In interview, new national chief says recognition of treaty relationships hugely beneficial to all Canadians

by Michael Erskine

OTTAWA—Newly elected Assembly of First Nations (AFN) National Chief Perry Bellegarde admits that the road ahead for the AFN in the coming years is paved with plenty of challenges, but he said that same road also presents “a lot of opportunities.”

The national chief sat down with The Expositor in an exclusive interview last week to discuss those challenges and opportunities and how he plans to helm the AFN to meet the challenges and maximize the benefits of any opportunities that present themselves on the road ahead.

“One of my goals is a review of the AFN charter,” he said. “It needs to be analyzed to see what is working and what can benefit from change.”

Chief Bellegarde is no stranger to First Nations representation at the national and regional level and he is well aware of the unique challenges that face any national chief of the AFN. Unlike most non-Native national leaders, such as the Canadian prime minister or the provincial premiers, the national chief of the AFN does not wield direct power, but must instead build a strong consensus within the assembly of chiefs for any course or position he takes in negotiations. The Expositor asked how that is accomplished.

Island Tree Atlas will feature ‘trees of note’

Manitoulin Nature Club project will seek nominations

by Robin Burridge

MANITOULIN—The Manitoulin Nature Club will be launching Tree Atlas of Manitoulin (TAM) this spring, a catalogue of significant trees on Manitoulin.

“It was Edith Garrette’s idea,” explained nature club member Lynda Lee of Rockville. “She and her late husband Grant organized the great tree search in the early 90s, which created a list of large and significant trees on the Island. She proposed this idea last year to record heritage trees or ‘witness trees.’”

Early surveyors documented trees at the imaginary corners and angles of parcels of land to mark boundaries and called them ‘witness trees.’ This distinction is also used to

US government considers placing monarch butterfly on endangered list

by Michael Erskine

WASHINGTON—The New Year begins with a glimmering of hope for the embattled ranks of the monarch butterfly, the amazing multi-coloured insect whose continent spanning migration epitomizes warm hazy summer days for most North Americans, with the announcement that the US Fish and Wildlife Service is responding to a petition from Center for Biological Diversity, Center for Food Safety, the Xerces Society and renowned monarch scientist Dr. Lincoln Brower by conducting a one-year status review on monarch butterflies as to whether they warrant protection under the US Endangered Species Act.

The situation of the monarch butterfly over the past two decades appears to be dire—the population of the popular insect has declined by over 90 percent in the past 20 years.

Retired Laurentian University professor Dr. Joseph Shorthouse is a familiar sight for many on Manitoulin and The Expositor’s go-to guy for all things entomological and he expressed some guarded satisfaction with the news. “I don’t think it will hurt,” he said. “Especially if it draws attention to changes that are occurring in our environment.”

Dr. Shorthouse compared species such as the monarch as “canaries in the coalmine” when it comes to those changes. “When

Challenge to Green Energy Act based on deemed breach of rights fails at Ontario appellate court

ONTARIO—A three-judge panel of the Ontario Divisional dismissed the appeals of four families, represented by Julian Falconer, who objected to the proximity of wind turbine projects to their homes. The decision was rendered on Monday, December 29.

The four families (Drennan, Dixon, Ryan and Kroepfli) live within 500 metres of three wind turbine projects in Huron and Bruce counties and the projects’ harm to human health was central to the appeals. The couples were challenging the Green Energy Act under the terms of the Charter of Rights and Freedoms on the grounds that owners who live near approved wind turbine projects have had their guaranteed rights superceded by the Act. The case was the first constitu-

Over 4,000 birds spotted at Christmas bird count

by Chris Bell

MANITOULIN—Over 4,000 birds of 53 species were counted in the 41st annual Mindemoya Christmas Bird Count on Saturday, December 20. Uncommon birds for this time of year included a pair of sandhill cranes, two red-headed woodpeckers, a brown thrasher, a meadowlark and a white-crowned sparrow.

