US president earmarks funds to investigate outflow from upper lakes

Manitoulin Stewardship Council urges Canada to follow suit

LAKE HURON—The US administration has finally started to act after 50 years of failing to complete the terms and conditions of a United States/Canada agreement to compensate for the loss of water from Lakes Michigan-Huron and Georgian Bay due to navigation dredging in the St. Clair River, states a press release from Sierra Club Canada.

Last Tuesday, the US president approved a modest amount of funding for the United States Army Corps of Engineers to re-evaluate its past compensation designs in light of current knowledge and technologies, the release continues. The president's funding will get the process started. The Corps' engineering analysis is projected to take up to three years to complete.

"The Great Lakes Section members have been working on this significant loss of finite water from the upper Great Lakes water for over 12 years. This announcement is a testament to the persist-

Deep frost causes waterline havoc

by Alicia McCutcheon

MANITOULIN—With below freezing temperatures lasting on into what will soon be spring (Thursday, March 20), municipalities across Manitoulin are facing a record number of residents calling in with frozen water lines.

Northeast Town CAO Dave Williamson explained that to date, 25 homes in Little Current have been faced with frozen water lines this winter.

He explained that when the municipal office gets a call about a frozen lateral line (the line that connects the home to the main line) the resident is advised to call a plumber, but if the freeze is within the main line, the public works crew will be dispatched to dig up and thaw the problem spot. (This occurred last month on Blake Street causing much disruption to the surrounding homes and the Little Current Public School.)

For a lateral line freeze, the plumber will determine where the blockage has occurred and determine whether this responsibility falls to the landowner, the municipality or a combination of both.

"If it freezes on town property, we pay; if it freezes on your property, you pay," the CAO explained.

"One of the issues is where did it first freeze, but this is something they (plumbers) can't tell exactly," he added.

Gore Bay CAO-clerk Annette Clarke said that "compared to most communities, we're doing okay."

Ms. Clarke said there are currently six homes with frozen lines in Gore Bay and one frozen water main on Hall Street that is affecting one of those six people. The rest have all been asked to run their water.

Those six people are all running water hoses from houses whose lines aren't frozen, the CAO explained.

"There's one situation on Meredith Street where we ran a (garden) hose, but now that's freezing," she added.

Like the Northeast Town, if

SUPER COMMUNITY LEADERS—The Naandwegamik Health Centre in Aundeck Omni Kaning (AOK) held an anti-bullying strategy workshop called Superhero Days last week. Children ages five to 12-years-old gathered over two days to make their own superhero costumes and be superheroes for the day, as the staff spoke about the types of things that heroes do, including sticking up for one another in the face of bullying. AOK fire chief Dave Corbiere also brought the fire truck by to show the youth as he is well known in the community as 'Super Dave' because of all the good deeds he does for others.

Bill Strain honoured by Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters

by Michael Erskine

MISSISSAUGA—When it comes to conservation education on Manitoulin Island there are a few names that immediately come to mind, foremost among those is that of Sheguiandah's Bill Strain.

President of the Little Current Fish and Game Club, Mr. Strain received the Larry Wallace Memorial Volunteer Award at the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters (OFAH) annual general meeting and Fish and Wildlife Conference held on March 14.

"Mr. Strain has been president of our club for many years and has been the guiding light in our many activities," wrote Marcel Gauthier of the Little Current Club and the Manitoulin Trade Fair as examples. "Whatever Bill sets his mind to do it gets done and done well."

"By promoting conservation of fish and other wildlife through education, restoring fish habitat in our streams and lakes and then raising and restocking walleye in Lake Huron, your club has ensured that our town can continue to be a great place to live," wrote Northeast Town Mayor Al MacNevin in his letter of recommendation that was submitted with the application.

"On behalf of the students and staff of Little Current Public School, I want to thank you for your contribution to our environment, community and to the ongoing level of instruction and engagement of our students," wrote Jamie Mohamed, principal of Little Current Public School, who extolled the efforts of Mr. Strain and the "number of volunteers in your club willing to share their expertise with our students."

"Bill, to your members present and on behalf of the people I represent, I wish to express my heartfelt thanks and gratitude for placing education and learning about the ecology and nurturing our environment on the front burner for our present and future generations," said Manitoulin Rainbow District School Board Trustee Larry Killens. "Our survival as God's creatures depends on it."

Mr. Strain was characteristically low key when contacted about the award. "I think it is a club effort," he said. "It takes a lot of people to do these events."

But he admits the educational program he helps to organize is a gratifying experience. "Some of the questions these kids ask you, they are right on top of it," he chuckled.

Mr. Strain recalled one precocious Grade 4 student's question. "We had stripped out the eggs from the females and milked the sperm from the males and the kids were mixing them together with feathers," he said. "This one little girl looked up and asked, 'Is this like sex?' I told her to ask her mother," laughed Mr. Strain.

'Count Your Blessings' quilt named reserve champion for all of Ontario

by Betty Bardswich

MINDEMOYA—Manitoulin received more accolades lately as Myra Tallman of Mindemoya took home the Reserve Champion award in the hand quilt division at the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies event held recently. This honour means that Ms. Tallman placed second in all of Ontario for her quilt after placing first at the Providence Bay Fair and first at the District 12 competition.

The quilt is named 'Count Your Blessings' and each block is reminiscent of Ms. Tallman's life and her family. She started the quilt some years ago when she stayed at the Daffodil Terrace while undergoing treatment for breast cancer. "I took blocks that were to be hand appliquéd," Ms. Tallman explained. The quilt then came home where it was put away while Ms. Tallman worked on other things. In 2008, the artwork came out again. "I decided," said Ms. Tallman, "to finish it for our 50th anniversary." The part of the quilt with hearts shows June 21, 1958 as the wedding date.

The block in the centre of the quilt shows the Tallmans five grandchildren and their dog while the wedding rings represent their daughter Janet and her husband Geoff and their son Peter and his wife Ver-

by Michael Erskine

SAULT STE. MARIE—Although the typical theatre audience at the QUONTA Festival tends to be friendly, they also tend to be a bit of a tough sell, being largely made up of hard core theatre aficionados. So garnering the only full-on pure standing ovation of the festival was a pretty major accomplishment in itself, such that collecting the most awards of any of the productions in the festival was almost icing on the cake.

Adjudicator John P. Kelly said he was emotionally moved by the Gore Bay Theatre production of 'Crime and Punishment.'

"It was nice that all of the actors received recognition," said Gore Bay Theatre director Walter Maskel. "When you do a lot of roles like that it presents a very different challenge."

Mr. Maskel noted that all of the productions, actors and actresses at the festival were outstanding, which makes the wins all the more gratifying.

The Adjudicator Award for light and sound, sponsored by the Espanola Youtheatre, was won by the Gore Bay Theatre.

The Adjudicator Award for set pieces, sponsored by Mary Capstick, went to 'Brain Power' winners Walter Maskel and Richard Gamelin of the Gore Bay Theatre.

"Richard's brain pieces were really an incredible work of art that have to be seen in colour to truly appreciate them," said Mr. Maskel. Mr. Gamelin has already received offers to purchase his set pieces as works of art.

Outstanding Actress in a Supporting Role, sponsored by Mary Rossiter in memory of Kathy West, was won by Jessica Lajoie of the Gore Bay Theatre. The category also saw nominations for Randi Mraud of the Sault Theatre Workshop and Brandi McCallum of the Sault Theatre Workshop.

Chris Cayen of Gore Bay Theatre brought home the Outstanding Actor in a Leading Role award, sponsored by Jim Dukes in memory of John Fagan. The category also saw nominations for Vincente Belenson, Mr. Cayen's fellow lead on the 'Crime and Punishment' stage and Sasa Jurko of Sault Theatre Workshop.

The Adjudicator Award for properties, sponsored by ELATE (Elliot Lake Amateur Theatre Ensemble) was won by the 'Incorruptible' cast and crew of the Sault Theatre Workshop.

The Outstanding Director award, sponsored by Richard Howard, saw nominations for Andrea Emmerton and Walter Maskel of Gore Bay

Jr. A proponents seek support from LC arena user groups

by Alicia McCutcheon

LITTLE CURRENT—With support for the Espanola Rivermen sky high in neighbouring Espanola and red hot as the Northern Ontario Junior Hockey League (NOJHL) franchise starts its best of seven series against the Sudbury Nickel Barons on a winning streak, the reception for another version of a Junior A hockey franchise is lukewarm in Little Current.

Last week Brent Cooper, originally from Little Current, and a Junior A supporter and friend of Rivermen owner/manager Tim Clayden, met with Northeast Town Mayor Al MacNevin to further the cause of seeing a Junior A team reinstated in Little Cur-

Mayor MacNevin said Mr. Cooper "was basically making the plea that it was a good idea, but that's nothing new." At the same time, Mr. Clayden sent an updated version of the facility agreement that was first sent to the municipality last month when the North Bay Trappers first announced it would be seeking a new home. However, the mayor explained of the updated agreement, "on the surface, it seems basically the same."

"At the last meeting (when this idea of again hosting a Junior A team was discussed) staff was given a directive to not make it cost anything—in-kind or other-

Royal Conservatory sizes up Debaj for artist education program

MANITOWANING—A representative of the Royal Conservatory travelled from Toronto recently to learn more about the facilities available at the Debajehmujig Storytellers Creation Centre in Manitowaning in preparation for the Royal Conservatory offering the Artist-Educator Foundations Professional Training (the starting course of their outstanding Artist Education program) in collaboration with the Island theatre organization.

The Artist-Educator program is directed towards members of the arts community who may wish to also have a teaching role, such as through Ontario's "Artists in the Schools" program where the Ontario Arts Council (OAC) funds artists to spend a week (or sometimes more) in a classroom or a school imparting skills and knowledge.

Artist participants in the Royal Conservatory's Artist-Educator program gain valuable pedagogical skills they can use in situations where they are involved in a public school setting, or in any other area where they are cast in a teaching role.

Nicole Fougere, manager of artist education training at the Royal Conservatory, took a few minutes out of a whirlwind familiarization visit to speak about the program with The Expositor.

Ms. Fougere is much more than simply an education administrator. She is a dancer, choreographer and storyteller in her own right. "The

Happy birthday Internet as we reflect your changes

Even those of us "of a certain age" and even here on Manitoulin Island must marvel at the tremendous impact the Internet has had on all of us, in one way or another, in its short 25 year history.

That's right: the Internet officially celebrated 25 years last Wednesday, March 12. Somehow, it seems as if it's been around longer.

Of course, for the current generation of young people who are just now beginning their working lives, it has been with them "forever" and so it will be, in one form or another, for all generations to come.

The industry of which this newspaper is a part provides a prime example of radical change over a short time.

For example, reporters can (and do) use the Internet for research on stories they're writing. Pre-Internet use, this same task would have been accomplished by calling experts and, usually, waiting for them to call back. Now, most of this is quickly accomplished by a combination of researching Internet sources and email communication with the current generation of experts.

Not too many years ago, the paper was laid out mechanically, page by page (and by hand). All material was produced in paper columns and fastened to layout sheets (the same size as the printed pages were to be). The finished, hand laid out pages were then shipped by A.J. Bus (remember that mode of transportation?) to Espanola where the box of flats (one for each page) would be transferred, as freight, onto an eastbound Greyhound bus and so would eventually arrive in Sudbury where a runner from the print shop would pick up the box at the bus station, bring it back to their shop where the pages would be laboriously photographed and, through the giant negatives, printing plates would then be burned/etched and these would eventually go on the press to print the paper.

Now, the layout is done digitally, not manually, and the finished digital product is shipped via Internet directly to the printer. (No more missed buses.)

It's even more simple at the printer's end because the digital files created at the Expositor Office now skip the cumbersome business of creating full-size negatives and the paper goes directly from our files to the printing plate. Full colour pages are, in the scheme of things, now a relative dream because in the pre-digital days, three full sets of negatives would have to be created (plus one for black) as the colour was "separated" into cyan, magenta and yellow negatives that, when overlaid, would recreate the original colour.

The digital Internet revolution has certainly spared a lot of plastic in the print industry!

