MANITOULIN—Ten patients on Manitoulin Island are part of a unique telehomecare program in the province, one that sees Manitoulin-Sudbury District Services Board (DSB) paramedics partner with the North East Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) and local physicians to help ease the burden on primary health care services, such as the emergency department, while helping those patients better manage their conditions.

The telehomecare program is open to anyone living with congestive heart failure (CHF) or chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), either through referral or self referral, which sees them set up with a number of tools that are directly monitored by a CCAC nurse from Monday to Friday. The program is open to everyone, no

Central moves to close Mindemoya hard-to-heat 'Old School' building

by Michael Erskine
CENTRAL MANITOULIN—The Central Manitoulin town council passed a motion at their August 11 meeting to close the building known as the Mindemoya Old School at the end of October 2016. The motion, moved by Councillor Alex Baran and seconded by Councillor Derek Stephens, passed unopposed.

"Are we planning on heating the building in any way over the winter?" inquired Councillor Ted Taylor, who pointed out the building contains plaster and lathe wall construction. "It is going to deteriorate pretty badly if there is no heat."

"The general idea when we were closing it was to save costs," said Mayor Richard Stephens.

"We will close it up, seal it up and not be spending money on heating," said Councillor Dale Scott. "I am not sure how much damage it will do. I assume we

Island suffering drought conditions according to Agriculture Ministry

by Alicia McCutcheon
MANITOULIN—The shriveled up leaves, brown patches that once passed as grass and never-ending fire bans are just a few of the tell-tale markers of an abnormally dry summer on Manitoulin.

According to Environment Canada (which balked when this newspaper suggested the word 'drought'), for the months of April through July, Gore Bay Airport (where the Environment Canada weather station is located) received 153 mm of rain.

"Normal for that period would be 249 mm, so you've had about 61 percent of normal," said meteorologist Peter Kimbell. "Definitely a dry summer so far."

"That would not be a record, however," Mr. Kimbell added. "That belongs to 1923, when 103 mm fell during that same period." (Due to a tight press deadline, Mr. Kimbell could not say if this is the driest year since 1923, but The Expositor is working on finding that information for the next issue.)

He told The Expositor that the last dry summer in recent years was 2012 when 161 mm was reported in the months of April to July ("admittedly with six missing days of data in April," the meteorologist noted).

Mr. Kimbell explained that

Environment Canada does not use the word drought, noting that this is more of an agricultural term.

Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada, however, does use the term and according to their latest interactive map, two-thirds of Manitoulin, and all of the West End, is experiencing 'moderate drought' with the east and south of Manitoulin listed as 'abnormally dry.'

"Much of southern Ontario continued to experience patches of significant drought in July; the majority of the agricultural region was impacted by abnormally dry conditions for yet another month," the Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada website states. "As of July 24, nearly 55 percent of the agricultural area in Ontario was impacted by very low to record low precipitation since April 1, 2016, affecting more than 17,000 farms and close to 1.5 million cattle. While certain pockets received good precipitation over the past month helping to alleviate drought concerns, such as west of Ottawa and west of London, a large pocket surrounding Lake Ontario remained in moderate drought. Drought conditions in Northern Ontario only shifted slightly, with some areas experiencing drier conditions while others improved."

Conservationists fear coyote-wolf trapping ban may creep to Island, endangering deer

by Michael Erskine
TORONTO—The province is seeking input on expanding a proposed ban on the hunting and trapping of coyotes and wolves to several units surrounding Killarney Park in order to help protect the threatened Algonquin wolf population. The proposals have sounded an alarm for the hunting and fishing organizations across the province and raised serious concerns among local trappers as well, but wolf protection groups are applauding the move and would like to see the ban on trapping and hunting extended even further.

"If the province implements a total ban on trapping in those townships surrounding Killarney Park it will have a huge impact on the trappers in those areas," noted local trapper Ian Anderson of Kagawong. One of the few remaining bright lights in the depressed fur industry are the prices for coyote and wolf pelts, he noted, but aside from that "it is going to be an uphill battle for the deer and moose populations."

Mr. Anderson pointed out that

Wikwemikong Election

Gladys Wakegijig hopes to see Wikwemikong retain its language through good leadership

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the lead up to this Saturday's election for chief and council, The Expositor interviewed chief candidates incumbent Duke Peltier and Ron Odjig in last week's paper with Gladys Wakegijig's interview on her candidacy for chief appearing below. The Expositor was unable to reach fellow candidate Robert Corbiere by press time Monday. Polls open at the Wikwemikong band council chambers at 9 am this Saturday, July 20.

as chief in 2000-2001. "I am always active in being up to date on First Nations, national, provincial and regional issues," said Ms. Wakegijig. "We here in Wikwemikong are among the largest First Nations in Canada. A leader has to be informed and has to realize the bigger picture of indigenous issues—this is unity and unity is not a narrow focus." Ms. Wakegijig said she first became involved with council because of her passion for indigenous issues born out of her role with the Assembly of First Nations. "In our ideals, our culture, our traditional spiritualism, we encompass the children, the youth, the adults, the grandmothers, the grandfathers, again this is unity and in indigenous issues, my focus is our language, our youth, our health and our economic well being," said Ms. Wakegijig of her platform. "I mention economic well being because employment is an issue—not only for Wikwemikong but for many, many First Nation communities. I also want to help encourage bringing back our language. One of the Truth and Reconciliation report's calls to action, number 13, specially addressed language and culture and I feel this is important for our community. I am fluent in the language and I would like to see all leadership speak it as well. Our schools are doing an excellent job of teaching the reading and writing of our language, but I would like to see a focus across the community of people speaking it." In terms of educational programs, Ms. Wakegijig said that they are very strong in Wikwemikong. "Our education programs need the continuing support from a solid leader and leadership to pursue the promised First Nation dollars that Prime Minister Justin Trudeau has set as one of his mandates for First Nations," continued Ms. Wakegijig, stressing the need for more band funding to support post secondary education. "Our public works program has SHEGUIANDAH—Early childhood language learning can establish a foundation that will last a lifetime as young children are uniquely equipped to learn languages. With indigenous languages under pressure across the globe, and barely a handful of the hundreds of indigenous languages in North America expected to last into the next century, the clock is ticking on efforts to preserve and revitalize First Nations languages—but thanks to an historic collaboration between Kenjgewin Teg Educational Institute (KTEI) and Canadore College, new generations of early childhood educators will be uniquely equipped to join the front lines in shoring up Anishinabemowin.

The two educational institutions made a formal announcement of an immersion-based early childhood educator program during the annual Three Fires Confederacy gathering in the traditional roundhouse at the Sheguiandah Heritage Park. Exhibits, midway, petting zoo and more at this year's Providence Bay Fair

by Robin Burrige
PROVIDENCE BAY—It's time again for the annual Providence Bay Fair, this weekend (Friday, August 19 to Sunday, August 21).

The fun gets underway at 8:30 am on Friday morning when the exhibit hall opens for entries. The exhibits include a large showing of baking, arts and crafts, needlework, quilts, vegetables, Christmas crafts, grains, fruits, junior exhibit displays, woodworking, photography, senior exhibits and more. The exhibit hall will close for judging at 11 am.

The gates will open again at 5:30 pm with the midway by Albion Amusements, the Glendale Petting Zoo and Pony Rides. The light horse show registration will also start at 5:30 pm.

The light horse show will start at 6 pm, while the exhibit hall will open to the public for viewing at 7 pm.

Opening ceremonies on the main stage in the arena will be held at 7:30 pm, followed by the Ambassador of the Fair Competition at 8 pm. This year there are five girls competing for the title of Providence Bay Fair Ambassador. There will also be a pie-eating contest starting at 8 pm.

The exhibit building will close at 10 pm.

Start your Saturday morning off right with a pancake breakfast at the United Church from 7:30 to 11 am. The gates and exhibit hall open at 9 am.

The parade assembly for judging on Munro Street will be held from 10:30 to 11:30 am, with the parade, themed 'Rural Roots and Country Boots,' starting at 11:30 am. The exhibit hall will be closed during the parade from 11:30 am until 12:30 pm.

Aboriginal Tourism Ontario announces inaugural board

MANITOULIN—Aboriginal Tourism Ontario (ATO), soon to be rebranded as Indigenous Tourism Ontario, is pleased to announce its inaugural board of directors, a group that will help implement the recently updated 2020 ATO Plan. With promising findings in the plan that clearly identify how ATO can manage the future of Ontario's indigenous tourism for communities, businesses and partners while bolstering the economy with jobs and revenue, these leaders are excited to start implementing the plan and are sure to make some exciting things happen.

The inaugural board of directors are experienced, talented, and successful leaders who have excelled at whatever task they take on. Making up the inaugural board of directors are Grand Chief Patrick Madahbee, Carol Caputo, Clio Straram, Shannin Metatawabin, Tim West, Gerry Weber and Kevin Rose. With help from international indigenous tourism leader, the Great Spirit Circle Trail, these champions plan on beginning to implement the plan this fall by beginning

Better intercity transportation needed in the North

The deterioration of intercity transportation in the North is fully evident to those who can still recall being able to board a train, or in more recent times a bus, from Little Current to travel to the outside world. Today it generally requires owning your own vehicle, inducing someone to provide a lift or hiring a taxi at great expense to reach Espanola—the nearest connection to what remains of Ontario's transportation network in the North.

The last scheduled bus service, operated by Abe Shames (AJ Bus Lines) and his sons for years even as declining ridership and parcel service competition made it unprofitable to do so, severed a link to the outside world for those who, for many reasons beyond income, could not drive themselves.

But even if a traveller manages to reach the Highway 17 corridor, the challenges of travelling east, west or south have not been overcome, as the shortcomings of Ontario's intercity transportation network will quickly become clear.

An example of the shortcomings in the intercity transportation network was made evident to one group of young visitors from Thunder Bay during the recent Little Current Lions Haweater Weekend festivities when they found themselves bereft of a vehicle and stranded on the Island come Monday morning. Upon inquiry to the bus lines operating in the North, they discovered that the soonest a seat on a bus heading to Thunder Bay could be secured was August 15, a full two weeks away. No passenger trains travel to Thunder Bay either and air service is prohibitively expensive to book on short notice.

Transportation has always proven to be a steep challenge to the delivery of programs in the North. The dispersed population across the North, many living in small rural and/or First Nations communities, have found innovative ways to meet those challenges, such as the Aging at Home Transportation operated by Noojmowin Teg

Health Centre for the benefit of all of those people 55 and over for non-emergency transportation to local medical and mental health appointments, social purposes such as banking, grocery shopping, traditional gatherings and social community events.

But the Aging at Home van is not wheelchair friendly (although movement to and from the vehicle can be facilitated with the assistance of a companion) and is currently so oversubscribed that users are limited to booking the transport twice a year.

Ontario clearly needs a better solution to public transit—especially between communities.

Some of the stumbling blocks cited as being in the way of improving intercity transportation are the regulations that currently govern licencing of transit routes between communities. The province is currently seeking input to changes to those regulations that stifle competition and lead to monopolies on bus routes as well as innovative ideas on how to better deliver services between communities. Comment can be made by going online to the Environmental Registry (ebr.gov.on.ca) and searching registry number 012-7896. Comments can be left with the click of a button (there is also a mailing address and telephone number for those who wish to send their message retro-style). It is important that citizens (and businesses) in the North step up to make their concerns known on these issues.

Too often the power of speaking up and being heard is discounted with a nihilistic shrug these days. Governments live or die by how well they serve the people and (with apologies to Dr. Seuss) if enough people demand action, it doesn't take an elephant's ears to get the message.

It is often said that the squeaky wheel gets the grease—on intercity transportation issues it is long overdue that we here in the North squeak loud and clear.

Elected officials need to ask the ethical questions

'Private deals should have no place in our communities'

To the Expositor:

As noted in The Expositor on August 10, Central Manitoulin produced a bylaw which they used to sell off land dedicated as parkland.

For elected officials, presumably representing all their constituents, it is not sufficient to ask simply, "Can we do it?" There are other questions that should also be asked in order to determine the best course of action for the people they represent. Is it ethical? Is it fair? Does it represent the best interests of the community? Is there an environmental issue? Should we grant a benefit to one individual and ignore interests of other citizens?

Is it fair to deny all our constituents the opportunity to bid on land that is being sold? Is it right to bypass the open market and therefore deny the members of the township the benefit of knowing their elected officials received the best price?

When we cast a vote for someone to represent us, we expect and hope they will consider the interests of the entire community. Private deals should have no place in our communities. The voters deserve better!

Attention Manitoulin Island drivers

A STOP sign means you need to do just that

To the Expositor:

There are many drivers who need to assess and improve their driving habits. This is not an idle observation; it comes from years of walking and a (thoroughly scientific) observation from a window over a coffee in the Anchor Inn.

The majority of drivers ease through a STOP sign instead of coming to a complete stop. It's a bad habit, and one I freely admit I picked up as a new driver when I got my licence in Virginia. When I returned to Ontario, however, I came within one tick of failing my drivers test because of that bad habit. I resolved then and there to always not only come to a complete STOP, but count to two, and that bad habit was gone. Then there was the distracted/inattentive driver heading west on Meredith who went through the STOP sign at Hayward...and the driver who went through the STOP sign turning east from Hayward onto Robinson. This seemed to be a case of 'well, no one is coming' so why not fault the law? I think that's a horrible thing to do.

