MHC considers adding diagnostic CT scanner

by Warren Schlote

MANITOULIN—Manitoulin Health Centre (MHC) is taking an exploratory first step in determining the feasibility of bringing a computed tomography (CT) scanner to Manitoulin Island.

At the MHC board meeting on January 24, 2019, President Lynn Foster noted in her report that the professional staff had placed a formal request through the medical advisory committee to investigate if there might be a business case for providing CT services on Manitoulin Island.

'Management has been directed by physicians through the medical advisory committee to put together a business case, to see if it could be feasible for Manitoulin. Tim (Vine, CFO of MHC) and I are hoping to work and have something for the March meeting," Ms. Foster said.

In Mr. Vine's report, he stated other hospitals have already begun to explore CT scanning and that they will be a valuable resource.

'With the new regional CFO group as a resource and some other small hospitals in the North East Local Health Integration Network (LHIN) already being on the road to a CT scanner, advantage is being taken of opportunities to leverage knowledge and experience," he wrote.

Ms. Foster stressed that this concept is in its early stages and there is a chance it may turn out to be a poor fit for Manitoulin.

'We will have to have a discussion with the board regarding their priorities," she said. "We have to ask, 'should we focus our funding on a CT scanner or on an expansion/renovation of the Min-much loss nevertheless." Once again this winter, extreme cold and heavy snow are wreaking havoc on Island herds. Deer wintering yards on Manitoulin are located along the entire south shore of Manitoulin, in and

$40,000 in cash prizes for new derby event

by Alicia McCutcheon

MANITOULIN-It's the home stretch for the Manitoulin Ice Showdown taking place this weekend, February 9 and 10, on the frozen waters of Lake Manitou and Manitowaning Bay.

This first-of-its-kind ice fishing derby, the biggest in Manitoulin's history, is thanks to a new collaboration between the Wikwemikong Ice Fishing Derby and The Manitoulin Expositor with $40,000 in cash and thousands of dollars in prizes up for grabs.

This year the derby covers all of Manitowaning Bay, including Heywood Island as the outermost boundary, and Lake Manitou. Fishermen can now fish anywhere they like on either of the lakes, but 300 pre-drilled holes will be available near Bayside Resort on Manitowaning Bay.

"It's shaping up to be an amazing event," says Luke Wassegijig, manager at Wikwemikong Tourism. "And the fishing has been phenomenal. We are hearing stories of great catches from both lakes. Things are definitely start-

Almanac weather predictions spot on

Gore Bay climate data shows trends in past decade

by Warren Schlote

MANITOULIN—This January was cold. Really cold. After this weekend's brief reprieve of slightly warmer weather, temperatures have once again dropped well below freezing, although not quite as cold as the -40° Celsius wind chills throughout the month

Then, there was the snowfall. The Gore Bay Environment Canada weather station peaked at 51 centimetres of snow on the ground on January 25 and 27, a number that has since dropped to 47 centimetres as of press time on Monday.

Although the temperatures have been rather frigid, they were not entirely a surprise to some forecasters.

"Right from the get-go in August, we said there was going to be teeth-chattering cold and ample snow," said Peter Geiger, editor at the Farmer's Almanac. "We predicted it would be a little bit warmer in February, but that it would be small break and it would primarily be still cold."

Mr. Geiger has been involved with the Farmer's Almanac for 40 years and took

Provincial regulation on livestock losses to predators updated by Michael Erskine TORONTO—On February 1, the provincial government announced changes to the Ontario Wildlife Damage Compensation Program aimed at reducing the regulatory burden and making life easier for farmers who experience livestock losses beyond their control following "extensive consultation with farmers and farming industry leaders.

The Ontario Wildlife Damage Compensation Program is a federal/provincial program that is intended to help farmers access compensation when they lose livestock to predators.

According to a government release, changes include more ways to provide sufficient evidence to prove wildlife predation; a more independent and transparent appeal process; better training for municipal investigators to assess predation and compensation that better reflects market

"Helping Ontario farmers manage the impacts of livestock losses, by reducing their burden and saving them time, will allow them to focus on rebuilding their herds and farms." said federal Minister of Agriculture and Agri-Food Lawrence MacAulay. "Through the Canadian Agricultural Partnership, our government is helping producers across Ontario and the country respond to challenges and keep their farming operations

"It's really good," said Green Bay farmer (and former Northeast Town councillor) Paul Skippen, who has had a number of struggles with the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry over crop predation and who, along with fellow farmer and Northeast Town Councillor Bruce Wood has been lobbying the provincial government over livestock predation and crop losses for nearly 12 years.

"This government, in all fairness, said that they were going to try and make things easier for farmers," said Mr. Skippen.

Mr. Skippen said that he has lost four cattle to wolves this year. "Three of those claims went through, two have been paid for and one is still out there." Mr. Wood noted that he has also lost a calf to wolves this year.

According to a backgrounder on the changes, standardized pricing adjustments have been made to ensure compensation aligns with available market prices. Detailed revised pricing adjustments can be found on the ministry's website.

But both Mr. Skippen and Mr. Wood pointed out in discussion with The Expositor that the value of a lost calf is just the tip of the iceberg when it comes to the actual impact of a predator kill.

The last one I lost was $800," said Mr. Wood. "What people do not understand," continued Mr. Wood, "is that the heifer whose calf was taken will get fatter and fatter; too fat to have a calf. It was the first calf for that heifer. It should have lasted 15 years breeding, now all that feed that has gone into it is for nothing. You can't sell it for hardly anything either."

"With a bale of hay costing $30 to $40, it is a lot of money invested that is just gone," said Mr. Skip-

"Someone likened it to setting a $100 bill down on your beside table and having a mouse nibbling it away through the night," said Mr. Wood. "In the morning you end up with nothing left."

Loosening the rules on proving the loss was due to predators will also be welcome news for farmers the duo noted.

Under the new appeal process, notes the release backgrounder, an external group of individuals with predation and livestock expertise will provide non-binding recommendations to the ministry for consideration and final decision. This group is part of the Business Risk Management Review Committee. In addition, the grounds for appeal were clarified in the program guidelines and reviews will be limited to the issues identified by the applicant in their appeal request.

"Before it was a young lady in an office down south who was just denying everything," said Mr. Skippen, who notes the changes will be welcome.

As part of the new regulations,

Green Bay farmer Bruce Wood has experienced livestock losses to both predators and other forces of nature, such as the eight cows he lost due to lightning in 2013.

there will be new training and instruction for the livestock loss evaluators.

Municipal investigators play a vital role in program delivery, continues the backgrounder, updated training and tools for municipal investigators will be delivered to ensure they are equipped to investigate incidences of livestock and poultry predation. As well, the application form has been changed to make it more userfriendly and to support municipal investigators in the evidencegathering process.

The program is now allowing more types of evidence to be considered when evaluating an appli-...continued on page 29

Central Manitoulin passes 1.5 percent budget increase

CENTRAL MANITOULIN—The municipality has largely completed its budget process, passing a motion at its January 31 meeting to approve a budget for 2019 that includes a 1.5 percent increase in the residential mill rate. Commercial and industrial rates follow with a comparable

"I want to express appreciation for all of the work that staff has done to bring all these numbers together and to make adjustments as needed," said Mayor Richard Stephens.

The levy increase is not the entire tax bill story, cautioned Mayor Stephens, as the educational portion of the tax bill has not yet been provided to the municipality.

There is also the "elephant in the room" of those funds coming from the province through the Ontario Municipal Partnership Fund (OMPF) that is currently under review by the province.

'We normally have those numbers much earlier," admitted Central Manitoulin treasurer Denise Deforge. As a result of not knowing what, if any, change will be coming in the amount of OMPF funding, the municipality reduced the amount it anticipates receiving through that transfer in calculating the 2019 budget requirements.

"Our budget is making the assumption about what the Ford government will do," said Councillor Derek Stephens, who added that there are still questions about what the District Services Board and OPP line items will be. "I am concerned that 1.5 percent might not cut it. We do not have clear commitments as to what those numbers will be yet. People need to be aware of that."

Councillor Steve Shaffer noted that the municipality had decided to only replace one of two chillers at the arena that had been identified as needing replacement and asked if the decision had been made on which chiller would be replaced this year.

Councillor Linda Farquhar noted that the decision on which chiller would be replaced would be made at the property committee level, to which Mayor Stephens responded in the affirmative.

This year's budget anticipates raising $4,562,252 revenue from municipal property taxes, up $67,422 from last year's amount of $4,494,830.

Although the budget has been passed at council, residents will have to wait a little longer to find out what is in the envelope for their final tax bill as the education amount has not yet arrived. Schedules for the water and sewer rate increases, which are user pay and therefore separate from the overall mill rate, have also not yet been calculated and passed by council.

During the January 31 meeting council also passed motions authorizing the municipality to borrow interim funds if needed and authorizing the sending out of interim tax bills.

Councillor Stephens noted that the municipality has not had to use the borrowing authorization in recent years and questioned whether it was really necessary to implement a borrowing bylaw.

Treasurer Deforge, who was acting clerk for the January 31 meeting, noted that the borrowing bylaw is for operating expenses and is necessary to have in place as a precautionary measure. "We have to have the funds available should they be needed," she confirmed.

Also passed at the January 31 meeting was a motion allowing for tax capping, a process that limits increases on commercial taxation, although Ms. Deforge noted that at present there are no properties that qualify for the cap.

MHC receives $100K anonymous donation

by Warren Schlote

MINDEMOYA—At the Manitoulin Health Centre (MHC) board meeting on January 24, 2019, President Lynn Foster informed the board that the hospital received an anonymous donation worth $100,000.

"I'm very pleased to announce that MHC has received an anonymous bequest for the use at the Mindemoya hospital site in the amount of $100,000. It has been set aside for a potential Mindemoya emergency department expansion/renovation and I've also been told by Terry Land (the donor's representative) that this was an initial distribution, so there may be more," she said.

The restriction on the fund, from the wishes of the donor, was that it had to be used at the Mindemoya hospital site.

'We are going to honour those wishes and are hoping we would be able to apply these with our possible emergency department expansion," said Ms. Foster.

"I'm very pleased and honoured that this was left to us as a bequest."

'The Mikado' to hit MSS stage February 14-16

by Tom Sasvari

M'CHIGEENG—Manitoulin Secondary School will be staging a full-scale production of the Broadway classical musical 'The Mikado' on February 14-16.

"This is definitely a group effort in putting this production on," said play director Mike Zegil. "There are more than 20 students taking part, including elementary students in the cast.

Mr. Zegil pointed out 'The Mikado' is a Gilbert and Sullivan production set in Japan providing a hilarious sendup of British rule and lifestyle at the time. "It is a love story, with humourous political under-

In the plot, Nanki-Poo, son of the Mikado of Japan flees his father's imperial court to escape marriage to Katisha, an elderly lady. Disguised as a travelling musician, he meets Yum-Yum, the young ward of Ko-Ko, a cheap tailor in the town of Titipu.

'The production includes several musical and dance numbers, and there is humour... there is something for everyone," said Mr. Zegil. Chris Thei-jsmeijer is the musical director and Heather Theijsmeijer is the stage director, while Jill Ferguson and Yana Bauer are providing the production element; Casey Boisvert, a teacher at Little Current Public School, is the choreographer, while Logan Murphy, a former MSS student, will be providing the light design. Willa Mallea is the set painter and Irving Noble and Steve Robinson, along with their classes

"There are so many people involved it is certainly a group effort," said Mr. Zegil. "I'm the junior member in this group, the rest of the team have been working together quite a long time, and I'm in awe of their efforts.

The cast includes Katie Chapman as The Mikado, Rachael Oford as the narrator Ban-Jo, Nick Harper who plays the role of Nanki-Poo, Ethan Theijsmeijer as Ko-Ko, Dana Thomson is Pooh-Bah, Larissa Chevrette in the role of Pish-Tush, April Torkopoulos as Yum-Yum, Lauren Goddard as Pitti-Sing, Natalia Bell as Peep-Bo, Abbie Harper is Katisha, Alexandria Lewis as Tee-Do, Trish Patterson as Do-Ray, Aryanna Recollet-Pitawanakwat as Mee-Fah, Monica Zilio as Soo-Suki, Rachael Orford as Sa-Shimi, Jocelyn Kuntsi as Soo-Shi, Alex Joshua-Mathews as Sun-Nee, and Jordan Goodard, Jack Young, Cameron Meewasige, and Marissa McGraw-Hill as various minstrels, vagabonds, nobles and assistants. The role of Gilbert, Sullivan and the Maid will be played by special guest cameos.