Twenty-nine birders in 11 groups and 31 feeder watchers, including five new volunteers, took part this year. Feeders attract birds and organizers are always looking to recruit new feeder watchers who live inside the 15-mile diameter circle.

Conditions on count day were nearly perfect and made for an enjoyable count. The weather was fine with temperatures from -7 to -4°C, light winds, and no snow or rain. There was only about 5 cm of snow on the ground and driving and walking conditions were good.

However, the count date was later than usual and the large inland lakes, including Lake Manitou and Lake Kagawong, froze over the night before count day.

Waterfowl numbers were down this year but two Canada geese were found in West Bay.

Perhaps because the snow cover has been minimal it has been a good count for some birds of prey. Eleven rough-legged hawks were seen in farming country as were the four snowy owls in Central Manitoulin. Several of these northern owls had arrived in November from the arctic and they found the food supply was good here. These four have stayed. Prior to this count we had only spotted one on a Mindemoya Christmas Count this century.

The sandhill cranes were seen from Hwy 540/551 and the two barred owls were heard by two keen feeder-watchers who went out at night to listen.

Blue jay numbers increase in winter and many arrived on Manitoulin this year. They are numerous both at bird feeders and in the bush and 506 were counted—a new high record.

It has been a very wet fall and some low-lying fields were not harvested. The grain proved popular for large flocks of snow buntings

Several types of finches wander the country in winter and the numbers on Manitoulin change drastically from winter to winter. Common redpolls are wintering this year in record numbers a year after we only counted 15 of them. Purple finches were the most seen finch last year but only four were counted this year. American goldfinches are now quite common and were seen at 15 of the feeders. The other usual finches were scarce but all were reported except evening grosbeaks.

Many of the bird feeders were very productive this year with nine feeder-watchers reporting 12 or more bird species.

Ray Webster of Perivale Road West counted 16 species including two rare red-headed woodpeckers and will receive the 2014 award for the most successful feeder watcher. The young woodpeckers were still in juvenile plumage with brown rather than red heads.

The Mindemoya Christmas Bird Count is a project of the Manitoulin Nature Club.

The following is a full list of birds seen: two Canada goose, 50 black duck, 113 mallard, 17 long-tailed duck, eight common goldeneye, 203 common merganser, 53 ring-necked pheasant, 13 ruffed grouse, four sharp-tailed grouse, 32 bald eagle, one cooper's hawk, one red-tailed hawk, 12 rough-legged hawk, two sandhill crane, 167 herring gull, 13 great blacked gull, 159 rock pigeon, 138 mourning dove, four snowy owl, two barred owl, two red-headed woodpecker, nine red-bellied woodpecker, 49 downy woodpecker, 61 hairy woodpecker, 12 pileated woodpecker, one Merlin, one northern shrike, 506 blue jay, 178 American crow, 168 common raven, eight horned lark, 436 black-capped chickadee, 21 red-breasted nuthatch, 39 white-breasted nuthatch, one brown thrasher, 253 European star-

Northeast Town council brainstorms priorities for revised Strategic Plan

by Robin Burridge

LITTLE CURRENT—The Northeast Town council held a special meeting late last year to brainstorm ideas for a revised Strategic Plan for the next four years of council.

Town CAO Dave Williamson explained that historically council revisits the municipal Strategic Plan at the beginning of the new term of council, as well as annually, to help give direction to staff for budgeting for the next year, set goals for the upcoming term and let the community know the direction they wish to take the municipality.

Councillor Michael Erskine got the ball rolling, stating that he would like to see more of a focus on creating a senior and family friendly community.

Some ideas he suggested were paved shoulders, utilizing potential government funding for cycling and more sidewalks.

Councillor Bill Koehler expanded on the idea further, suggesting more benches throughout the town for active seniors such as one in front of the Little

Northeast Town staff move into new Little Current public works garage

by Robin Burridge

LITTLE CURRENT—Northeast Town public works staff have officially moved into the new Little Current garage, which was completed late last year.