Please, people, do an honest assessment of your driving habits and maybe reread the driver's manual?

Debaj reinvents Lupi the Great White Wolf 25 years after first production

by Alicia McCutcheon

WIKWEMIKONG—Twenty-five years after its Debajehmujig debut, the long-told tale from Whitefish River First Nation, Lupi the Great White Wolf, again came to life at Wikwemikong's Holy Cross Mission Ruins last week.

Joe Osawabine, Debajehmujig Storytellers' artistic director, directed this important summer main stage production from a unique perspective, as one who had started his acting career as a child with the troupe in that very play in its first production.

The story of Lupi was passed on to Debajehmujig by Whitefish River storyteller Esther Osche, who had been told the tale of love and loss by her grandmother and undoubtedly, her grandmother before her. Ms. Osche and then artistic director Larry Lewis collaborated to create a script for Lupi, "But I didn't want to just create the script again, but go back to the story itself," Mr. Osawabine explained.

With Ms. Osche's consent, Mr. Osawabine said, he set to work to do just that with Ms. Osche being "extremely thrilled" at the suggestions and said it was the most important thing Debajehmujig could do, to share those old stories.

"Debajehmujig's very name is 'keeper of the stories' and our job is to ensure that those stories are passed on," the artistic director shared.

He explained that the story of Lupi the Great White Wolf comes from a people, the people of Birch Island, who lived by the Seven Grandfather Teachings, a kind and gentle people who lived by strict protocols, and so began the tale peppered with beautiful hand drumming songs by Danielle Roy of Odemin Kwe Singers.

Lupi begins with the introduction of the chief and his lovely daughter, Anongoonhs, who has just finished her berry fast and is of the age to accept a suitor for marriage. In those days, the chief, her father, lets it be known that he would be accepting proposals of marriage for his daughter, and included with that, dowries.

Anongoonhs, however, was already in love with a young man from the village, one she had grown up with and who loved her too, Nimkii.

Nimkii got to work straight away with his dowry bundle, but felt it was inadequate and so sought advice from his father, who told him he did his very best, there was nothing more to do. In Nimkii's dowry bundle, however, he included three wampums—rare shells from the sea that were used in trading.

When Nimkii was about to present his dowry bundle to the chief, the village, then located on an island close to Birch Island's present location, became aware of 10 canoes arriving on the beach. In the lead canoe sat a strange old woman, in the rear a young man, unspeaking. The old woman approached the chief, urging him to accept the proposal from her grandson while the 10 canoes were unloaded with at his feet. Nimkii approaches, bearing his small bag of offerings for Anongoonhs' hand.

Mr. Osawabine, the storyteller, explained that the chief needed to uphold the cultural protocols of his people, and the old lady knew this too, but the chief also did not want to let his daughter go to strange people and decided that some traditions were made to be broken and made the announcement that he would accept Nimkii's proposal.

The wedding ceremony was a happy affair, full of feasting, round dances and two-stepping that included the audience, who were, after all, the wedding guests. That night, Nimkii placed the wampums around his bride's neck in a necklace and promised her another for their first-born child. This meant that Nimkii would again soon have to leave the village and head out on a trading mission.

The strange old woman, who was camped on a nearby island with her grandson, learned the news of Nimkii's acceptance into the family through a messenger from the chief. When the messenger left, she sat her grandson down and told him of the atrocities that the chief and his war party had led against her village, killing his mother and almost killing him.

The chief, she told him, had picked him up as a wailing baby who had just lost his mother and was about to throw him into a fire when the grandmother begged and pleaded for his life. The chief shot the baby down onto the ground, sparing him from the fire, and the boy never spoke a word from that day forward.

The old woman spent the next years learning the ways of that raiding community, studying the people. If the chief had accepted the dowry, all would be forgiven and the slate would be wiped clean, but since they were rebuked, she summoned all of her powers and medicines, invoking the four directions. The grandmother placed white wolf pelts around her grandson and transformed him into a half wolf, half man creature, Lupi the Great White Wolf, and set him loose in the community to get his vengeance.

Lupi lurked in the woods around the village, devouring victims that crossed his path. With more and more of his villagers disappearing, the chief prayed to all the spirits he could until finally the water spirits answered and showed him a vision of when he had led a raid on the neighbouring village, who the old lady and the grandson-turned wolf were, and he understood. He called for his people to fill their canoes and flee, including Anongoonhs, who was waiting for Nimkii to return from his first trip away from her.

As the people began to pile into their canoes, Anongoonhs realized she had left her wampum necklace behind and ran to get it. When she entered her lodge, there was Lupi, holding her necklace. He pleaded with her not to leave. "Without you, all my dreams die with you," he told her, transforming into her husband. Frightened, and not knowing who he really was, she ran. But while escaping from the wolf creature she tripped, hitting her head, and died. Lupi ran to her, mourning her in howls and nuzzling her, for he never wanted to hurt her. "He loved her," the storyteller said.

At that moment Nimkii arrived to find Lupi over his dead wife and a battle ensued between the two, with Nimkii losing to the wolf-man in the end.

The chief returned to find his daughter and husband dead and is chased by Lupi into the water where the wolf is burned by the water spirits, destined to never leave the island again.

And as for Anongoonhs and Nimkii, they lived on in eternity.

Veteran Debajehmujig Storyteller Matt Manitowabi played the role of Nimkii while first-time actor Katie Peltier portrayed Anongoonhs.

Unique to Lupi the Great White Wolf, as it was 25 years ago, is the use of the Ojibwe language throughout the play, a new and exciting challenge for most of the actors.

Cotnee Kaboni, the grandmother in Lupi, also acted as the theatre's language teacher.

Both Mr. Manitowabi and Ms. Peltier explained that, like most youth taking Anishnaabemowin classes, they only learned the words for things, but not conversational Ojibwe, so learning the lines was a struggle, "but it opened a door, definitely," Mr. Manitowabi said, noting he has a son in the immersion program and he hopes that his son will actually be able to have someone to talk to in the home through him.

Ms. Peltier too said she hopes to keep learning her language, spurred on by Anongoonhs.

"It was always our intention to go back to the story," Mr. Osawabine said of Lupi the Great White Wolf.

He noted that, 25 years ago, he was one of the young village boys in the production of Lupi, chosen after Larry Lewis asked him to read and audition, as was Bruce Naokwegojig (now in charge of outreach for Debaj), who acted as the chief in this summer's production of Lupi.

"Who would have ever thought that I would be here, 25 years later, as the artistic director," Mr. Osawabine continued. "It was an amazing experience from Larry having that vision. That was the very beginning, and I don't know how much foresight he had, but I don't know where I'd be now if it wasn't for Larry calling me in and asking me to read."

Lupi the Great White Wolf has been an important piece for the Debajehmujig Storytellers. It has been performed, as it was last week, in a combination of Ojibwe and English, in Ojibwe only and also largely in English.

When the Debajehmujig players made their first international tour to three venues in the northeast United States, it was Lupi the Great White Wolf that they brought to brand new audiences (who received the story with positive enthusiasm). It was wonderful to see Debajehmujig returning to the Holy Cross Mission Ruins once again with a significant performance.

Invasive Species are on the rise in our lakes, but boaters can help stop them

MANITOULIN—You may be surprised to learn that just taking your boat out for a spin on a neighbouring lake can help spread harmful invasive species. And that these invaders—left unchecked—can seriously harm your favorite lakes and rivers.

Fish, plants or invertebrates can be spread by humans—either on purpose or by accident—to new areas of the province. These species can become invasive, causing harm to the environment and the economy. In fact, in Ontario, the impacts from zebra mussels alone cost between $75 million and $91 million per year.

And the presence of invasive species means fewer of the types of fish you like to catch, since invasives often compete with native species, taking away their food and space or introducing parasites and diseases that harm native fish and other species.

When invasive species are introduced and get established, their numbers can increase rapidly. Some invasive species that have already invaded Canadian waters include: zebra mussels (mussel), round goby (fish), spiny water flea (invertebrate), Eurasian watermilfoil (aquatic plant) and the rusty crayfish.

Invasive species are among the leading causes of native fish and other aquatic species being threatened or endangered, and they negatively affect global biodiversity, economies and human health around the world.

How to stop the spread of these invaders

Here are five steps boaters can take to make sure they are not spreading invasive species to new areas:

Inspect your boat, motor, trailer, and boating equipment (anchors and fishing gear, centerboards, rollers and axles). Remove any zebra mussels and other animals and plants that are visible before leaving any water body.

Drain water from the motor, live well, bilge and transom before leaving any water body.

Wash or dry your boat, tackle, downriggers, trailer, and other boating equipment to kill harmful species that were not visible at the boat launch. Some aquatic species can survive out of water for long periods of time. Therefore, it is important to either: rinse your boat and equipment that normally gets wet with hot tap water (greater than 50°C); spray your boat and trailer with high pressure water (>250 psi); or dry your boat and equipment in the sun for at least five days before transporting them to another body of water.

Empty your bait bucket on land 30 metres away from the water. Never release bait into water, or release aquatic animals from one water body into another. It is illegal to use gobies, ruffe or rudd for bait.

You can report sightings of invasive species by calling the Invading Species Hotline at 1-800-563-7711 or by emailing info@invadingspecies.com. You can also use the EDDMapS Ontario system to report sightings through your computer or smartphone.

M'Chigeeng woman charged with aggravated assault

In the early hours of August 9, the UCCM Anishnaabe Police Service responded to a family dispute at a residence on the M'Chigeeng First Nation.

As a result, a 20-year-old female was arrested and charged with aggravated assault and mischief under $5,000. The accused was released on a promise to appear with conditions and a court date set on September 12, 2016.

The victim was taken to the Manitoulin Health Centre in Mindemoya and was treated for her injuries.

Search warrant yields drugs, cash and firearms

A Little Current man has been charged following a five month-long investigation by the Manitoulin Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP).

On August 10, members of the local detachment, assisted by the OPP Emergency Response Team (ERT), attended a private residence in Little Current with a search warrant. As a result of the search, marijuana products, cash and firearms were seized.

A 55-year-old man of Little Current has been arrested and charged with two counts of possession for the purpose of trafficking a controlled substance, contrary to section 5(1) and section 5(2) of the Controlled Drug and Substances Act, one count of production of a controlled substance, contrary to section 7(1) of the Controlled Drug and Substances Act, careless storage of a firearm, contrary to section 86(1) of the Criminal Code of Canada, unauthorized possession of a firearm, contrary to section 91(1) of the Criminal Code of Canada, and possession of property obtained by crime over $5,000, contrary to section 354(1)(a) of the Criminal Code of Canada.

The accused person is to appear in the Ontario Court of Justice in Gore Bay on October 18, 2016.

Young hurler excels

Cole King of Mindemoya had an interesting accomplishment last week. His father, John Ainslie, who plays in the Sudbury area Fastball League, got the youngster a pitching start with his Garson Hounds team. How did the youngster do? Cole, who plays hockey for the local M.S.S. Mustangs, not only held his own but walked off the field with a 13-3 victory.

NAIG CEO named!

Marcia Trudeau recently named the CEO of the 2017 North American Indigenous Games was profiled in the Toronto Star this week. Marcia who will be in charge of a 10.1 million dollar budget and 5,000 competitors received a long tribute in the Star. One of the key comments included "Ms. Trudeau is a long way from the sandy beaches and fragrant leafy trees of Manitoulin Island or Mnido Mnising where she was brought up in her traditional Anishinaabemowin language." Marcia, who has her MBA, will do an outstanding job.

Fastball pitcher to national contest

The Warton Echo newspaper profiled M'Chigeeng's Danielle Jones-Migwans this past week as an up-and-coming softball pitcher. Jones-Migwans, a 19-year-old, played for the Port Perry intermediate Angels this season. Due to her strong performance over the year Danielle has been invited to play in the 2016 women's senior fastball championships to be held in Prince Edward Island later this month.

In 2015 she played in three tournaments for team Ontario, while back in 2010 as an 11 year old as she was chosen as a national aboriginal role model. Danielle will be attending Sudbury's Cambrian College in the fall.

NOJHL veteran

M'Chigeeng's Mitchell Payette has re-signed with the Espanola Express of the NOJHL. In his rookie Junior a season last year that you put up seven goals and 11 assists from his defensive position. Express president Chad Clark comic commented quote Mitchell develop into a strong defenseman over the course of the year and we will be looking for him to continue developing and dominating the park this year. And quote the express also resigned Espanola products Riley Nadeau and Jason Bednarski.

Coach getting great experience

Marion Jacko of Wikwemikong was named the assistant coach for a high-performance women's hockey camp this weekend in Mississauga. Marion who has been a head coach at the Canadian Aboriginal National championships will be assisting with team Hunter. There are 160 young ladies, all aged 14 to 15. The event is sponsored by the old what Ontario Women's Hockey Association as part of the Ontario Summer Games.

