four (24) wind turbine foundations were poured and are being back-filled;
- Submarine 115,000 Volt transmission cable was laid on the bottom of the North Channel;
- Twenty five percent (25%) of collection trenching was completed;
- Ninety five percent (95%) of transmission line pole foundation holes were drilled and blasted;
- Turbine access roads were completed;
- Seventy percent (70%) of road improvements along Greenbush Road were completed.

Following the Labour Day long weekend, when vacation traffic is expected to slow down, our wind turbine components deliveries will begin on September 3rd, 2013. Please note that the deliveries will be coming from our rail siding staging area in Sudbury, following HWY 17 West to HWY 6 then across the Little Current Bridge and continuing on to Hwy 6 and Hwy 540, to the McLean's Mountain Wind Farm project area. The increase in traffic will be significant; however we are working with the Ministry of Transportation (MTO), the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) and the UCCM Anishnaabe Police to minimize our impact to road users. We apologize for any inconvenience that the deliveries may cause to your commute. Best wishes for a safe and fun-filled Labour Day long weekend.

Spring Bay Rural Route

August 22—This last two weeks we are having summer weather.

The Agriculture Fall Fair is over and it drew a large crowd. There were lots of rides for the children to enjoy and the pony rides are always a hit. The parade was good and there were a number of floats. They had a very good showing in the exhibit building to view. The winners in the different categories in the horse pull on Saturday were: best dressed team, Daryl Webkamigad; memorial trophy in honour of Carl and Vivian Hallett, David McAllister; best teamster, Stan Osawamick. The heavy horse pull was won by Chris Cyr with a weight of 8,500 lbs. Congratulations to them all! Five young ladies competed for the Ambassador of the Fair and Taneeshe Hare won. First Princess went to Kyle Young and also Miss Congeniality. Congratulations to them all! Draws that were made at the fair: cow patty bingo, Don Kay; quilt, Therese Finkle; afghan, Christina Marsh; third prize, Sylvia Dawson Orford; quilt competition, Myra Tallman; whole wheat contest, Rolandy Tovey. Congratulations all!

Peter Tilson, Gordon Greenough, Lyle Dewar and Norm Hore entertained at the nursing home in Gore Bay on Tuesday afternoon. Thanks to Lyle Dewar I was able to go out and visit some in the home and enjoy their music. The residents at the lodge were enjoying it too.

Gayle Popowich was in on Wednesday for a visit.

A number of people from St. Frances Church attended the confirmation service at St. Paul's Anglican Church in Manitowaning on Sunday, August 18. Seven candidates were confirmed from both churches by the bishop the Rt Reverend Dr. Stephen Andrews and the Reverend Canon Bain Peever. Following the service a delicious lunch was served.

Congratulations to Bonnie Kogos for the winning of her novel award in the fiction category.

This weekend is the Massey Fair. I hope they have good weather.

Carol Gilmore has some of her family here this week visiting and helping her pack.

American summer residents Don and Rita Davis have left the Island. The Davis' bought their lot on Lake Huron Drive in 1987. While their cottage was being built they stayed at Williamson's Bed and Breakfast on Lakeshore Drive. The Davis' enjoyed fishing on the Island and made many friends. Due to health, they reluctantly sold their little piece of heaven. You will be sadly missed by the neighbours in Lonely Bay.

Providence Bay News and Notes

It's been a busy weekend in Providence Bay. The Lions Club held another Rib and Corn Fest, which had a great turn out. Also they announced that Dawn Dawson is Citizen of the Year. The other major event was the Fishing Derby that had 42 boats entered. Saturday was an excellent fishing day, but due to the weather it had to finish early on Sunday at 10 am. Everyone had a great time—see you all next year. This year's derby was in memory of Bob Paquet, a well known sportsman from Prov.

A big thank you goes out to all the people who helped the Community of Christ Church at their booth at the Providence Bay Fair bake sale. Also thank you to all those who visited the booth making it a success.

Pat McFarlane has written book No. 4 through the eyes of Eugenia. For more information give Pat a call at 705-377-7295.

Our granddaughter won first prize in the fair parade in her class. This is 13 years in a row she has been in the parade starting at age 3 sitting in a wagon being pulled by her brother.