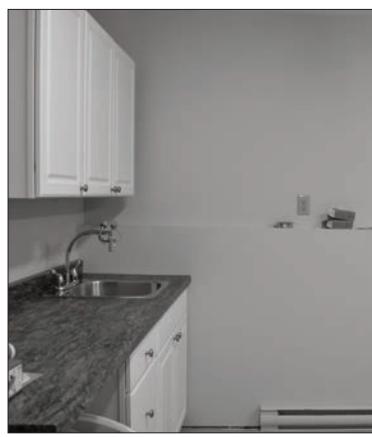

Last March the Little Current public works garage was significantly damaged by a fire which resulted in almost $1 million in losses.

The new building tender for $593,261 plus HST, plus the cost of in-floor heating and other upgrades, was awarded to Sheppard Custom Building Ltd. which commenced construction on September 12.

The majority of the project was covered by the town's insurance, however in-floor heating and other upgrades for the new building amounting to $273,650 were approved by the Northeast Town council

ABOVE: The new three-bay Little Current public works garage was completed late last year and has many upgrades to improve efficiency and functionality such as in-floor heating.

RIGHT: The kitchen will provide public work staff with a space for lunch and breaks.

The third garage and attached office, lunchroom and storage area can be heated separately from the other side of the building, which houses the additional two-bay garage.

MINDEMOYA—Murray McDermid of Providence Bay was singled out for a special award recently when H. Christine Hand, chairman of the board of directors for Home Hardware, informed him that he was to be inducted into the Home Hardware Stores Limited Builders Circle.

"In commemoration of Home's 50th anniversary, we have launched this important tribute program to honour those that have played an integral role in establishing Home Hardware as Canada's largest independent home improvement retailer. The Builders Circle represents an illustrious group of elite individuals who truly embody our slogan of 'Home Owners helping homeowners with expert advice' and who have made extraordinary contributions to support the success of our dealers-owners."

To be inducted into the Builders Circle, recipients must have completed their years of service in good standing as a member of the board of directors or as an officer of Home Hardware stores limited. Only those individuals who have looked beyond their own interests and focused on the greater good of the entire Home network are considered eligible for entry into this prestigious group." Mr. McDermid was on the Home Hardware board of directors for 10 years and travelled from the east coast to the west coast as well as trips to the United States and all over Ontario.

Mr. McDermid was born in Tehkumah and the family moved to Providence Bay in 1931 and when Murray was a year old and his

Municipal leaders should seize the opportunity to learn

In several of Manitoulin's Christian communities, those whose places of worship are located within municipal boundaries, there is often a reminder to congregations that they are meeting in the traditional territories of the Odawa, Ojibwe and Pottawatomi people.

There is nothing implied by this statement, often published in the church bulletins for Sunday services to give some context to the larger environment where Sunday worship services as well as the whole range of other church activities take place.

It's a simple statement of fact: cultures presently represented by Manitoulin Island's First Nation Communities previously had the use of all of Manitoulin Island, including the lands presently occupied by our present-day places of worship. When they are not located in and serve the populations of First Nation communities.

This acknowledgement that people of European decent have not always been here, but that others' ancestors have lived here for a long, long time seems to be a good place to start when considering how our two cultural communities presently co-exist, generally in harmony.

It was, then, something of a surprise to read in late 2014 a report from a meeting of the Manitoulin Municipal Association, the MMA, (the organization where elected representatives of Manitoulin's municipalities meet monthly to discuss matters of mutual interest) that any number of reasons were offered in order to postpone an invitation from the tribal chair of the United Chiefs and Councils of Mnidoo Mnising (UCCMM) whereby municipal officials could be briefed on the terms of the UCCMM's land claim, filed in 2013.

Several MMA members were concerned about meeting with the UCCMM because the claim has been filed and so will in time be subject to scrutiny and eventual arbitration with the government of Ontario and possibly Canada and so wished to have a legal opinion as to the consequences of having some explanations offered to them by the UCCMM.