Local lacrosse players shine

Evan Peltier closed out his season with the Sudbury Rockhounds Lacrosse team at the provincials in Toronto last weekend. Playing with only 12 teammates and Evan in goal, the Rockhounds came up against physically larger players as well as teams with a full complement. Despite this and a lack of a League to play in, the squad were still extremely competitive, dropping two close ones and winning a third. Wallaceburg downed them 5-2 while and edged by Arthur them 6-4 before the Sudbury "Hounds" found their legs and shots to defeat Milton 6-4. It was a great show considering that all the teams they played compete in Leagues on a regular schedule. Limited to exhibitions and tournaments Sudbury the Hounds played a mere 12 contests before heading to provincials.

Congrats to Wiky's Thuraya Jacko's winning effort in the Ontario Lacrosse Festival last weekend in the Toronto area. Playing for the Mississauga Tomahawks in the girls' division, Thuraya and her team captured the Silver medal.

And the award goes to...

Kudos to Grade Niner Ferris Eshkawkogan who was an athletic marvel for Wasse-Abin High this past school year. Despite being one of the youngest competitors in the school, Ferris pulled off four major Athletic Awards including Athlete of the Year, quite an accomplishment for a freshman!

Play ball!

We talked about Lyle Baibomcowai's Canadian Aboriginal Championship last week, Lyle now heads to Rama (Orillia) later this month with the Wikwemikong Sons of Pitches in an attempt to win their 3rd consecutive All-Ontario title. Good luck!!

O.A.S.G

Four athletes from the Whitefish River First Nation who participated in the Ontario Aboriginal Summer Games a few weeks ago turned in some great results.

In Athletics, Zena Pregent (Girls U15) placed 1st in shot-put, 2nd in the 100 metres and 2nd in the 200 meters. Avery Sutherland (who just turned 12) placed 2nd in the 3,000 metres and 3rd in the 1,500 metres.

In Archery, Theron McGregor (Boys U18) placed 3rd and Sterling McGregor (Girls U15) both placed 1st while trying out a new sport to them.

A good sport is good for sports.

Spring Bay Small Mouth Bass Derby raises Starlight funds for local families

by Betty Bardswich

SPRING BAY—Sixty-one teams entered the Spring Bay 27th Annual Small Mouth Bass Derby this year despite the wet and windy weather. This is about the same number that entered last year and, by all accounts, the fish were biting hard. The derby is in memory of Steven Shank Vincent and was started by Herbie Colette, Bud Weadick and Lewis Hartley.

Garnet Pearson, of Spring Bay, and his son Dave, of Lively, have entered this tournament for 10 years and the weather didn't stop them from bringing in a large number of bass.

"We were culling by early morning," Dave told The Expositor. "We figure we caught over 50 fish and we went through a lot of bait. We like this tournament as the camaraderie is good, the derby shows that the fishery is healthy, the tournament is well run and it's all because of the hard work of the volunteers. It's for charity, there is a little bit of bragging rights and a lot of fun. It keeps you coming back."

All proceeds from the derby go to the Starlight Foundation and organizer Linda Taylor told the entrants that last year a badly-needed ramp was installed for a Gore Bay resident with cerebral palsy and an entertainment unit, valued at $7,500, was installed at Health Sciences North for children admitted to the hospital. The unit consists of a flat screen TV, a Nintendo Wii and a DVD player. This year, so far, a $500 cheque will be given to a young girl in Mindemoya who is very ill and has spent three months in an Ottawa hospital. Ms. Taylor was grateful for all the support and help by the organizers and was especially grateful to Ride Manitoulin who donated $3,500 to Five specifically deal with sport and recreation such as No. 88 which states, 'We call upon all levels of government to take action to ensure long-term aboriginal athlete development and growth, and continued support for the North American Indigenous Games, including funding to host the games and for provincial and territorial team preparation and travel.' It can't be highlighted enough the importance of sports and wellness."

Ms. Trudeau said that every three years the games alternate between being held in the US and Canada, but as there were no bids for 2017 from the US, the Aboriginal Sport and Wellness Council of Ontario mounted a bid for the games to be held in Toronto and were successful.

"We have garnered financial support from the provincial and federal government and the City of Toronto as well," said Ms. Trudeau. "A big piece for us is obtaining enough sponsorship for our 10.1 million dollar budget, but we are well on our way to successfully meeting our target to deliver the games."

With her new job, which started in July, the 40-year-old Wikwemikong band mem-nator for Starlight, Bria D'Amours of Toronto, was on hand for the derby celebration and is grateful to all the organizers and all the entrants in this year's derby. "It is extremely important to have this kind of support because we aren't supported by the government. We rely solely on third party corporations and individual sponsors."

First prize in the derby went to Pat and Brent Leveille with a weight of 25.85 pounds, second prize to John Kada and Brad Leveille at 22.40 pounds and Dave and Garnet Pearson third with 19.56 pounds.

Brent Leveille won the Joshua Montgomery trophy for largest bass, and Derek Stephens took the John Wright trophy for largest perch as well as the Bob Haskett trophy for the largest fish other than bass caught by a male. There were no takers for the largest fish other than bass caught by a female. The Nora Weadick trophy for the mystery weight was won by John and Liesje Laurengen. The mystery weight was 12.69 pounds and theirs was 12.68. Kohan Campbell won the Art Breathart award for the largest three perch caught by a youth.

Ms. Taylor and her daughter Diane St. Pierre of Espanola are the go to wish granters for the Starlight Foundation for Manitoulin and the North Shore. For more information, call 705-282-2273 or 705-869-7512.

For many years, Rollanda Tovey of Spring Bay has donated a handmade quilt to be used as a fundraiser at the Spring Bay Small Mouth Bass Derby weekend to raise money for the Starlight Foundation.

...first Anishinabemowin immersion ECE program

lished in the province.

The administrators of the two educational institutions determined that it would be “most fitting and appropriate” to make the announcement at the Three Fires Confederacy, where the introduction of teaching lodges within educational systems was discussed by KTEI elder-in-residence Josh Eshkawkogan.

Also raising excitement at the announcement was the possibility of the construction of a teaching lodge for KTEI that may also be on the horizon, noted Mr. Eshkawkogan. The lodge would be intended not only for the use of students and faculty of the new ECE-A program, but for other community organizations and groups as well.

“Bringing back and acknowledging our ways of learning and knowing within our education systems, and most importantly, teaching our children in our own language, Anishinabemowin, is putting into action what our elders have told us to do for so many years,” said Stephanie Roy, KTEI executive director. “Together, the great team members of Canadore College and our staff have yet again demonstrated their commitment to higher education and indigenous learning with this new program—and we are thrilled to support First Nation community schools and early learning centres everywhere by providing this opportunity.”

Ms. Roy gave much of the credit to the development of the program to the KTEI team, particularly to Rhonda Hopkins, Anishinabe Odziwin team leader and immersion instructor, and Mary Wabano, associate dean of the School of Indigenous Studies at Canadore College. “Mary has been a strong and committed advocate and supporter within the college system for aboriginal institutes to create new post-secondary programs where language and worldview is a cornerstone to indigenous student identity, infused with our cultural traditions as a central foundation to overall well-being for students,” said Ms. Roy.

“We truly teach our children our value system and lessons through our language,” said Ms. Wabuno. “We are beyond merely translating from English to Anishinabemowin and it is this kind of work that further support our communities in their language and immersion goals.”

Canadore College vice-president enrollment management, student services, recruiting and marketing Shawn Chorney was on hand for the announcement and he too had high praise for Ms. Wabuno and Ms. Hopkins in “our journey together.”

Mr. Chorney noted the challenges that have been faced in creating the program and managing to fit the round peg of an Anishinabemowin and culture based program into the square holes of the provincial bureaucracy. “We were told that we could not have the program descriptions and course numbers in Ojibwe,” he recalled. “We said that was the province’s problem, not ours.”

Ms. Wabuno broke the ice in her remarks during the announcement. “You are probably asking yourself what a Cree woman is doing speaking Ojibwe up here,” she said, noting that she was far from Moosonee, the territory of her birth. “I have lived in your territory longer than I have lived in my own.” Ms. Wabuno has been living and working in Nipissing for most of her career.

In a recent visit to her home community, Ms. Wabuno made a disturbing observation. “People my age are the last of the fluent speakers,” she said. “For the younger generations, Cree is a second language. English is their first language.”

While the importance of the immersion program will be felt within its first generation of students, Ms. Wabuno pointed out that the real impact will come with the second, third and fourth generations. “Not just in reserve schools, but in provincial schools across the province,” she said.

Ms. Wabuno was described as being the “most feared” of the KTEI team, a description she wore as a badge of honour. “Sometimes I speak boldly,” she admitted. “I have no filters, I just say things—but it seems to work. They (provincial government bureaucrats) have a lot of questions and we had answers that didn’t fit in their neat little boxes.”

Ms. Wabuno and Ms. Hopkins were presented with a number of symbolic gifts including toddler moccasins, figurines dressed in jingle and shawl dancer regalia and medicines.

The two-year Early Childhood Education—Anishinabemowin diploma program has been approved for delivery at Canadore’s partner institutions, Kenjgewin Teg Educational Institute (KTEI) in M’Chigeeng First Nation and Seven Generations Educational Institute in Fort Frances. The Ontario College two-year diploma in Anishinabe Early Childhood Education is delivered solely in Anishinabemowin (Ojibwe) over four semesters. The Anishinabe knowledge based program meets all the standards of the Ontario Early Childhood Competency guidelines and was officially approved by the Ontario Ministry of Advanced Education and Skills Development (formerly known as the Ministry of Training, Colleges and Universities) earlier this month. The first cohort(s) are expected to be delivered at partner sites starting in the 2016-2017 academic year.

always worked with a minimal budget, doing an excellent job for the community. The current federal government has indicated that infrastructure is a priority not only nationally but specifically mentioned for First Nations and I will ensure that our voice, Wikwemikong’s, will benefit from the proposed funding revenues so that our employees and our community will see the strength that good leadership can provide. Economic development is a stronghold in our community and must continue to be strengthened by the leadership’s advocacy to pursue and access economic incentives entitled to the people of Wikwemikong.” Ms. Wakegijig also stressed the importance of communication, and keeping band members informed of current and future developments both nationally and in the community.

“What happens nationally comes down to the grass roots level,” explained Ms. Wakegijig.

“When the prime minister met with the chiefs in December 2015, I was in attendance,” she said. “He said that it was time for renewed relationships—nation to nation—based on respect and cooperation. This really resonated with me. Wikwemikong has been working with the federal and provincial governments regarding our claim to islands in Lake Huron and the prime minister also said at that December meeting that no relationship is as important to him as the one with First Nations.”

“I will continue to work hard and to speak on issues that are of concern,” concluded Ms. Wakegijig. “I would also like to take this opportunity to wish all candidates best wishes on your election campaigns.”

sultation and support process funded by The Ontario Ministry of Tourism, Culture and Sport in the Summer of 2015 that helped ATO gain solid recommendations for launching an independent organization for Ontario’s indigenous tourism sector.

“We respectfully engaged our aboriginal partners, communities, businesses, and champions to be part of this critical step in mobilizing Aboriginal Tourism Ontario,” says Kevin Eshkawkogan, CEO of the Great Spirit Circle Trail (GSCT), and winner of TIAO’s 2015 Tourism Champion of the Year Award for his work with ATO. Mr. Eshkawkogan has championed the ATO concept since its inception in 2008 and has been a strong advocate for indigenous tourism locally, provincially, federally, and internationally. Mr.

Eshkawkogan said, “We have diligently done our homework with limited resources and now it is the time to get moving and get to doing the work. ATO can help improve the economic era we’re in. We need to put the plan into play—the time is now!”

“We at GSCT have been supporting this grassroots initiative with limited resources since 2008 because it is in our belief system to help the communal good, however, if ATO is going to work, we need to do it right, and not part time with limited resources,” Mr. Eshkawkogan.

“We are experiencing positive growth in the industry and organizations like GSCT and ATO can’t provide the support the industry deserves without proper investment. Federal and provincial leadership has recognized our sector’s contribution to the economy and the time is now to further that contribution and do the work properly.”

Other provinces, such as BC and Quebec, have supported the aboriginal tourism sector with federal and provincial investments and have seen a fantastic return on that investment.

“This is what ATO wants to do in Ontario—support those involved in the industry and grow the Ontario and Canadian economies,” Mr. Eshkawkogan says.

“The investment required now and over the next five years is small but will yield a major return. An investment of $6.8 million over five years in ATO provides an estimated return of $629 million into the economy. With Ontario capturing 30 percent of Canada’s total aboriginal tourism spending, there is

Wikwemikong Tourism hosts Celebration of the Arts this week

by Alicia McCutcheon
WIKWEMIKONG—This week, Wednesday, August 17 to Friday, August 19, marks Wikwemikong Tourism's Celebration of the Arts in that community with each day offering a different taste of arts and culture in hour-long workshops all through the day.