"The kids in the cast have been working very hard," said Mr. Zegil. "Rehearsals started the end of November. They have had to learn songs, dance steps and new music. He pointed out some of the senior students at MSS have appeared in several musicals, while other MSS students and elementary students have never had this experience. "It provides for an interesting challenge but the students have been doing very well. It will be a great show.'

Council to hold closed meeting on filling vacancy

CENTRAL MANITOULIN—Council decided to move up the discussion on appointing an applicant to fill the vacant Ward 3 (Sandfield) council position to February 14.

"We will be moving in camera as we discuss the candidates," said Mayor Richard Stephens.

"We are doing it from the applications only?" asked Councillor Derek Stephens. "No interview? I don't know why we don't have an interview process. I am not comfortable with just looking at a piece of paper.'

Councillor Linda Farquhar noted that two of the candidates who have applied for the position are familiar to council, while the third has provided a detailed outline of their qualifications. "We couldn't really ask them about council related issues," she

"We ask them questions at all candidates' nights," countered Councillor Stephens.

That is different," rejoined Councillor Farquhar. "I am not convinced it qualifies as an in camera discussion," supplied Councillor Steve Shaffer. "I would like that question clarified. We are not talking about staffing here, but council."

'Staff have already opined that if it is an identifiable individual we cannot discuss in open council," said the mayor.

Acting Clerk Treasurer Denise Deforge read the relevant part of the Municipal Act which indicated that council "may" go into a closed meeting if the information to be discussed involved an identifiable

"If staff has ruled that it can go in camera then I am comfortable," said Councillor Shaffer.

"I kind of like the idea of interviewing the candidates," said Councillor Angela Johnston. "Especially in a small community, we may have preconceived notions of the individuals from another setting, but I am not sure what we would ask. I am okay either

"We have done it in the past where we have a room full of people," noted Mayor Stephens, "I agree with Linda.

'Maybe they will have questions for us," said Councillor Stephens. "Councillors wouldn't normally be able to ask questions in an election," suggested Council Farguhar.

"Sure we would," said Councillor Stephens. "We could just go to the all candidates' debate and ask vour question just like anyone else. I am just not comfortable with this, although we have the rule of law to go in camera, we don't have to.'

"We will be taking the information provided to us," said Mayor Stephens. "We go in camera so that we can discuss openly any concerns." Mayor Stephens noted that he had called a number of people to encourage them to apply. "Some of the people I did call applied," he added.

Shooting highlights the need to come together

The events of this past weekend, where a shooting in one of our Island communities led to a 'hold and secure' order being imposed on residents, resulted in all Island communities being gripped in fear for hours. Police personnel from as far away Sudbury and the North Shore descended upon the Island to aid in the search for the individuals who were suspects in the incident.

The teamwork exhibited by the United Chiefs and Councils of Manitoulin Anishnaabe Police Service and the Ontario Provincial Police was exemplary, as they quickly assessed the situation and mobilized to contain any threat to public safety which rapidly led to the arrest of the alleged suspects. But the example of cooperation between police forces can also stand as an example of what can be accomplished if communities work together.

The incident in question may have happened in one of the First Nation communities of Manitoulin, and although it has not been confirmed that drugs are implicated in the altercation that led to the police chase and arrests, it does appear that drugs were at the heart of the issue.

As the recently released 'Manitoulin Drug Strategy' report clearly indicates, none of our communities can consider themselves free from the scourge of illicit and addictive drugs, and by extension the violence that too often accompanies the black market in those substances. Illicit drugs are pervasive and are quite literally everywhere, in every single community and at all levels of society. This is a situation that could all too easily lead to despair and resignation—we must not fall into that trap.

Let us rather take a page from the workbook of the police services and come together over this situation that could very well have resulted in far greater tragedy than it did.

This is not a problem contained to one community, to one street or to one family. There are very few families that are not touched by the ongoing tragedy of drug addiction. It is not an issue that will be solved by playing the blame game, pointing fingers or isolating any one community. This is a problem we all share and the solution will only begin to be found when we all come together to face the issue head on as communities with common and urgent interest.

This is not a new problem. Any general perusal of the police reports of the past decade will clearly show that this has been an ongoing and pernicious challenge.

We cannot expect a challenge of this magnitude to be dealt with solely by the police, or even social agencies in whose domain these societal issues lie. Rather all of our communities, all of our agencies, all of our churches, community organizations and even individual efforts must rise to the challenge and start opening our hearts and minds to listen to those struggling with addiction issues, be it drugs or the even more pervasive issue of alcoholism.

This is certainly not to suggest that vigilantism or taking the law into one's own hand, direct confrontation or drug dealers of their clients is where the solution lies. It is in tackling issues that lie at the foundation of the drug epidemic that our efforts should be focussed and those efforts should encompass all of our communities, working in concert to identify and reduce the conditions that lead someone into a life of drug addiction. There are many paths that lead down the road to drug addiction, and it is important to remember that not all of those paths involve recreational or illicit activities.

We must take action and we must take action together, our children cannot afford for us to be complacent, no matter who we are, where we live or what station in life we hold—none of us can consider ourselves immune.

There are angels who walk among us

A neighbour visiting with a snowblower is positively divine

To the Expositor:

There is a man who lives in Manitowaning who is the designated angel of Walcott Street. He may not look like an angel; he wears a winter snowsuit, has red cheeks when the temp dips to a chilling –21°C, frost bites into his beard. His name is Walter.

At first, I was not aware of his supernatural qualities. He seemed so ordinary, drinking beer with his buddies on the back deck. But he was aware of other people's situations. He just wasn't in the advertising business.

It took me a long time to figure this out. This year's winter hardships brought out my desperation. I just couldn't shovel anymore snow. The drifts in the driveway were over my head. I was totally and completed defeated. I quit. I gave up. I didn't know what to do.

Then here comes Walter walking his snowblower down the street, going to help his friend. I coerced him into helping me. That's what desperation does. And he did, reluctantly. But then there was the next day and the next. And it's still January.

Yesterday, the snow fell ever so softy, relentlessly, all day. I shoveled in the morning. I shoveled at night. It made no difference. The snowplow came along, buried my car in the driveway, 4' high and 10' deep. It was a blizzard triple whammy. The only thing left to do was to go back inside and hibernate out the winter.

out the snow from the back of my car to the street. Still, it was not enough. The snowbanks on either side of the driveway were too high.

Then I saw the front loader coming down the street. There was no

Then I saw that someone had come with a snowblower and cleared way it was getting past me.

This was a situation that required desperate action. Thankfully, it was not required. I saved myself the public humiliation of throwing myself into the scoop of the front loader. The driver was very nice. In five seconds, this huge machine moved a mountain of snow.

These events taken in sequence could possibly be divinely inspired, prompting some of us to believe. There are angels among us.

Province continues the practice of underfunding long-term care

A call to action demanding an appropriate minimum standard of care

To the Expositor;

Along with many Ontarians, on Friday, February 1 I watched, with much concern, CBC News: Marketplace's airing of 'Understaffed and Overworked' together with Marketplace's Q&A session 'Improving care in nursing homes.'

I am a retired PSW (personal support worker) of 30 years, 24 of those working on the nursing floor of a long term care (LTC) facility. Although retired, as a PSW I remain a strong and vocal advocate for both LTC residents (patients) and LTC workers.

The Ontario provincial government (from the Mike Harris Conservative government, through the McGuinty and Wynne Liberal governments, to the present-day Ford Conservative government) continues to grossly underfund the LTC sector and continues to refuse (on the advice of many experts in LTC) to initiate a ministry standard of care to improve the extremely low PSW-to-resident ratio that has caused the worst LTC crisis in Ontario history.

For those who have never worked on the nursing floor in an Ontario LTC facility I think these two Marketplace episodes really opened some eyes. The Q&A session was extremely informative and made all the better as a lot of the questions were answered by Miranda Ferrier, a veteran PSW herself and now the president of the Ontario Personal Support Workers Association. She is someone who actually knows the reality of LTC in Ontario and who answered hard questions with hard answers.

The LTC crisis in our province has gone on for many years, negatively affecting the lives of thousands and thousands of the province's most vulnerable, their families and the LTC workers who really try to do their absolute best under very difficult circumstances.

I say enough is enough. There has been countless complaints and continued conversation about the crisis; there has been blame directed totally against LTC workers and there has been many specials on CTV W5, CBC News Marketplace and throughout the media in general and absolutely nothing has been accomplished to improve and stop this cri-

If you were watching last night, Miranda Ferrier was asked 'How can this crisis be stopped?' Her answer: only one way. By the power of the people!

Enough is enough. It's time! Take action and take action now! Call, write or email: Christine Elliot, Minister of Health and Long Term Care, and demand that legislation be initiated immediately to develop an appropriate minimum standard of care for all Ontario LTC facilities that will directly raise the PSW-to-resident ratio to adequate numbers.

France Gelinas, opposition health critic's proposed "Time to Care Act" suggests provincial funding for four hours of PSW care per resident per 24 hiurs to provide LTC residents with the proper hands-on nursing care they need and they deserve!

Island nutritionist getting PhD in Alzheimer's research

by Warren Schlote

KANSAS CITY—A former Gore Bay registered dietician is now pursuing her PhD in medical nutrition science at the Alzheimer's Disease Center at the University of Kansas Medical Center (KUMC).

"This program is fantastic. The people are fantastic and the city is really great," says Brooke Noble, who has since moved to Kansas City. "Everyone is so helpful and friendly. They go out of their way to be helpful, which is kind of like Manitoulin. It reminds me so much of home."

Ms. Noble's journey to this point has been far from straightforward. During her high school years at Manitoulin Secondary School (MSS), she had decided that spending four years in school was something she did not want to do. After finishing her time there she enrolled in a year-and-a-half long college program studying physiotherapy and occupational health assistant.

"I worked as that for two years on the Island. I liked it, but I found I needed a bit more of a challenge," says Ms. Noble.

She needed to upgrade her high school credits in order to apply to a university. By that time, the high school system had significantly changed. There was no longer an Ontario Academic Credit (OAC) year and changes to the curriculum left Ms. Noble feeling unsure of her ability to teach herself the paper-based distance education courses she required in university-level math, chemistry and biology.

"I decided to go back [to high school] for a semester in my early 20s. Then, I went to university after that," she says.

As she started her life once more as a high school student, her life was changed by tough news from her family.

"A week back into my upgrading, my mom was diagnosed with cancer. That was an extremely challenging time in my life," says Ms. Noble.

It was more than just the assignments and emotional toll that weighed on her. She also had to help support her family throughout the experience.

"I definitely lacked sleep; I didn't always do well on tests and I stayed up all night doing assignments. My parents ran a restaurant (Twin Bluffs) and I was the only kid around managing the restaurant when they had to go away to chemo treatments," she says.

Ms. Noble also had to work shifts in the restaurant and her sister would come in from Sudbury to work in the kitchen.

Undeterred, she managed to get her credits and was soon enrolled at Western University to study a double major of nutrition and kinesiology. She became a dietitian and worked in that field on Manitoulin for seven years. She has worked at all Island Family Health Teams (FHTs) and the medical centre in Gore Bay. She has also spent time at the Manitoulin Centennial Manor and the Espanola Nursing Home and Family Health Team, among others. She says that's what inspired her next move.

"I gained lots of experience in all sorts of conditions, but especially aging, and I felt pretty helpless when it came to being able to help them through nutrition. Families would ask me what to do nutritionally, but there is not a lot of information out there about how we could help somebody with Alzheimer's Disease," Ms. Noble says.

At this point, she had been working the equivalent of one-and-a-half full-time jobs and had decided to start completing a master's degree online in nutrition. She says she felt that having a master's without a thesis component would not give her enough benefit, but online students are usually not permitted to conduct studies of their own.

However, she had already completed most of her classes and had detailed plans of what she wanted to study. She was granted permission to run a clinical trial—a rigorously designed study—on Manitoulin Island in collaboration with the FHTs to assess different types of programming. Ms. Noble would go on to win an award for that study, but she was not done with her education yet.

In August 2017, she was accepted into an American PhD program and moved to Oklahoma to work with an advisor on her studies. Unfortunately, that advisor left the school shortly after her arrival. An old professor put her in contact with a gentleman doing a study on Alzheimer's and a fad diet at KUMC. She has now been studying with him since June 2018.

The program is quite small and can be individualized based on a student's interests. Her education is funded through a scholarship and she says the people she works with remind her of home.