This has echoes of the time about five years ago when the MMA was keen on knowing what, exactly, was being proposed as enabling regulations were being drafted for the long-delayed implementation of the 1990 Manitoulin Land Agreement. When municipal officials were offered the opportunity to attend some of these meetings but were told they would not be able to report what they had heard to their own councils, as a group of municipalities they decided not to take part in the process and, also at that time, sought legal advice.

In the report, it was newly elected Assiginack Reeve Paul Moffat who seemed to be something of a voice in the wilderness when he observed, more than once, that he felt this would be a useful experience and suggested responding to the UCCMM in order to plan the get-together the First Nations group was proposing.

But such a simple motion was not passed. Rather, the group passed a motion to acknowledge the invitation and to say it would obtain legal advice before any such meeting.

This is rather disappointing because the fact is that land claims are in play right across Canada and that, on Manitoulin, the other shoe will drop one of these days when the Wikwemikong Unceded Indian Reserve files its own, possibly competing, Manitoulin Island land claim.

From the tone of the account, it read as if most, although not all, of the MMA representatives were afraid of learning the details of the UCCMM's land claim and this is odd when weighed against the situation five years ago when municipal representatives wanted to know what was being considered but declined the invitation at that time because of the gag order that came with it.

The response at that time from both parties is understandable for the land claim was being assembled.

But now it's completed and filed in court, surely municipal representatives will want to know how their interests could be affected.

What's the problem?

As noted, several church communities have taken the step of reminding their flocks of the significance of where they live. Not that farmers in the country and homeowners in towns and church parishes hold their lands in any kind of sufferance: they own their properties outright following the signing of the 1862 Manitoulin Treaty that allowed the Crown to survey and sell all of Manitoulin Island except for the portions that had been set aside or "reserved" for First Nations occupancy and so it has been since then.

In the recent 2014 municipal elections, mayors, reeves and councilors were elected (or, if not challenged, were acclaimed to office) to be positive forces in the community and to make the best decisions they can.

Unfortunately, this reluctance to find out about the local UCCMM land claim first hand and to be able to pose questions in a public forum and to have them publicly answered seems as if some of our elected officials are responding out of suspicion of what they may learn, and suspicion, like its cousin cynicism, is the polar opposite of a positive attitude.

They have been chosen as community leaders and that means, among many other things, making themselves as knowledgeable as possible on issues that might come to bear on their communities.

They've been offered the courtesy of a public explanation of an issue that was seen as a vexing one only a few years ago.

They should seize the opportunity now and enthusiastically learn as much as they can about what they Manitoulin Island neighbours deem as important to their future here, expanding they own world view in the process.

Little thought or planning given to preserving Island heritage

More thought and creativity might result in better use of lands

To the Expositor:

The Little Current waterfront has undergone major redevelopment over the past few years and councils are to be commended for their efforts in this task.

Recently, the boathouses of the OPP and MNR were declared surplus by Infrastructure Ontario and the buildings removed, a marked visual improvement to the area.

However, it was reported in The Expositor that the sites are being back filled with rock and then presumably sold. NEMI has for some time indicated its desire to purchase the particular site of OPP boathouse to complete its waterfront infrastructure and presumably this will occur.

A plaque was erected by NEMI sometime ago at the OPP boathouse site indicating its significance to the history of Little Current as it was the site of the ferry docks giving access to the Island until the swing bridge was open to vehicular traffic in 1945. Does Infrastructure

Ontario have the right to fill in this historic site? The mayor has offered his support on the basis it will be "cheaper" for the town to finish their docks should they acquire the property.

It would appear that very little thought or planning has gone into development of this site by council or administration. Would a railing around the site, or perhaps a footbridge over it, be more costly than filling the hole with rock and then decking it? Has this been costed, has a planner looked at the options which may be more aesthetically pleasing? Does this site not have equal historic value to the waterfront as the first lighthouse in Little Current that council recognized and reconstructed at the east end of the docks?

More thought and creativity may result in better use of these lands and retain important history that council has acknowledged.