Day 1, (today), Wednesday, August 17, holds the theme of visual arts. Beginning at 11 am, take in a workshop on regalia making with Alanna Trudeau followed by lunch with Mark Eshkawkogan from noon to 1 pm; beading with Fay Rivers from 1 to 3 pm; wood burning with Wayne Pheasant, also from 1 to 3 pm; photography with Linda Roy from 3 to 4 pm; fashion with Bruno Henry from 4 to 5 pm; and Seven Grandfather Crafts from 5 to 6 pm with Mike Cywink.

Day 2, Thursday, August 18, is a day to celebrate the culinary arts. The day begins with a traditional cuisine lunch with Mark Eshkawkogan from noon to 1 pm; learn how to filet fish from 1 to 2 pm with Lorne Agawa; a pie-making/eating contest from 2 to 3 pm; breads of the world with Debajehmujig; a DJ workshop from 4 to 5 pm with DJ Soul Secta; beatmaking from 5 to 6 pm with Switch B; and a hip-hop dance workshop with KOSI from 6 to 7 pm.

The last Day of the Wikwemikong Celebration of the Arts, Friday, August 19, begins at noon with a social with Young Biisineh until 1 pm; a workshop on studio recording at 1 until 2 pm with Jason Manitowabi; a poetry/spoken word session from 2 to 3 pm with Smelly Kat NDN Poet; breakdancing/B-boy and B-girls with various artists from 3 to 5 pm; a rap performance from Q Rock from 5 to 6 pm; and a closeout with a live performance by Elijah and the Backburners from 6 to 7 pm.

As part of the Celebration of the Arts, Debajehmujig will also be giving a nightly showcase of its world renown production of Global Savages—the unknown 18,000-year history of indigenous people in North America in 90 minutes or less—at the Holy Cross Mission Ruins, incorporating the theme of the day into each production. Global Savages runs Wednesday, August 17 until Saturday, August 20 at 7:30 pm. All performances are at the Holy Cross Mission Church Ruins beside the historic church on top of the hill on Wikwemikong Way.

an opportunity for our provincial and federal governments to partner and invest into the immediate needs and the long-term execution of the ATO Strategy and Business Plan."

GSCT Chairperson, Chief Linda Debassige, recently met with Premier Kathleen Wynne to share information on GSCT, ATO and ATAC, and stated, "This is a win-win for our industry partners, businesses and most importantly, indigenous groups, Ontarians and Canadians."

Inaugural board member Carol Caputo states, "I am so pleased to be a part of this exciting endeavour, I know how much work has gone into this by the Great Spirit Circle Trail and this entity is long overdue. With partnerships and investments being central to the ATO 2020 Plan, having the organization running will make it possible to fully participate in more meaningful dialogue and work with partners. Working with partners such as the Ontario Ministry of Tourism, Culture and Sport, the Regional Tourism Organizations, and the Canadian Ministry of Small Business and Tourism to engage with regional and provincial industry leaders is critical to growing the industry and economy for all. Supporting each other helps support the strategic framework for Tourism in Ontario. Working with partners like these will allow ATO to collaboratively strengthen the regional, provincial, and national economies and indigenous tourism industry."

The Ontario Ministry of Tourism, Culture and Sport has supported GSCT to further grow ATO by funding some of the engagement initiatives that included studies, interviews, completing surveys, attending sponsored webinars, regional workshops and updating of the ATO 2020 strategy and business plan.

"We are very thankful to our partners and communities that helped us with the development of our 2020 plan," Mr. Eshkawkogan said. "This was an important step in helping us understand the needs and priorities of our stakeholders—we did this together and now is the time to support and invest in Aboriginal Tourism Ontario."

Billings History Day reveals the story behind the ship wreck Erebus

First public viewing of Allan Tustian documentary

by Robin Burrige

KAGAWONG—It was a full house for both the matinée and evening presentation at the Kagawong Park Centre for the annual Billings Heritage Museum's History Day which focused on the recent discovery of the wreck of Erebus, the flagship of famed arctic explorer Captain Sir John Franklin, as well as a special viewing of the documentary of the military career of Minde-moya's Allan Tustian.

"This is the story of two ships who hoped to find their way through the North-west Passage and got lost," said Billings Museum Curator Rick Nelson, "never to escape." Mr. Nelson introduced Marty Magne, director of the Archaeology and History Branch of Parks Canada, who gave a presentation on the Franklin expedition and the discovery on September 9, 2014 of the HMS Erebus.

"In 1845 Franklin set out for the North-west Passage," said Mr. Magne. "Franklin was no novice and had been the governor of Tasmania for 10 years. The two ships were reinforced battleships, the HMS Erebus and HMS Terror, and had bows clad with iron 10 feet back to help with the ice. They had 12 ton locomotive engines installed, which was a first at the time."

Mr. Magne explained that the boats left on May 19, 1845, carrying 129 men and enough gear for three winters, as they knew there was a good chance that they would get iced in during the winters.

Some of the gear include four tons of meat preservatives, four tons of chocolate, 16 thousand litres of liquor, an organ, and even a chimp given to the crew of Erebus by Franklin's wife Jane Giffin.

In the winter of 1845 is when the first trouble began, Mr. Magne said, noting that three men died wintering near Beechey Island.

Mr. Magne talked about how the bone analysis of the three bodies found buried on Beechey Island indicated a high level of lead, but that in the industrial age of England, many individuals would have had high levels of lead in their systems.

After two years of no word from Franklin, in 1848 search expeditions began.

Mr. Magne stressed the importance of the Inuit in the search, directing the search parties to the locations they had last seen the ships.

"There was a report in 1849 of 40 men that were spotted by the Inuit," said Mr. Magne, "but when they went back the next year they only found graves and artifacts (on King William Island)."

In 1859 the Victory Point letter was found on King William Island from 1847 by a party led by Royal Navy Lieutenant William Hobson. "The letter describes Franklin's death," said Mr. Magne. He said that it also had conflicting messages, with the first reporting that 'All is well' on May 28, 1848 and the second from April 1848, reporting that the ships had been trapped in the ice for a year and half and that the crews had abandoned the ships and nine officers and 15 crew had died, including Franklin.

"Had they fallen through the ice? Were they attacked by polar bears?" said Mr. Magne. "It was a very strange situation."

Mr. Magne spoke of the expeditions led by Charles Francis Hall in 1860 and 1869. He spoke with an Inuit husband and wife who helped him and drew a map of where they had last seen Erebus.

"If it was to scale, where they said the ship was would have been bang on to where we found it (in 2014)," said Mr. Magne.

Allan Tustian and his family following the special viewing of a documentary starring Mr. Tustian at the Billings History Day.

During intermission at History Day following Marty Magne's presentation on the Franklin expedition and the discovery of the wreck of Erebus.

During his expeditions Mr. Hall discovered camps, graves and relics on the southern coast of King William Island and gathered a lot of Inuit testimony and accounts.

There were many other expeditions over the years, but in 2014, when Parks Canada, partnered with other government agencies under the 'Victoria Strait Expedition' items were found on Hat Island in the Queen Maud Gulf near King William Island.

One item was found which was part of the boat-launching device and featured the Royal Navy's broad arrows. This led the boats searching the water for the wrecks using sonar to start looking closer to the area the artifact was found.

"Erebus was found a short time later," said Mr. Magne. "It was only 15 feet below the surface. The first thing we did is send down equipment to take high definition video. We were pretty sure it was one of Franklin's ships but we didn't know which one."

By comparing sonar scans and architectural drawings, the ship was found to be Erebus due to the two ships being a difference of two feet in length.

"There was tremendous excitement in the press," added Mr. Magne. "There were over 600 stories that were run across 30 countries and in 40 different languages."

Mr. Magne explained how the team, when back, began exploring the ship wreck, finding the ship's bell on the top of the deck. The bell was removed from the ship as there were worries it would be taken. Shortly after, a 10 kilometer protected area around Erebus was put in place.

In 2015, Park Canada's underwater archeologists and the Royal Canadian Navy's Fleet Diving Unit Atlantic cut holes in the ice and dove under the Arctic Sea to study the wreck.

Among the artifacts retrieved were a cannon, an illuminator, hook block, buttons a ceramic plate, rigging block and a

Australian quilter travels Manitoulin to experience the Manitoulin Circle Project

by Robin Burrige

LITTLE CURRENT—Australian quilter Jane Milne has been following the Manitoulin Circle Project since its inception several years ago and made the 7,248 km journey to Manitoulin to see the completed collection in person last week.

"I learned about the project from a link in a blog I follow," explained Ms. Milne. "I really like reclaimed textiles and I have been following the project for years so I made the three-plane trip and 1,000 km drive to Manitoulin to see it. My husband Peter wanted to go to New Orleans and I said I would only come if we could come here to see it (the quilt collection)."

In her community in western Victoria, Ms. Milne has been a part of two community quilting projects—a Korean war quilt and the second, a quilt of the townscape.

"I've been sewing since I was eight," shared Ms. Milne. "My sister taught me. In 1975 I started quilting after I won a quilt in a raffle while on an exchange in the Catskills (Mountains) in New York. The quilt got me interested, and I actually still have it to this day."

Julia McCutcheon of Little Current, who was an active participant in the Manitoulin Circle Project, met the Milnes during their visit to the Little Current United Church where the collection is on permanent display. She showed Ms. Milne the quilts and shared memories from the creation of the pieces.

"They are even better in person than on the computer screen," said Ms. Milne. "I knew I wouldn't be disappointed. Seeing them in person allowed me to see how sculptural they are and the way the light hits them."

The four-year Manitoulin Circle Project was born out of an assignment by Manitoulin fibre artist Judy Martin through the Julia Capara School and a course she was taking on Liturgical embroidery.

Though the original assignment was simply the planning and consultation on a project, which Ms. Martin did with the former reverend of the Little Current United Church Faye Stevens, Ms. Stevens and members of the congregation became so passionate about the project that Ms. Martin decided to take the project on, thus the Manitoulin Community Circle Project was born.

Over the four years, a total of 140 women met at the church Thursday afternoons to work on the project. The result was a collection of four large panels—'Layers of Time,' 'Mended World,' 'Precious Water' and 'Earth Ark.'

After they viewed the panels, Ms. Milne and her husband visited Ms. Martin at her Sheguiandah home.

"It blew me away when I got her (Ms. Milne's) letter saying that she was coming," Ms. Martin told The Expositor, "but she did and they were a very nice couple."

Jane Milne of Australia, right, visits with Manitoulin fibre artist Judy Martin during a visit to view Ms. Martin's Manitoulin Circle Project, which Ms. Milne followed the creation of online.

The two will be reconnecting again next year when Ms. Martin travels to Australia to teach a fiber arts class, with Ms. Milne already having registered to take the workshop.

"I was invited to teach a workshop at Fibre Arts Australia, one in Ballarat and one in Gippsland," said Ms. Martin. "I will also be teaching at Fibre Arts New Zealand and will be spending April 2017 between the two countries."

The workshop that Ms. Martin will be teaching is called 'Y-O-U and Hand Stitch.'

"Over centuries and across cultures, cloth and thread have been used for shelter, protection, ritual, politics, identity, warmth, spiritual enlightenment, storytelling, decoration and daily life," states the course description. "The potential for re-invention and subversion is boundless. This workshop is not a design workshop. Instead it offers guidance towards a sensitive yet conceptual approach to found, saved, gifted or newly purchased cloth and threads. Through close observation and hands on exploration of materials and techniques, ideas for poetic art become evident. This is an idea workshop. Textiles have power and beauty when they can be understood on several levels. Hand embroidery allows Y-O-U to make art that is conceptual and real."

"Other tutors that are going to Australia and New Zealand that I am looking forward to meeting are Donna Watson, Caroline Barlett and Claire Wellesley Smith," said Ms. Martin.

To view the Manitoulin Community Circle Project panels attend a Little Current United Church service on Sundays at 10 am, or come directly following the service at 11 am.

...‘Telehomecare’ for COPD patients pioneered by DSB, CCAC

matter where they live in the region.

“When we get a patient for telehomecare in the area, we tell them they will receive a visit by a paramedic and a brief description of what will take place,” explained Tammy Windsor, manager, clinical services, North East CCAC.

“The paramedics are basically the eyes in the home,” she added, “and they do the first visit.”

Once in the home, the paramedic will install a tablet, blood pressure cuff, scale and pulse oximeter (which monitors oxygen levels).

That data is automatically sent to the tablet and then uploaded to the nurse, who has already been briefed by the patient’s doctor on what typical vitals should look like. The patient must also answer a daily set of question on the tablet, such as ‘how did you sleep?’ how is your appetite?’ and ‘do you have a cough today?’

“As soon as they see vital signs that aren’t normal, the nurse will call the patient and say ‘hey, what’s going on,’” Ms. Windsor said. “If the vital signs don’t come in, they will call, if no answer, they will try again, or try a different contact. If there is still no answer, the nurse will call the paramedics and get them to go and check on the patient.”

One Little Current woman who lives with both CHF and COPD told the Expositor she is very happy with the program.

“I was in the hospital for two weeks, I was pretty sick,” the woman, who asked to go unnamed, told this newspaper. “My blood pressure was all over the place and my oxygen was low.”

The patient said she’s been part of the program since June and is pleased with the good habits she is learning from the process, such as checking her vitals each day.