In the production and commercial printing side of the business, the Internet has meant ads and print jobs can be digitally created and proofs quickly sent via email and the Internet for approval.

We have a quickly expanding base of subscribers who choose to receive the paper digitally via the Internet and the Expositor's website, www.manitoulin.ca, is an active online news and advertising source that had 350,000 unique visitors in 2013, with a certainty of more this year based on the first quarter trending.

Many of our bills are sent and received digitally, and likewise many payments go in and out digitally as well and, for national advertisers, the Internet has been a boon as their advertising material can be shipped for printing in the paper on a just-in-time basis, allowing advertising agencies to make competitive changes at the eleventh hour.

This is still a labour-intensive business so all of this new ease of communication has certainly not meant any less staff.

But it has allowed staff to do their work more quickly and efficiently.

And The Expositor Office and the Manitoulin West Recorder are just a tiny part of a giant industry, worldwide. Multiply the changes we've put in place here times the millions and millions of businesses that have employed the Internet, of necessity, and in one form or another, to provide a better service and you will have some idea of the enormous amount of change that has taken place in a single generation, far outstripping the rapidity of any social and industrial changes any previous time in history.

Happy 25th, Internet. You're here to stay and you've certainly streamlined our industry, our particular business and the world in general.

Writer calls for re-regulation of the power industry

'The NDP did screw up last time but hopefully they learned their lesson'

To the Expositor:

Ever since the government deregulated hydro (that's when Mike Harris' Conservative government was in power), rates have been steadily going up but now it's getting worse because Hydro One is selling our power to the United States at a cheaper rate—two cents a kilowatt hour (that's what I heard from one of the MPs), but we're paying eight cents a kilowatt hour. Sounds to me like we're picking up the tab for the United States' usage when they should be paying 10 cents per kilowatt of our hydro. This would substantially bring down our hydro bills.

It's the companies and corporations who are buying our hydro and we're paying sky high hydro bills, but we're being told that there is not enough power to sustain us and then putting the windmills all over Northern Ontario, but all the power is going to southern Ontario because all the power is going to the United States. Ontario is the only province that has this problem and that's what I have heard because Hydro One has to be regulated again and it can be done if citizens take the time to write their MPs and start demanding this.

Hydro One is supposed to be a Crown corporation and the government has the power to do this and if there is an election this summer citizens have to try and put the NDP in power again. They did screw up last time and hopefully they learned their lesson. Myself, I did screw up in life but I learned from it. Now I am very prudent on what I do and citizens have been giving a lot of chances to the Liberals or Conservatives, and for what? Things are just getting worse. They only listen to corporations or industrial companies because to them you're just a second class citizen.

Qualified kudos to Premier Kathleen Wynne

The Municipal Conflict of Interest Act needs to be upgraded

To the Expositor:

Re: Kathleen Wynne government gives wider powers to Ontario Ombudsman.

Some qualified kudos to Premier Wynne for this move, although I have to say not necessarily the best solution to troubling problems with some municipal politicians across the province.

Since the time the now-premier held the Municipal Affairs portfolio, I have been in dialogue with her about the findings of the Mississauga Inquiry, which looked at serious complaints against long time Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion. Some $7 million was spent on that inquiry—presided over by Ontario Superior Justice Cunningham. Key to his findings were that morally Mayor McCallion was indeed guilty ("The mayor's actions amounted to both a real and apparent conflict of interest" and another "Given Peter McCallion's pecuniary interest in the transaction, it was improper for the mayor to repeatedly use her office on behalf of WCD") Justice Cunningham went on to say "I also believe that the scope of the Municipal Conflict of Interest Act (MCIA) should be changed so that the rules regulating conduct apply to any meeting attended by a member of council in his or her official capacity."

I pause there to say that the mayor held the view that provided she declared a conflict of interest in her legislative capacity and refrained from voting at council or taking part in discussion, she was on safe ground. Certainly, she was correct in her view that the MCIA did not apply to her actions in advocating privately for her son's company. I have found that her actions were nevertheless improper under the application of common law principles. These principles should be codified. The Act should be amended to make it clear that mayors and members of council are subject to the conflict of interest provisions both in the legislative and executive functions of their office."

He even went so far as to provide the minister with recommended changes to ensure that municipal politicians—whether principled or otherwise—knew where the line was drawn and without ambiguity what they must do to stay on the lawful side of it. Premier McGuinty and his then minister on the file declined to act! Now Premier Wynne has repeated that lack of action! Municipal politicians are offered training on the existing laws governing their work in their elected capacity. Obviously some have not forgotten that training (a perfect example was reported here recently when an Island mayor commented on an issue which impacted a family member and then recused himself from discussion and voting when this matter came before his council). Quite proper (although maybe even the comment could be construed as inappropriate in the circumstances). However, it could be argued that this was a "selective" action in that other major initiatives coming before council where pretty much the same circumstances apply have never found the mayor recusing himself. Which is why I conclude that the premier made a political blunder here. If a law is ambiguous and the ambiguity is being interpreted one way one day and another the next, it clearly needs cleaning up if the general public is to trust elected officials. I do wish the Ombudsman good luck in his broader mandate—though I think he is up to the job—if one of his Tweets on Twitter is to be believed "Ontario Ombudsman @Ont_Ombudsman The MUS (municipalities, universities + school boards) receives over $30 billion from provincial coffers. The 39 yr free ride soon ending." Sounds like the man whom Sudbury councillors stiff-armed under his current mandate last year welcomes the additional powers being delegated to him.

Northeast Town municipal office moves into Little Current Post Office

Waterfront Artisan Incubator and Technology Centre project complete

by Robin Burrige

LITTLE CURRENT—The Northeast Town municipal office officially moved into its new location in the Little Current Post Office building on Water Street earlier this week as the renovations to the office concluded along with the new Waterfront Artisan Incubator and Technology Centre.

“We are very pleased with how the building has been developed,” town CAO Dave Williamson told The Expositor on Monday. “We are now occupying the space, but there are still a few things to finish off and we are still moving things over from the old office.”

Though the project was slated for completion three months ago, Mr. Williamson said that staff is still pleased, despite the delays, at the overall look of the new facilities and that the delays did not come with any increased costs.

“The employees are adjusting to the new office—everyone is very happy having more space,” said Mr. Williamson, noting that all town managers now have their own individual offices.

As for the Waterfront Artisan Incubator and Technology Centre, the new space will serve a double purpose, as both the centre and the Northeast Town’s new council chambers (council meetings were formerly held in the Lions Den at the Northeast Town recreation centre).

“The focus of the project was really the artisan incubator and technology centre,” explained Mr. Williamson. “It is a beautiful gallery space with lots of natural light, track lighting and a gallery hanging system.”

The centre also features its own entrance (separate from the town offices), washroom and kitchenette.

It will provide a venue to the Island community to stay connected with the world interactively through DSL Internet, smart boards and an interactive business space, while also serving as an open space for the Island’s artistic community to showcase work, hold shows and workshops.

“There will be limited costs for artists wanting to utilize the space initially,” continued Mr. Williamson. “We really want to develop the space and promote and foster local art. From an economic development angle, we are really working towards developing that sector, not just for Little Current, but for artists from all across Manitoulin and the region.”

Another element of developing the art sector and promoting artists on the Island will be creating an online presence for the centre in conjunction with the municipality’s website.

The Artisan Incubator and Technology Centre will initially be managed by Heidi Ferguson, the town’s events coordinator and curator of the Centennial Museum in Sheguiandah, but Mr. Williamson revealed that there could be a possible position with the town in the future in running the centre. Also looking ahead, Mr. Williamson said staff hopes that an outside deck could be added to the channel side of the building, “with available resources and council’s approval.”

The building which houses the new Northeast Town office has been identified with the above sign since its erection around 1950. It once housed the post office downstairs and the Canadian customs upstairs, in addition to the regional office of First Nation Health Services.

The building still houses the post office and Child and Family Centre on the west side, with the new town offices and artisan and technology centre on the east.

The construction of the new centre and town office came at a cost of $439,000, with $200,000 being provided by a FedNor grant and the remaining funds from the municipal capital reserves.

“I am very happy with the new building and that we stayed on budget,” Northeast Town Mayor Al MacNevin told The Expositor during its tour of the new facility on Monday. “Everyone was really crammed into the old municipal office (which is currently for sale) and the public had no way of really having private conversations with staff when needed. The new office is great and the artisan and technology centre will be great for both council and user groups.”

A clock tower and new awning were additions to the post office building last year.

Mayor MacNevin opens the door to the new reception area of the Northeast Town office.

The Waterfront Artisan Incubator and Technology Centre will serve a double purpose as both the art centre and the Northeast Town’s new council chambers

Wikwemikong students work with Canada’s top recording artists through new innovative music business program

by Robin Burrige

WIKWEMIKONG—Wikwemikong High School students having again been working with and learning from some of Canada’s chart topping recording artists through the school’s music business course in conjunction with Coalition Music—a management company from Toronto with famous clients such as Simple Plan and Our Lady Peace.

The program, which was launched last year at Wikwemikong High School, focuses on teaching students how to compose and write music, record, advertise and market themselves as artists.

Wikwemikong High School is not only the first school outside of Toronto to run the program, but also the first aboriginal school to offer the course.

“The music business (program) is a Grade 12 inter-disciplinary high school credit course that is offered by Coalition Music,” explained Rebecca Harrison, Coalition Music programs manager. “Through the music business course, Coalition Music addresses a great void that exists between the talented young musician and their ability to actually build a career as an artist or music industry professional.”

“Working closely with students and high schools, our mission, through education, is to bridge this gap via experiential business learning and mentoring that is inclusive, accessible and at no cost to students or schools,” continued Ms. Harrison. “Students are instructed in a wide variety of disciplines relevant to both the business and creative components of the music industry—from finance and business structures, to songwriting, performance, promotion and branding, students are given a 360 degree introduction to the music industry

Juno award nominee Tom Barlow works along side Coalition Music staff to deliver a workshop on song writing to the music and are coached on how to succeed within it.”

Locally, the program is delivered by Wikwemikong High School teacher Jason Thibault and musician Pat Peltier, with Coalition Music representatives visiting monthly to lead workshops and bringing with them celebrity guests such as multiple Juno Award nominee and Canadian Rising Star Award recipient Tom Barlow last month (known for his 2003 hit ‘Walk Away’).

During Mr. Barlow’s visit to Wikwemikong in February he, along with Coalition Music co-founder Rob Lanni, led a workshop with the music business students on careers in the music business and the history of music, as well as a workshop on songwriting.

Mr. Barlow also delivered a presentation to the entire school on ‘The Music Business Entrepreneur,’ discussing how being an artist really means being an entrepreneur or small business owner and career options in the music industry.

Throughout the course students will continue to work with industry leaders, eventually writing a song which they will then have the opportunity to record at Coalition Music’s Toronto studio, alongside professional producers and engineers.

“By giving students the opportunity to apply the knowledge they have gathered through the course in a professional envi-

Coalition Music will be visiting Wikwemikong High School again next week, bringing with them USS (Ubiquitous Synergy Seeker)—‘Yin Yang’ and ‘This is The Best’—along with Sean Kelly of the Canadian rock band Helix and guitarist for Nelly Furtado.

“USS is a perfect example of a ‘do-it-yourself’ band,” said Ms. Harrison. “They are entrepreneurs and built their career to what it is today. In addition to working with the music business students, they will also be doing a school-wide concert.”

Former OPP detective takes skills to private sector

by Michael Erskine
HONORA BAY—Former OPP Detective Denis Blake of Honora Bay spent many years investigating crime and finished off his career in charge of professional standards, now he is starting a new business in the private sector where his investigative skills will be put to good use. But don't call him a private investigator, please.

"Let's scratch the private investigator part," he said. "I specialize in workplace harassment investigations."

Mention a private investigator and you instantly conjure up images of motel stakeouts and camera-laden figures lurking in the shadows trailing unfaithful spouses. Let's be very clear here. Mr. Blake's practice is about as far away from those images as you can get. In fact, his clients tend to be business owners and managers who are seeking to meet their obligations under the 2010 workplace harassment legislation.