Neonicotinoid supporters fire back on provincial ban

This non-science-based restriction will disadvantage Ontario farmers

To the Expositor:

Those celebrating the Ontario government's intentions to restrict the use of neonicotinoid seed treatments fail to appreciate that this decision will only serve to hurt both farmers and the environment.

Neonics are one of the safest insecticides ever developed and they have helped farmers adopt conservation tillage practices, which decrease greenhouse gas emissions and enrich soil health.

The product is applied directly to the seed, which means the amount used is considerably less than what is used when farmers have to spray an entire field. And because the seed is planted directly into the ground, beneficial insects, like bees, are less exposed to the product.

The plant science industry is committed to protecting pollinators. We have been working closely with all agricultural stakeholders, including beekeepers, to identify-solutions focused approaches to protect pollinator health. In fact, during the 2014 planting season there was a 70 per cent reduction in bee incidents in Ontario, which is an indication that our collaborative efforts are working.

Unfortunately, the Government of Ontario seems to have a blatant disregard for the efforts that are already underway, choosing instead to be swayed by a vocal minority that is clearly lacking in expertise on the topic and who view this as just the first step in their attack on agriculture.

The government's announcement came on the same day that Health Canada, the federal agency responsible for ensuring the safety of pesticides, said there is not enough evidence to support a link between neonics and long-term bee health challenges.

Should the government move forward with this non-science-based restriction, it would be a big step backwards for the environment that will disadvantage Ontario farmers and stand in the way of sustainable agriculture and innovation in the province.

Sincerely,

Pierre Petelle, vice president of chemistry

Experimental Lakes gains Canada Revenue Agency charitable status

WINNIPEG—The International Institute for Sustainable Development-Experimental Lakes Area (IISD-ELA) has announced that it has been granted full charitable status from the Canada Revenue Agency.

"This is a crucial step in allowing the world-class freshwater research facility to reach its full fundraising potential and to realize its research, educational and operational goals," reads a release from the IISD-ELA.

"IISD-ELA is enjoying a new era, with new management, research priorities, educational programs and communications outreach," said Matthew McCandless, executive director of IISD-ELA. "We are thrilled with our new charitable status, which allows us to ramp up our fundraising efforts to maximize our potential even further. We would also like to thank a generous donor who is underwriting all fundraising administration costs for IISD-ELA."

The facility recently received what it referred to as a "generous donation of $1 million CAD" to create the IISD-ELA Sustainable Enquiry Fund which will provide immediate and ongoing support for post-secondary education opportunities for students at IISD-ELA.

Hundreds of donors from Canada and around the world have previously pledged their support for IISD-ELA through private donations to the International Institute for Sustainable Development (IISD), as well as through a successful Indiegogo campaign that raised over $28,000 CAD for its educational programs and drew support from high-profile advocates such as Margaret Atwood.

The Experimental Lakes Area was threatened by a federal government decision to cut off funding for the world-class facility which receives funding from the UN and a myriad of international agencies. The federal government had announced the closure of the facility on March, 2013 but an eleventh hour intervention by the Ontario and Manitoba governments saved the facility.

The Ontario government committed to $2 million a year to keep the Experimental Lakes Area open and the Manitoba government announced that it would contribute another $900,000 over six years through its funding of the International Institute for Sustainable Development (IISD), which now runs the site.

The Experimental Lakes Area opened in 1968 and is comprised of 58 freshwater lakes, is a world-class, unique Canadian scientific research facility and the only site in the world where whole-lake experimentation (essential for optimal, accurate freshwater research findings) can be carried out.

The Tsilhqot'in case has changed Canada forever

Challenges and opportunities will test the ingenuity, integrity and resolve of aboriginal and non-aboriginal leaders

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is an open letter to the First Nations chiefs of Canada.

To the Expositor:

The Supreme Court of Canada's recent decision in the Tsilhqot'in case has changed Canada forever. Justice has been served. But for how long? The answer is ours to determine.

The Supreme Court, on instructions from previous aboriginal title cases, has clearly affirmed the legitimacy in Canadian law of aboriginal title over our traditional territories. This case and others like it have been hard fought over for many decades. Too many of our elders and dear ones, who devoted their lives to this cause, died with a sorrowful heart over the loss of their homelands and did not live to see this day. Now, however, our ancestor's voices have been heard and vindicated.