“It gives you the opportunity to share more information and it’s easy to use,” she shared.

The woman was pleased to note that, since her time in hospital and her time on the program, she hasn’t had any flareups and suggests other people with her conditions take advantage of the telehomecare program. “You keep track of yourself, and they keep track of you too.”

“It’s really quick at capturing something that’s gone wrong, right away,” Ms. Windsor added. “The paramedics can either address the issue there or refer them to the hospital and their physician.”

Fern Dominelli, Manitoulin-Sudbury DSB CAO, explained that this program fits nicely into the DSB’s paramedicine program, noting that every medic is trained by the CCAC on how to install the units, as well as how to give referrals to the CCAC about patients they see who would be good fits for telehomecare.

“The reception has been great,” Mr. Dominelli said of the program.

“This is all about becoming a greater part of the healthcare system,” added DSB Chief of Paramedic Services Michael MacIsaac. “There are a lot of gaps where we can assist, and if we can avoid 911 calls...”

The six nurses who cover the whole northeast region also do medication reconciliation with their patients. “The nurses will go through all the medications in the home, compare it to the pharmacy records and what the doctor says is best,” Ms. Windsor said. “The nurse also sets up healthy coaching sessions on how to better manage their condition.”

When the telehomecare program is wrapped up in five months, the paramedics will again go to the home and retrieve the equipment. “The patients really like that the paramedics are there,” she said. “We’ve had many successes and feel good moments.”

Ms. Windsor explained that the paramedic-partnered telehomecare program is unique in the province, adding that the North West CCAC is also looking to start its own program and the hope is that it will expand across the province.

“Telehomecare has been around since 2012, but the partnership with paramedics is brand new,” she added, noting that in 2012, patients with CHF and COPD were identified as the group with the highest number of hospital and emergency department visits.

Ms. Trudeau left her position as the strategic investment officer with the United Chiefs and Councils of Mniidoo Mnising that she held since 2013 to accept the new role.

In addition to being a former varsity lacrosse player at Brock University, Ms. Trudeau has been involved with the NAIG in the past working as a communications and development director for the national Aboriginal Sport Circle in 2008 when the games were held in Cowichan, BC. As well, she was part of the Team Ontario mission staff for the last games in Regina in 2014.

She also managed the Aboriginal Sport Hero Torch Bearer program for the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games in Vancouver.

“I had the knowledge and the background, coupled with my education, to take on this role—it seemed like the perfect fit,” explained Ms. Trudeau. “I believe in the value of sport and the power it has to instill traits in individuals such as leadership and confidence.”

“Everything has been pretty busy in all areas getting ready for the games,” said Ms. Trudeau. “It is all going full speed ahead now that most of the senior managers are in place.”

The 2017 NAIG will bring 5,000 competitors and 2,000 volunteers to Toronto from July 16 to 23, 2017.

the most effective method of control on predator populations are the licenced trappers. “Hunters take a few,” he said, “but even the most experienced coyote and wolf hunters have low success rates.” Allowing the predator populations to rise unfettered and without any form of effective control will inevitably “impact resident wildlife,”

he said. “That is going to lead to long term impacts.”

“A large coalition of organizations has gathered together to call for full protection of Algonquin wolves across their entire range,” notes a release from Earthroots. “Algonquin wolves are sparsely distributed across Central Ontario. The groups are will be winterizing it like you would do with a cottage. The other option was to spend $10,000 to heat it."

"That $10,000 was just to fix the heating system," rejoined Councillor Stephens. "We put it out to a public meeting for a plan to keep it—we never got one."

"I think that we should anticipate having discussions on the future of that building in our budget deliberations for 2017," said Councillor Patricia MacDonald.

"Perhaps a public meeting to put it on the line," added Mayor Stephens.

"It is old plaster and lathe, it will deteriorate badly without a minimum of heat," cautioned Councillor Taylor.

Councillor MacDonald said that she hoped that the extension of the closing date would provide the tenant with enough time to

"Originally the town gave me until September 1 to vacate, but I asked to stay into October for a few reasons," said lawyer Janelle Proulx, the last remaining tenant in the building.

"Luckily they have approved my request, so I am thankful for that. I bought a house in Mindemoya in June and I am converting it into office space. This involves quite a few renovations, along with getting it rezoned. This is also my busiest time of year for my business. With all of this going on I knew I couldn't possibly move by the end of the month. Once I have completely moved, I will be urging the public to comment on two government proposals (EBR #012-8104 and EBR #012-8105) before Monday, August 22, 2016 to ensure the ESA is used to recover the Algonquin wolf population as intended."

The MNR calls for comment are to move the Algonquin wolf from "of concern" to "threatened" and to ban hunting and trapping of wolves and coyotes in a range of townships surrounding a number of parks. The hunting and trapping of wolves and coyotes is currently prohibited in a number of other provincial parks, including Kawartha Highlands, Killarney, Killarney Lakelands and Headwaters, French River and Queen Elizabeth II Wildlands.

"The coalition stresses the need to extend protection to eastern coyotes and their hybrids," notes the Earthroots release, "neither of which can be differentiated from Algonquin wolves without a genetic test."

To help support the protection and recovery of the Algonquin wolf, it is proposed that hunting and trapping of wolf and coyote be prohibited in three additional core areas where Algonquin wolf is known to occur. This proposal addresses wolf and coyote collectively within these core occurrence areas because they are difficult to visually distinguish from other canids (gray wolf, Great Lakes-boreal wolf, eastern coyotes, hybrids) due to their similar appearance (colouration, markings and overlap in size). As such, the following regulatory changes are being proposed under the Fish and Wildlife Conservation Act to ban trapping and hunting of wolves and coyotes in the area of Kawartha Highlands Provincial Park, which includes the geographic townships of: Anstruther, Burleigh, Cardiff, Cavendish, Chandos, Harvey, and Monmouth; and in the area of Queen Elizabeth II Wildlands Provincial Park, which includes the geographic townships of: Anson, Dalton, Digby, Longford, Lutterworth, Minden, and Ryde; as well as in the area of Killarney Provincial Park, which includes the geographic townships of: Allen, Attlee, Bevin, Burwash, Caen, Carlyle, Cox, Curtin, Dieppe, Eden, Foster, Goschen, Halifax, Hansen, Humboldt, Killarney, Kilpatrick, Laura, Roosevelt, Sale, Secord, Servos, Struthers, Tilton, Truman and Waldie.

But anecdotal observations clearly indicate that the populations of coyote, at least, on nearby Manitoulin are very healthy indeed.

"My parents and I have been regularly sitting at the kitchen table at my parents' farm (where they raise a large herd of goats) and we can hardly talk over the sound of the coyotes," said Kyla Jansen of Honora Bay. "We find ourselves racing out to bring the dogs in because they will want to protect our property."

Ms. Jansen, who operates the Honora Bay Riding Stable, stresses that she does not have any kind of hate on for wolves or coyotes. "I was raised in the wild. I sleep outside in the woods and I love the sounds of the wild," she said, "but we have never seen (or heard) anything like this in 40 years."

Ms. Jansen recalled a recent morning ride where she spotted what she thought was a herd of deer in one of her hay fields. "I thought to myself 'oh look at the deer' then I realized that it wasn't deer I was looking at," she said. "This was around 9:30 in the morning, they were not concerned about us at all." Unlike wolves, coyotes tend to be less skittish around humans.

Ms. Jansen has serious concerns about the proximity of coyotes to her barns. "I am up about four or five times a night because they are so close to the barns," she said. "My old mare Angel is 32-years-old, living with a little miniature horse in one of the far pastures. They would not be able to defend themselves against these packs that I have never experienced difficulties with before."

Finding the balance between control of predators like the coyote and endangered species like the Algonquin wolf pose challenges, particularly when concerns about moose and deer populations are thrown into the mix.

Five compete to become Providence Bay Fair Ambassador this Friday

PROVIDENCE BAY—This Friday, August 19, five young ladies will compete to be named Providence Bay Fair Ambassador with one lucky contestant to be crowned and move on to represent Manitoulin at the Canadian National Exhibition's Ambassador of the Fairs next summer.

The contestants will be evaluated through interviews with the judges prior to the pageant, their confidence and poise on stage during the pageant Friday evening and the speeches they deliver.

Friday evening, the pageant will begin with the contestants introducing themselves and delivering 3-4 minute speeches on the topic of their choice.

Following the speeches, the judges will tabulate the contestants' scores based on the speeches and the other elements of the pageant and a first runner up and Providence Bay Fair Ambassador will be named. The girls will also select one contestant among themselves to be named Miss Congeniality.

This year's contestants include 17-year-old Rebecca Dawson of Spring Bay, 16-year-old Zabrina Cosby of Little Current, 17-year-old Christine Cranston of Spring Bay, 16-year-old Maggie McDonald of Spring Bay and 17-year-old Marena Verboom from Providence Bay.

Rebecca Dawson

Rebecca Dawson is 17-years-old and from Spring Bay. She has brown hair and hazel eyes and will be attending the University of Guelph this fall. In her spare time she enjoys painting, acting and participating in competitive curling. Her mom Dawn Dawson has been a major role model in her life because "she is an extremely hard worker and loves to give back to the community," said Rebecca. Her favourite thing about Manitoulin is the close knit communities that support one another and the opportunities to work with many different generations and learn in those community settings. "Winning Providence Bay Fair Ambassador would be a huge honour as it would give me the chance to represent my community. Winning would push me out of my comfort zone and help me grow as a person," Rebecca shared. Rebecca is sponsored by Buie's Grocery.

Zabrina Cosby

Sixteen-year-old Zabrina Cosby from Little Current has brown hair and hazel eyes. She will be going into Grade 12 at Manitoulin Secondary School. In her down time, Zabrina likes to bead, listen to music and practice gymnastics. The major influence/role model in her life are her parents because they have always been there for her "and supported me through everything," said Zabrina. "They have always pushed me to be my best." She loves Manitoulin because of the people, stating, "they are

Jean McCauley celebrates 100th birthday surrounded by family, friends and song

by Betty Bardswich

TEKHUMMAH—It is doubtful that another person could fit into the Tekhummah Seniors' Hall on Saturday, August 13 as family and friends gathered to wish Jean McCauley a very happy 100th birthday.

Mrs. McCauley's grandson, Steve Martin, served as master of ceremonies for the celebration and welcomed family and friends from far and wide. Indeed, Mrs. McCauley's daughter, Pat Hall, could be heard to say, "There are people here that I have not seen for 20 years."

Mr. Martin began his talk by saying "Jean is a very, very special woman. She is 100 years young and Grandma has little time for people who complain. She doesn't have glasses or hearing aids, she is excellent at crib and is sharp as a tack." He continued by looking back to 1916, the year his grandmother was born, and commented that bread was seven cents then, stamps were two cents and only eight percent of homes had a telephone.

"A very special woman was born," he said, and noted that Mrs. McCauley left Liverpool, ended up in Alberta and, at age 17, met and married Pete McCauley and moved to the Island in 1948.

"Grandma has 80 descendants," Mr. Martin continued, "she loves going to bingo, plays crib, is a Red Hats member and sings at various functions. She is a self-sufficient person and she wouldn't have it any other way." He also mentioned that Mrs. McCauley also partakes of the odd drink of Captain Morgan's dark rum.

Mrs. McCauley's life was certainly a busy one as Mr. Martin attested. Some of the activities of this mother of six include canning hundreds of jars of jams, jellies and pickles, making eight loaves of bread every other day and tarts and buns, feeding cattle, a horse, turkeys and making maple syrup.

Mrs. McCauley's grandchildren spoke at the party of their memories of grandma when they were growing up, including brown sugar sandwiches, money under their pillows, sleepovers, popcorn and big dinners. "So many great memories about a great woman," one granddaughter said. "It is such a blessing to have you in our lives."

There were best wishes from a host of dignitaries for Mrs. McCauley, including, MPP Michael Mantha, MP Carol Hughes, Governor General David Johnson, Ontario's Lieutenant Governor Elizabeth Dowdeswell, Ontario Premier Kathleen Wynne and Lorrie Leeson on behalf of Tekhummah Reeve Eric Russell. She also received flowers from the United Church Women and best wishes from the Tekhummah Seniors' Club.

Music was provided at the function by Tim Hall and Lori Gordon. Mr. Hall had written a song when his grandmother turned 80 and now played 'Granny's Song' for her 100th birthday. "She is a living legend," he added.

NAANDWECHIGE-GAMIG
WIKWEMIKONG HEALTH CENTRE

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

Maternal Child Health Home Visitor (2nd Posting)

The NAANDWECHIGE-GAMIG Wikwemikong Health Centre is seeking to fill a full time position for a 'Home Visitor' in the Maternal Child Health Program.

JOB SUMMARY
Through individual, one-to-one support, the Maternal Child Health Worker will provide parents and caregivers in the community accessibility to early intervention and support related to healthy child and family development. The position will encourage greater involvement of fathers in the lives of their children. The incumbent will provide awareness and information on traditional parenting within the family and by using appropriate resources will also promote fathers as a role model for the children in the family unit. Through the group process, this position will network with partner agencies under Maternal Child Health funding to assist and support weekly outreach programming in each of the satellite communities.