"Under the Act, every work environment has to have regular training and processes in place as to how they deal with workplace violence and harassment complaints," he explained. When a complaint arises in the workplace, owners and managers of a business have a legal duty to deal with the issue. "Without the expertise in dealing with these types of complaints, or knowledge of what sanctions are possible, but having that responsibility, who do you call?" Mr. Blake would be a good place to start.

"What I do is conduct interviews and document those interviews in a professional manner and report the findings on whether or not the incident has indeed occurred," he said.

The first place most business operators turn when they are faced with a workplace harassment complaint is their legal counsel and lawyers actually make up much of the referrals Mr. Blake receives for his services. "A lot of times they recording and the transcript is ensured."

Mr. Blake does not do training on workplace harassment as required for employers as an essential part of their workplace health and safety obligations, but he does know a former OPP colleague who does provide that service and he is willing to pass on the contact information of those who need such services.

Mr. Blake has kept very busy since he retired from the OPP. He is a familiar face at Manitoulin Sea Cadet Corps events, having served as the commanding officer of the corps in the past and still serves in a supporting officer capacity. Mr. Blake is also the civilian coordinator of the UCCM Tribal Police complaints commission and occasionally works as a court service officer for jury trials at the Gore Bay courthouse.

"I don't think retirement means sitting in front of the television," he laughed.

Video highlights amazing aerial views of North Channel marine communities

by Michael Erskine
SPANISH—The North Channel Marine Tourism Council (NCMTC) has been promoting marine tourism and North Channel marine communities for decades, and this year the NCMTC teamed up with FedNor and media marketing firm Lifestyle Integrated to produce a DVD featuring boating in the North Channel. The DVD content was used during a program segment of the popular boating show Powerboat Television that focusses on boating in the North Channel. The NCMTC has acquired a number of the DVDs for its membership and is encouraging North Shore and Manitoulin marinas and marine communities to retail the DVD in their facilities.

"We have done this partnership a couple of years ago with the folks at Lifestyle Integrated and the videos from that project really went well," said NCMTC Chair Stan Ferguson. "This is one of the best values for my money for showcasing what the North Channel and our marine communities have to offer."

Mr. Ferguson, who operates Harbor Vue Marina in Little Current, noted that the DVD is available for $34.95 retail and that the NCMTC has acquired a number of the DVDs at wholesale rates for their membership to retail. "The wholesale buy-in numbers for the DVDs requires people to buy a lot of the DVDs to qualify for the lower price and a lot of our members are small operations so we decided to get a number of the DVDs for our members who would like to sell them, but don't want to buy that many."

website notes that the company's various media properties deliver 80 percent of marine media impressions in Canada, across video, print and Internet. That market penetration allows the company to offer "a 360-degree marketing approach for a fully integrated and customizable media program." Lifestyle also delivers in French to Quebec through print and Internet and in the United States with PowerBoat Television in broadband and websites created specifically for US boaters.

"Powerboat Television really has a reach into the American market," said Mr. Ferguson. "It would be impossible for us (NCMTC) to buy that kind of exposure in the US market."

PowerBoat TV is a weekly half-hour television show focussing on power boats and the boating lifestyle, notes the company website. But you don't have to live south of the border to tune in to the program. "From fish boats to luxury cruisers, great destination and helpful DIY segments, we cover what's of interest to boaters at large. PowerBoat Television is broadcast in HD across Canada on Global Television on Saturdays at 11 am."

The promo for the DVD describes the North Channel as stretching between Georgian Bay and Lake Huron and that it is often called the world's best fresh water cruising ground, adding that "few who have visited would dispute that title." It describes the 90 nautical miles of the passage between Killarney in the east and Drummond Island, Michigan in the west as being "surrounded by breathtaking scenery and offers clean water, sheltered anchorages and welcoming ports-of-call."

"There is no question that the North Channel offers the 'best freshwater boating in the world,'" said Mr. Ferguson. "That's why we put that slogan right in our NCMTC logo."

The DVD is available at Harbour Vue Marina and at The Expositor office in Little Current as well as other marinas and communities around the North Shore.

Panther Points

Congratulations to the Manitoulin Panther Midgets who were silver medalists at this weekend's NOHA Tournament of Champions Midget B division. The team was on a roll all tournament long too. In their opener they took care of the Timmins Flyers 9-2 on Friday with Harrison Noble taking game MVP honours. On Saturday, The locals doubled up the Cochrane Rush 6-3. Brenden Pheasant had a stellar MVP effort. Later that afternoon the Panthers earned a playoff bye with a 3-1 defensive win over Blind River and Barry Pitawanakwat took the player of the game credit. On Sunday afternoon Blind River was back for the championship game that ended up being an offensive battle and just missing the gold in a 7-5 loss.

Local Great North Midgets

Congratulations to Jeff Delange who scored the winning goal in overtime to help his Sudbury Nickel Capitals take a commanding 2-0 series lead over the Timmins Majors. Delange was featured in a nice Sudbury Star article after the win. Delange is credited with his strong team play and work ethic as the key to his value on the powerhouse squad. The team that also features Whitefish River's Anthony Pelletier. Anthony, amazingly enough, also scored the winning goal in the series opener that made it 3-2 with just over a minute left in the game. The pair hopes to take the Great North Midget League title this Saturday at the McIntyre Arena up in Timmins at 7:30. Go hard guys and good luck!

Little NHL kudos

The annual Little NHL hockey tournament is a great experience for First Nation players to get together to bond closer with kids from their own community and forge new friendships between strangers. During the March Break the now huge event took place in Mississauga. Here are just a few local kids who had a great time.

The Aundeck Omni Kaning Atoms were crowned A champions thanks to: Kacey Debassige, Samuel Assinewai, Carson Gonawabi, Johnny Bushey, Isaac McLeod, Brek Morrow, Randall Atlookan, Logan Corbiere, Nolan Peltier-Restoule, Duke Madahbee-Barnaby, Keegan Esquimaux, Billy Biederman and coaches Shaun Assinewai, Jonas Bondy and Greg Morrow.

The Wikwemikong Bantam girls won the B championship. Congratulations to Delani Trudeau, Dana McLeod, Harmony Rivers, Britney Zack, Lyric Peltier, Aurora Ominika-Enosse, Terri Trudeau, Megina Fox, Hannah Trudeau, Chitto Kimewon, Ruby Trudeau and Dehmin Eshkawkogan.

Congratulations to the four Manitoulin girls who play for the Sudbury Lady Wolves (pee wee) also helped the Atikameksheng Eagles (of former, Whitefish Lake F.N.) Haley Johnston, (M'Chigeeng), Dana Lewis, (Wikwemikong), Randi Lovelace (M'Chigeeng) and Alexandra Lumme, (Sheshewganing).

Hats off as well to Paquis Trudeau of the Wikwemikong Tykes who was voted as an MVP.

Soccer refs needed

The Manitoulin Soccer League is set for another great season starting the first weekend in May. What continues to maintain their high standards is a strong crop of referees to keep the games running smoothly. Certified refs can either use their time to earn needed volunteer hours or make a tidy $50 for just part of their Saturday. John Foster is once again recruiting interested high school kids to fill this important role. There are three lunchtime clinics at MSS starting the first week of April. MSS students should watch for posters in the halls soon. If you want more information you can contact John at 705-282-8387.

Active adults

This spot is for my continuing feature on adults who are making an effort to stay active with regular exercise. This week's spotlight is on a pair of women who are die-hard curlers. Barb Breathat of Minde-moya and Alice Shelly of Spring Bay are part of a large curling group who get out every Tuesday night. The game of curling, a modification on curling, where teams of two play and not four. Each teammate plays at either end and is allowed to use a stick to help deliver the stone if needed. Barb, who has not been able to curl for years, is excited to be able to get back to the sport she loves. She is so glad that this version allows for a modification that keeps players active long after they may have quit if they are not able to get down and deliver from the hack. Her teammate Alice, who is used to curling two and three nights, has been recuperating from an injury this year and is curling to keep her game sharp. Congratulations ladies, keep up the good work.

A good sport is good for sports.

Rivermen win away from semifinal berth

SUDBURY—Brandon Janke tallied twice and set up another to help lead the Espanola Rivermen past the Sudbury Nickel Barons 6-2 Monday evening in Northern Ontario Junior Hockey League (NOJHL) playoff action at McClelland Arena in Copper Cliff.

With the victory Espanola now leads the best-of-seven quarter-final 3-0 and will have a chance to close out the series Wednesday evening as game 4 goes at 7:30 pm back in Copper Cliff. If the Nickel Barons take the game, however, game five will be decided in Little Current on Friday night at 7:30 pm.

Janke opened the scoring midway through the first period and Connor Gilmartin added one on the power play late in the stanza to put the visitors up a pair after 20 minutes.

The Rivermen then took control in the middle session tacking on three more markers just over five minutes apart on efforts supplied by Robert Smythe, Corbin Bean and Janke, who connected during a man advantage opportunity.

Sudbury snapped Marc Terriault's shutout bid 1:44 into the final frame thanks to Brett Dusick via the power play while Jacob Punkari added one at even strength 23 seconds later making it 5-2.

Espanola dashed any hopes the Nickel Baron's might have had about a comeback as Rivermen captain Brad Edwards added some insurance at 14:01 to round out the scoring.

Marc Terriault made 46 saves to register the win for the Rivermen.

Michael Muzyka saw 51 shots fired his way in a losing cause for Sudbury.

In game two of the series, Espanola Rivermen captain Brad Edwards had a goal and set up two others to help lead his team to a 5-2 victory over the Sudbury Nickel Barons Sunday afternoon at the Regional Recreation Complex.

A tight-checking opening period saw neither side score as Sudbury's Michael Muzyka and Espanola's Marc Terriault keep opposing shooters at bay.

Special teams allowed the Nickel Barons to open the scoring early in the middle stanza as Brett Dusick struck shorthanded at 2:10 of the frame as he buried the feed from August Jarecki.

Brandon Janke tied it seven minutes later only to see Ryan Punkari put the visitors back on top midway through the session.

The Rivermen responded again in the period striking twice in a span of 64 seconds to pull even and eventually take the lead for good.

Brennen Dubchak potted the equalizer at 18:19 while Corbin Bean notched the eventual game-winner at 19:23.

Edwards added some insurance and he connected 23 seconds into the final frame while Robert Smythe iced it with 9:48 left to conclude the scoring in the contest.

Blake Peavey and Daniel Robertson both chipped with a pair of assists each to aid the offensive cause for Espanola.

Shots on goal favoured the Rivermen 33-32 with Terriault picking up the win and Muzyka suffering the loss.

The Rivermen's streak began Friday night when a quick start allowed the Espanola team to build a big lead early Friday night and never trail as they doubled up the Nickel Barons on home ice.

Espanola came out flying to begin the contest tallying three times midway through the first on markers by Byron Sam, Corbin Bean and Brad Edwards and chasing Sudbury's Andrew Lefebvre in favour of Michael Muzyka.

Bean then greeted Muzyka with the Rivermen's fourth marker of the stanza at 13:32 for the final goal of the first.

Special teams allowed the Nickel Barons to get on the board early in the second as Sudbury defenceman Khadyn Butterfly connected on the power play at 2:03. Robert Smythe answered that for Espanola late in the period as he notched his first of the postseason to make it 5-1 after 40 minutes.

The Nickel Barons tried to get back into it early in the third as Jimmy Roy struck unassisted at the 46-second mark of the final frame.

Brandon Janke connected during a man advantage midway through the third to make it 6-2 before Austin Veleke wrapped up the scoring for Sudbury with a power play tally at 11:30.

Blake Peavey dished out three assists to aid the Espanola offensive cause.

Marc Terriault finished the night with 33 saves to register the win.

Lefebvre allowed three against on nine shots while Muzyka suffered the loss in relief stopping 24 of 27.

Tournament of Champions opens with proper pomp and ceremony

by Michael Erskine

LITTLE CURRENT—The Anishinabe Singers drum group sang a welcome song as the four teams in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association (NOHA) Midget B Tournament of Champions, hosted by the Manitoulin Panthers, filed onto the ice at the Little Current Recreation Centre for the opening ceremonies and words of welcome from the mayor and Ontario Hockey Association officials.