First Nations are quickly running out of time. We must begin today building the institutions we need to effectively govern our territories. We have to exercise our rights as governors of our lands, develop our own territorial laws to protect our lands and sacred places, and give industry and the Crown notice that they best engage early and negotiate accordingly.

In a unanimous decision of 8 - 0, the Justices of Canada's highest court legitimized aboriginal ownership over territorial lands and resources, as well as the rights of indigenous peoples to choose how our territorial lands may be used to benefit current and future generations. This is a tremendous victory for us. So, what do we need to do next?

As indigenous peoples, we now face the difficult task of putting our title rights into place. This is a profound responsibility and we must act with vision, determination and care. We must proceed in the spirit of reconciliation.

The law provides us with an extraordinary opportunity to seize the moment and resume our place as responsible governors of our lands. We must not wait for federal or provincial governments or industry to set the stage for us and without us. Colonialism is dead. Canadian Courts have made it clear that they will no longer tolerate unilateral Crown actions or decisions taken with respect to our traditional lands. Our consent matters and we must organize now to make sure it stays that way.

It is also time to develop entirely different decision-making mechanisms for determining how we can better govern and use our aboriginal title lands and resources. As we have long been calling for, we need to create new government-to-government relationships of mutual responsibility and respect. Together, federal, provincial and indigenous governments must identify and formulate those new structures and processes for implementing aboriginal title meaningfully and in a manner that will foster reconciliation and prosperity for all.

This is entirely possible.

The challenges and opportunities that lie before us will test the ingenuity, integrity and resolve of aboriginal and non-aboriginal leaders within government and industry. Implementing this decision will define Canada as a just and prosperous society. Failing to act on and implement title rights, will only continue the legacy of injustice and denial of fundamental constitutional and human rights, fostering even greater uncertainty, acrimony and injustice.

We are all here to stay. So what will it be? It is up to us.

Contradictions, bias undermine credibility of the Wind Turbine Noise Study

Dismay that recently released Health Canada Wind Turbine study ignored the distress of real people

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is an open letter to the Right Honourable Stephen Harper, prime minister; and the Honourable Rona Ambrose, Minister of Health, which has been published here at the author's request.

To the Expositor:

The Multi-municipal Wind Turbine Working Group is comprised of elected municipal councillors and appointed citizens from parts of southern Ontario where approximately 30 percent of industrial wind turbines are concentrated. Over the past several years we have received a growing number of delegations from constituents whose health has been adversely affected by proximity to the wind turbines. It is not easy to listen to people who continue to suffer from ringing and pressure in the ears, pounding vibrations in the head and chest, nausea, dizziness and the ongoing inability to sleep. Their stories are especially disturbing because we know these people; we know they are not lying; and it is our responsibility under the Municipal Act to protect their health.

We are dismayed that the recently released Health Canada Wind Turbine Noise and Health Study has ignored the distress of real people by hiding behind meaningless "estimated" noise projections and predictive modeling rather than first making professional clinical observations based on the histories of actual sufferers. Investigation of anecdotal evidence is the foundation of all medicine. The Health Canada study summary contains no reference to the growing body of research that contradicts the main theme of the summary. Our Grey-Bruce Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Hazel Lynn, has found 18 peer-reviewed studies that "provide reasonable evidence...that an association exists between wind turbines and distress in humans." The Brown County (Wisconsin) Board of Health has declared its wind turbines a "public health nuisance" and a "human health hazard for all people...who are exposed to Infrasound/Low Frequency Noise and other emissions potentially harmful to human health."

The key findings have been released without data for verification and without peer review. Epidemiologists have pointed out that the study lacks scientific credibility. Gaps, biases and errors in methodology make it unreliable. For example, only 1,234 out of the 2,004 dwellings selected responded to the survey compromising its validity. Only 20 percent of the homes studied were "near" turbines. And yet homes up to 10 kilometres away were included, diluting the results from the homes near the turbines. And the serious issues of low frequency noise, cyclical sound and amplitude modulation were simply overlooked.