QUALIFICATIONS

- Post secondary certificate or diploma in health or social services.
- At least 2 years experience working with children and families.
- Experienced parent with a genuine interest in working and assisting families with young children.
- Willingness to work primarily in the home of families.
- Capacities to problem solve, handle crises and work with families and children.
- Approach to working with families that is empathic, non-judgemental, respectful, and professional.
- To be sensitive to the challenges of the male parents/caregivers.
- Excellent written, oral, interpersonal skills required to work effectively with families and within a team environment.
- Valid driver's license is a requirement (Class F would be an asset)
- Knowledge of First Nation tradition and culture/language or willing to learn.

This is a contract position. Salary is in accordance to WUIR Salary Grid. All applicants MUST submit a letter of application, current resume, (3) three current work related letters of reference, marked CONFIDENTIAL to:

TERRILL DARBY JOAN (TERRI) SCOTT

It is with great sadness that the family of Terri Darby Joan Scott (nee Dennis), better known as Terri Scott, announce her passing on Saturday, August 6, 2016 at the age of 69 years. Terri will be lovingly remembered by her husband of 48 years Tom Scott, daughter Sara (Brian), her Aunt Edna Reid (John), her sisters Jenny (Art), Lorna (Bill), Lauren (Ken), brother Sydney, and her five grandchildren Steven, Cordell, Sherington, Jayla and Cassandra, and many nieces and nephews. Sadly, Terri was predeceased by her parents Tom and Laura Dennis, sister Beverly, brother Bryan, and her loving son Matthew. Born in Sudbury, Ontario, December 8, 1946, Terri moved with her family to Parry Sound where she finished her grade schooling at Parry Sound High. She trained at the General Hospital and proceeded to work as an X-ray technician at St. Joseph's Hospital. Once marrying Tom Scott on June 15, 1968 she and her husband moved to Little Current on Manitoulin Island, where she continued her career and enjoyed the farm, fishing, and most of all her extended family - the Scott's. In 1979, Terri, Tom and their two children relocated to Westlock, Alberta where she continued to enjoy hunting, fishing and camping. Terri continued her career as the head of the Imaging Services Department, but due to illness, had to retire earlier than she wished. A Celebration of Life will be held in her memory Saturday, September 3, 2016 at 2 pm at the Dapp Hall located at 2 Railway Ave, Dapp, Alberta. Those who wish to, may make memorial donations to the Edmonton Cross Cancer Institute located at 11560 University Avenue Northwest, Edmonton, AB T6G 1Z2.

NICHOLAS “NICK” CHARLIE WILFRED WEMIGWANS

In loving memory of Nicholas "Nick" Charlie Wilfred Wemigwans who started his journey to the Spirit World on his 21st birthday - August 5, 2016. Nick was a student of the Wikwemikong High School where he was a member of the Robotics Team 5672 as the Lead Programmer. He had a passion for working with any technology gadgets and knowledge of interesting facts. He took it upon himself to learn our native language. This led him to enjoy his first summer job working with the WHO. He took interest in learning different languages, like Japanese and Chinese. He had talent with his pencilled sketches and computer drawings to great detail. Nicholas made delicious homemade banana bread from scratch and would bring some to his grandparents who enjoyed his company and short visits. He loved being around family and being a part of get-togethers eating great meals especially his favourite foods; dill pickle chips, Dr. Pepper, macaroni soup, scone and turkey dinners. He was quick with his funny remarks and could make a whole room of cousins laugh with two words. It was hard to get a smile out of him, but when you did and if it came with a laugh we all knew that was big. He will always be remembered for his humility and helping hand; he dropped whatever he was doing no questions asked. He always said, "There's a logical explanation for everything." His family came together to realize his greatest lesson was to be humble and love one another. He will be missed dearly by his mother Myrna Wemigwans (partner Calvin Shawanda), sister Olivia "Olee" (Matt), and his younger brothers Peter and Tristan. One of his proudest moments was to meet his niece Baby Lydia Sunrise. Forever cherished by grandparents Gordon and Julie Wemigwans. Also, will be missed by special Step-Dad Wayne "Zeemo" Pitawanakwat, and aunts Juliette, Mona (Irvin), Starr, Amanda (Leon), Robin (Will), and Deanna (predeceased). Forever in the hearts of his cousins; Autumn-Lee, Cody, Lawrence, Virginia, Esther, Lee Ann, Michael, Mathew, Marlon, Brandon, Austin, Julia, Lisa, Summer, Becky, Annie, Liza, Wii'um, M'komi, Carlos, Gordon, and little cousins (Emalee, Liam, Justice, and Cedar). He is reunited with his beloved dog "Jenny-Boy". Visitation was held at the Rabbit Island Centre starting on Tuesday, August 9, 2016 at 8 pm. Celebration of Life Service was on Thursday, August 11, 2016 at 11 am. Potluck Feast was held at 81 Henry Street (Gramma's House). Record your thoughts, memories and photos at www.islandfuneralhome.ca.

Memorial donations are gratefully appreciated and can be made at the admitting office to the auxiliaries of the Manitoulin Health Centre and the Renovation Fund in both Mindemoya and Little Current and the Gore Bay Manitoulin Lodge Auxiliary Incorporated, 3 Main Street, Gore Bay, Ontario, P0P 1H0 and the Manitoulin Centennial Manor Auxiliary, Postal Bag 460, 10 Robinson Street, Little Current, Ontario, P0P 1K0. IMPORTANT EMERGENCY RESPONSE MESSAGE FROM THE TOWNSHIP OF BILLINGS

For the protection of property and people it is important to have adequate access and turn-around capabilities for emergency vehicles. An emergency vehicle is wider, longer and taller than a personal vehicle. During fire situations, equipment cannot enter properties that do not have adequate access or turn around areas. If fire vehicles cannot access your property safely they will not be able to provide fire service in the event of an emergency. Make sure that your driveway is accessible by emergency equipment. If you are on a privately maintained access road or right of way make sure that your property is accessible by emergency vehicle.

If your property is located in the Township of Billings and Allan East you can contact the Municipal office at 705 282 2611 and we can set up an appointment with the Fire Department to determine if your access is adequate.

Three Fires Confederacy meeting in Sheguiandah seeks to strengthen bonds

by Michael Erskine
SHEGUIANDAH—The historic alliance of the Three Fires Confederacy is celebrated and reinvigorated each year at a conference hosted by the Kenjegin Teg Educational Institute. The Three Fires Confederacy is made up of the Ojibwe, Odawa and Potawatamie, three Anishinabe nations that share many language and cultural norms and formed a political and military alliance that helped sustain their communities through several major conflicts that shook their world both pre- and post contact.

With rotating locations, this year's Three Fires Confederacy conference took place August 9 and 10 at the Sheguiandah Heritage Park (at the beach area and roundhouse) and attracted elders and speakers from across Mnidoo Mnising.

Elder Gordon Waindubence spoke on the teachings of the sweat lodge, a key binding tradition in which both healing and traditional knowledge have been passed on down through the generations.

This year, Wikwemikong elder Gerry Kaboni spoke on the tree teachings, relating the knowledge passed on to him by elders in his home community of Kaboni. Mr. Kaboni recalled coming across a strange tree in his youth and asking one of the local elders about it.

The tree was formed by the melding of three separate trees, twisted as young saplings around each other. The trees were planted in the centre of the settlement or village, symbolizing the unity of the Three Fires. As time went on and the trees grew up, they would fuse into one. The tree Mr. Kaboni had found was located some distance from the current settlements in Wikwemikong, but was at the site of one of the earlier settlements in the unceded territories now known as Wikwemikong.

On Thursday, August 11, following the conference, one of the triple-trunked bundle of saplings was planted at the Ojibwe Cultural Foundation in M'Chigeeng.

The setting of Three Fires gathering on the picturesque shores of Sheguiandah Bay included the impressive roundhouse constructed of local timber and built with local labour. Speakers stood on a cedar (one of the sacred medicines of the Anishinabe) strewn platform in the centre of the roundhouse, the sun streaming down from a central skylight to provide natural illumination. With doorways in the four directions open, the cool breezes from the bay kept the inside of the structure remarkably cool, despite the oppressive heat outside.

During the gathering, children and other community members took part in workshops on traditional artisan work and games, including Canada's national sport (no not hockey, lacrosse, a part of our national heritage that has languished too much from neglect in recent years).

During the second day of the conference, an historic announcement of a unique partnership between Canadore College and Kenjegin Teg Educational Institute (KTEI) to deliver an early childhood educator program that will take place completely in the language illustrated the efforts being made to strengthen and enhance Anishinabemowin.

Elder-in-residence Josh Eshkawkogan spoke on the teaching lodge concepts that are being explored by KTEI and which infuse the learning that takes place in that institution. Too often, he said, people wait until the bureaucracy allows something to go ahead, but when it comes to passing on the culture and knowledge of the Anishinabe, something that is so important to building the pride and confidence that young people need to succeed in the modern world, to understand their place in the world, there is no time to wait upon the whims of the provincial and federal governments.

"This is for the benefit of our children," he said. "Sometimes you just have to go ahead and do it."

"Sometimes you have to stop looking back and look at where you are going," said Mr. Eshkawkogan.

The key element, the number one teaching, he noted, is "respect." From that teaching, the other six Grandfather Teachings will inevitably flow. "That is the protocol for our lodge," he said. "The only one you need is respect. You have to respect everyone who comes into the circle."

Nature has many lessons from which we can learn, he noted, and that learning is something that remains very relevant in the modern age.

Sitting still outside, "I can identify 10 different types of birds, just by listening," he said. The skill of actually listening to the world around us is one that is practiced far too little in this day and age and yet is probably more vital today than it has ever been in human history.

Elder Waindubence has a simple approach when it comes to getting things done that need doing to build First Nations communities—his motto? "Just do it."

thank you

Thank you to everyone! To those who brought food to our home. To those who travelled from near and far. We appreciate your thoughtfulness. Thank you for the many cards, phone calls, visits, floral and memorial donations. Manitoulin Health Centre with your donation. We are going to put it toward Ian's tombstone. That way Ian will be looking over each and everyone of you. He will be saying thank you for helping Mom and Dad. "Only Manitoulin Island."

I love you all, Carol and Dale McCauley P.S. Ian did have life jackets on his boat and he did know how to swim.

thank you

I would like to thank all the wonderful people who helped me celebrate my early 100th birthday. Many thanks to my family and cousin Boyce for their time and expense and for planning the party and decorating the hall. I was overwhelmed at the number of people who come from near and as far away as Alberta, Michigan, and Tennessee to celebrate with me. I don't think I've ever had my picture taken so many times. Many thanks to the Triangle Sr. Club for the lovely lunch, for all the flowers, gifts, card and well wishes. I thank you all. For Chris' great job as master of ceremonies with only 10 minutes notice and Martin for the prayer, I thank you. And I can't miss thanking Gord for the motorcycle ride to the hall, the township of Tehkumma for the plaque and my dear friend Jean for her annual birthday poem. It was a wonderful day and lovely to visit with everyone. Thank you all from the bottom of my heart. Audrey

13p

We would like to thank the Tehkumma First Response Team, EMS and OPP for their prompt attention to our emergency last Saturday afternoon. Sincere thanks to the doctor and nurses at the Mindemoya Hospital and the ambulance personnel and nursing escort to Sudbury. Also thank you to our family and friends who remained at home entertaining our guests and seeing them safely home. We continue to thank our awesome God for his protection. Without it the day could have had a very different ending. The rollover and knock on the head is a reminder that helmets will be worn the next time we are on the ATV. The Flaherty family BOWERMAN--In loving memory of our dear mother, grandmother, and great-grandmother, Doris Bowerman, who passed away August 23, 2004. Your mother is always with you.

She's the whisper of the leaves as you walk down the street.

She's the smell of certain foods you remember, Flowers you pick...the fragrance of life itself.

She's the cool hand on your brow when you're not feeling well.

She's your breath in the air on a cold winter's day.

She's the sound of the rain that lulls you to sleep, The colours of a rainbow; she is Christmas morning.

Your mother lives inside your laughter. She's the place you came from,

Your first home, And she's the map you follow every step you take.

She's your first love, Your first friend,

Even your first enemy, But nothing on earth can separate you.

Not time. Not space. Not even death.

Always loved and remembered by daughter Marilyn, son-in-law Jim, grandchildren Marilee, Mallory and Mitchell, and great-grandchildren Landen and Hailee.

LAKE--In Memory of a friend, Beatrice Lake, June 16, 1937 to August 17, 2015. When I first met Bea I liked her right off. That was, and is, unusual for me to form an opinion without more thought and observance.

It goes without saying that Bea herself was the deciding factor. There was something very special about Bea, difficult to describe. She had an inner peace that helped her in her very important life. It can be truly said that Bea was a quality friend, and everyone's best friend. To be greeted by her as "Friend" was such a boost to your well-being, and a lift to your soul.

Oh, and I do miss you so, Bea...Friend. As ever, Nelda

...History Day

Part of the ship's wheel has also been found 20 metres away from the ship.