"The content is great. I'm getting to do exactly what I want and everyone has been really willing to help. A lot of the time at this higher level, people are competitive and a bit closed off to sharing their study data, but I don't find people here are like that," she says. "We all help each other and work together and collaborate on our work."

Now that she is hitting her stride, Ms. Noble pauses to reflect on her years of hard work and good fortune that have brought her to where she is today.

"I feel very, very lucky because I'm working with such a great group of people that are very well known in Alzheimer's research. Our work is having a big impact and I'm really happy they've accepted me as part of their team. I hope I can have an impact on at least reducing the rates of Alzheimer's Disease," says Ms. Noble.

"Hard work really pays off. When I was in high school, I didn't think I'd ever go to university," she says. "Every step of my journey has been made possible by the support of my family—all my siblings and parents. I am very blessed to have such a great support system behind me."

Consider making Alzheimer's Disease Prevention as your lifestyle goal for 2019

by Brooke Noble

MANITOULIN—We continue to see a high occurrence of Alzheimer's Disease (AD) because of our aging population. However, the good news is that rates have declined per capita thanks to huge strides in recent research. Currently, there is no cure, however scientists predict that one-third of all cases can be prevented through lifestyle. A lot of evidence shows certain lifestyle factors can reduce risk. These include exercise, nutrition, sleep, cognitive engagement, social interactions, managing stress and treating depression.

Exercise can help prevent as well as slow AD progression. Current recommendations to reduce risk is to exercise at least 150 minutes (at least 30 minutes five times weekly) and resistance exercise (strengthening) twice weekly. To get started, even 15 minutes daily has significant benefits, but more is better. Researchers at the University of Kansas Alzheimer's Disease Center (KU ADC) are presently working to find the amount needed for the best outcomes. What we do know is that to achieve health benefits, exercise needs to be intense enough to raise heart rate and breathing.

Nutrition recommendations for reducing AD risk is following a Mediterranean eating pattern. This pattern is made up of whole foods, mostly plant-based foods. fatty fish, healthy fats such as extra virgin cold pressed olive oil, lean meats, low-fat dairy products, and daily use of herbs and spices. Optional intake of red wine in moderation can be included. However, it is best not to start if you do not drink. This eating style is high in antioxidants and is anti-inflammatory, both of which are vital for AD prevention. It also limits saturated and trans fats, refined grains and sugar, all of which can be negative for brain health.

The MIND diet suggests that dark leafy greens and berries are also beneficial. Further, a KU

Nutrition is a key ally in the battle to reduce the risk of developing Alzheimer's Disease. The Mediterranean eating pattern is a good template to follow. A diet high in antioxidants and is anti-inflamatory is vital for prevention. The above chart can act as a guide to following a healthy diet.

team found that milk and dairy consumption was associated with higher antioxidants in the brain. This is important for brain protection. Participants who consumed three servings of milk per day (vs. those who consumed less) had higher brain antioxidant levels. This same team also found that diets high in glycemic index (processed grains, low-fiber grain products and foods that cause a higher spike in blood sugars after meals) was associated with a higher level of a brain marker seen in AD, reinforcing the importance of limiting refined grains. See chart for more details.

Adequate sleep is also central to reducing the risk of AD. It is important to get 7-9 hours of sleep per night and quality is also key. Try to make sure that your sleeping quarters are comfortable and only used for relaxation. Additionally, if you have a sleep disorder, proper treatment to improve sleep quality is essential.

Cognitive engagement is associated with preserving cognition.

Lifelong learners consistently have a lower risk of developing AD. Some ideas for cognitive engagement include taking a course, learning a new skill, brain teasers or solving riddles. Crossword puzzles and computer games are not backed by evidence-we need more challenge. However, if you like them, then go for it! Or you may choose to use the time for more exercise, which is proven to reduce risk.

Socializing is just as important for AD prevention as it is for mental health. Developing and maintaining even a few meaningful relationships is beneficial, even in those with a genetic risk for AD. Social media interactions have not been found to have the same benefit. Those who are socially isolated tend to have more health concerns and are at higher risk for AD. Ideas for social interactions include joining a walking group or church, volunteering with a community organization and scheduling regular visits with friends and family.

Stress, anxiety and depression cause changes in our body that lead to an increased risk for developing AD. Several local resources are available to help with these challenges. Reach out to a health care professional to get connected. You are not alone; many people struggle with these health challenges. Ignoring them can negatively impact your health and brain.

later. He is currently recovering at home.

Shortly after the shooting, M'Chigeeng was placed under a hold and secure order. Residents were asked to stay indoors until police forces had the situation under control.

"We assisted as well with the hold and secure on the community, which included Manitoulin Secondary School (MSS) for public safety reasons. That's our primary concern, keeping everybody safe," Constable Ford said.

There were staff and students practicing for an upcoming musical at MSS during the incident. Teacher Yana Bauer said police called the school and advised them to join the community's hold and secure.

"There was no story of anything going on at the school. We kept the students safe as advised by police," said Ms.

Word that students were in the school during the incident circulated widely on social media, which Ms. Bauer said could have had negative consequences.

"Reporting on the school may have put our students in jeopardy because there was an active incident going on in the community," said Ms. Bauer.

The school posted on its social media channels that the hold and secure had been lifted at 8:45 pm.

Police were stationed in front of a residence on Pine St. in M'Chigeeng into Saturday evening with a spotlight pointed at the front door. Officers were walking through the adjacent yards with flashlights and rifles at the ready, advising residents to remain indoors until further notice.

Shortly after the first calls of the shooting came in to police, the OPP began to mobilize and established a road-block at the swing bridge in Little Current.

"In the winter there's only one way on and one way off the Island. We were keeping our eye on information provided by UCCM Police on the highways and thankfully our officers were on the ball and were able to locate the suspect vehicle," said Constable Ford.

Nicole Taylor was driving her girls from their Winterfest hockey game at the Little Current Howland Recreation Centre to another game in Azilda when she witnessed the police takedown at the swing bridge. She had heard about the shooting in M'Chigeeng but did not realize the police activity in Little Current was related.

She said she noticed a couple of police cruisers set up at the bridge and figured there may have been a R.I.D.E. checkpoint, but then looked at a cruiser to her left.

"I said, 'he's got a big gun, like a rifle,' and I looked to the right and the other cop already had his rifle out pointed in the direction of the bridge. That's when we could hear officers starting to yell at the people to get their demoya emergency department?"

CT scanners are important in the medical field because they show a three-dimensional view of a person's body and especially the brain, making them able to gather more detailed information than a standard x-ray. In stroke victims especially, CT scans can be used to determine whether a stroke is caused by internal bleeding or a blood clot. If caused by a clot, doctors can administer so-called clot-busting drugs to save stroke victims. However, this medication must be given within 4.5 hours in order to be effective. Having CT services closer than Sudbury would greatly increase a stroke victim's chance of survival.

Concerned citizen alerts OPP to impaired driver

On Sunday, February 3 at approximately 9:57 pm, a concerned citizen called the Manitoulin Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) to report a possible impaired driver on Highway 6 in Assiginack Township.

Officers located the vehicle and spoke with the driver. An investigation revealed that the driver had been consuming alcoholic beverages.

As a result, David Jacko, a 73-year-old male from the Township of Northeastern Manitoulin and the Islands, was arrested and charged with: operation while impaired - blood alcohol concentration (80 plus).

The accused is scheduled to appear before the Ontario Court of Justice in Gore Bay on April 10, 2019. His driver's licence was suspended for 90 days and the vehicle he was driving was impounded for seven days.

The OPP reminds motorists that there is no safe amount of drug or alcohol consumption when driving. Anyone who suspects a driver that is driving while impaired is urged to call police by dialing 9-1-1 immediately.

The OPP cruiser has its light trained on this M'Chigeeng residence that is the subject of considerable police interest on Saturday evening.

hands up and walk back to them."

Another officer on scene advised Ms. Taylor and the two cars ahead of her that they "might want to turn around." When moving their car, they got a clearer look at the scene.

"We saw about four people with their hands up walking backwards toward the officers, and then we just sat at the tourist information booth," said Ms. Taylor.

"They had all four people on their knees with their hands up; we watched them cuff a couple people one at a time ... and put them to the ground."

Witnessing the operation gave Ms. Taylor mixed emotions.

"It was nerve-wracking and scary knowing what had happened but also I was glad to see it, because those people didn't get off obviously. And I'm impressed that they were caught that quickly," she said.

It was a multi-pronged effort to ensure the suspects could be caught in such short time and before they left Manitoulin Island. A tactical unit from the Greater Sudbury Police Service, Sagamok Anishnawbek First Nation Police and all three police services on Manitoulin Island—UCCM, Wikwemikong Tribal Police Service and the OPP—joined forces to arrest the suspects.

"(The OPP's) amazing working relationship with UCCM and Wikwemikong Tribal Police Service really makes a difference. I think it was great police work," said Constable Ford.

Ogimaa-kwe Debassige agreed that the police forces all worked well on this case.

"The First Nation acknowledges the quick response of all police agencies in this matter to successfully apprehend the suspects," she said. "I would also like to acknowledge the crisis response team who attended our community on Sunday."

From 10 am to 2 pm on Sunday, residents were invited to the M'Chigeeng Complex to discuss the incident and receive support from the M'nidoo M'nising Crisis Response Team. Ogimaa-kwe Debassige said there will be further support services available in the near future.

"We will be having a community meeting on Thursday to address concerns of the community and the UCCM Police will be in attendance," she said, adding that she is also meeting with Indigenous and Northern Affairs to discuss a community safety mobilization plan.

All of the accused individuals are scheduled to appear before the Ontario Court of Justice in Wiikwemkoong today, Wednesday, February 6.

Any person with information regarding the persons responsible for this incident should immediately contact the UCCM Anishnaabe Police at 1-888-377-7135, the OPP at 1-888-310-1122 or their nearest police authority.

Should you wish to remain anonymous, you may call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477 (TIPS) or submit information online at SudburyCrimestoppers.com, where you may be eligible to receive a cash reward of up to $2,000.

Little Current Flyers win Tourney!

Congratulations to the Little Current Flyers' Midget team who captured the Friendly Hockey Tournament in Coniston. They lost the first game against the Coniston Flames 7 to 3, then lost against St. Charles 5 to 3. They won their third game against Wiikwemkoong. Back on then the winning side they then edged Timmins in a 1 to 0 shut-out. Not to be stopped, the Flyers won an exciting overtime victory against 2nd Avenue Home Hardware, 2-1. Their overtime goal came from Boston Thibault. In the championship game against the hometown Coniston Flames that beat up on the Flyers in the tourney opener. The Flyers were not about to let this happen again and upset Coniston's vocal fans, 2-1.

The team included: Aaron Leeson, Josh Robinson, Maverick Bushey, Ben Marshall, Eric Varey, Michael Madahbee, Denis Guylas, A.J. Steeves, Raydon Recollet, Dylan Corbiere, Adam Williamson, Boston Thibault, Lucas Abotossaway, Carter Abotossaway and Coaches Craig Abotossaway and Rob Marshall. Get well wishes to Jake Robinson who is still undergoing concussion protocols, three weeks in.

4th Annual Wikwemikong Hockey Tournament

The plans to carry on with the 4th Annual Hockey Tournament are well under way for the big February 15-17 event. Organizers currently have 15 teams registered. In addition to local Wiikwemkoong and Island teams, they have teams registered from Six Nations, Wasauksing, Sudbury, North Bay, Niagara Falls, Walpole Island and Waswanipi, Quebec! Due to its popularity, they will have to be using two arenas for this tournament. Part of their schedule will be played in Manitowaning on Sat-

They are still seeking a few game sponsors in the amount of $100 per game from local groups, businesses,or from families who wish to honour the memory of a loved one or loved ones. Please contact Shelley Anne Trudeau on Facebook if you are interested in sponsoring a game. Each sponsor will additionally receive two weekend passes.

Fitting tribute for longtime Hacker

The Mindemoya Hawks, an aging yet venerable hockey institution from Central Manitoulin, also played in this past weekend's Winterfest event. The team lost one of their original and iconic teammates this past year and wanted to recognize him as they went into this tournament without him. Ernie McDermid was as determined an opponent on the ice as one could meet and had the type of drive you appreciate from a teammate. The Hawks all wore commemorative armbands with Ernie's name emblazoned on them. Rest in peace, Ernie.