The master of ceremonies and announcer for the tournament games was local radio personality Kelly Timmermans of Little Current. She greeted the four teams taking part in the tournament: hosts the Manitoulin Panthers, the Blind River Outlaws, the Timmins Flyers and the Cochrane Rush.

"It is always great to have the opportunity to see good hockey," said Mayor Al MacNevin as he welcomed the players and their families to the municipality. "Thank you all for coming."

"Welcome to beautiful

Manitoulin Island," said NOHA District 7 director Gayle Payette of M'Chigeeng. "It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to the NOHA Midget B Tournament of Champions hosted by the Manitoulin Panthers Hockey Association. We will witness some great hockey action all weekend. The players that come before us are friendly rivals that represent their teams and associations with pride. The coaches and team staff have committed themselves to guiding and teaching these young adults with the skills required for this great game of ours."

The director admonished the participants and their parents and fans that "it is of great importance to acknowledge and respect our on ice officials. They have a demanding role in the success of every hockey game and honouring that role is very important as players and as eager fans in the stands. Their training, experience and integrity qualify them for their roles. We will all respect that over the course of the weekend."

Ms. Payette expressed the NOHA's gratitude to the Manitoulin Panthers Hockey Association for hosting the event and the volunteers that are committed to making this event a huge success. "Players, always remember to put forth your best effort on the ice and to hold your heads high, regardless of the outcome of the game," she said. "Best of luck to each and every team."

Manitoulin Panthers President Craig Abotossaway welcomed the players, their families and fans on behalf of the Panther's organization. "We hope everyone has a great time," he said. He acknowledged and thanked Ms. Payette for her words of welcome and encouragement. To the players he said "play hard this weekend. We know you will have a great time." Mr. Abotossaway pledged his organization's assistance to any of the teams or their staff and players to make the tournament as smooth as possible. "We will all do our best to help," he said. "Miigwetch."

The first puck of the tournament was then dropped by Ms. Payette between players from the Manitoulin Panthers and Timmins Flyers.

Alexis McGregor (13) of Birch Island closed the ceremonies with a stirring rendition of the national anthem, O Canada, in Ojibwe.

Panthers fall to energized Blind River Outlaws

by Michael Erskine

LITTLE CURRENT—The final game of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association (NOHA) Midget B Tournament of Champions started out looking good for the host Manitoulin Panthers, who were facing the Blind River Outlaws for the championship, but what looked like an early goal did not make the scoreboard. The Outlaws drove back with a vengeance just a few seconds later, as Blind River's number 4 Liam Hamlin scored the first goal to go up on the boards assisted by number 8, Ben Albert, on a power play following a penalty levied against Manitoulin Panthers number 14, Carter Noble.

A second goal followed with 11:16 left in the first period when the Outlaws' number 4 fired another shot into the Panther net, assisted by 10 Lawrence Payette and number 8 Ben Albert. Less than two minutes later it was 3-0 for the Outlaws as number 8 scored with 9:55 remaining in the first, assisted by number 4 Liam Hamlin.

The Blind River first period juggernaut performance was finally stopped with a Manitoulin Panther goal scored by number 7 Harrison Noble with assists by number 20 Brandon Pheasant and number 23 Zac Pregent with less than five minutes remaining in the period. Another Panther goal followed 56 seconds later as number 6, Brandon Paquette, fired a shot in assisted by number 14 Carter Noble and number 12 Troy Cooper.

The period ended 4-2 when Blind River's number 10, Lawrence Payette, scored an unassisted goal with only 2 minutes left in the period.

The Panthers started off the second period when number 20 Brandon Pheasant scored, assisted by number 24 Barry Pitawanakwat and number 17 Mackenzie Makadebin.

Blind River came back with two goals, however, one by number 14 Alex Sidock, assisted by number 8 Ben Albert and number 4 Allan Galloway and another unassisted goal scored by number 12 Charlie Flintoff.

The Manitoulin Panthers came back with a goal by number 20 Brandon Pheasant, assisted by number 24 Patty Pitawanakwat and number 10 Hunter Abotossaway.

Then it was the Blind River Outlaw's turn in the high scoring game with a goal by number 4, Liam Hamlin, assisted by number 12 Charlie Flintoff and number 14 Alex Sidock.

The final goal came from the Manitoulin Panthers number 20 Brandon Pheasant, assisted by number 7 Harrison Noble, but despite pulling their goalie in the last 60 seconds, the Manitoulin Panthers were unable to close the gap.

A jubilant Blind River Outlaws team secured the Tournament of Champions trophy for 2014, a victory made especially poignant as one of their teammates was facing a terrible personal tragedy in the untimely death of his father the day before.

The silver medal Manitoulin Panthers gather for a photo following an action packed and high scoring game against the Tournament of Champions Blind River. The Manitoulin Panthers team consisted of goalie Reece Wabegijig, Branden Paquette, Harrison Noble, Riley Recollet, Nicholas Corbiere, Hunter Abotossaway, James Bondy, Troy Cooper, Carter Noble, Matthew Oshkabewiens, Mackenzie Makadebin, Brandon Corbiere, Brandon Pheasant, Zac Pregent and Barry Pitawanakwat.

ence and scientific expertise of a small group of dedicated volunteers to finally get our governments to act," said John Bennett, national program director for the Sierra Club Canada Foundation. "I applaud their efforts. This announcement would never have happened without their tireless work."

While the last 12 months 'blip' of extraordinarily high precipitation and extreme cold winter has provided some relief to the upper Great Lakes, water levels on Lakes Michigan and Huron/Georgian Bay are still about 33 centimetres below their long-term average. Meanwhile, the other Great Lakes are at (or above) their long term averages under similar conditions. "This disparity cannot be allowed to continue and we are pleased that President Obama understands that," continued Mr. Bennett. "We now need to hear from our prime minister. Canada needs to play a greater role in protecting the Great Lakes and moving the long overdue binational agreement for compensation measures in the St. Clair River to completion."

Decades of human alterations to the St. Clair River, including dredging and subsequent river bottom erosion, has increased the outflow from Lake Huron and further deepened the river at some locations to over 60 feet, the Sierra Club states. Ships only need 27 feet to pass when they are fully loaded.

Mary Muter is one of a team of Sierra Club researchers who have supported the need to retain water in all the Great Lakes, including St. Clair River compensation measures. She is chair of Sierra Club Canada's Great Lakes Section and the vice chair of a new binational group known as Restore Our Water International (ROWI) which has pushed for the Obama administration to act.

"The loss of wetland and fish habitat as a result of the last 12 years of critically low water levels is unacceptable," Ms. Muter said. "The exposed shorelines have been taken over by the invasive plants, including phragmites australis and Eurasian milfoil, whose very dense growth provide little habitat for fish and wildlife. We know that compensation measures can be deployed in the St. Clair River in an environmentally responsible manner, with full consideration of both upstream and downstream interests," Ms. Muter added.

Locally, Therese Trainor, secretary of the Manitoulin Area Stewardship Council, said she was "ecstatic" with the news. "This is tantamount to the Obama government recognizing the value of this scarce non-renewable resource and they are putting their money up to prove it. I am concerned by the silence of the Canadian government and troubled by what this silence means in terms of the value it places on this resource. I am hopeful this commitment by the Americans will shame our government into responsible action."

...Central gets funding for safer roads

to begin sometime this spring or early summer.

"We have just received a grant from Infrastructure Ontario for $1.44 million," said Mayor Strong at the March 13 Central Manitoulin council meeting. "I have to congratulate staff for their hard work and perseverance in sending this application out three times. It is through their efforts that this project has been made possible."

"I hope the community will be patient," interjected Councillor Gloria Haner, who noted that despite the inconvenience presented by the construction work, the resulting improvements in safety will be worth the effort.

"This is an important project for our community and its safety, especially for our school children," agreed the mayor.

"A strong, prosperous Northern Ontario requires modern and efficient infrastructure," said Minister of Rural Affairs Jeff Leal in announcing the grants through a press release. "Through this fund, our government is helping communities renew and replace roads, bridges and other critical infrastructure that will attract investment, create jobs and help drive economic growth."

"The Ontario government is committed to working with municipalities, especially our rural and Northern partners, to help make critical infrastructure investments that will strengthen our communities across the province," agreed Minister of Infrastructure Glen Murray through the same release. "Through the Small, Rural and Northern Municipal Infrastructure Fund (SRNMIF), we are ensuring that the right investments are made at the right time."

"Investment in building and maintaining essential infrastructure is important to our rural and northern communities," chimed in David Oraziotti, MPP for Sault Ste. Marie. "I am pleased that our government is helping ensure the prosperity of Northern Ontario by providing this financial support for critical infrastructure projects in our communities."

"Our government continues to invest in new and modern infrastructure that is building stronger communities, growing regional economies and creating jobs across the north," concluded Minister of Northern Development and Mines Michael Gravelle, also in the release. "By investing in these crucial projects, we are expanding opportunities for Northern residents and businesses and improving the economic well-being of the province."

The reconstruction will take place between Highway 542 and Anglin Street in Mindemoya, noted Central Manitoulin municipal coordinator Silvio Berti. The work will include parts of Anglin, Thorn and Duke Streets.

"There are issues of sightlines, including a blind spot," said Mr. Berti. "The work will provide better sightlines, curbs gutters and drainage."

Currently driving up Yonge Street a rise impedes the view as motorists approach Central Manitoulin Public School. "You come up over the rise and the school is right there," he said. "It was on the basis of public safety that we made this application."

The applications have been fast and furious on this project, Mr. Berti admitted. "I have applied for this project myself twice in the 15 months I have been here. I think there have been three or four applications, certainly numerous times."

The province has been planning roadwork on Highways 542 and 551, but it is unclear as yet whether that work will take place at the same time.

"It would be nice if it was done around the same time," said Mr. Berti. "It would be a shame for the roads to be torn up twice."

Mayor Strong agreed. "I look forward to the province working with us on this project," he said.

According to the release, the Ontario government is investing close to $27 million to support improvements to critical infrastructure while creating local construction jobs in Northeastern Ontario. The province is supporting 28 projects through the Small, Rural and Northern Municipal Infrastructure Fund, which is providing $100 million to help municipalities across the province build and maintain key infrastructure.

Central Manitoulin is not the only Island community celebrating provincial largesse this month. At a Billings council meeting held earlier this month, Mayor Austin Hunt read a letter from SRNMIF, stating in part, "we are pleased to inform you that 90 percent funding of $1,427,400 has been provided."

"Hot diggity," quipped Councillor Sandi Hurcomb upon hearing the news.

"This is a real coup for the township," agreed Councillor Brian Parker.

Mayor Hunt explained that the Billings funding will go towards a new system upgrade to its water treatment plant which will switch it from a high pressure system to a low pressure system and cover the replacement of equipment at the plant.

Not everyone was celebrating success in this round, however. Alton Hobbs, clerk of Assiginack Township, told the Recorder in an interview earlier this month that his municipality "had applied for $1.3 million for membrane (filter) replacements at both our water plants," but were turned down in this round of funding.

homeowners find themselves without water, they should call a plumber to determine the cause of the problem and to see if it can be thawed out. "It is your responsibility from the home to the shutoff valve," she added.

Gore Bay has not seen such troubles with water lines since 1994. "And the six (without water) are all over the town," Ms. Clarke observed.

Gore Bay has a list of people with historic line problems who are asked each winter to run their water and two of the six homes without water are on this list, the CAO explained.

Also last week, Gore Bay's public works crew dealt with a water main break and discovered that the frost line is between seven and eight feet below ground.

The Sheguiandah First Nation is also relatively clear of frozen water lines, except for an incident over the Christmas holidays when a pipe burst in the community hall/kitchen area of the administration building. This area, which suffered some water damages, is currently undergoing renovations, explained receptionist Shelba Deer.

Meanwhile, both Central Manitoulin and the M'Chigeeng First Nation are boasting zero to almost no problems.