At the same time, the study contradicts itself. It found that wind turbine noise is "statistically related to several self-reported health effects including blood pressure, migraines, tinnitus, dizziness, and disturbed sleep." And yet the key findings which have been widely publicized claim that "no evidence was found to support a link between exposure to wind turbine noise and any of the self-reported illnesses." Does Health Canada no longer advocate the precautionary principle, which calls for rigorous caution when the safety of any group is even remotely threatened, acknowledging that lack of full scientific certainty should not be used as a reason for postponing measures to protect them?

It is our belief that the premature marketing of the key findings has been a disservice to the people of Canada, an insult to those who continue to suffer the adverse effects of the turbines, and has resulted in loss of respect and credibility for Health Canada. We await your explanation as to how Health Canada came to its conclusion that there are no health problems when obviously there are.

Family of missing foster child thanks Island community for his safe return

A big thank you to the officers who worked through the night to find him

To the Expositor:

Late last month our family went through something I hope and pray we never have to endure again; the disappearance of a child. Although he was our foster child we had grown to love him as our own in the year he was with us so the worry and heartache was the same. Because of the circumstances surrounding his disappearance an amber alert could not be issued. As a parent I felt pretty helpless so I turned to social media and our local community for help. The help came in droves and far exceeded my expectations. I am writing this letter today to express my sincere gratitude to those who acted fast and spread the word.

The Facebook post was spread as far as B.C. and the Yukon. I am so proud of our Island community and I am proud to be a part of it. Thousands of people were looking for him because of the fast actions of so many people. Thank you also to those who called with tips and thank you to his friends who were able to help aid the police in their investigation. Also a big thank you to the officers who worked through the night trying to find him. Because of all of you he is safe today. I can never say it enough, thank you!

MP for Rankin Inlet should be dropped off to fend for herself at the landfill

We would see how she feels about getting her meals from the dump

To the Expositor:

The Member of Parliament responsible for the Rankin Inlet does not seem to care about her constituency because people living in this area have to scavenge the dump for food because they cannot afford it. The grocery store is too expensive, and if it were not for the leak, nobody would have known about this. People who are living in this community are not saying too much since they are probably better off than the people that have to do this for their survival. That's how it is sometimes in communities, people who are well off will not speak-up for others who are struggling to make ends meet. Sometimes it even happens within a family. People who offer no support and don't speak-up for others are just giving more power to the government and then the government will just do as it wishes with that power. Racism does exist within the government, there are some members who are racist and it just shows how this Harper government is treating aborigines in this country, very inhumane. My advice is to drop Environment Minister Leona Aglukkaq in the dump somewhere and just leave her there to fend for herself. She would have to get her meals from the dump and we'll see how she feels about that. For me, I am not very nice when it comes to politicians because I know them too well with all the inhumane things they do to others is not right.

Assiginack Council Notes

Radar on Cardwell Street

After reviewing the December 2 minutes of Assiginack council, Councillor Leslie Fields informed council that she brought the proposition forward to the Community Policing Advisory Committee (CPAC) of using the OPP's radar sign (which posts drivers' speeds on a large digital display) along the new and improved Cardwell Street.

CPAC members agreed with the councillor, but the radar will have to wait until the New Year when it is repaired.

Strategic Plan

Project and events coordinator Jackie White gave a presentation to council on the benefits of partnering with LAMBAC to create a strategic plan for council over the next four years of term.

"With a new council comes new ideas and a chance to do long-term planning to ensure Assiginack has a strong future while at the same time meeting the needs of the residents," she said. "LAMBAC is within their mandate to offer municipalities guidance through strategic planning at no cost to the municipality. They will assist by preparing surveys, collecting data and then present their findings to council."

Ms. White explained that LAMBAC would meet with council in the New Year, learn the goals of council, do research in the community and then come back to council with their findings to help council create a plan.