January 30 Mustang Minute

The Manitoulin Mustang girls' hockey team continues to dominate Division II of the SDSSA and many wonder of how they would fare in Division I. There seems to be a different streaming orientation that placed a very strong, cyclical squad into a spot that they have been dominating teams, yet cannot demonstrate their skills against Division I

The 'Stangs, since October 30, have been undefeated and have often won by an embarrassingly low opponent margins and that is not great for either teams. Often a team can be defeated by a score that does not inspire them to raise them to get their game to the next level or a winning side may get complacent.

In their last two matches the Black and Gold won on the road 2-1over the St. Benedict's Bears on January 15. The Mustangs came out to a quick 2 - 0 lead on goals from Trinity Leeson and Hailey McGillis -Prior on the road. At home, a scant two days later they beat up on the Lively Hawks eight to zip with offensive stats reported from Faith Taylor with two, and Whittier Gauthier, Ms. Bellmore, Ms. Yachuck, Mya Otosquaiob, Trinity Leeson, Laura Orford and importantly to the Mustang netminder Sophie Bondi for the shut-out!

Panther Points!

This weekend the Novice Panther Team began their "full-ice" season with a bang, triumphing over the Sudbury Wolves, 8 to 0 on Saturday. Like a well-oiled machine, the team showed off their skills with Cohen Rajotte leading the points tally with three goals while Max King snapped up two goals and one assist. Ryan Carter answered in kind with two goals and one assist of his own, while Koda Peltier dangled in one goal and two assists. Roen Deschenes fed his teammates two solid assists, and Bryden Romaniuk welcomed himself back from a short absence with an apple for his teammates as well.

The home opener on Sunday had everyone on the edge of their seats as they faced off against the Nickel City Coyotes keeping the game a tight 0-0 until the third period. With phenomenal goaltending the entire $\,$ game, by Liam Stephens and Brynn Best, fans were treated to some fantastic and exciting saves, making them the MVPs in their hearts. The Coyotes scored a quick goal in the third, making it 1-0, but the Panthers regained ground scoring a goal in return thanks to Cohen Rajotte with some help from Lincoln Rancourt. Additionally, there were some amazing plays that didn't make the score-sheet but, prevented goals and set up goals as tertiary assists, etcetera: Hats off as well to: Carter Morrell, Easton Assinewai, Anderson Bennett, Spencer Cortes and of course, Trinity Cheechoo.

Keeping us all on our toes, the Coyotes scored their second goal in the third, making the final score of the game 2-1. The Panther fans would like to commend their favourite team for an excellent weekend of hockey, and look forward to more full ice games! The Novice Panthers next game will be on Friday, February 8 at 7:30 pm at the Carmichael arena in Copper Cliff next weekend versus the 'AA' Redmen at 3 pm. They look forward to seeing you there!

Annual Kids' Fishing Derby!

The Gore Bay and District Fish and Game Club will once again host their annual Kids' Fishing Derby on Saturday, February 16, appropriately on Family Day Weekend! This amazing opportunity is slated for noon to 3 pm on the hotbed location on Lake Wolsey.

There is a new location for registration at the Lake Wolsey Cabins that starts at 11 am. Most important to remember is that this amazing event that there is a free entry and all participants up to 18 years old are welcome. To top off this amazing gift there is food and refreshments available and prizes will be presented at the end of the derby. For information please call: Ches Witty at 705-282-8047.

Manitoulin Special Olympics team hauls home the metal

by Michael Erskine

SAULT STE. MARIE—The five Manitoulin members of the Northeastern Ontario Special Olympics team have returned from the Ontario Provincial Winter Games with their chests gleaming with metal.

"I had a wonderful time at Sault Ste. Marie," said Matt Bedard of Manitowaning, who came first in the 800 metre with a time of 03:24.20 and the five kilometre, and second in the 400 metre with a time of 01:23 and 4 x 400 metre relay. "The weather was amazing, but the best part of the weekend was having many friends and family there to cheer us on." Matt believes in always doing his best and having fun.

"I really enjoyed the Opening Ceremonies with all the cool performers like the Back Bacon Band, the Soo Dance Unlimited and the original songs for Special Olympians by Kelly McGillivray," said Dayne Tipper of Mindemoya. "The special video messages from people like the NHL player from the Sault helped motivate me. The Searchmont Ski Resort where we snowshoed was really beautiful.'

Dayne came first in the 800 metre, with a time of 06:21.68, second in the 400 metre with a time of 02:53.41 and third in the 4 X 400 metre relay.

Mark Dokum of Wiikwemkoong hauled in three firsts, one in the 100 metre with a time of 00:18:09, the 200 metre with a time of 00:44.22 and 4×100 metre.

Bruce Vanhorn took first in the 100 metre with a time of 00:32.71 and second in the 200 metre with a time of 01:14.62.

Norm Daoust of Mindemoya took first in both the 100 metre with a time of 00:47.72 and the 200 metre with a time of 1:49.34 and second in the 4 X 100 metre

Young Northern Ontario curlers face off in Little Current playdowns

by Warren Schlote

LITTLE CURRENT—In addition to the Winterfest activities at the Little Current-Howland Recreation Centre this past weekend, the Little Current Curling Club was also an action-packed place to be as 11 rinks from across Northern Ontario competed in the under-18 regional Northern Ontario Curling Association (NOCA) playdowns.

"It was a great event. The rinks played their hearts out," said organizer John Hodder who is part of NOCA.

"Last year we had the big event over on the other side (of the rec centre), and this is the next level up," said Mr. Hodder. "This is region four and five, and the winners of that go on to the provincials."

The young rinks that took part in the event were from as far as Sault Ste. Marie to the west and North Bay to the east—regions five and six stretch between Sault Ste. Marie and Mattawa. The curlers said they were excited to show off their abilities and compete at this layed.

"It seems like it's going to be a lot of fun. I've never been to regionals before," said Avery McMillan, vice on team Costello from Sault Ste. Marie. She was joined by skip Nicole Costello, sec-

"As coach, all my athletes showed tremendous effort all season long. All this hard work paid off this weekend," said Judy Olacke. "They gained such wonderful experiences and pride in themselves. Island athletes showed great tenacity and character dealing with challenging situations; lack of sleep, busy schedules, cold days outside and issues technical

"The Special Olympics Ontario Winter Games benefit from a host of volunteers who put their efforts on the line to help ensure success for the athletes," Ms. Olacke added. "I contribute our success to all the support from assistant coaches Katherine Tipper, Sandy Graham and Ruthanne Francis, as well as our volunteer trail groomers Rob Mellan and Matt Bedard. As well, support from family and Community Living Manitoulin staff are very much appreciated."

The 500 athletes and coaches from across Ontario were supported by 400 volunteers and Searchmont Ski Resort was the venue for the snowshoeing events.

"Our Island athletes competed extremely well against the best from across Ontario," Ms. Olacke. "It is now their hope to be selected to represent Ontario at the National Games next year."

"This is our first year curling competitively, but we've been curling together for a while," Avery said.

The excitement extended beyond the players, too. Head umpire Debbie Fortin began officiating in 1987 and said she particularly enjoys officiating the younger age group.

"A lot of these kids I've seen since they started curling and I've watched them develop through the years. And I really enjoy that, watching the kids develop and see them change," said Ms. Fortin, who is based in Sudbury.

Little Current hosted the men's provincials last year, an event Mr. Hodder also helped to organize.

"We didn't have as much space this year so I didn't advertise the event," he said. "Last year, we advertised and the seats were full all the time. We had over 10,000 people that attend-

Lead Trent Smith on team Senecal of Thessalon said his team is focused on a victory.

"We're looking for the 'W' like always—it's always good to win," he said.

"We just gotta take control of the game and make sure it's played our way—we gotta play our own game," added Tucker West, the team's second. Connor

Eric!

Congratulations,

Proud Supporter of our MSS Mustangs

Eric Varey is one Mustang who can regularly be found practicing his athletic skills. Eric is a grade 12 student who likes to go hunting, snow-machining, and chill with the boys when he isn't busy with school work or sports practices.

Eric has been playing sports since elementary school. During his time at Little Current Public School, he participated in baseball, basketball, soccer, and track and field. He continued playing sports when he got to high school, participating in hockey, golf, and tennis. Eric didn't play any sports in his first year of high school, but in grades 10 and 11 he played those three. This year, Eric has done golf and hockey, and he looks forward to playing tennis again in the upcoming season. He has made it to NOSSA for golf twice, and he hopes to do the same for tennis this year.

Eric's favourite sport is hockey because he has been playing it since he was young and has enjoyed it ever since. He likes playing sports in general because they allow him to be himself. Eric's determination has aided him in his progress in sports, and he plans on continuing sports after high school in any way he can. Eric is inspired by his family because they are always there for him when he needs them the most.

Eric is just as book smart as he is game smart. In school, Eric's favourite subject is phys ed because it gives him an opportunity to be more active. After he graduates, Eric plans to go to school to be a powerline technician.

Eric is one of many talented Mustangs, and with his humor, athleticism, and outgoing attitude, he is sure to make MSS proud. Let's go, Eric, let's go!

...Lakes ready for 'Ice Showdown'

ing to heat up out there."

One of the unique features of the Manitoulin Ice Showdown is that all (in season) species of fish can win. Prizes are awarded according to heaviest fish, be it rainbow trout, lake trout, walleye or even ling. In case of a tie in weight, the first fish caught will be declared the winner.

"Our phones have been ringing off the hook with serious interest," adds Dave Patterson, from The Manitoulin Expositor. "Fishermen are really excited about this event and we are attracting serious anglers from around Northern Ontario and across Manitoulin. It's a great boost for the economy during the winter months."

Tickets for the Manitoulin Ice Showdown are $100 and are available for purchase at The Expositor Office and Breakaway Sports in Little Current, Up Top Sports Shop in Mindemoya, Wikwemikong Tourism, Your Dollar Store With More and Oak Ridge Place in Wiikwemkoong, Trailside Sports and Fishy Fishy Bang Bang in Espanola, Moxy's Bait and Tackle in Lively, Ramakko's Source for Adventure in Sudbury and online at wiikwemkoong.ca.

Cash only ticket sales will also be available until 12 noon on Saturday at the three Lake Manitou check-in stations (Holiday Haven Road and Scotch Line Road landings in Assiginack and at the Sandfield Government Dock) and at the Bayside Resort check-in location on Manitowaning Bay and at Your Dollar Store with More and Oak Ridge Place in Wiikwemkoong.

All anglers must register at one of the check-in stations on the lake on which they are fishing and can only fish that lake for the duration of the day. Failure to register means any fish caught cannot be weighed in. However, the fish does not have to be weighed in at the check-in station the angler originally reported to but rather can be weighed at whichever station is closest to the point of catch.

For a full list of frequently asked questions, please see Page 6 of this newspaper.

The list of prizes is seemingly never-ending, from the generous donation of door prizes from businesses across Manitoulin and Espanola to the whopping cash prizes for first place to third place on each lake to the $10,0000 registration prize, which will be drawn Saturday night on Facebook Live," said Expositor Publisher Alicia McCutcheon.

Mr. Wassegijig notes that on top of all of that, on Manitowaning Bay, 50 tagged rainbow trout will be released at Bayside Resort and Buzwah Fisheries and the first angler to catch a tagged fish wins $5,000. And on Lake Manitou, a target weight will be announced Saturday morning, so stay tuned to the Manitoulin Ice Showdown event page.

"The participant that catches the target weight will win themselves $5,000," he adds.

"The Pimp'd Hut is back this year, renamed the Big Trout Contest is open to any species of trout on either lake and, yet again, the amount of prizes on offer is staggering. Thank you to all of our sponsors for helping make the Manitoulin Ice Showdown a derby to remember."

The farthest travelled prize this year will include a half day fishing charter with Screeming Reels, two Manitoulin Expositor Salmon Classic tickets, two nights' accommodations with breakfast and dinner at the Manitoulin Hotel and Conference Centre and return passes aboard the MS Chi-Cheemaun. Prizes will be given out with a light lunch at the Wikwemikong Arena from 2-4 pm on Sunday, February 10. Anglers do not need to be present to win.

Manitoulin Ice Showdown organizers remind participants that no ice is safe ice and that anglers should not fish alone or in areas they do not know.

"We are hearing reports of some very slushy areas, especially on Lake Manitou," Mr. Patterson said. "Fishermen are telling us that pressure cracks are also accompanied by water on both sides too, so please exercise extreme caution. If you don't know, don't go.'

Please visit the Manitoulin Ice Showdown events page this week to check for updates on the derby, ice condition reports and for a list of the many Island businesses who will be offering derby specials all weekend long.

... 'Deer Save' operation seeks volunteers

"If we do not take proactive measures now and prepare to help sustain this valuable deer natural resource, we could stand to lose much more than the economic impact of a diminished deer herd," Ms. Meert says. "The facts are simple: to sustain the deer hunt we need to help the deer herd."