If you have any news please call me, Gloria, at 705-377-4449. Remember our seniors and veterans by calling on them this week or go over for a coffee.

Tehkummah Talk and Times

“Manitoulin Morning”

When I awake each morning
I cannot wait to see
Just what the world outside
Has in store for me
I hear the sounds of morning
The sandhills and the geese
The hummingbirds wee small chirp
Their wings that never cease
The song of cheer from cardinal
The goldfinch or the wren
The sparrow and the chickadee
The doves soft coo, and then
I hurry to my bench outside
With coffee cup in hand
And gaze at weeds and flowers
As they mingle hand in hand
I wonder at the city folk
In their homes of concrete/steel
And wish I could convey to them
This land to me so real
I guess if you did never see
The elm tree filled with birds
Hear the music of the morning
That early risers heard
You wouldn't know that you were missing
The peace of morning rising
The serenity we find here
On Manitoulin Island.
-P. Hall, August 22, 2013

Our once a year visit, so it seems, with Rob Harkes. He's been painting, fishing, entertaining family, he says he's "retarded" from his old job. I love his visits. He's called me "Ma" since my restaurant days. One of the kids. One of those trouble makin' "kids". Same age as Kim. He shared his ice cream bar with me too!

Kathy Hill was in for a visit early, returning a cake plate I'd forgotten at the museum. Then when I faxed my stuff out this morning, I had the matching plate returned.

Cal was in on his way from Mindemoya and points west! Apparently he and his brother Gib went driving Gore Bay way today (rhymes). I did write a couple of poems earlier (much).

Got a lovely note from Helen Oswald and some photos of my "65th" birthday. She must have forgotten her age too! (Maybe not a bad thing.)

So far a busy day—and it's only five hours since I faxed out my news. Margaret brought in the tournament results. She caught me at Mum's. I beat her today at cribbage then left! Margaret says they've started payouts. It's $4 for lone hands now at tournaments. First, Barry and Bill, 82; second, Betty Jean and Ron, 80; third Brad (Park) and Bill, 77; fourth, Graham and Sheila, 75; low, Marion S. and Marion H., 42; most lone hands, Dorothy and Len, 6; 50/50, Charlene.

How do my columns get so long? It seems I talk a lot about "nuthin".

Hey Wayne from Brechin! Sorry I missed your name last week! Hello too Darlene! I've met another nice young lady here. She was a bit lucky at bingo too. Irene is Hart and Anna's daughter and has been with her family the last few weeks at Cedar Park. The always smiling Brenda (Hemming), Mum too, were a bit on the lucky side at bingo!

Shirley Paulin recently spent some time on the Island visiting friends, also taking in a bingo night.

I expected Mary Yett to be singing "The Hills are Alive with the Sound of Music" after her recent trip to Austria.

I talk about 1,000 a lot this year. The Jackman Clematis had at least that many blooms, and the grain fields across from Gordon's must have at least that many sandhill cranes this year; plus wild geese—an amazing sight. Lots of deer in the fields. I guess Barb hit one on her way to work on Wednesday.

Amazing sunset, amazing moonrise, and it is still a deep orange colour at 10:30 pm.

Wednesday—The road was wet up from Michael's Bay turnoff to the Mindemoya turnoff. It didn't rain on my garden yet, and I got home in time to roll up the car windows. We had a little visit with Gib and Florence. They had been in Sudbury to see his eye specialist. We visited for a bit with Eileen who talked to us outside as Sherman was quite ill with the flu bug. We and Cal's cousins, Lester and Nelson, wanted to say hello to them. We had gone for supper to Carol's and Earl's and these cousins, dining out after golfing in Mindemoya, and after driving from the Sault today! Lester had been visiting family there. He is soon to be (we were rubbing elbows with the rich and famous) a "star" in the "Newspaper Hall of Fame." Congratulations in advance of this event. We even got treated to our supper. I think I have to buy next time (sounded like a family gathering). Ha! Thanks so much!