Mr. Magne said that the Ministry of Environment and Climate Change and Parks Canada have committed to $16.9 million over five years to support the ongoing investigation of the HMS Erebus and the continuing search for HMS Terror, in addition to the development of a visitor centre and a new research vessel.

After a brief question and answer period, Mr. Nelson thanked Mr. Magne for sharing the story of the Franklin expeditions and the discovery of the HMS Erebus.

"It was one of the greatest finds since Titanic," said Mr. Nelson. "We will have to bring them here to find the Griffin after they find HMS Terror."

After a brief intermission was the showing of the documentary of Allan Tustian.

"After talking with Mr. Tustian, I knew we had to get these stories on video," Mr. Nelson said. "We have shown it at the museum, but this will be its first public debut."

Mr. Tustian was present for the showing, along with several of his family members.

In the documentary Mr. Tustian, one of the first radar technicians, shared stories of surviving a buzz bomb attack in London, helping keep the channel clear during the D-Day invasion and the pursuit of various U-boats.

After the screening, Mr. Tustian quipped, "Can I get another chance, I can do better," making the crowd laugh.

Mr. Nelson plugged the upcoming Mudge Bay Mysteries/Harbour Island Tour with North Channel Cruise Line this Saturday, August 20 from 6 pm to 9 pm, departing from Kagawong.

The tour begins at 5:30 pm with a guided tour through the Billings Heritage Museum, followed by a 2.5 hour tour aboard the Grand Heron which will visit the famous Harbour Island. The event will be narrated by the Billings Heritage Museum and will offer a rare glimpse into the area's rich and ghostly history.

Salmon Classic

Inaugural Salmon Classic wraps up with $25K in prize giveaways

by Alicia McCutcheon

MANITOULIN—That's a wrap, folks! The inaugural Manitoulin Expositor Salmon Classic wrapped up on Sunday before an enthusiastic crowd of fisherfolk at the Providence Bay Marina, swapping tales of the ones that got away, while $25,000 in cash prizes was awarded to six successful souls.

Manitoulin Expositor publisher Rick McCutcheon began the Salmon Classic proceedings by explaining how the idea for Northern Ontario's largest salmon fishing tournament came to fruition. Following a meeting of independent newspaper publishers in the fall of last year, at which Expositor production manager Dave Patterson was a guest speaker on the topic of social media, Mr. Patterson left with the idea of hosting a salmon derby following another presentation on newspapers as events coordinators.

Mr. Patterson, an avid fisherman himself, pitched the idea to the publishers and the blessing was given to run with it.

Mr. McCutcheon noted that more than 30 years ago, he was at a meeting between the Manitoulin Tourism Association, when he was president at the time, the Ministry of Natural Resources and Jim Sloss and his late father Elwood who were representing recreational fishing interests. At that meeting, the talk was of stocking splake and lake trout (the Sloss family was adamantly opposed to splake), but Mr. McCutcheon recalled Jim Sloss also giving an impassioned plea for salmon, "which was coming into its own then. 'People like catching big fish'," he recalled Mr. Sloss as saying. Mr. Sloss has been active for many years in the Gore Bay Fish and Game Club and its salmon hatchery program and just recently retired as the founding chair of the United Fish and Game Club of Manitoulin.

"Thirty years later, here we are," he added, thanking everyone for coming, for participating, and acknowledging the many sponsors who helped make the Salmon Classic possible and assisting in the costs of off-island marketing.

"We started this because we wanted to bring some tourism dollars back to Manitoulin and to get back out fishing the way people used to," Salmon Classic coordinator Dave Patterson said, addressing the crowd of avid fishermen gathered on the marina deck. "There were lots of fish caught, and we're definitely going to continue the derby next year."

Moe Gauthier, left, of Screamin' Reels Charters based out of South Baymouth, helps Reinhard Roick of Ottawa heft his 22.75 lb first place salmon.

winners on hand to collect their winnings. First place went to Reinhard Roick of Ottawa for his 22.75 lb salmon caught off of South Baymouth, $12,000; second place, Kevin Boyd of Hanmer for his 21.69 lb salmon caught at Providence Bay, $4,000; third place, Neil McNally of Massey for his 20.08 lb salmon caught in the North Channel at Darch Island, $2,000; Ian Anderson with his 20.04 lb salmon, also caught in the North Channel at Clapperton, $1,000; and fifth, John Henderson with his 19.69 lb salmon caught at Meldrum Bay, $500.

Local fisherman Don Hysert of Tehkummah won the heaviest trout competition and was awarded $2,500 for his efforts. While accepting his cheque, Mr. Hysert said, "When I caught my trout I heard, 'it's just another lake trout' and 'greaseballs.' Well, I love lake trout!" to much applause.

First place winner Mr. Roick told The Expositor that he hopes to give a repeat performance of his win next year, explaining that he first went salmon fishing 30 years ago off Meldrum Bay. He's now a regular fisher in Island waters, often with friend Gary Cooper of Manitowaning, who told him about the Salmon Classic. Mr. Roick fished with Screamin' Reels Charters of South Baymouth for the derby.

One thousand dollars a week was awarded over the three weeks for heaviest fish of the week. Those winners are: week one, Kevin Boyd of Hanmer; week two, Neil McNally of Massey; and week three, Reinhard Roick of Ottawa.

Winner of a stay for two at Huron Motor Lodge was Kevin Boyd. Winners of the heaviest fish caught on July 26, 27 and 28 for the prize of a Buck fishing knife courtesy of Mac's Camp are, respectively, Nick Purvis, Robert Zandarin and Christian Seguin.

Winner of the heaviest fish on July 29 was Al Murdoch of Hanmer, winning $80 in gift certificates to the Red Dog Grill in Whitefish Falls.

Winner of the mystery weight and the 15,000 BTU vertical propane smoker courtesy of Jake's Home Centre in Mindemoya was Michel Henri of Sudbury.

Winner of the August 6-7 heaviest fish competition of a two-night stay for two people at Island Spring Cottages in Mindemoya is Ray Debois, while winner of the heaviest fish caught August 9, 10 and 11, and winning a $100 gift card courtesy of McDougall Fuels, are, respectively, Raymond Charette, Brian Buis and Paul Sisson.

And lastly, winner of the heaviest salmon caught on August 12, taking home two outdoor hanging chairs courtesy of Remedy Rx of Espanola, is Charles Baird.

Central Manitoulin Mayor Richard Stephens came to Sunday's windup event at the Providence Bay Marina to thank The Expositor for organizing this new event. "It's been a great thing for our municipality and, I would think, most Island municipalities," he told Expositor publisher Rick McCutcheon.

Mayor Stephens encouraged The Expositor to come to a Manitoulin Municipal Association (MMA) meeting and tell municipal representatives the economic impact of this event.

Tickets for next year's Salmon Classic will go on sale starting September 1 at www.fishmanitoulin.com and at The Expositor office in Little Current and at The Recorder in Gore Bay.

John Henderson is all smiles with his fifth place catch of a 19.69 pound salmon brought in at Meldrum Bay.

He noted with a grin that next year's derby ticket will go up in price by $5, to $65, as he made the mistake of not factoring in tax, which left his office manager unhappy.

There will also be a change in date for the Salmon Classic for 2017, running from the last Saturday of July, July 29, for four weeks.

"We're also going to hand out another $5,000 in prizes—$100 a day for the biggest fish for each day and we're also going to run the leaderboard up to 25," Mr. Patterson explained. "The main cash prizes will remain the same."

Mr. Patterson thanked all of the weigh stations. "They did a fantastic job and I can't thank them enough," he said to much applause, giving a special shout out to Assiginack, who got behind the Salmon Classic from the very beginning, hiring a summer student, Claire Hutton, to run the Manitowaning weigh station over the three weeks.

"We're also going to have a little competition—'who can out-fish Dave'," he said of next year's derby. "Every time I go fishing, which is usually two or three days a week, if you beat my best fish from that day with a fish weighed that same day, your name will be entered into a draw for a cash prize, and you can enter as many times as I have fished."

Mr. Patterson noted that the Salmon Classic will also have a kids' prize for largest fish too, so stay tuned for more details as they become available.

Mr. Patterson then got down to business—the awarding of the cash prizes, with almost all of the trout competition and was awarded $2,500 for his efforts. While accepting his cheque, Mr. Hysert said, "When I caught my trout I heard, 'it's just another lake trout' and 'greaseballs.' Well, I love lake trout!" to much applause.

First place winner Mr. Roick told The Expositor that he hopes to give a repeat performance of his win next year, explaining that he first went salmon fishing 30 years ago off Meldrum Bay. He's now a regular fisher in Island waters, often with friend Gary Cooper of Manitowaning, who told him about the Salmon Clas-

Visiting Manitoulin?

Misery on Manitoulin? Hardly, when a guided

by Isobel Harry
 MISERY BAY—Any day is a good day to visit Misery Bay, Manitoulin's exquisite gem of a provincial park. Thirty-five miles west of Gore Bay, the 1,100-hectare tract of protected land with over 21 kilometres of marked trails through unique ancient landscapes is a joy for all ages in all seasons. Classified as a nature reserve by Ontario Parks, Misery Bay Provincial Park protects the alvars, wetlands, upland forests and animal and plant species at risk that are found here.

In summer, some folks come to the park, deposit their $2 admission into the Ontario Parks machine, and race past the Interpretive Centre straight down to the sand beach. Who can blame them? The water is shallow and refreshing, the charming gazebo offers shade from the tropical-strength sun and the southwest water views are expansive. Lie on a beach towel and that's it, done for the day.

Meanwhile, all around, the park does what it has done for 10,000 years: it's a kind of living museum, one in which the 'artifacts' were deposited when the glaciers of Lake Nipissing retreated and left huge boulders and rocks on a moonscape of alvars, sprawling limestone pavements that host rare vegetation in deep fissures and tiny cracks. Globally rare, alvars only can be found off the coast of Sweden, in the eastern European Baltic region, the United Kingdom and Ireland. In North America, almost 75 percent of these alvars are located in Ontario, according to the Nature Conservancy of Canada (NCC).

Misery Bay's massive alvar swaths stretch out as far as the eye can see: on the beach, they sweep into the water like a welcome mat rolled out for royalty, they carpet parts of the forest floor and play host to countless rare and endangered species of plants (last count was 470).

The park's alvar setting looks surreal, and its weighty gravitas through millennia seems to transport the visitor back in time. It's easy to wander around like this is the movie set for Planet of the Apes; that's one way to get to know Misery Bay.

And it's also why it's good to visit again and again, because each time will be different, every experience will teach us finally to look more closely. "Manitoulin Island," says the NCC, has "the greatest richness of globally significant species and communities of any ecological district within the Canadian portion of the Great Lakes Basin...some of the best representative examples of ecological communities that are found nowhere else in the world, including globally significant alvar habitat."

So, what's the best way to "see" Misery Bay Provincial Park? Stop in at the Interpretive Centre and browse the collections of butterflies, turtle shells, bones, bird nests and fossils; leaf through books and binders on forest ecol-

On this hot August Sunday afternoon, the park is buzzing with visitors, kids and adults in happy groups strolling through the shady forest paths, crossing the alvar prairies and the boardwalk across the vernal pool. Gaynor

Orford, plant ecologist and chair of the Friends of Misery Bay board of directors, arrives looking awfully keen to guide a curious but woefully uninformed reporter through Misery Bay's mysterious terrain.

We set out together on the Coastal Alvar Trail as Ms. Orford describes the park's origins as an ancient flat rock sea bottom first inhabited by Aboriginal people then settled in the 1870s by one man, the highly educated hermit Edwin 'Ned' Saunders who moved from Gore Bay because there were "too many people" into a log shanty he built himself in Elizabeth Bay. When the Ainslie family arrived in 1878, Ned couldn't take the crowds and moved to Misery Bay, where he built a cabin that still stands today. Many of the park's trails, points out Ms. Orford, are old logging for an amazing 10 years!

Huge shout out to our 100 volunteers including Cathy Joyce, our Volunteer Coordinator, our many sponsors who continue to support this event through the years and to everyone who continues to support this NORTHERN ONTARIO event by continuing to buy a ticket. Hats off to our extended "family" who are always there... Todd Corbiere;

Rick Bond; Ray and Joyce Digout; Randy Noble of H & R Noble Construction; Elwin and Patrick Shaw of Shaw's Septic Service; Rodney Corbiere, Jim Keatley, The Manitoulin Hotel and Conference Centre; and of course Manitoulin Transport and their support of the Amphitheatre. And a massive thank you for our small radio family – we love you guys! We look forward to seeing you in 2017 for Michelle Wright, The Washboard Union, Chris Buck Band and the Western Swing Authority. ...when a guided hike through rare habitats goes to the beach

...continued from page 5A roads cut from the bush by those early settlers (some are being refurbished for eventual universal access). Cal and Eunice Sifferd bought Misery Bay properties from Bernard Ainslie in the late 1950s, later turned over by them to the

Now we're bending down every few feet to marvel at Grass of Parnassus with its lovely white cup-shaped blooms, the 'shrubby Cinquefoil,' the strawberry-example, people love to come here to absorb Nature."