Deer Save is asking for volunteers to help open up trails by using snowmobiles, tractors, snow shoeing etc. Packing down the snow will help deer maneuver to find food and to escape predators. Cedar branches can be cut down to help provide feed.

Ms. Meert asks that those independently undertaking deer save efforts to please call her with the details so they might track the efforts that are being taken. "We caution that hitting the trails in harsh weather can be dangerous, and we encourage you to take proper precautions to remain safe. Always let someone know where you are going and when you should be expected to return."

When it comes to cedar browse, Deer Save urges volunteers to not cut down full trees as this takes away future cover and food sources. Browse is typically supplied to deer along cleared trails by pruning higher cedar branches and letting them fall to the ground where deer can access them. This is a natural food item for deer and can help to sustain them through a harsh win-

Deer Save also asks that volunteers do not conduct winter activities or let dogs run loose near the deer yards to chase deer as this consumes much of the deer's energy.

"If you don't have a property to do Deer Save activities let us know," Ms. Meert continues. "We have many landowners that will allow access for Deer Save activi-

"Assisting the deer herd will not only help keep a positive balance of the ecosystem on the Island, it also contributes to the socio-economic well-being of the area, as was noted in a study completed in 2008,' Ms. Meert says. "The deer are a natural resource, genapproximately $16,000,000 annually, mostly from the out-of-pocket expenditures hunters pay." This study was initiated by MASC Manitoulin Area Stewardship Committee, now a part of Manitoulin Streams.

If your property lies within core deer wintering yard areas, Deer Save asks that you register your land to allow volunteers to carry out Deer Save efforts such as clearing snow from existing trails and roadways, browse cutting etc. All Deer Save activities are covered under Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters' liability insurance program.

"Whether you own property or just want to help, we need volunteers to assist in breaking trails and feeding," Ms. Meert adds. "If you are able to help, contact our office for further details."

Any donations of funds, equipment or in-kind support is appreciated. Funds are placed into a trust fund specifically dedicated and held in trust for future Deer Save efforts.

Deer Save is coordinated by Manitoulin Streams Improvement Association. To contact Ms. Meert, please phone (705) 859-1653 or email suemeert@hotmail.com for further

"We thank all volunteers and landowners for your assistance," Ms. Meert says.

...Farmer's Almanac winter weather predictions spot on over the publication in 1995. His father joined the almanac for its 1935 edition before passing it down to his son, even submitting his forecast notes while serving in the Second World War.

This almanac started in 1818 when the editor decided to predict weather for farmers. They use sunspots and the position of the moon along with a safeguarded mathematical formula to issue predictions two years in advance. Only one person knows the for-

"Over 202 editions, there have only been seven people doing the weather," he said. "People tell us we're in the 75-85 percent accurate range, but different people will tell you different things. Sometimes, the El Niño throws things off a

However, this is not the only widely popular almanac in circulation today. The Old Farmer's Almanac was first printed in 1792 when founder Robert B. Thomas combined meteorology (short term weather forecasting), climatology (long-term weather trends in an area) and solar science to come up with long-term forecast

"The forecast for this winter in Canada that we did a year and a half ago produced a very unique result, perhaps one of the only forecasts for Canada that's had one prediction for the entire country, and that was snowy," said Old Farmer's Almanac managing editor Jack Burnett.

'Southern Ontario (including Thunder Bay and Sudbury) and British Columbia went back and forth but in general, were averaging out to be about normal. Everything else though was colder than normal from Yukon to Nova Scotia."

Old Farmer's The Almanac is the oldest continuously-published periodical in North America and Mr. Burnett said his publication has a similar average of 80 percent accuracy. This year, however, it appears that the newer of the two publications had a closer forecast for Manitoulin Island. He said he does not dwell on comparisons between the two publica-

"We don't really compare ourselves to the folks from Maine. They're nice folks, we know them, they have their ways of making predictions and we have ours. For some reason or another we seem to be way more popular. It doesn't make them a bad product or bad people, we're just different," said Mr. Burnett.

Mr. Geiger had similar sentiments and compared the two almanacs to Time and Newsweek, adding that in the 1800s, anyone with a printing press usually published an almanac that ceased publication after their death.

"They said mild, we said cold. They have their method and we have ours. I'm just happy anybody is reading any almanac," Mr. Geiger said.

Mr. Geiger said that the publication is more than just weather statements for the upcoming year.

"It's a guide to good living. We show people ways to do things and try to be helpful. We really are trying to get people to not waste, pollute and contaminate the world through hints such as, don't use chemicals for cleaning certain things, use baking soda and vinegar," said Mr. Geiger.

Mr. Burnett said the Old Farmer's Almanac has been running a special Canadian edition for 37 vears that includes articles tailored to a Canadian audi-

"We try to do what our founder said which was to be useful with a pleasant degree of humour," said Mr. Burnett.

"If we're not right, we own up to it. We don't change things if they're not looking too good, it is what it is," Mr. Burnett said. Mr. Geiger reflected some of the same constraints with his publication.

We don't have the luxury of changing our minds," he said. The Farmer's Almanac also publishes a separate edition with Canadian weather information.

Weather changes in the past decade

Based on climate data from the Gore Bay Environment Canada weather station, the amount of snow that has fallen on recordsetting days has been holding steady to slightly declining, with the number of days with record snowfalls following a similar pattern.

This season's record low temperatures are far colder than record temperatures that still stand from previous seasons. This winter, record lows have averaged around -31°C but the number of record-cold days is still fewer than last winter. Record high temperahowever, have dropped significantly in the 2018-2019 winter season and the number of days with record high temperatures has only been five, in contrast to 42 in the 2016-2017 season.

Last Monday was too cold for school buses to run safely

MANITOULIN—The January deep freeze had numerous impacts on Manitoulin Island and across Northern Ontario, especially with crews fighting to keep roadways passable and ensuring everyone could travel to the places where they needed to be.

Last Monday, January 28 was the first time since 2014 that school buses had been cancelled across the entire district due to the cold.

This doesn't happen often," said Renée Boucher, executive director of the Sudbury Student Services Consortium, an organization that oversees school bus transportation in the Sudbury and Manitoulin districts and as far west as Massey. She said the organization has chosen -35° Celsius as the temperature below which it must cancel all bus servic-

"When it's close to or almost reaches -35° at the Sudbury airport, our experience has been that all the outlying communities in general have a five- to 10-degree colder temperature. That's what we've seen (last) week—it was -35° at the Sudbury airport but it was -40° in many municipalities," said Ms. Boucher.

On that day, temperatures at the airport dropped as low as -41° Celsius at 6 am, with wind chill values as low as -50°. In addition to putting children at risk when waiting for the bus in the cold, Ms. Boucher said it also causes havoc for their vehicles.

With their new technology, these better or 'greener' buses are better for the environment but not as good in cold weather. Even (last Thursday) on Manitoulin, one bus, as it was driving and doing its run, was gelling up and stalling so we had to transfer the students onto another bus," said Ms. Boucher.

According to statistics from the consortium, there have been five days so far this winter where buses have been cancelled. In both the winter of 2012-2013 and 2017-2018, there were six days of cancellations, meaning this season has not yet set a record for total days cancelled.

Winter is not yet over, though, and it could still deliver challenging days ahead with more cancellations. That is, of course, unless you trust the forecasting prowess of Wiarton Willie who predicted an early spring on Groundhog Day this past Saturday.

Bus cancellations can have significant impacts on students and their school activities.

"I know (last) week, the students were writing exams, so the schools and school boards had to push those back," said Ms. Boucher. "There's an impact on parents as well, because they have to find a way to drive their children into school or find daycare providers for their children.

Manitoulin Secondary School (MSS) faced multiple days of weather disruptions during its busy exam period; Friday, January 25, Monday, January 28 and Wednesday, January 30 were all called off with the last of the exams taking place over the whole day on Thursday, January 31, according to The Expositor's Kids in the Hall columnist Rachael Orford.

Ms. Boucher stressed the importance of planning ahead and preparing contingency plans for when these situations occur, which will inevitably happen at various times during the winter months.

'Something we always remind parents at the beginning of the school year—when we have first time rider sessions for new students—is to always ensure they have a plan B. Plan B is for specific days like (last) week, when a bus is late or cancelled due to inclement weather," she said.

Even when the weather is not cold enough to warrant a unilateral bus service cancellation, individual areas can still face shutdowns. Every bus operator company has operations managers or safety officers out on the road through the middle of the night to assess road conditions and report

Team Chandler falls in Northern Ontario curling provincials, fiancée does well

NIPIGON—Although they gave a valiant effort, Jordan Chandler's rink was unable to secure a top-place finish in this year's Northern Ontario Curling Association (NOCA) men's provincial championship in Nipigon this past weekend.

"Nipigon was okay but it was nothing like the event we had last year," said Mr. Chandler.

In four of the past five years, the team has been ranked in the top four. This year, they ended up tied for sixth place out of eight teams.

Team Chandler is made up of Luc Ouimet, lead; Lee Toner, second and Sandy moved from Thunder Bay to Manitoulin Island last summer and told The Expositor that she considered the tournament a success.

"We did quite well. We're a new team this year going into the competition and had no expectations. We've only played eight games before this weekend," said Ms. Auld.

'It just wasn't great conditions for us. There was bad ice and a few other factors, but we just didn't adjust well to it," he said, noting that his teammates had better games throughout the tournament.

Mr. Chandler's rink competed in the men's east qualifier in Copper Cliff in December. They won their first four games in a row and easily qualified for the provincials.

The rink had another shot at the provincial championship last year when it was held on home ice in LitMacEwan, third. In the playoffs, Team Jacobs of Sault Ste. Marie eked a victory over Team Horgan, also affiliated with Curl Sudbury.

For this year's Northern Ontario provincials, NOCA held the men's and women's competitions together. Mr. Chandler's fiancée Tracy Auld competed in the women's tournament as second on Team Jenna Enge.

She was joined by Amanda Gates, lead and Oye-Sem Won Briand, third. Their rink is affiliated with Idylwylde Golf and Country Club in Sudbury and Port Arthur Curling Club in Thunder Bay. Ms. Auld Scotties championship last year. They had beat Team K. McCarville at that time to advance to the nationals.

"Playing against high calibre players as we did was awesome. It was a lot of fun," said Ms. Auld.

Mr. Chandler said he plans to enjoy his break from competitions until the fall, when curling season ramps up once again.

Also representing Manitoulin Island at the provincials was lead Matt Gordon and second Chris Gordon on team Montpellier. Chris is a Haweater and his son Matt owns property on the Island. They faced Team Chandler midway through the tournament and fell 10-5 to the Chandler rink, finishing eighth overall at the end of the tournament. This is the first time the father-son pair have curled together at this level of competition.

back to Ms. Boucher's organization.

There is a special focus on hills, ice conditions and plow status. She said she also looks at weather statements from Environment Canada and Ontario Ministry of Transportation (MTO) advisories.

'With the six bus operators together, we talk about safety and if they have enough vehicles," said Ms. Boucher. Most companies have 10 percent more vehicles than required, to serve as spares in case the vehicles don't start or break down en-route.

"Our decision is taken at that point, then I contact the four directors of education for the four school boards and talk about the conditions of the roads, and the boards may decide to close the schools," Ms. Boucher

Her organization serves 20,000 students per day. In the region, there are 400 buses traveling a combined 46,000 kilometresthat's more than the circumference of the Earth. She says with that amount of distance to cover, there are a lot of varying conditions that drivers can encounter, including having to drive on cul de sacs, over hills, next to the hundreds of area lakes and down sideroads that may not be as well serviced.

"Our drivers leave earlier in the morning to get to their first stop on time, but they may be delayed a little bit more at each stop after that. The last child may be delayed by 30 minutes at that point," said Ms. Boucher. "We have a lot of kilometres to navigate before our last stop; it's not as easy as parents might believe

She added that people on Manitoulin Island have been excellent partners in helping to assess and manage winter road conditions in her time at this role.

"The townships on Manitoulin have been absolutely great; they communicate what they see to our school bus operators out there, make sure the roads are clear for buses and if they know there's an issue where they will not be able to have the roads clear. they provide us with that information as well. They've been terrific to work with and I do thank them," Ms. Boucher said.

Islanders support women's issues with worldwide march

by Warren Schlote

KAGAWONG—The bitter cold temperatures of January 19 could not deter about 50 people from attending the first annual Kagawong Women's March on Saturday morning.