"Cribbage" Mum made good banana split cake. I made blueberry muffins. Pat brought fresh garden veggies. High hand, Joy, 21; first, Rick and Lori, 945; second, Ruth and Mervyn, 928; third, Bert and Joy, 916; low, Cal and I, 871; door, Audrie and Lois.

Joan came in this afternoon with her hair all looking good. Last weekend they attended Elizabeth's wedding at the VanEvery home farm—on the deck and in the lovely yard. Joan too is driving a nice new Honda vehicle. We had a nice visit over a cup of tea, watching the skies and the hundreds of Cedar Waxwings in the elm tree, and cleaning all the berries from the honey suckle bushes. Beautiful little birds, but I've never ever seen such a huge flock—seems early too!

Thursday evening twenty-eight vehicles came off the Chi-Cheemaun, and three motorcycles and sixteen vehicles went on. A beautiful full moon left trails of light on the bay. We, on occasion, say hello to Francis and she scoops us out an ice cream cone at the Wigwam.

Friday we went to Green Acres for our lunch, the flea market, after a tour of Little Current. Later Cal came for supper. I cooked up the lovely little speckled trout my nephew Peter gave me when he was here! Delicious, of course! All garden veggies freshly picked as well.

Sympathy to the Manitowaning family who lost their little boy this past weekend.

A lovely early morning call from my son Derek in Mackenzie, B.C. We must have talked an hour. Lovely to hear his voice. He tells me Jodi had a couple of weeks off, so she is in Ottawa visiting Tory, Amelia, Desmond and Declan. That is a surprise, she's so close by? He tells me up on the mountain he saw a black panther last week, unusual, and that on a three mile downhill grade he lost his brakes and the backup battery wasn't good either on the emergency brakes. So, thank God on a wee bit of a level spot he got it stopped! I think he said 80 tons of logs on behind. The scenery he says is beautiful in the mountains, a narrow bush road and a 400-foot drop. (I think that's what he said.) An update on all the family out there and doing well.

As you well know I pack a lot into my days. Cal picked me up shortly after my phone call. We took in the book sale, etc. at the library. I didn't stay to have my fortune told (I really should have?), then off to the yard sale at Shirley and Ed Sagle's. Calvin and Jeanette were set up too. All I bought was square nails? A cup of tea at Cal's, and off we go for a long, long drive, down Bidwell Road and finally out through Rockville. We stopped at Green Bay Cemetery and looked at all the names. First names I saw walking in was McCauley, but the first names not so familiar. I'm sure relatives. It was a beautiful day, a leisurely drive. Back home here at 2:30 pm so I didn't miss my nap. Sherry stopped for about a half an hours visit. I took in the evening music at the hall of George and Gordy—easy listening. Love the new tune "Senior Moments Brain Farts". We of the elder generation have all been there (I think). I stopped at Susan and Simon's later. Their card game over, Mum was bragging about being the champ! They were enjoying coffee and snacks when I got there.

On Sunday morning Cal and I took in the breakfast buffet at the Garden Shed. Thank you very much! Lois says she is heading back home to Michigan this week and this is their last Sunday buffet. Met a lady there named Nancy who reads my column all the time. People are so nice.

My sympathy to Audrie and her family who lost her beautiful cat to a road accident last Wednesday. I know how sad and difficult that can be. We love our pets!

Both Grace Sawyer and Elaine McGauley are looking at the world differently this week. They both had eye surgeries last week.

I forgot to mention Lloyd and Lois Thomas returned recently from the states. Sympathy in the loss of their brother-in-law. They were away a couple of weeks.

Twice this week I've met cousin Donna (Phillips) and her friend Doreen Bailey. Once at the "Flee" and at Carol's and Earl's.

Well it's not like I talk about food much or eating out right? We sat with Gib and Florence, Betty Jean and Bill were at the next table. After supper Florence and I did very well at our cribbage games, which reminds me, I saw a little skunk (very closely) in Cal's yard on Saturday! He said he has never seen one before there.

Martin, Lynda, Anna, Hart, Pauline, Susan, Simon, Mum and I, after church today we were a singing bunch. Grace and Bill joined our table. We may have been a mite noisy but we do have fun.

You've said it was time for another poem. Will this do. I've written five this week.

Congratulations Bonie Kogos!