"We have not had one break so far," said M'Chigeeng manager of public works Earl Debassige. "Knock on wood." And Central Manitoulin CAO-clerk Ruth Frawley said her office has received one phone call from a Mindemoya business, but the freeze was deemed to be on personal property. She cited having a relatively new water system as possibly having an effect on their good luck.

Mr. Williamson explained that as the weather begins to warm, this actually drives the frost further into the ground as the snow cover, with its insulating qualities, disappears. This means things may only get worse before they get better in terms of burst and frozen water lines.

The CAO encourages homeowners, if they know they have had a problem in the past or just want to ensure this doesn't happen to them, to keep a "pencil thin" stream of water running from a tap.

Ms. Clarke agrees. "If you're going away, run your water."

"But who pays for this water?" Mr. Williamson posed the question (the Northeast Town is on a metered water system). "The homeowner. But this is preventative and less costly than hiring a plumber."

The CAO said the municipality wants to be fair and should a homeowner run an exorbitant bill as a result of running water to prevent a freeze-up, the matter could be discussed, but this would be on a case by case basis.

"In his 28 years with the municipality, public works manager Gary May has never seen it so bad," he continued. "And as it warms up, more homes will freeze," he warned.

Managing Your Money

Preparing to transition your family business

by Angèle Charbonneau, CPA, CA

If you are an entrepreneur and own your own business, at some point you will need to consider when and how you are going to transition the business. Will you transition the family business to your children or other family members? Will you sell the business to a third party?

This decision can be an emotional one. You may have children who are very good in the business and want to continue on, however you may also have children who are interested, but may not have the ability to continue on as you have. Are you in a position where you need to look outside of the family for succession?

When preparing for transition, there are many factors to consider. In order to ensure a smooth transition, preparation should be done well in advance of the anticipated transition date. Some of the important considerations include:

- What can be done to better position the company for sale?
- If you are selling to a third party, you will want to position your company to maximize your selling price. What can you do in advance to maximize your price?
- If you are planning to transition to family, other considerations will come into play. How are you going to ensure that the family member(s) are prepared to take over the business and continue on as successfully as you have?
- Under what form should the sale take place?
- How will the transition be financed?
- Will you continue to be involved?
- What are the expectations relating to transition?

Having your recordkeeping in order is also a very important part of the transition process. Buyers will likely need to obtain financing for the purchase and will therefore need to prepare to go through the due diligence process. The buyer is going to be asked to provide financial information to support their application for financing, therefore you as the seller needs to ensure your financial records are up to date and in good condition.

What form of compensation are you willing to accept on a sale? Most business owners prefer to sell for cash, however a vendor take-back may need to be considered. Consider, well in advance, how the transition will be done to ensure that it is successful. Proper communication with stakeholders and employees is very important to keeping everything under control during the transition period. You want your employees to buy in to the transition and need to plan ahead to ensure that there is a seamless transition for your clients.

Regardless of the form of transfer (i.e. asset or share sale), once you get to the point where you have a buyer and your strategy for sale and transition has been mapped out, a well drafted purchase and sale agreement will ensure that there are no misunderstandings going forward and that each party is clear as to their roles and contractual obligations. Assembling a solid team of trusted financial and legal advisors who handle these matters on a daily basis is an important step towards completing a successful sale. They can help to formulate strategies to find a motivated buyer, evaluate offers received, negotiate agreements and handle reporting requirements and other financial matters after the sale. They can also provide an important independent opinion without the difficult emotional attachment.

The above is only a sample of the matters that need to be considered when preparing to transition your business. Careful and proper planning will help to maximize the value of your business and ease the transition process.

na. The houses shown are her grandparents' house at Ice Lake and her husband Richard's grandparents' residence in Smithville, near St. Catharines.

There is an area showing a milkmaid which represents the Tallman's dairy background while the block with a church is not a particular church, Ms. Tallman says, but a reflection of their religious heritage. Another part of the quilt shows Richard's 1932 Ford Coupe with a rumble seat while hummingbirds and deer show the animals the Tallmans enjoy on the Island.

Ms. Tallman explained other aspects of the quilt with the tulips and hearts symbolizing love. "And the two blocks with pine cones and roses mean fertility and they are classic blocks for this kind of quilt," she explained as she went on to say that the work of art she made is bordered with grape leaves as the Tallmans at one time had a grape farm on the Niagara Peninsula.

Ms. Tallman had a funny story to tell about all her years of quilting on Manitoulin. "Jill Thorpe and I are the best of friends," she said, "and we are competitors in the quilt world. Her quilts would win at the Prov Fair, but then she moved to Stratford and then I started winning. Well, this year she came first and I came second."

Ms. Tallman is the president of the quilt club that meets in Mindemoya at 7 pm on the third Thursday of the month at the Community Hall. The cost to join is $25 per year and membership stands at about 60. There are no requirements to join, just an ambition to learn all about quilting.

power of the arts to positively transform lives and the role that the arts play has always been in my heart," she said. The role of the Artist-Educator program is to assist artists to positively put the arts to work in their courses. The program, explained Ms. Fougere, is open to artists of all ages who are seeking professional development. "I firmly believe in lifelong learning," she said.

The work the Royal Conservatory has been doing in the realm of artist education over the past decade and a half is being acknowledged all across the globe.

The OAC is playing a critical role in the program as well, noted Ms. Fougere. "Because the Ontario Arts Council are generously funding the program it is a lot more accessible to artists," she said. "The funding is really important because the course usually costs $600, but OAC subsidizes, so the cost to the artist is only $60. That puts it within the reach of most, if not all, artists."

The Royal Conservatory course consists of four levels, and it is the first, Foundations, that will be offered at the Debaj centre, explained Ms. Fougere.

Ms. Fougere said that the opportunity to work with Debaj on this project "is really exciting. The opportunity to partner with this fantastic and creative group at Debaj will help us to create a new and meaningful version of the course," she said. "We will decide together what our creative processes will be."

This is not the first time the Royal Conservatory has worked with indigenous partners, noted Ms. Fougere. "We have done some beautiful work with First Nations, Metis and Inuit in northern Alberta and in inner city Winnipeg, in the mountains of British Columbia and in Thunder Bay."

"We have an Elder-in-Residence program that has been very well received in Alberta," she said.

This will be the second collaboration for the Royal Conservatory on Manitoulin Island itself, she noted. "We did some wonderful work with the Rainbow District School Board," she said. "That work informs us as well, but it is still very important to work with Debajmujig Storytellers and to see what it is that they want in their creative processes."

She explained that the mission of the Royal Conservatory is "to develop human potential through leadership in music and the arts. That mission is based on the conviction that the arts are humanity's greatest means to achieve personal growth and social cohesion. The curriculum for the study of music developed by the Conservatory has become Canada's national standard and its broad use has served to bind together the people of the nation with the thread of shared creative experiences."

Debaj animator Bruce Naokwegijig, Pia Dallmann from Germany, Nicole Fougere of the Royal Conservatory, Debaj administrative director (school) Joahna Berti, Debaj stage manager David (Sunny) Osawabine and visiting Toronto playwright Carla Ritchie.

The work of the Royal Conservatory extends far beyond the boundaries of music, thus the branding change from Royal Conservatory of Music, established over 125 years ago, to the new simpler moniker of Royal Conservatory. "The roots of the Royal Conservatory are in music," said Ms. Fougere. "But like any good program, it has grown and thrived."

The Artist-Educator Foundations Professional Training Course program usually has 24 students enrolled and the course is usually oversubscribed. "It is usually filled to brimming with a waiting list," she said. "If local artists are interested, they should apply now."

The reason artists flock to the course is that it contains an immense store of useful information and techniques for artists in education. "This course offers an opportunity for artists to improve their skills with the support of their peers," said Ms. Fougere. "Some people come to this course at the beginning of their careers, but many, many others come with decades of experience as educators."

Included in the course are topics such as lesson planning skills, partnership skills and differentiated education. Ms. Fougere explained that differentiated education explores the fact that each student learns in a different way and how to adapt teaching techniques to better reach that learner.

Following her interview with The Expositor, Ms. Fougere joined a team of artists and animators from the Debajmujig crew to learn more about their educational infrastructure and teaching techniques.

Following the tour, Ms. Fougere shared her impressions. "I loved the opportunity to get to know this part of Manitoulin Island and to learn more about Debajmujig Storytellers," she said. "I can't wait to be able to come back to the Island again in the spring time to help facilitate the Royal Conservatory Artist-Educator Foundations Professional Training Course."

Her impressions of the facility and crew were equally effusive. "The Debajmujig space is amazing!" she exclaimed. "The open concept theatre space is beautiful. I think it will make a very warm and welcoming place to hold the Royal Conservatory Artist-Educator Foundations Professional Training Course. I felt very touched by the welcome I received from Joahna, Ron, Bruce, and Joe at Debaj. I could feel immediately that they cared deeply about their artistic and community work."

One of the key elements in the Debaj/Royal Conservatory collaboration was the First Nations element and how traditional teachings inform the educational process. "It was a true honour to meet David Osawabine, a traditionalist," said Ms. Fougere. "For me, it is so important that this course be grounded in these traditional teachings and ways of thinking."

The unique paradigm of the Debaj approach and the Creation Centre processes struck a chord with the Royal Conservatory

ry manager. "I was most impressed by the sense of synergy I felt in these first steps of our creation process together," said Ms. Fougere. "I am inspired and hopeful that this will be the first step to a longer partnership between The Royal Conservatory and Debajmujig Storytellers."

"We are thankful for the generous support of the Ontario Arts Council. With their help, The Royal Conservatory and Debajmujig Storytellers will be able to experience a truly collaborative creation process together," reiterated Ms. Fougere. "Artist-Educators interested in applying should visit the Royal Conservatory web page at www.rcmusic.ca and find more information about the course under the heading Learning Through the Arts and Artist-Educator Professional Training."

...Bill Strain honoured by OFAH

Mr. Strain said he was looking forward to the program this spring. "We are bringing in two more schools, Assiginack Public School and Central Manitoulin Public School," he said. "I just received an email from the MNR (Ministry of Natural Resources) informing us that they will be sending the trailer with all their displays in it this year, so it will really be something to see."

The Larry Wallace Memorial Volunteer Award recognizes a person or persons who have helped to ensure the future of conservation by sharing their experience, knowledge and love of the outdoors with youth. Mr. Wallace was a long-time OFAH member, zone chair, director and dedicated conservationist. He had a keen interest in introducing youth to the wonders of the outdoors and recognized that youth were key to the future of hunting and angling, notes an OFAH press release.

The release goes on to say that "while several outstanding candidates were nominated for the award, the judges thought that Bill stood out from the rest. They noted that he is a great role model for young people, and praised him for bringing kids, the community and anglers together in projects that make a difference on the ground."

"For over 25 years, Bill has been involved in the successful pickerel rehabilitation program on Manitoulin Island, has promoted the walleye fishery, as well as the conservation of the species and the environment through a variety of activities," said OFAH President Bill Blackwell. "He serves as a fine example of what it means to give back to the community and how important it is to engage the youth of today as they are the future stewards of our natural resources."

For the past 25 years, The Expositor has been privileged to bear witness to the efforts of Mr. Strain, the Little Current Fish and Game Club and the many other volunteers who have worked tirelessly to rehabilitate the Island fisheries in the hatchery based on Mr. Strain's Sheguiandah resort.

The resort buildings have played host to literally thousands of school children, where lecturers from the MNR and local conservation clubs and sportsmen instilled an understanding of the role and importance that fish, game and the wild play in making our world a livable space and how to sustain nature for future generations.

Mr. Strain noted that when the club first began its pickerel rehabilitation program in 1986, there was virtually no fishery left in this part of Lake Huron. "It had been pretty well wiped out in the 1960s," he said. Now, the size of the fish coming up the creek in the spring are very gratifying. "You should see it at night," said Mr. Strain of the phosphorescent eyes of the fish in the dark. "They are like a bunch of diamonds hanging in the water."

The OFAH press release also acknowledged the outstanding work of Mr. Strain's fellow award nominees, David Field and Kenneth Beaston.

For a complete list of conservation award winners, visit www.ofah.org/conference/awards.