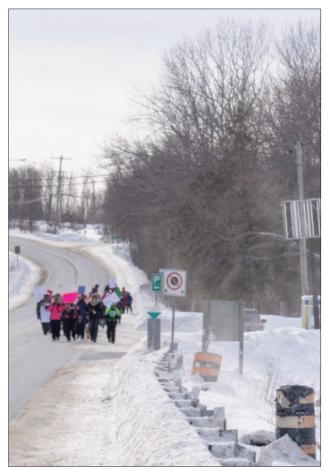

"I was getting all these phone calls and Facebook messages from people saying 'really? Are we really doing this?' and thinking, it's okay, 10 of us will march on the hill, it doesn't matter. But to see more than 50 people show up in the freezing cold and happily, cheerfully band together and march down the hill. I'm just so excited, it was a wonderful march," says march organizer Meg Middleton.

The event saw people from as far away as Espanola come to Kagawong to support the cause.

"It's pretty awesome because I've had a chance to meet all kinds of amazing women that I didn't know from across Manitoulin," says Ms. Middleton.

The Women's March protest began in 2017 in Washington, DC, one day following US President Donald Trump's inauguration. Many of his past comments have been considered to be negative against women so the date served as an important counterpoint to growing cries for equality across the sexes.

The march aims to advocate for a number of causes, including human and women's rights, environmental crises and tolerance. The 2017 event is estimated to have drawn over seven million participants around the world and the 2018 event was supported by millions as well.

Women, girls and their supporters braved the frigid cold to show their solidarity for Manitoulin's first Women's March held in Kagawong last month.

The event began at 9 am in the Kagawong Park Centre, where eager participants had gathered early to make signs in support of the cause, an idea that marcher Susan Snelling had suggested.

"I suggested that we might get together and make some signs and make hats just to really create an occasion for

Coast Guard takes icebreaking to new heights

by Warren Schlote

FRAZER BAY—Clearing ice to keep major shipping routes open throughout the winter is an important and challenging task even in the best of conditions, but the Canadian Coast Guard is prepared. It has a variety of tools available to get the job done and safely and efficiently, including support from one unlikely area—the sky.

sky.

"We will go out and scout ahead of time and try to take some reconnaissance photos and that stuff of the area prior to the icebreakers arriving, to help them to be able to start their planning as to how they want to attack the opening and what routing is going to be the best for them," says helicopter pilot Roger Coe.

Mr. Coe has worked for Transport Canada and the Canadian Coast Guard for over a decade but he has been flying helicopters with other organizations for nearly 35 years. Every winter, he takes part in ice flights to help icebreaker crews plan their operations.

"Every season is a little bit different. Some are a little bit busier than others but generally we always pick up a little bit every season," Mr. Coe says. "Anywhere along the North Channel down through to the St. Clair and Detroit Rivers are usually our busier areas."

Mr. Coe says this year has had a slower start in terms of icebreaking needs because of the milder temperatures in December. However, he says the number of assignments is now growing.

"We will probably be busy here now for the latter part of January through probably the mid part of February for sure, just judging by the forecast temperatures," says Mr. Coe.

Ice flights form a large portion of the Coast Guard's air-based activities during the winter when maintenance on navigational aids is reduced. It also affords the time to focus on the activities needed to keep the operations continuing through the rest of the year.

"At this time of the year, we generally redo all our recurring training and everything we have to do with the aircraft. Then, icing becomes our main priority through this period."

Ice flight teams normally consist of between two and three crewmembers, with the crucial people being the pilot and the "ice pic," or ice observer, whose job it is to map out the ice.

"They're trained in the density, being able to figure out what they feel is there; they look for ridging and stuff like that—just any information that will help the icebreakers themselves," says Mr. Coe.

Those observations are noted and sent out to the regional operations centre in Montreal, where professional ice service specialists make up maps and reports on ice conditions. These are forwarded onto the icebreaker crews and the shipping company receiving the escort. They also provide information to the public if they receive inquiries about the current ice conditions.

...Islanders support women's issues with worldwide march

...continued from page 13 this women's march. And I think we did that," says Ms. Snelling.

Despite the frigid temperatures, Ms. Middleton says the energy from all the eager marchers kept them feeling warm.

"I wasn't even cold because I just felt so amazing that we could all come together to make sure that we address these issues and the things that we all share in common that we want to change and make better. I feel like this is going to happen, we are going to actually make those changes moving forward," says Ms. Middleton.

The march extends beyond women's rights to include making what Ms. Middleton describes as important political changes.

"We want to raise awareness for people. You could talk about feminism and you could talk about equal rights, but it's more than that. It's all of the political things that are happening and coming down the pipeline all the time and our lived experience every day. That's where we really need to see change," she says.

A few minutes before the start time of 11 am, people began to gather at the Main Street Café parking lot where they started their march towards the lake. The many coloured signs hung brightly over their heads as they chanted empowering slogans such as "whatever I wear, wherever I go, yes means yes and no means no."

Their route took them along Highway 540 past Bridal Veil Falls and then down into the village, with a final destination of the Aus Hunt Marina. There, the group paused for a photo and then walked up to the Kagawong Park Centre to defrost and enjoy some light refreshments.

Ms. Snelling says the feeling of solidarity from the event was very motivating.

"There are people marching in Washington, DC, in Chicago, in Seattle, in Owen Sound, in Sudbury. We're not alone. Every step that we're taking, women are taking in other places, too. So it really gives that sense of being part of something bigger," says Ms. Snelling.

"What I'm hoping happens from this conversation is that people decide that they're going to take part in these issues, not just one day a year, but make it a part of their everyday lives," says Ms. Middleton.

For Ms. Snelling, just by participating, the marchers are showing their hope for a brighter future for women and other marginalized groups.

"Everyone who comes here today sees the potential for a better world and wants to find a way to contribute to that," she says.

Ruth Farquhar is one of the participants who came to march through the cold. She says she has been a feminist for years and that the women's march is very dear to her heart.

"Any time women get together, it's important. It's like a community, like a family. If anyone's having issues they know who to turn to. There's so many issues going on in the world right now and politically and I think it's important to have support no matter what's going on," says Ms. Farquhar.

Another marcher, Carrianne Agawa, says events such as these are important to give Indigenous women a voice.

"We don't often get the opportunity to use our voice, and so when there's events like this I think it's very important to participate," she says.

D'Arcy O'Neill took part in the march alongside some members of the Redrum Motorcycle Club. He says old ways of thinking have to change first in order to create better conditions for others.

"Stop the fighting. Stop the abuse. Stop thinking 'I'm better because I'm a guy.' Nonsense. You know, patriarchy. Forget about it. That's how we got there, let's call it what it is."

With all the marchers now in the Park Centre to warm up, Ms. Middleton addresses the room by sharing some of the services offered at Manitoulin Family Resources.

"I wanted to make sure that everybody knows some ways that we can help women in our communities," she tells the crowd. She makes note of its new phone number (705-368-3400) and mentions that it has a 10-bed emergency shelter for vulnerable people in need.

"In the meantime, give everybody who you know some love and some big hugs. Let's just keep this amazing day and this great feeling moving forward," she says.

Ms. Middleton says she plans to host another march for International Women's Day on March 8 and hopes to see even more people out then.

... Canadian Coast Guard takes icebreaking to new heights

John Cork is the ice observer for a Manitoulinarea ice flight in mid-January. He is the former commanding officer of CCGS Samuel Risley—an icebreaker that works in the central Great Lakes alongside CCGS Griffon—and is now the senior advisor to the regional director of the fleet for the Canadian Coast Guard's Central and Arctic regions.

After completing three years of officer training school, Mr. Cork's first assignment was on an icebreaker around Newfoundland in 1987.

"I started icebreaking on the Great Lakes in 1993 and I've been involved pretty much every winter since then in icebreaking on the Great Lakes in various positions and capacities," he says.

There are a lot of things that ice observers must watch for while in the air.

"We're looking for the

This formation is known as pack ice, ice that has broken into small chunks and is floating together in a group. In the open waters of Georgian Bay, this is much more common than fast ice, ice that spans from shore to shore in one massive piece.

They do create a very unsafe environment for the people on snowmobiles," he says. "For a few days after the fact, the ice can shift and end up on top of each other so with pressure cracks, you can have a four-foot wall appear in front of you fairly quickly."

"Our usual caveat is don't go near the track until it's had enough chance to refreeze, and however long that is depends on the weather," Mr. Cork says.

Whenever icebreaking activity takes place around Manitoulin, as it did in mid-January at Fisher Harbour, the Coast Guard will contact snowmobile clubs and local media outlets such as this newspaper to inform citizens about the risks on the water. Anyone who is planning to be on the ice is advised to check and understand the conditions before starting out.

concentrations of ice, where the ice is, how much ice there is, the rough thickness and areas that might give ships problems like ridges, rafting and areas where the ice might be under pressure," says Mr. Cork.

Most of the time, the Coast Guard's ice service specialists are on ice flights to observe the conditions from above. None was available on the day of this trip so Mr. Cork had been given the honours. He says that although many aspects of ice observations can be taught, most of his training has been gleaned through years of experience.

"Navigation in northern Georgian Bay and the North Channel can be tricky because of all the islands and the shoals, so you have to be pretty careful. And then the ice, especially in the North Channel because it's sheltered, there's a lot of fast ice (ice that is attached to land and stretches from shore to shore) and it can become fairly heavy," says Mr. Cork.

One factor Mr. Coe says can be a concern on ice flights is maintaining visibility on a cold day.

"Whenever you're down to about minus 20°C or minus 30°C or lower, you get what they call sea smoke. It's just about being able to try and get in underneath and trying to maintain your visibility, plus being able to see the ice at the same time so the observers can get their job done and get out of there."

Being stuck with no visibility can lead to what Mr. Coe describes as a "whiteout," or more practically, a loss of situational awareness.

"It's like being inside of a golf ball. So, whenever you're down low you're trying to maintain that visual reference to the ground, but it can easily be lost whenever you end up around the sea smoke. It can also happen in a snowstorm or with streamers coming off the bay," says Mr. Coe.

However, the Coast Guard has a new advantage over those harrowing conditions—a brand new helicopter fleet. Over the past few years it has acquired 15 new Bell 429s and seven Bell 412epi helicopters for light- and medium-lift requirements respectively. The aircraft on today's mission is one of the heavier models with ample seating for seven crewmembers (or, alternatively, six crew and one

The new aircraft are fully capable of flying on instruments alone and have advanced autopilot systems. They also operate on a twin-engine setup, meaning if one engine fails the remaining engine would have enough power to ease the helicopter down to a safe landing site.

"Safety wise, they're phenomenal. Even the way the float systems are set up on the aircraft with the life rafts, everything is now external whereas before, the life rafts were internal. There's just a whole pile of safety enhancements on these aircraft. It's a longneeded purchase," Mr. Coe

Even from high up above the ice around Manitoulin, both Mr. Coe and Mr. Cork stress the importance of being mindful of icebreaking operations and exercising extreme caution.

"Whenever the ships go through and are busting it open, those cracks can extend out quite apiece.

Island Sea Cadets benefit from an evening of Robbie Burns

by Michael Erskine

LITTLE CURRENT—The skirl of the pipes and flashing of tartans heralded the arrival of that "Chieftain of the Pudding Race," the haggis, as the annual Robbie Burns Dinner and Scottish Evening got underway at the Manitoulin Hotel and Conference Centre this past weekend. The dinner celebrates the birth of the Bard of Scotland, Robbie Burns, whose poetry and song has left indelible marks on Canadian, indeed global, culture as members of the vast Scottish diaspora gather each year at the end of January (officially the 25) to honour their favourite son. The event is a fundraiser for the Manitoulin Sea Cadet Corps and has proven to be a popular event with Island residents, many of whom trace their ancestry back to antecedents from highland or lowland shores. This year's sold out event was no exception.

Erwin Thompson is all smiles as he greets piper David Beaton during the parade of tartans at the Robbie Burns Dinner held late last month at the Manitoulin Hotel and Conference Centre, a fundraiser for the Manitoulin Sea Cadet Corps.

The itinerary for this year's event followed a by now familiar routine, with the piping in of that most peculiar of Scottish delicacies, the haggis—followed soon after introductions of the head table by the recitation of the Burn's poem 'Address to a Haggis.' As has been the case in recent years, the address was delivered in fine Scottish brogue by the incomparable Bernard Andrews, who acted as master of ceremonies for the evening festivities. Pastor Erwin Thompson delivered the traditional 'Selkirk Grace' before everyone settled into a dinner of the aforementioned haggis, cock-a-leekie soup (potato leek), tatties and neeps, rolls, roast beef with gravy and a host of delicious cakes and beverages.