And absorb it we do. We see how the beach ridges were pushed back by movements of ice and water; we examine trees such as the unusual 'Nine Bark,' we contemplate how jack pine and cedar grow together, we talk about vital research in the park on Blanding's Turtles, and how moss dissolves limestone to create fossil-like pits, then we pause to scrutinize lichens growing on boulders. "Some of the lichens," says Gaynor Orford, "are 500 years old," as we look at how unicellular organisms called diatoms—a type of algae—colonize the rocks, followed by lichens and then the mosses that hold moisture; this organic and gradual process provides a habitat for the growth of ferns. And voila! Ms. Orford points to maiden-hair ferns growing under and right in the rock where soil has gathered, nourished by water dripping off the rock. Is everything a minor miracle here—or is it the fresh air?

Misery Bay Provincial Park is open all year; during July and August, the Interpretive Centre is open 10 to 5 weekdays, 10 to 4 on weekends after Labour

Day, until Thanksgiving. Day use only, no camping.

To arrange a guide, email your request to: info@miserybay.ca. There is no charge for guided hikes, but the park gratefully accepts donations. The $2 Park entrance fee applies to all hikers (children and elders $1).

After greeting visitors relaxing in the beach gazebo, we're off along the coast, and this is where Gaynor Orford comes into her own as a passionate plant ecologist with an M.A. from Laurentian University (where the Welsh-

Once you've seen and identified these diminutive plants growing in the sand and out of small rock fractures, what was once invisible becomes a riot of colour, brilliant examples of the rare, and very fragile, flora of the park. "Despite the current long-standing drought on the Island," says the helpful trail guide, "these plants are thriving in their age-old and rather tough environment. They're also vulnerable to ice scraping the rock and to fluctuations in lake levels."

Ms. Orford reflects that, "although the park has no big special attraction like the Old Faithful geyser, for Four little girls in blue, actually turquoise, you would have thought we planned it that way. But we all came from our own places, to Garden Shed. We had a bit of a meeting there, Susan, Pauline and I, and were joined by nephew Pete, Leanne, Ava and Leah. In the afternoon I had a game of cards with Mum. She won two of three, close though! I even did a little garden trimming despite the heat of the day, and daylight hours are really shortening, already yet! Tuesday, Tom and Mary Balfe were at Garden Shed for breakfast with their family, Mike (from Germany), his wife Linda, their kids; Leila, Stella, and Audrey, Andrew and his kids, Ellen, Tristan, Myra, Amelia, and Nora.

Thursday, I did my spring-cleaning of my patio area and believe me it was time! Earlier in the day I headed for town, Cal was gone already but he came along when I was at the General Store. Had a most delish mushroom burger there, and then he drove to Wikwemikong. I shopped at The Source and the Dollar Store. Later beat at cards, 10 tables for cribbage. High hands, 240, 2 for Lori Graham, 1 Lyla, and 1 Lina; first Gib and Florence, 946; second Lina and Noreen, 941; third Keith and Lloyd, 939; low Edgar and Rita, 811; door Lina, Lyla, Melissa, and Buck. Congrats to all the winners!!

It was lucky I was laying in my lazy girl chair on Wednesday when Derek walked in the door. He was on his own, Jodi had gone to Mindemoya to see her Dad, who was in the hospital there. So much going on but what a wonderful shock/surprise Tory, Amelia, Desmond and Declan too arrived Friday? They camped at South Bay Resort. But, now are at Green Acres, as I write this. On Friday evening Sherry, Dave, Cal and I took in the Murder Mystery production. I obviously, the good reporter that I am, had a part in the show. So much accurate information? As always a great show, a wonderful wedding singer, a delish supper (first time I've had "Sand Hill Crane") but was a nice evening, thanks to your creativity Liz Green.

Laurene came in early this week bearing gifts again, strawberry rhubarb jam and delish cucumber pickle.

Tuesday we had a stop at Garden Shed for a breakfast meeting, Susan, Pauline and I. Peter, Leanne, Ava Jean and Leah. When we went to pay it was covered! Thanks! Today, Sunday Mum and I got our lunch paid for at Carol's and Earl's, Blair (Sullivan) and Donna shared table space for a bit.

Earlier we had a free cup of coffee at Pierside. Some days you can't lose, though we were losing all the visitors to the Chi Cheemaun, we actually went in to wave goodbye. Kim and Kirby to Clarksburg, Penne, Roslyn and Sydney and Mollie headed for Toronto, and niece Patti (nee Miller), Jim, Victoria, Haven, Trevor, and their mates and six youngsters, and I do mean young, what a bunch of good kids to Collingwood. They were so quiet during the speeches and presentations for Mums 100th birthday party on Saturday afternoon. What a wonderful day. The rain sure didn't stop anyone from coming to congratulate her. Main program; grandson Steve (Martin) MC'd, did a fabulous job, stories, history, during the middle of that, each of us did the presentations from dignitaries. I read Mike Mantha's, Susan read the one from Carol Hughes, and Pauline read the note from the Governor General, David Johnston. From the Queen's representative in Ontario, Elizabeth Dowdeswell, Steve took this one and Millie presented the document from Kathleen Wynne.

Township representative presented on behalf of Eric Russell, Lori Leeson added her words as well. Grandson Lance (Heslop) had gathered up research on Livingstone Heritage (impressive) and McCauley background, and Captain Morgan. The guy who does those commercials wrote and sang a special song for Mum, priceless!

Steve did a little more of her story, Mollie had a poem she had written. Audrie Williamson read and presented a special poem she had written to Mum. Flow-ers presented too from our Senior U.C.W. group. Kim with Lori backup, sang the song he had written for Mum's 80th birthday party, followed by a neat new one just written for this event/cute! Pauline, Mum and I sang the blessing and the food was presented by Triangle Seniors Club and enjoyed by all. Some of Pauline's and Wayne's family, Christine, Dave, Cassie, Jason and Tatyana, Chloe, Ava, Aurora, Wayne, Lisa, Skylar, Emily, Gail, William, Kayla, Sarah, Anita, Alicia, and Sammy. I'll probably be in trouble, I'm sure I've missed some of the "relatives."

But what a convergence of family, unbelievable. Mum's place looks like a flower shop. (Nancy's family too) Mitch and Christa.

Mum and I sat out in front of the apartments and visited with Mary, Dorothy, and Lori. We just came from Susan and Simon's who had a yard full of relatives heading for home. Mickey, Brendan, Owen and Jaxon, Paula, Sean, and Brandon, Jeff, Megan and Rob, and Michelle, Jordyn and Brooklyn, Barb and Carol. So nice to spend time with them all this weekend. Tracy, Matthew and Madison left on Saturday evening's ferry with Pete, Leanne and family. I'm sure I've missed somebody important. Mum was really happy with three girls from Northernnaire Lodge, who worked with her way back when, Sue, Daphne and Joyce.

So impressed with this most wonderful event and milestone. How terrific, so much love, so emotional.

Thanks for all the fabulous blessings of the week. In the evening, the music of Kim and Lori, Sean, Jacob, Sydney and Roslyn, Patti and Haven (Grandma, tell me about the good old days) and the dew wop girls were fantabulous. Lance, Theresa, Nicolas and Brendon headed for home, Toronto after the party, Lance never let on he was in a lot of pain from his kidney stone?

Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada

The AgriMarketing Program helps farmers and food processors compete in markets at home and abroad. It supports the agriculture industry by creating and maintaining access to markets and taking advantage of market opportunities. Available funding: $341 million is available in the form of government projects and contribution funding during five years (2013-2018). Program delivery: The department helps the agriculture industry expand markets and seize opportunities through government projects and contribution funding. Projects are supported under the following streams: Market development stream, builds and promotes Canada's ability to expand markets at home and abroad. Promotional activities help position and differentiate Canadian products and producers, and ensure they meet market requirements. The stream offers contribution funding to not-for-profit organizations to develop and implement long-term market development strategies and small and medium-sized enterprises (SME) to undertake promotional and market development activities in markets other than Canada. Assurance systems stream helps enhance the competitiveness of the agriculture industry by meeting buyer and market demands for assurance. The stream supports developing national assurance systems or standards for food safety, animal and plant health, market attribute/quality and traceability.

For more information on the AgriMarketing Program, please contact us. Please ensure that you identify the stream name when writing to Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada. By telephone: 1-877-246-4682, by email: Market Development stream: md-dm@agr.gc.ca, Assurance Systems stream: assurance@agr.gc.ca or by mail: Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada, c/o AgriMarketing Program, 1341 Baseline Road, Tower 7, 6th Floor, Room 215, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0C5.

Providence Bay News and Notes

The Ride Manitoulin weekend has finalized all of the financial responsibilities they incurred and was able to present a cheque to the Starlight Children's Foundation for $3,500. Plans are already under way for next year's event to be bigger and better than ever. A big thank you goes out to all volunteers.

The presentation on Invasive Phragmites: The Foreign Grass was presented on August 9 at the Providence Bay Centennial Hall. There was a good turnout and a lot of information was shared with regards to the safe and most effective ways of eliminating the Phragmites. Past and present pictures were shown giving us updates on the areas previously worked on and you could see in some cases major improvements. If these techniques are continuously used by (us) the informed public, we can actually eradicate all our invasive plants off our beach and surrounding areas. Education and dedicated individuals or groups of people all working together will save our beach. To find out more about what other towns are doing and how to form work groups within our area please contact: Judith Jones at winterspider@eastlink.ca or (705) 859-1027.

Condolences go out to the Payette family on the recent passing of Shirley (Payette) James from Chatham. The funeral was held there and was attended by all siblings. Verna Young and husband Brett from Manitoba stopped in for a visit with dad Matt Young. They are doing a driving trip out east with son Nicky.

Visiting from London, Ontario is Janet St Pierre. She also has her daughter Annette and her two sons Samuel and James. Claudine St Pierre and Ray Smith are also up for a visit.

A large number of the Cranston clan took a trip down country to Fergus to watch The Highland Games. This was all part of Shirley's birthday gift that was just passed.

The Lake Kagawong Bass Derby was held this past weekend and started out with a heavy downpour of rain. Things cleared up but it seem like most of the big fish were caught during the rain. The fish fry and awards ceremony were held on Sunday, August 14 at the Providence Bay Community Centennial Hall. Music was provided by 'The Islanders' and was well received. A great time was had by all. This is the 27th year for this annual event that raises money for the Starlight Children's Foundation. All of the fishermen that won awards donated their financial reward back to the Foundation. I guess that bragging rights are enough for these dedicated and generous outdoors people.

We got a lot of rain this past Saturday but the fire ban for the township of Central Manitoulin remains in effect as of August 15. Be sure to check www.centralmanitoulin.ca for the most up to date information.

There will be historical walk held on August 19 around the village. Further information can be obtained at the Discovery Centre, by calling 705-377-5025 or emailing discovery@eastlink.ca

The Providence Bay Fair is soon coming up. Don't forget to mark your calendars for August 19, 20 and 21. Our little town is about to get very busy.

If you have anything that you would like to contribute the Providence Bay News and Notes please send in your submission by 3:00 pm each Sunday. You may call Cheryl at 705-377-7511 or you can email prov_chick@hotmail.com

Expositor correction

In last week's edition of Assiginack Council Notes, the note titled 'Assiginack donates to Parent Council' is incorrect. Assiginack has not donated $2,250 to the Parent Council for updated audio/visual equipment but the matter was in fact tabled until the 2017 budget discussions which are scheduled to take place this coming fall. The Expositor regrets this error.

DENTURE WEARERS: Facts You Need to Know

I Need A New Denture - But I Love My Old Ones

Many people are apprehensive about getting new dentures. They are afraid they won't look the same. There is an alternative; It's called a rebase. If your old denture teeth are in useful condition and the bite is good, you can have the denture rebased. A rebase is a new denture with the old teeth. Because we use the old teeth, they look exactly like your old denture but they fit like a new one. Rebases can be done the same day.

When Should I Get New Dentures?

The average life span for dentures is 7 - 10 years. Dentures can be worn much longer, but they aren't nearly as efficient to eat with or as pleasing to the eye. They can also be causing unseen damage to the tissue of the oral cavity and jaw joint. Over the years the teeth wear down and become flatter. The teeth are only able to mash food when they get to this state instead of slicing into the food as they did when the dentures were new. You need to chew harder to do the same job. You may even lose enjoyment during meal time due to the extra effort needed to chew. The wear occurs slowly over the years and you adapt without any notice. Years later though there is a great difference in the dentures and you are likely coping without even realizing it. The teeth can also wear unevenly, affecting your bite. This causes more discomfort and possible problems with your jaw joint. Not only are older dentures likely to break from years of use, they can "greatly affect your appearance due to worn looking teeth, increased wrinkles around your mouth and stains from years of food, tobacco, tea and coffee.

Do you need a relined, softliner, new denture or rebase? I am offering a FREE CONSULTATION so that you can be sure that your dentures are not causing you any unseen harm. Don't take a chance with your oral health. It can and will affect your overall health if you don't take care of it soon.

Yours for better health,
Leanne Bentley, Hon.B.Sc., DD

P.S. - I hope you can take advantage of this offer for your free consultation. Properly made dentures not only improve your appearance, they also help the rest of your body to stay healthy.