With over 100,000 members, subscribers and supporters, and 720 member clubs, the OFAH is the province's largest nonprofit, fish and wildlife conservation-based organization and acts as the credible voice of anglers and hunters across the province. For more information, visit www.ofah.org.

Theatre and Joshua Bainbridge of Gateway Theatre Guild. In the end it was Joshua Bainbridge who captured the adjudicator's nod.

The Adjudicator Award for Integrity of Playing, sponsored by Thorneloe Theatre, was won by Michelle Goulet of Take Two Theatre.

The Adjudicator Award for stage management, sponsored by Ian MacLennan, was awarded to Colleen Halverson of the Sault Theatre Workshop.

The Adjudicator Award for Outstanding Newcomer to Theatre, sponsored by Espanola Little Theatre, had several nominations including Phoenix Deschene of the Sault Theatre Workshop; Victoria LeFort of Take Two Theatre; Brandi McCallum of Sault Theatre Workshop; Shawn Parker of Gateway Theatre Guild; and Zachary Smithers of Gateway Theatre Guild, but it was Victoria LeFort who gathered the award.

Nominations for Outstanding Visual Presentation, sponsored by Gore Bay Theatre included Gore Bay Theatre and the Gateway Theatre Guild, but the winner was Gateway Theatre Guild.

Outstanding Actor in a

Supporting Role was sponsored by Family Life Theatre, with nominations for R.J. Renner of the Sault Theatre Workshop; Morgan Bedard of the Gateway Theatre Guild; and Brad Carr of the Gateway Theatre Guild. The award went to R.J. Renner.

Outstanding Actress in a Leading Role was sponsored by Don and Joyce Watts, with nominations for Jeannette McCreight of Take Two Theatre, Michelle Goulet of Take Two Theatre, and Victoria LeFort of Take Two Theatre. Ms. McCreight won the award.

Finally, the Outstanding Production award, sponsored by QUONTA Drama

Region, was won by the Gateway Theatre Guild.

The icing on the cake for the Gore Bay Theatre team was an invitation to perform at Parry Sound's Stockey Centre this summer. Although the performance has yet to be firmed up ("we have to make sure the actors can fit it into their schedules," points out Mr. Maskel), being asked to put the play on at the centre that has played host to some of the most prestigious acts in Canada is no mean accomplishment in itself.

...proponents seek support from arena user groups

wise," Mayor MacNevin said. "And there are no junior teams that don't require something from the municipality."

He spoke of the rink board revenue, which is currently maintained by the municipality but was first started as a fundraiser for the Manitoulin Wild.

"It's kind of the chicken and the egg thing," he said. "There is no revenue (from signboards) without junior hockey."

Mayor MacNevin explained that there are currently about one dozen rink boards in use at the arena, but when Junior A hockey was in play there were 20 more creating revenue. This spurred a "huge political debate" among the user groups as to why only the Junior A team should collect that revenue.

With direction to make sure a Junior A team will not return at a cost to the municipality, "in my mind, that puts us into an almost impossible situation."

"The ball is in their court to meet with the user groups and hammer out a deal so that they don't come back to the municipality," the mayor said.

In previous years, the Junior A team would receive the same block rate as the other user groups, like Skate Canada Manitoulin and minor hockey. This, the mayor explained, results in an approximate $100,000 loss in revenue each year.

"I don't disagree that a Junior A team is a valuable thing to have in the community, but they need to prove that to the user groups and that's where they need to do their homework," he said. "They're going to have to convince not only us and the user groups, but the general public and the people who will be buying season tickets as well."

"I think the bulk of the council have a bad taste from the last venture and I think the user groups do too," the mayor added.

"Coming to us right away with no support is a tough go."

The Expositor spoke with Lori Clark, president of Skate Canada Manitoulin, who said she wasn't willing to comment on behalf of her organization when they have not yet been approached by Mr. Clayden about the possibility of a Junior A team.

"If a meeting is held, we will hear them out and regroup as an executive to make a decision," she said, noting they are waiting to see if they get a call.

Craig Abotossaway, president of the Manitoulin Panthers, said he is in favour of a Junior A team in Little Current both personally and as head of the Panthers.

"I'm always in favour of any level of hockey on Manitoulin Island," he said. "It helps to create an interest in the game and sees kids striving to get to those higher levels."

"As long as it doesn't take away from figure skating, minor hockey or the Panthers, then I'm in favour," Mr. Abotossaway added.

Brad Bond, coach of the Manitoulin Secondary School Mustangs, which has its home games on Friday nights in Little Current, was receptive to the idea, according to Scott Ginson, vice president of operations of the Rivermen, and has agreed to send the Northeast Town a letter of support for a Junior A franchise.

Mayor MacNevin said that in the first year of the Manitoulin Wild, now retired manager of community services Greg Wright called a meeting between all user groups and had them come up with a workable schedule between them. "As it died off, nobody remembers how good it was that first year."

Mr. Clayden told The Expositor in an interview last week that he would be seek-

Arthritis teach-in sessions held at Mindemoya Hospital

by Betty Bardswich

MINDEMOYA—The numbers are hard to believe. According to Statistics Canada, there are over 7 million Canadians, children and adults living with chronic pain. That is pain that doesn't go away after three months as opposed to acute pain which happens, for example, when you have surgery or break a leg. The Arthritis Alliance of Canada states that 4.6 million of these people live with osteoarthritis, a degenerative disease that results in the wearing away of the cartilage covering the ends of bones and one of over 100 types of arthritis. Another 272,000 Canadians live with rheumatoid arthritis, which can affect the entire body but is found most often in the small joints of the hands, feet, elbows, shoulders, neck, knees and hips.

In order to help people with arthritis understand their condition, the hospital in Mindemoya recently held a series of teach-ins, once every seven days for five weeks. These sessions are sponsored by the Arthritis Society and are presented by the Ontario Telemedicine Network (OTN) to many clients throughout Ontario at the same time. The OTN is an independent, not-for-profit organization that is funded by the Ontario government and delivers information on a variety of conditions. These sessions focussed on an explanation of exactly what arthritis is as well as on factors that affect the wellbeing of sufferers such as nutrition, intimacy, medications and physical activities. The OTN coordinator for this area is Ann Cranston and she, along with Mary Wilson and others who work in the hospital's clinic, called to see if people were willing to attend the classes based on information submitted by family doctors.

The teleconference, held in the hospital boardroom, included class participants from Atikokan, Little Current, Parry Sound, Smooth Rock Falls, Sturgeon Falls, North Bay, Saint Charles, Fort Albany, Walden, as well as Mindemoya. As Ms. Wilson explained, "There is excitement in offering group sessions in our boardroom and you are connecting with a specialist fast. And we offer different programs with education and information on such topics as chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), heart failure and asthma." As well, Stay Active, Stay Independent, Stay on Your Feet classes have been held with exercises for seniors to do with the goal of staying in one's own home for a longer period of time.

The arthritis classes show participants how to understand and manage this condition and deal with the pain, fatigue and stress that comes with it while emphasizing that it is essential for people to see their healthcare provider for a proper diagnosis, referrals and treatment. The Arthritis Society literature also stresses that one must work closely with an arthritis healthcare team that may include a nurse practitioner, nurse, rheumatologist, occupational therapist, physiotherapist, social worker, pharmacist, dietitian and orthopedic surgeon as well as the family doctor. It is also imperative that arthritis sufferers understand the medications used for treatment and class members are given a consumer's guide to medications that may include non-prescriptions for pain, non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, disease-modifying anti-rheumatic drugs and biologics.

Class participants are also taught the importance of nutrition and exercise when dealing with arthritis as being overweight puts extra strain on weight-bearing joints that may be already compromised. Limits should be placed on foods high in fats, especially animal fats, sugar, alcohol and salt. Exercise should be done regularly and this class teaches movements that can be done without undue strain.

Those who participated in this teleconference were glad they came and spoke positively of the classes. Kathrine Robarts of Kagawong found the seminar very informative and said, "This is a very good way to educate many people at once from different towns and cities" while Deanna Benoit, also from Kagawong, thought the sessions were very beneficial for people with arthritis. Myrna Clark found the teleconference to be very enlightening while Carole Middaugh and Joan Ralph were thankful for the how to cope with pain class with Ms. Ralph saying, "I learned many ways of coping with the pain through meditation and exercises."

The tutorials were also excellent for showing participants various ways of dealing with arthritis from day to day. Many of these items are low cost and include long handled shoe horns to get shoes on without having to bend down, tools for opening jars and roll-on lotions for feet and backs. Elastic shoelaces can be used as they stretch over the day as one's feet swell and pipe insulation can be used to make a handle for a toothbrush or hairbrush. It is also important to have a bath mat in the shower or tub and dispensers for shampoo that attach to the wall.

The teleconference had much more information than can be written about here, but interest would probably result in another session as this method of delivering information is on the rise. If you are interested in attending an arthritis seminar or have an idea for another topic, contact Ms. Cranston, Ms. Wilson, or any of the other staff at the Mindemoya Medical Clinic. The number is 705-377-5371.

Tehkummah Council Notes

Interim Tax Rate Bylaw

The interim tax rate for the January through June period was set at 50 percent of 2013 taxes.

Presentation by MMAH

Paul Prospero of the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing attended the council meeting and presented a refresher course on the role of council, councillor and staff. Mr. Prospero reminded council that this was only an overview of the roles and duties of council, reeve, councillors, and municipal staff and how they interact, and referred council to the complete statute for accuracy.

Fire Chief's Report by Chief Jeff Wilson

Fire Chief Jeff Wilson presented his summary for February. There were no fire calls and two practices in February, with an average attendance of 13. Trainer Ryan Hutchinson continues to work through the firefighter modules. Chief Wilson attended the Red Cross Disaster Management Training Day in Sudbury on March 1. Discussions with the Red Cross regarding utilizing Tehkummah as a disaster management centre are ongoing. The new breathing apparatus have been ordered and should be here in the next week or so. They come certified and hydro tested with a 10-year warranty. Assistant to the Fire Marshal cards have been received so there are members that are able to help with inspections if they are needed.

Ontario Heritage Committee

Council approved a motion to set up an Ontario Heritage Committee (as set out in the Ontario Heritage Act) for the Township of Tehkummah. The committee needed to be appointed by council. It will be responsible for oversight of heritage properties within the township and will provide a voice for all other committees including Little Schoolhouse and Museum and the Michael's Bay Historical Society.

Fire Hydrants

Staff is conducting research into setting up a bylaw governing fire hydrants.

Swimming Lessons

Staff continues to work out details to make swimming lessons available this summer.

Post Office Hours

Council objects to the closure of the Tehkummah Post Office on Saturdays as well as the reduction of hours during the week and requested the Canada Post Corporation reconsider this position. Council also passed a motion objecting to the realignment of hours for the South Baymouth Post Office and requested that Canada Post reconsider that position also.

New Lobo Loco Alpaca Farm to open this spring in Sheguiandah

by Robin Burrige
SHEGUIANDAH—Richard Lathwell of Sheguiandah will be opening the Lobo Loco Alpaca Farm this spring at his Townline Road farm.

Mr. Lathwell purchased 44 animals from the Noble Alpaca Farm herd (that had been located on Bidwell's Scotch Line Road) in addition to three lammas (alpaca guard animals), after owners Glen and Rochel Totman put the majority of their herd up for sale last fall.

"I have this big farm that was originally farmed using horses when it was established in 1866—it was the original Burnett Farm—and I don't like cattle, so I thought the land might be good for alpacas," explained Mr. Lathwell. "The timing was also perfect as Glen and Rochel were looking to sell theirs."

Since moving to Manitoulin from Toronto in 2010 in the hopes of becoming "self-sufficient," Mr. Lathwell has been growing produce on his farm with a large orchard featuring eight different types of apples in addition to pears and plums, a big vegetable garden and beehives.

The organic farm will continue to grow produce and harvest honey, which Mr. Lathwell sells at the Little Current Farmers' Market and the Eat Local Sudbury co-operative.