Entertainment was provided by piper David Beaton, George Williamson on guitar and vocals, 'To the Immortal Memory of Robert Burns' delivered again by Mr. Andrews, a parade of tartans, the hilarious 'Toast to the Lassies' (Mr. $\,$ Andrews again with a cheeky rendition of a Burns' song) and its even more humorous rebuttle 'Toast to the Laddies' delivered by Maggie King-Roi.

Fred Nesbitt delivered the touching 'Toast to Absent Friends,' recalling many Manitoulin Sea Cadet founders and supporters who are no longer with us, before leading the gathering in the singing of that most familiar of Robbie Burns songs, 'Auld Lang Syne.'

Tobermory group disappointed with S.S. Norisle change of tack

by Alicia McCutcheon

TOBERMORY—Michael Marcotte, president of the Tobermory Maritime Association (TMA), was surprised to hear the news that Assiginack council may be taking a different tack when it comes to the Norisle's future.

As was reported previously, Mr. Marcotte had been in talks with the municipality to see the Norisle taken over by the TMA, towed to Tobermory and scuttled just outside the Fathom Five (Marine) Park at Little Cove Harbour in 120 feet of water where it would become a new destination dive site.

Mr. Marcotte said it appeared to be a conflict of interest for this council, referencing Mayor Dave Ham and Councillor Rob Maguire's past interest in the vessel as members of the S.S. Norisle Steamship Society and that he had yet to be contacted by the council or the municipality about any possible change in plans.

"We're just trying to save her from the scrapyard," Mr. Marcotte told The Expositor, adding that the TMA was still awaiting permits to scuttle the Norisle, so all was not set in stone.

"I am a little disappointed, but if I get to see her sailing again one day, that would be beautiful," he continued.

Mr. Marcotte said that if things don't work out with the Norisle, he'd still be happy to give her a home in the depths near Tobermory rather than see the vessel scrapped for metal.

The fate of the Norisle may be up for discussion once again.

Northeast Town council scrutinizes donations budget

by Alicia McCutcheon

NORTHEAST TOWN—The Northeast Town donations budget was under scrutiny during budget deliberations late last month.

Council had received four donation requests so far this

The first up for deliberations was a donation of $1,500 toward the veterinary bills of cats spayed and neutered in Little Current through Judy Fisher's Rainbow Rescue organization. It was explained that the veterinary service bills the municipality its one-third share of each cat spayed/neutered until the funds run out. This past year the municipal contribution helped 11 cats from repopulat-

Councillor Orr, at a past meeting, suggested that because it's a service to the community, similar to dog catching, that it become a line item in the budget. Councillor Barb Baker agreed. Councillors Bruce Wood and Bill Koehler thought it should remain a yearly donation.

Councillor Ferguson asked which ward had produced the 11 cats in 2018. CAO Dave Williamson explained that they came from Ward 2 (Little Current). Councillor Ferguson suggested that they then make it a Ward 2 line item in the budget, meaning that the funds for this would come directly from the Ward 2 residents.

Councillor Michael Erskine said there is a tendency to dump unwanted cats on farmers. "I don't think you can necessarily say it's just a Ward 2 problem.'

Councillor Koehler said he believed that if Ms. Fisher had a complaint in any of the other wards that she would come to the ward where there was a cat issue.

'When do we stop?" Councillor Ferguson asked. "Eleven cats, but the twelfth cat doesn't get done and there's the redundancy.'

Councillor Cook explained that Ms. Fisher gets donations from all over, not just from the municipality, and receives matching funds from the vet.

'Six hundred dollars is a stretch for kids' education, but $1,500 for cats? It's ridiculous," Mr. Ferguson said, referencing an earlier move by council to not increase the Manitoulin Student Aid Fund municipal bursaries.

...donations budget

Councillor Cook made a motion that the donation to Ms. Fisher become a line item in the budget, coming from the common levy. Councillor Orr seconded the motion.

In a recorded vote, councillors Erskine, Orr, Cook and Mayor MacNevin voted in favour while councillors Koehler, Al Boyd, Ferguson and Wood voted against the motion. The motion was tied and therefore defeated.

Councillor Ferguson made a new motion that the $1,500 donation become a line item under Ward 2. Councillors Erskine, Orr, Cook, Ferguson, Wood and Mayor MacNevin voted in favour of the motion while councillors Koehler and Boyd voted against. The motion was carried.

'Ms. Fisher should be advised that she doesn't have to be worried about cats in those other wards,' Councillor Koehler said. "If people have a problem, call the councillor.'

Next up for discussion was Manitoulin Streams.

Councillors heard a deputation from Manitoulin Streams program manager Seija Deschenes at the previous meeting. Ms. Deschenes outlined the work that her organization does for stream rehabilitation on Manitoulin and the impact that ultimately has on our tourism, including sport fishing, economy.

She also told council that having municipal support is important when it comes to leveraging funding dollars from the provincial and federal governments.

"I think Manitoulin work," Councillor Ferguson said. "If they can levy more with our small donation, let's do it."

Councillor Boyd said he was "100 percent behind

"I'm in support of it Councillor Wood added. "They support local contractors; it's a win for everybody."

"I was somewhat reluctant to support it, but after the presentation, I'm on Councillor board," Koehler shared.

Manitoulin Streams will stay a line item in the budget at $2,500.

Council also made a motion to donate $200 to the Little Current Lions Club toward its Winterfest activities.

A donation request from the Little Current Yacht Club, for use of the pavilion and 900 feet of dockage on July 26, was not addressed.

Please check www.ontariocourts.ca/ocj/jpaac/advertisements for an updated listing of advertised vacancies.

At the request of the Attorney General and in accordance with the Justices of the Peace Act, the Justices of the Peace Appointments Advisory Committee invites applications for vacant Justice of the Peace positions in the Province of Ontario.

A Justice of the Peace is an independent judicial officer who presides in court over various proceedings under federal and provincial statutes. Applicants must meet minimum qualifications as set out in the Justices of the Peace Act.

The Justices of the Peace Appointments Advisory Committee reviews and evaluates applications and classifies candidates as "Not Qualified", "Qualified" or "Highly Qualified". Classifications are reported to the Attorney General, who recommends candidates for Order-in-Council appointments to the Ontario Court of Justice.

In addition to reflecting the diversity of Ontario's population, applicants should also display the fundamental skills and abilities, personal characteristics and community awareness attributes set out in the Committee's General Selection Criteria.

Bilingual positions require a high degree of proficiency in English as well as a superior level of oral and written proficiency in French. As Indigenous people comprise a large percentage of the population in the areas being serviced by the courts in Kenora, London and Timmins, we especially encourage people of Indigenous heritage and people with an in-depth understanding of Indigenous communities and the issues affecting those communities to apply for these vacancies.

For detailed information about these vacancies, minimum qualifications and General Selection Criteria, the required application form, and the Committee's process, visit the website of the Justices of the Peace Appointments Advisory Committee at www.ontariocourts.ca/ocj/jpaac. See the Committee's website also to view future vacancies and application deadlines and to sign up for email notifications. Notifications will also be posted on Twitter (@ONAttorneyGen) and LinkedIN (Ontario Ministry of the Attorney General).

Applications must be received by the end of business on Tuesday, February 19, 2019. Applications that arrive after that date, regardless of when shipped, will NOT be accepted. It is the responsibility of the applicant to ensure their application is received by the specified date. HAND DELIVERIES WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED.

PLEASE NOTE: The Justices of the Peace Appointments Advisory Committee is transitioning towards online unpaid advertising only.

Winter is still throwing its weight around, making sure we know we are only in February and giving us weatherobsessed Canadians lots to complain about heh! All good because this is the time when baking becomes therapy. Forget the sugar-laden cookies and cakes and find new recipes that are healthy for the mind and soul. The biggest challenge is adjusting your "sweet" taste buds to the healthy. Once you are there, eating a white sugar laden dessert treat will no longer be a treat.

Breakfast Cookies

Make these cookies by substituting any nuts, seeds or dried fruit you have on hand for the cranberries and pumpkin seeds. Use unsweetened applesauce and the large flake oats (not instant). Oats and quinoa both provide a good amount of dietary fibre which helps you feel full a bit longer. Healthy and good, yes.

- 1/2 cup large flaked oats
- 1/2 cup quinoa flakes, or more rolled oats
- 1/2 cup oat flour
- $1/2\ \mathrm{cup}\ \mathrm{dried}\ \mathrm{cranberries}\ \mathrm{or}\ \mathrm{raisins}$
- 1/2 cup raw pumpkin seeds
- 1/4 cup hemp seeds
- 1/4 cup ground flaxseed
- 1 Tbsp chia seeds
- 1/4 tsp sea salt
- $1\,1/2\,tsp$ ground ginger
- 1/2 tsp ground cinnamon
- 1/2 cup unsweetened applesauce
- 3 Tbsp maple syrup
- 2 Tbsp molasses
- 3 Tbsp melted coconut oil
- 2 Tbsp almond, coconut, or rice milk

Preheat oven to 325°F. Line baking sheet with parchment paper and set aside.

In large bowl, stir together rolled oats, quinoa flakes, oat flour, cranberries, pumpkin seeds, flaxseed, chia seeds, salt, ginger and cinnamon until well combined.

In a small bowl add the applesauce, maple syrup, coconut oil, and almond milk. Mix well.

Add the wet ingredients to the dry. Stir until the dough is thoroughly combined with no pockets of dry ingredients. Set cookie dough aside for 5 minutes to thicken

Using the cookie scoop or a tablespoon place mounds of cookie dough on prepared baking tray. With a fork flatten slightly. Bake until lightly browned around the edges about 15 to 20 minutes. Do not under bake, make sure they are nice and brown. Let cookies cool on a wire rack. They freeze well or will keep in an airtight container for up to 1 week in the fridge.

Sunflower Butter Hemp Balls

Try and find Medjool dates that are soft and moist. I used a 500g jar of sunflower seed butter which made a double recipe. Use your favourite nut butter and nuts. Change is good!

- 15 Medjool dates, pitted
- 1/2 cup unsweetened shredded coconut (plus more for rolling)
 - 1/2 cup raw cashews
 - 3/4 cup hemp seeds
 - 1/4 cup chia seeds
- 2/3 cup sunflower seed butter (or your favourite nut
- 1 tsp vanilla
- 1 tsp cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp sea salt

Place dates into food processor; pulse until broken down into small bits. Add the rest of the ingredients and blend until it starts to stick together. Form into small balls and roll in coconut. Refrigerate.

*I added the dates and cashews to the food processor and chopped them very fine. I then added the date mixture to the rest of the ingredients in a bowl and mix until well

FRANCIS ENDANAWAS

Francis Endanawas of Shesheg-waning First Nation, passed away peacefully with his family by his side on Thursday, January 31, 2019, in his 63rd year. Beloved father of Freda Endanawas and Amy Wabegijik. Francis will be sadly missed by his brother Joe (MaryAnne) and sisters Martha

(Jim) Hanrahan, Christine (Barry Morton), Cecilia; grandchildren Isaiah, Niomi, Mia; his aunt Adeline Sampson; godchildren Alana, Sophia, Clarice and Charlene. Francis is predeceased by his parents Adam and Clara (Niganiwina) Endanawas; brothers Daniel, Jonas, Tom, Clement, David and sisters Helen, Evelyn, Lillian and Sophia. Today we honour, respect and remember a good-good man who touched and enriched all of our lives in so many different ways. Let's try to put everyone including myself at ease here... he did not want this to be a sad day in our lives. He really didn't. For him....for all of us...let's take a moment to shift our thoughts from how much we'll miss him to one of your own many funny, joking, laughing, happy, comical times that you shared with him... There will be many for all of us. So briefly... Relive it. Enjoy it and SMILE... Visitation was held at the Sheshegwaning Community Complex on Monday, February 4 from 1 pm until time of the funeral mass on Tuesday, February 5 at 11 am. Cremation to follow. As expressions of sympathy, memorial donations may be made to the Cancer Society or charity of choice and may be made through www.simpsonfuneralhome.ca.

VINA ROBINSON (MATTHEWS)

September 19, 1928 - January 19, 2019

Vina (Matthews) away peacefully at the Manitoulin Health Centre, Little Current, on January 19, 2019 at the age of 90. Born on September 19, 1928 in Blind River, Ontario, Vina was the daughter of the late Edward and Ellen Ann (MacKay) Robinson. She married Gerald Matthews in Sudbury on May 6, 1950 and they divorced in 1976. She was the loving mother of Kirk Matthews and grandson Madison of Toronto, Catherine Matthews of West Kelowna, BC and Todd (Janice) Matthews and granddaughter Michelle of Plano, TX. Vina leaves behind two sisters, Ruby (Lloyd, predeceased) Noble of Gore Bay and Freda (Gerry) Beaucage of Sudbury. Predeceased by brothers Garnet (Elva) Robinson and Seward (Laureen) Robinson. She is fondly remembered by many nieces, nephews and cousins. Vina was a particularly feisty woman. If she wanted to make something happen, she did so with conviction. Despite many obstacles and a limited education, her intelligence shone. She had a varied business career starting with her own beauty salon at age 18 in Sudbury, On, followed by a Supervisor of an Accounts Payable Department in Downers Grove, IL and then as a Real Estate Agent in Ottawa, On. She had sparkling blue eyes and knew how to engage people and make them feel comfortable. She loved to dance and "The Jive" was something she mastered. She was a delight to everyone dancing with her or watching from the sidelines. A special thanks to the staff at Manitoulin Health Centre and a very special thank you to Jim and Mary Robinson and Bonnie Steele who gave much time, attention and friendship to Vina for a number of years. Plans are forming for a graveside service and a Celebration of Life in Manitowaning in the spring. Notifications will be made. Funeral arrangements have been entrusted to the Island Funeral Home, Little Current, Ontario. Online condolences and inquiries may be directed to www.islandfuneralhome.ca. Memorial donations to the Manitoulin Health Centre or the Knox United Church in Manitowaning would be appreciated.

Memorial donations are gratefully appreciated and can be made at the admitting office to the auxiliaries of the Manitoulin Health Centre and the Renovation Fund in both Mindemoya and Little Current and the Gore Bay Manitoulin Lodge Auxiliary Incorporated, 3 Main Street, Gore Bay, Ontario, P0P 1H0 and the Manitoulin Centennial Manor Auxiliary, Postal Bag 460, 10 Robinson Street, Little Current, Ontario, POP 1K0. Donations can also be made to the Manitoulin District Cenotaph Fund, Box 656, Little Current, Ontario P0P 1K0 or Pet Save Manitoulin, Box 393, Gore Bay, Ontario P0P 1H0.

Tehkummah Talk and Times

Judy, bless her heart, stopped in this Monday morning and took my letters to the post office and my news to be faxed out. I hadn't got dressed yet, my house is a bit on the chilly side though I am warmly dressed. Did reheat my bean bag a few times in the night though. The cats don't cover a big enough area for warmth. Are they still calling this global warming? I should bake something that would warm the place, and me, up. Just had my last bowl of potato soup. It does get better flavour after a day or so. My life is full of paper which I've been trying to get rid of, but then I keep finding poems to copy or getting an idea for a new one?

Hey, I was going to write one of how it was snowin'.

But I figure your settin' home

Writin' your own

These days. Hello all of you out there. My friends in the nursing homes and all who are ailing today, hope you feel better soon.

Well, I had an appointment at the new-for-me Manitowaning Medical Clinic. Now there's the spot to go if you want to meet your neighbours.

I held off calling on anyone to take me in, then when I did I found lots of folks going that way. Lori (darling niece) gave up her and Rick's trip to Little Current and taxied me in.

I met a nice young nurse practitioner in training, named Angela. The effervescent Joan, of the beautiful smiles, told me I could "kick" her if something didn't work. Now she probably knew she was safe. My kicking these days is the complaining type. Lori, Sherry and I met at Loco Beanz for a good lunch and visit. Lori took me to get my car sticker to find the busy Colleen also cat sitting. We drove home in snow again! It was sunny going in. I was totally amazed at the snow banks everywhere. I should have been suspicious as "now" I don't hear the snowplows going by here, only see the lights above. How do you like it so far?

A better turnout for cribbage today, four tables and good mid game, snacks too. Although it was looking good for Cal and Ted with 21 points in the last game Lorrie Lee came through with a 24. First place, Lorrie and Margarie, 943; second, Florence and Gib, 932; third, Ted and Hugh, 921; Betty Jean and Dorothy, 867; door, Donna C, Laura W, Gib P.

Please join us any Wednesday, weather permitting, roads accessible, at 1:30 pm.

Another great place to meet is at the library coffee time, 10 to 12 noon on Wednesday mornings. Always a friendly bunch and lots of laughs. Today, Janice Mitchell gave a very informative talk on her bees. Not too far from here, I don't know if I've met any of them personally! Sure was interesting though. Her honey is delicious. We all got some white clover seed to plant. Winners of the draws: Eileen (honey), Laura (a bees wax candle), me (lip balm) (love it, made with honey and smells wonderful). A great morning.

Dorothy always helps me clean, close up, wash up, though we have lots of helpers too, today, she drove me home as well! Lots of good neighbour stuff going on.

Cal and Jeanette gave me a ride to the library this morning.

I don't know if I have mentioned all the delicious baked goods that Joan McMurray continually has available for the taste test-

My Mexican hat plant has the loveliest crown of pink flowers and my shamrock started blooming this week. Maybe they do think spring is coming?

When I took the euchre results out of my pocket it was hard to unfold, for my pocket was full of snow. It cheers me now I can see all the birds going to the feeder from my lazee girl chair, but I have maybe come to the conclusion that "old" ladies should not be wading in the deep snow to feed the birds. My problem is I'm too dashed independent. I hate asking for help. They could have found me in the spring.

For I went down, backwards, did the whale shuffle (if they have one) to the outside chair, flipped, rolled over and crawled. My foot is sore, but what if! My behind (I'm being polite) was soggy, my coat was covered, well, I guess everything was, lucky me. Anyway, here are the soggy bid euchre results for January 31, 2019, 3 ½ tables: Dorothy Cronk, 183; Donna C., 178; John N., 175; low, Hugh, 42; 50/50, Dave. No moons today.

I didn't have a good night, still looking at the clock at 5 am. Up again at 6, a couple more hours. My arm hurt, I couldn't lay on that side, that was my good hip too. Some people complain, complain.

Will the groundhog see his shadow? He's going to have to do a mighty lot of digging to find the sun.

Well I'm absolutely certain he didn't see anything here this morning. But did you see the pink clouds, pink sky and pink snow as the sun went down? It must have been beautiful looking west. I was looking east.

A two-and-a-half-hour phone "chat" with my sister Mollie in Winnipeg this morning. We ended by reading each other our poetry.

My daughter woke me first, but until last night I'd only had about four hours sleep since Tuesday. I've been ready to fly.

Judy called, reminded me of Ben's show at the Hall. So, I decided about a half an hour till show time, I'd go. What great music, lots of great old songs too. Great guitar music.

Roger to Ben's left, Tim behind on drums, Bonita, Dan, Marriette and/or Kaitlyn on his right.

Lots of draw winners and a 50/50 draw. Nice to hear we have a new young couple in Tehkummah, so we welcome them (not that they are strangers to the area). Much happiness in your new home.

Hey, we've got Valentine birthdays coming up and anniversaries too. My neighbour just down the road! Sis Mollie has a birthday on the 14th.

What do my sister and daughter have in common, their (sense??) of humour, ha. They both laughed when I told my falling down story and they both asked if I was making angels in the snow (maybe if I could have got my arms out). I looked at my "wallow" marks the next day, I laughed too!

Our sermon Sunday, 'the authority of Jesus in our lives.' Our mountains and our valleys, yes. Our church board meeting was held after the service. It seemed like we covered a lot of territory.

Ray drove me down; Martin and Lynda gave me a ride home. Thank you.

Saturday and Sunday, I baked? peanut butter cookies, gingerbread, crispy squares (with salted caramel), banana muffins and molasses cookies.

Second semester has begun! Students are getting used to a new class schedule, new teachers, and new classmates.

Before second semester began on Tuesday, February 5, there was a short week of exams. Multiple snow days on Friday, January 25, Monday, January 28 and Wednesday, January 30 that caused exams to be bumped by a few days. The schedule wrapped up on Thursday, January 31 with exams being written in both the morning and afternoon. Finally, there was a scheduled P.D. Day on Friday, February 1, which went off without a hitch, and another day of no school on Monday due to the freezing rain.

Now for your annual Wiarton Willie Groundhog Day report: On February 2, Wiarton Willie was coaxed out of his cozy home to find out if there would be an early spring or six more weeks of winter. After not seeing his shadow, Wiarton Willie determined that there would be an early spring. Now, do we believe a groundhog or the weather channel?

Joke of the week:

Grace: Bobby, what do you think of my new shoes?

Bobby: I wouldn't buy those, Grace. Anything with velcro is a total rip-off.

There were no sporting events during the last few weeks due to exams. All sports started back up this week. The boys' hockey team played their final game of the regular season against Lockerby at 7 pm on Monday, February 4. The boys closed out the regular season very well and made MSS proud. Great job, boys!

The girls' hockey team played a home game against Espanola in M'Chigeeng at 5 pm on Tuesday. February 5. Thank you to everyone that came out to support the Mustangs!

Manitoulin Secondary School is hosting its annual Grade 8 information night on Thursday, February 7 at 6:30 pm. All

Grade 8 students and parents are welcome to attend!

Just under two weeks from now MSS will be putting on the production of 'The Mikado' from February 14 to February 16. Mark the dates on your calendar! Tickets for 'The Mikado' are available at the I.D.A. in Gore Bay, Guardian Pharmacies in Little Current, Mindemova and Manitowaning as well as at the door. Tickets are $16 for adults and $10 for children 13 and under.

'The Mikado' is set in a fictional Japanese town where flirting has been made a capital offense. 'The Mikado' tells the story of Nanki-Poo, a wandering minstrel, who falls for Yum-Yum, a young maiden who is betrothed to Ko-Ko, a cheap tailor.

There has been some changes to the cast list since the original casting. The updated cast of 'The Mikado' includes Katie Chapman as The Mikado, Rachael Orford as Sa-Shimi the Narrator, Nick Harper as Nanki-Poo, Ethan Theijsmeijer as Ko-Ko. Dana Thomson as Pooh-Bah. Larissa Chevrette as Pish-Tush, April Torkopoulos as Yum-Yum, Lauren Goddard as Pitti-Sing, Natalia Bell as Peep-Bo, and Abbie Harper as Katisha, Alexandria Lewis as Tee-Do, Trish Patterson as Do-Ray, Monica Zilio as Soo-Zuki, Myah Emerson as Ban-Jo, Jocelyn Kuntsi as Soo-Shi, and Alex Joshua-Mathews as Sun-Nee. Various Minstrels, Vagabonds, Nobles and Assistants include: Jordan Goddard, Jack Young, Cameron Meewasige and Marissa McGraw-Hill.

A music joke for you: What do you call a computer that sings with powerful emotion? A-Dell

Upcoming events include, the production of 'The Mikado,' Family Day weekend and sporting events!

Until the next time, "Dream and Believe. Learn and Achieve!

...Livestock compensation

...continued from page 3 cation. For example, secondary evidence, such as herd behaviour and evidence of a predator at the site, like scat or tracks, can now be used to demonstrate wildlife predation. This is in addition to primary evidence, such as blood and signs of tissue damage. However, applicants still need to provide strong evidence that will be assessed against program criteria. noted a backgrounder to the release.

In addition to the changes to the livestock regulations, province also has announced changes to the Commodity Loan Guarantee Program (CLGP) in order to help farmers affected by abnormally high levels of Deoxynivalenol (DON) in this year's corn crop. The changes include the repayment deadline being extended from February 28 to September 30 for the 2018 and 2019 program years, on a pilot basis; increasing the maximum guaranteed loan limit under the CLGP from $120 million to $200 million for the 2019 and 2020 program years, also on a pilot

"With these changes, our government is addressing farmers' concerns and helping them deal with losses beyond their control," said Ontario Minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs Ernie Hardeman. "Reducing unnecessary red tape and providing farmers with the tools they need to stay in business is one of the ways we are supporting those who feed our province."

Both the federal and provincial levels of government have committed to improving the usability of regulatory processes for farmers, while maintaining standards to keep Ontarians safe and healthy, notes the release.

"These program updates will provide greater clarity for farm business owners when applying for compensation under the wildlife program, and more flexibility to repay loans under the loan guarantee program—saving time, reducing burden and relieving stress so farmers can focus on growing their businesses," concludes the release.

Both Mr. Skippen and Mr. Wood note that they will continue to press for an expanded program that will also recognize losses of crops to migratory birds, bears and raccoons.