As of this spring, his produce and honey will also be available alongside alpaca fiber products such as wool from the farm, which will be supplemented with wholesale alpaca products in order to keep up with anticipated demands.

Though the Lobo Loco alpacas aren't at their new home yet, Mr. Lathwell has been spending time with them, getting to know the animals and being mentored by the Totmans.

"It was part of the deal that the alpacas would winter at the Totman farm and come here in the spring," explained Mr. Lathwell. "The Totmans have really been acting as mentors to me and I will be running the farm similar to how they did, focussing on harvesting the animals fiber and marketing the farm as a tourist draw."

Mr. Lathwell said that in theory, he and the Totmans will be shearing the Lobo Loco alpacas in early May at the Bidwell farm and transporting the animals to their new home after they are sheared, receive their shots and are dewormed. "There is still a lot of work to do to get the farm ready for them," Mr. Lathwell said, "but most of it, like fencing and renovations to the barn, will have to wait for the snow to be gone."

In addition to mentoring, the Totmans will also be giving Mr. Lathwell a book of information on all the alpacas which includes a page on each animal that contains their name, family history, photo and medical information.

"They are also giving me a computer system to help keep track of the alpacas," he said. "Alpacas don't inbreed well—it's important to keep track of who is related to who and the program also identifies which animals are eligible to breed together."

Right now Mr. Lathwell is running Lobo Loco on his own, but he has applied for funding in the hope of obtaining financial support and creating full-time jobs on the farm.

"I'm excited and nervous," revealed Mr. Lathwell of his new endeavour. "I've installed a weather station, which through <http://www.wunderground.com> has been drawing a lot of interest in the farm, but I plan to start marketing it more in the spring."

The Expositor will be checking in on the Lobo Loco Alpaca Farm in May and getting a first-hand look at the sheering processes.

Artists in Residence prepare for spring show and sale

by Sharon Jackson
GORE BAY—When Erin-Blythe Reddie and Nancy McDermid were given the opportunity to take over space at Fish Point Studios at the Gore Bay Harbour Centre, they were eager to set up shop.

Three months has flown by and the duo is now preparing for their spring show and sale. The time spent together has led to the development of future projects, one of which is a two-woman show to be held in 2015.

Each artist approaches their craft in a different way—Ms. Reddie with an intuitive nature and Ms. McDermid more in the role of a director. "It's my language," shared Ms. McDermid. Ms. Reddie stated, "both are responsive."

Ms. Reddie's 'ying' flows well with Ms. McDermid's 'yang' in the space they share. Spring colours come alive in the upper floor of the Harbour Centre. Endless natural light in the welcoming building is the perfect atmosphere for the duo.

Keeping it simple, the duo does not have a lot of pieces in any one area of the studio. "Art," shared Ms. Reddie, "needs space around it for the eye to rest."

are displayed in perfect harmony to Ms. Reddie's note cards and lovely silk scarves and artwork displayed on the walls.

"These three dimensional naturescapes were created with natural materials found on the shoreline of Providence Bay around my home space," shared Ms. Reddie. "As you look at them, they invite us to consider three dimensions of our lives interconnected with nature: the physical, the emotional and the spiritual, as you bring your personal life experience to what you see and you respond to what you read."

Ms. McDermid is "excited about the show."

Ms. Reddie shared that it is "a big risk to do this show. Art is a very personal thing."

As the ladies each share the concept of some of their own pieces, both are generous in speaking of the other's work.

One of the features both artists enjoy about the Harbour Centre and their upcoming sale is that it gives them an opportunity to spend some time on the West End of the Island and introduce themselves to the people who visit.

The inviting atmosphere of the building houses the artists in their working studio space, said Ms. Reddie. "People can actually talk to the artists," echoed Ms. McDermid.

Ms. McDermid and Ms. Reddie will be artists in residence until the end of March. They are taking part in the Manitoulin Art Tour in July. It is the 20th anniversary of the tour with this year's theme The Group of Seven.

ing out meetings and letters of support from the four user groups in question and thought the revised agreement given to the municipality was "well received."

Should the Rivermen require a game five in its playoff series against the Nickel Barons (scheduled for the Little Current arena this Friday, March 21 at 7:30 pm and decided tonight, Wednesday, March 19) and the team receives a full-house of Manitoulin support, Mr. Clayden will be pleased to continue his fight for a return of Junior hockey to the Island. "But if there's no interest in game five, then I might as well just give up," he added.

Skate Canada Manitoulin goes for the gold with Olympic theme winter carnival MANITOWANING—Skate Canada Manitoulin held its annual winter carnival recently at the Manitowaning arena with an Olympic theme.

The carnival gave all Skate Canada Manitoulin skaters a chance to show off their hard work from the year.

The evening started off with both CanSkate groups hitting the ice to give the families a chance to see how the skating program circuits work. All of the nine Star Skaters performed their free skate routines for the crowd.

Both the Little Current and Manitowaning Pre-Star skate and Star skate groups also performed group routines.

The carnival ended with a finale including all the skaters. After the show, family and friends were invited to enjoy a fun family skate.

There was a good turnout for the evening and fun had by all.

Physician leaders in Northeast pledge to continue improving hospital care

SUDBURY—Chiefs of staff and physician leaders at hospitals across Northeastern Ontario have pledged to continue to find ways to improve patient care and make hospitals run more efficiently.

That was the commitment made at the first-ever North East Hospitals' Physician Leaders Conference held recently at Health Sciences North (HSN) in Sudbury. Over two dozen physician leaders from 13 different hospitals in northeastern Ontario participated in the conference.

Jointly organized by the Ontario Medical Association (OMA), HSN and the Manitoulin Health Centre, this inaugural conference focused on topics such as patient health and safety, patient referrals and transfers between hospitals, improving patient care through telemedicine and electronic health records, advances in critical care, end-of-life care and procedures, and new models of hospital funding.

The conference also featured a keynote address from André Picard, the award-winning health reporter with the Globe and Mail. Mr. Picard provided an overview of some of the key changes affecting the health care system in Canada and best practices being put in place by hospitals across the country. Mr. Picard will be the keynote speaker at HSN's annual general meeting to be held in June.

"The pace of change in health care over the last five years has been unprecedented, and this conference was an excellent way to bring together hospital physician leaders in the northeast to talk about how we can adapt to these changes so we can improve patient care," says Dr. Chris Bourdon, conference co-chair and HSN's chief of staff.

"This conference was particularly valuable for chiefs of staff and physician leaders at smaller, rural hospitals in Northeastern Ontario," adds Dr. Stephen Cooper, conference co-chair and chief of staff at the Manitoulin Health Centre. "It gives us an opportunity to network with each other and with our colleagues in the major referral hospitals in the Northeast. It also gives us an opportunity to discuss some of the unique challenges in smaller hospitals and learn about best practices and areas of cooperation that will improve care for our patients."

The North East Hospitals' Physician Leaders Conference was sponsored by the Ontario Medical Association, HSN, Manitoulin Health Centre, the North East Local Health Integration Network and Pfizer.

"Ontario's doctors are committed to helping hospital physician leaders find meaningful ways to connect that enhance hospital services and patient care throughout the Northeast. We thank the participants of this inaugural conference and look forward to supporting similar efforts in the future," says Dr. Scott Wooder, president, Ontario Medical Association.

Dairy producers elect directors and award milk excellence

by Michael Erskine
LITTLE CURRENT—The Manitoulin West Sudbury Cattle Producers elected their executive for 2014 and recognized outstanding local milk producers during their annual general meeting held at the Little Current United Church Hall earlier this month.

The election was overseen by Dairy Farmers of Ontario field service rep and transportation officer Jean-Guy Seguin. Nominated and elected unopposed were secretary Sally Orford and directors John Mooney, Bill Orford, Alex Anstice, Larry Noland and Keith Emiry.

Local dairy farmers and their operations were recognized for outstanding quality in their milk operations and production. A gold certificate was presented to Jim and Alex Anstice. Mr. Seguin explained that to reach a gold level of milk quality was an outstanding accomplishment. "The requirements for a gold certificate are that bactoscan (bacteria) levels are under 10,000," he said. "Under 10,000 is exceptionally good."

General certificates of milk quality were also presented to Bill Orford of Gore Bay, Larry Noland of Spring Bay and Bill Morrell of Massey.

The Bactoscan is a measurement of the number of bacteria present in milk. High bacteria levels reduce the shelf life of liquid milk and may affect the ability to produce good quality cheese. There are also legal requirements set by the EU in order for the milk to be suitable for human consumption, currently set at a maximum of 100,000. Other targets are set by the milk buyer with financial penalties for producers that go over the predetermined level set out in their contract. This provides an incentive to farmers to be as hygienic as possible and give the manufacturer an acceptable product to pass on to the consumer. However, a low Bactoscan is also desirable as it can reflect good parlour management, a clean environment and a low level of mastitis in the herd.

Northern dairy farmers consistently produce milk of very high quality. "To maintain those levels of quality an operation really has to be up to snuff on every level of milk production," said Mr. Seguin.

"Every level is tested. It is really a sign that our milk supply in Northern Ontario is something to be really proud of. In most areas in the North 48 percent of the producers received a certificate," he said. "It sets the bar pretty high. I have some regions in the North where 70 percent of the producers receive a certificate and 40 percent receive a gold."

"It speaks very highly to the public in ensuring that the product is safe and that it comes from healthy and comfortable cows," concluded Mr. Seguin.

Hawberry Boys fundraising concerts begin this weekend in Mindemoya

MINDEMOYA—Rick Piché and the Hawberry Boys will be taking to the stage this weekend for their annual fundraising concert for St. Francis of Assisi Anglican Church in Mindemoya. From the onset, these concerts have been sold out events, prompting the addition of a second concert the following day. This year's theme is 'The Sensational Sixties.'

The Hawberry Boys

Over the four years of these much looked forward to concerts, the Hawberry Boys have grown and include, on keyboard and accordion, Great Northern Opry inductee Maurice Labelle and on bass, vocals and cello, Gore Bay's Paul Best. (Both of these musicians were in the original band titled The Celtic Clan.)

Mindemoya's Jim Smith was encountered at that first concert and he has been singing and playing sax with The Boys since then.

"I heard Peter Gordon doing a solo at a choir concert and I asked him to join us for the second concert, which was 'Sentimental Journey,' Mr. Piché explained. "I was nervous about adding a drummer, as I have heard many drummers that play way too loud. As I got to know Greg Wilkins, I realized that here was a drummer who understood the idea of fitting in with the band, not overpowering them. He has been wonderful to work with and really adds to the overall sound, not only as a drummer, but also as a singer—really, a wonderful group of guys. Oh, I almost forgot, we have also added a few female voices: Mary Inkster will be doing a solo and a number of harmony vocals, and my wife Marg will be doing one solo. I would like to get her to do more singing, but she is the sound person, and that is a very important job."

Mr. Piché explained that the '60s is the time period he most identifies with and at first glance, "I had over 100 songs picked out. It was very hard to narrow it down to under 30 songs."

Audiences can look forward to the sounds of The Beach Boys, The Monkees, Simon and Garfunkel, Bob Dylan, Johnny Cash, Anne Murray, CCR, Elvis, Roy Orbison and many more. "We are also playing five television themes, which should bring back a few memories," he said. "I think we have quite a wonderful selection of songs."

Rick Piché and the Hawberry Boys will play on Friday, March 21 at 7:30 pm and Saturday, March 22 at 2 pm at St. Francis Anglican Church Mindemoya. Tickets are $15 and are available at The Manitoulin Expositor in Little Current and Manitoulin Island Computers in Mindemoya. Those looking to purchase tickets can also phone 705-859-3925. There is barrier-free access at the south door.

Expositor Corrections

In the March 12 page 5 story 'Inspiring change was theme of this year's Women's Day' the special guest speaker was identified as Barb Tate. The correct name of the special guest speaker was Debra Tate.

In a March 5 story on page 1, the number of waterfront lots for a Lake Manitou pilot study was correctly identified as six lots in the story but was incorrectly called three lots in the headline.

The Expositor regrets the errors.

Spring Bay Rural Route

Happy St. Patrick's Day to everyone! When Irish eyes are smiling it's like a morn in spring.

It sure was cold on Saturday night here. March is slipping away and we are ready for spring. Campbell Horticultural Society held their March meeting on the 11th at the Spring Bay Community Centre. The guest speaker was Seija Deschenes on 'Re-greening Manitoulin;' she also showed slides. Dave, Theresa and Carson Dufort from North Bay, Allen and Rose Marie visited me Monday afternoon, and helped to celebrate my birthday. My four nieces took me to lunch on Monday at Mum's Restaurant.

We extend sympathy to the McDermid family in the passing of Doug after a lengthy illness. He will be missed. Ken and Sheila Maeck went to Sudbury on Monday for a doctor's appointment. Hi Emily Noble, it was nice to hear from you. Happy belated birthday wishes to Don Norton, who celebrated on Sunday. Watched the Men's Grand Slam curling all week, Glen Howard's rink won against Gushue's rink. This week we are watching the ladies. Lots of curling going on the TV, some good games to watch.

Get well wishes to all who are sick.

Central Manitoulin Chatter

Well, no sign of spring yet! This winter just wants to linger longer. Perhaps next week I'll be writing about seeing the first Robin of the year.

Eva, Marilyn, Annabelle and Reta enjoyed the stew dinner and euchre tournament on Wednesday afternoon at the Little Current Legion. The Little Current "Scarlet Red" red hatters had their monthly luncheon at Mum's Restaurant and Bakery in Mindemoya on Wednesday.

Dorothy, Marilyn and Anna spent an evening playing euchre with Lois who is still in her cast. You are being missed Lois. We hope you are up and around soon.

Sandra Morgan had her Mom visiting for a week in Providence Bay.

The families of Michelle McFarlane Bryant and Steve Bryant would like to thank you for all your support as Steve had open heart surgery. Your financial assistance is still needed. You can donate at any Island BMO in Michelle's name. We're glad to hear that Repha Vanhorn is home from the hospital. We're thinking of Max McArthur who was born and raised in Providence Bay and now resides in Florida. Our best wishes to Ted Jackson.

Grand Slam Curling in Fort McMurray Alberta on March 12 to the 16 had over 200 leaks in the roof. Sounds familiar!

The euchre tournament in Mindemoya has 11 tables. First place to MaryAnn and Dorothy; second place, Tina and Mark; and third and fourth was tied to Marie and Marion and Deanie and Marcel.

Hello to Caroline and Christine Cranston who are visiting from Calgary. We're sorry we don't have more spring-like weather for you! Enjoy your visit with friends and family.

We're thinking of everyone who is under the weather or in hospital. Get well soon.

The Manitoulin Family Resources Food Bank will have their "Treasures Bring On Spring" luncheon on Wednesday, March 26 at the Mindemoya Missionary Church from 11 am until 1 pm. $10 includes soup, sandwich, dessert and beverage. Takeout orders available and pre-orders by March 24 at 705-377-4402. The "Winter's End" Bag Sale at the Manitoulin Family Resources Treasures Thrift Shop at 18 Forest Street, Mindemoya is March 12 to April 1 for only $10 a bag. Their hours are Monday, Tuesday, Thursday-Saturday from 10 am to 2 pm and Wednesday from 7 to 9 pm. See you at these events, supporting Manitoulin Family Resources Food Bank.

Safety on the farm

The Ontario Ministry of Labour has an extensive collection of resources for farming operations on their website at ontario.ca/farmworkersafety. "Farming operation workplaces should be safe, and the employers, supervisors and workers are all responsible for health and safety. Ontario's Occupational Health and Safety Act applies, with some limitations and conditions, to all farming operations that have paid workers under the Act." Familiarize yourself with this information. One resource on the site is A Guide to the Occupational Health and Safety Act for Farming Operations. This guide provides important information in an easy-to-read format.

Agricultural Information Atlas

The Agricultural Information Atlas is a great OMAF and MRA tool that farmers, stakeholders and staff can use to create maps, find data and generate records for land across the province. You talked, we listened. We heard suggestions from users on how to make the tool better, so we made the atlas easier to use; created new data layer symbols; made attribute information easier to read and developed better mark-up tools.

And that's not all! Explore all of the updates at the same address, ontario.ca/agmaps, and click on the Agricultural Information Atlas link. For more information, contact Contact Geographical Information Services at omafra.gis@ontario.ca.

Lost

We often get lost on this road of life
 Because we haven't got a GPS to guide
 Or stars in their alignment
 To take us on this ride
 The traffic could be heavy,
 Maybe get a flat or two
 Run out of "Gas" as time does pass
 Rain showers block our view
 A doctor causes us to lose
 The roads we travel on.
 Or when we have a breakdown
 We think all hope is gone
 Refill the tank, recalculate
 Slow down, check map or star
 And see where Jesus takes us.
 While we find out who we are You'll overcome the roadblocks
 And go that extra mile
 Climbed from depths to mountain top
 Just to find your sunny smile
 There are more good routes to happiness
 Ahead of us you know
 Maybe we need to turn around
 Or take a different road
 There's beauty in this life of ours
 We will find when dark is gone
 A ray of light shines through the fog
 To a perfect peace filled dawn
 March 15/14, Pat Hall

"What a friend we have in Jesus"
 "How great though art"- Our church echoed these hymns this past Sunday. How touching these favourites are. It's not that we don't have the greatest singers, but we do, and do they ever raise their voices in praise. Lately music has been talking to the very soul of me. Must be the long, draggy winter. The birds this Tuesday morning are talking spring in the sunshine, and do I hope they are right. The deer are back, in the back yard again. This AM I'm writing more cards and notes. And I should be doing some clean up instead. I've been going through thousands of photographs I have taken, probably no one but me will ever see them, if you know what I mean. Rummy was wearing a sombrero on Sunday in church, looked cute too. Our Minister had a nice "Toronto Maple Leaf" Serape, or poncho or stole, also from Mexico, neat. Pat Novak was our fill in organist.

Happy Birthday last Thursday to Coral Collins. Happy, Happy, Happy Spring I hope!!! Helens cheery voice on the phone this Monday morning to wish me "Happy St. Paddy's" and tell me she's a great grandma again. A little girl called Reese Mary born a week ago to Jesse and Lacey- Congrats to all!

Well tonight my ankle is really hurting and my neck doesn't feel so good, but if you had been in the backyard this afternoon you would have got some excellent footage for "The Worlds Funniest Video!" All I can say is, it was lucky that Tara and Jacob were home to pull me out, first I fell off the trail, made it to the bird feeder awkwardly, then on the way back, tried to get back on it, and a foot went each side and there was I, on my back, wallowing like a beached whale. It took the two of them to get me up as my feet didn't reach bottom, then after, Tara fell through but she's a little more agile than I. Lucky I wasn't "Home Alone" if you know what I mean, of course laughing doesn't help when you're down. And the snow was melting while I was floundering, glad to get inside and into dry pants!?

I see the backyard grew a snowman family overnight. Or was it a snow woman and a couple of kids? Here it is Saturday, and I've hardly been out of the house for three days except to feed the birds and Poppy. My neck has been bothering me since my flounder episode. Oh well, just one more thing to add to my "life's" experiences.

'Scuse the mixed up writing of this column. This is deadline day again and I have space left on this page. Top of the day to you all (late). Today is my 60th wedding anniversary. Best wishes to all who have an easy date to remember.

I called Cal to wish him well and Happy St. Paddy's Day. Rick and Cal are off for his needle in the eye today. Mollie called this AM. Things are pretty well in her world. She caught me in the tub so lucky I don't have phone a vision. Cal took me to supper last evening, quite a few folk there with the same idea. Mike and Pattie have such a nice family. Just remembered all the cats are out, but they are on the sunny side of the house.

Well the Cardinal's beautiful voice is brightening up this sunshiny morning, even though there is a chill in the air, and didn't I see a Murder of Crows this morning and what a Murder it was!

Elaine is back at work after a week off for medical reasons.

I wished Happy New Year to Al Ryan today! I'm not sure if I've seen him this year yet! Well we all won a game. The smell of skunk was in the air, frequently! Wasn't I the big winner? Cole, Cal and I. I know I was at Mum's too! (We just don't talk about her wins! Dorothy comes over to play too at Mum's!)

Well the girls want cribbage to start so I guess it's about time eh? So April second, at one thirty pm is the official start, all are welcome to the Tehkummah Hall (We do have fun). Wednesday we held our Sr.U.C.W meeting at Reta Vanhorn's home. She makes this most delicious cold pizza, and had Angel Food Cake for dessert. Yummy! Our group is small right now, folk away. Noreen, hope you are well, we're missing you! But we only have nine paid members, sometimes ten at the best of times. Reta had a real pineapple growing in her house. Tropical. It was good to see Audrie out and about. She had a two week bout with the flu bug! Cold?

Cal was down a couple of days with the bug as well. Then Cole got it. I've trying to stay clear. This weekend, Sunday, our after church potluck at the Hall March 23. All are welcome. Starts about 1 pm.

Cal calls this Saturday morning with the news that Doug McDermid has passed away. Boy that sure was close behind his brother Jack. Sympathy to all the families connected. God Bless.

Well darn it the weather is still darned cold at least the sun is shining, well it is "SUN"day. A very full church at St. Andrews by the Sea. Fran and her grown up family, spending some holiday break with Robert, and Brown families. Give it away, Money, things, we are such a too much or too little world. Mary Yett and Rosie just returned from Cuba and a permaculture experience. Sounds intriguing. Apparently a more equal style of living there. I guess we will hear about it this weekend. Quillan was wearing a Cuban straw fedora-sharp. Beautiful hymns and singers too today. Lunch at Carol's and Earl's, a full table today, Lynda and Martin, Mary, Rosie, Justin, Quillan, Pauline, Wayne, Simon, Mum and I. Susan has been battling a cold, so many folks ill these days. Get well soon all. They've had lots of company- Paula, Sean, Brandon, Jeff, Megan, Brooke, and Joanne. They visited Mum too.

Thank You!

Thank You

from John Turner and Julia Winder

When we lost our home and belongings in a house fire in January, we were unprepared for the breadth and depth of kindness that would come our way. We feel so blessed to be living on Manitoulin, among so many warm-hearted, strong and compassionate people.

Thank-you to our wonderful township of Burpee Mills: the Fire Team, the Council, the Golden Age Club and the Recreation Committee. Thank-you to the Island Quilters Guild, the Gore Bay Happy Quilters, the Gore Bay Fire Department, the Lyons Memorial United Church, The Manitoulin Expositor and The Manitoulin West Recorder.

Thank-you to everyone who organized and volunteered to work at the Fish Dinner, and to everyone who attended - what a wonderful evening, we had a blast!

Thank-you to every person who has offered support to us, be it with clothing, a place to stay, a cup of coffee on a cold day, money, prayers, a friendly smile on the street or a well-timed joke. Your spirit and astonishing generosity have helped ease the shock and sadness of loss and given us the energy to start over. We are immeasurably grateful.

Thank You!

MAGUIRE—In special memory of our dad, Jim Maguire who passed away on March 18, 2011.

Dad
You were a dad who was so special
And who was loved so much,
And brought so much happiness
To the many hearts you touched.
You were always kind and caring
And so understanding too,
And, if help was ever needed,
Dad,
It so freely came from you.
You were a gift to all the world
And brought joy to everyone,
And life has never been the same
Ever since you have been gone.
Missing you,
Love, Lori, Graham and Family

What we'd give if we could say
Hello, Dad, in the same old way
To hear your voice and see you smile
To sit with you and chat a while.
So if you have a father,
Cherish him with care;
For you'll never know the heartache
Till you see his vacant chair.
Gone but never forgotten.

CAMPBELL—In memory of Cecil Campbell, March 17, 2011.

This month comes back with deep regret
It brings back a day we will never forget.
He went away without saying goodbye
But our memories of him will never die.
No one knows the grief we bear
When the family meets and he's not there.
The tears we shed will wipe away
But the ache in our hearts will always stay.
He left us so suddenly, his thoughts unknown,
But he left us with memories
We are proud to own.
Sadly missed and always remembered by your family.