Council passed a motion to have Ms. White move ahead to contact LAMBAC.

Upcoming presentation

Ms. White pitched the idea of having Assiginack Public School Grade 7/8 teacher Heather Pennie give a presentation to council on '21st Century learning in Ontario.'

"School is not the same as when we were students," the presentation description goes. "Times are changing and we now live in a highly technological world and our schools need to keep pace with our society. Students no longer need to focus on just the traditional reading, writing and arithmetic. We now need to teach our children the 4 Cs: communication, collaboration, creativity and critical thinking. This will help prepare our children for their future, not our past."

Councillor Fields suggested the library board be invited to hear the discussion as well, with Ms. White agreeing.

McLean's Park overhaul

Ms. White was pleased to report to council the recent presentation from RBC and its Learn to Play Project in the amount of $22,500. Assiginack had submitted a grant proposal for McLean's Park titled 'Hike, Bike, Ski and Snowshoe,' asking for the funds to make the trails year-round accessible as well as adding features such as picnic tables, signage, bicycle stands and more.

Councillor Hugh Moggy thanked Ms. White for her work in securing the funds while Councillor Fields noted McLean's Park's current use for mountain bikers under the direction of Rob Mellan and Alec Anstice.

"It's a real gem," she added.

Accounts payable

Council approved accounts payable in the amount of $193,451.09, general, and $39,484.67, payroll.

Airport dilemma

Council reviewed a letter from Manitoulin East Municipal Airport Commission Chair Marcel Gauthier, outlining the commission's concerns to Nav Canada on the impending administrative changes whereby the ongoing service costs associated with maintaining instrument flight rules approaches at smaller airports

Law & Order

Cash and cigarettes stolen in break and enter

On December 31, 2014, UCCM Anishnaabe Police received a report of a break and enter that occurred on Lakeview Drive in M'Chigeeng. A storeowner had attended the confectionary/cigarette store, located in front of his residence, to lock up for the night. It was discovered that the building had been broken into sometime between 7:30 and 9:15 pm that evening. An unknown person had entered the store and located a cash box and removed cash amounting to approximately $300. In addition to the cash, several cartons of cigarettes were also taken. Officers attended the scene and were able to locate physical evidence that will be sent for examination to assist in the identity of the suspect.

This case is remains under investigation and police are asking anyone with information to please contact the UCCM Anishnaabe Police at 1-888-377-7135 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Expositor correction

In the December 22, 2014 article in The Expositor entitled "Kagawong luthier a master craftsman of exquisite musical instruments," Matt Maranger's website address was given incorrectly. To view and order Matt's handmade guitars, visit www.humco.co as the airports would be downloaded to the airport commission to pay. The airport itself does not have the resources, approximately $4,000 a year, to absorb the expenses. The same letter was sent and received by the Town of Northeastern Manitoulin and the Islands, the other partner in the municipal airport at Ten Mile Point.

School closure process to change

An email from the Association of Municipalities of Ontario (AMO) regarding the Ministry of Education's proposed new process for school closures explained that the Pupil Accommodation Review Guidelines is changing, including a new role for municipal governments in the Accommodation Review Committee (ARC) process. This is a shift away from the previous process which considered impact on school closures on community well-being and the local economy. The new model features a more exclusive focus on student achievement, reduction in the duration and number of public meetings required for the ARC process and provisions to consider school closings without an ARC, according to the letter from AMO.

Councillor Fields, a retired educator, questioned whether it was premature to send this notification. "It seems to me that some of this information should have come from the ministry, and not AMO," she said.

Assiginack CAO Alton Hobbs said it was "incredibly poor timing" to send an information item such as this out before Christmas.

Councillor Moggy suggested that this be forwarded on to Rainbow District School Board trustee Larry Killens. All agreed.

Age-Friendly Community Planning

Council received notification from the Minister Responsible for Seniors Affairs regarding the Age-Friendly Community Planning Grant Program which is open to local governments and eligible community organizations and which provides funding to support strategic planning activities that make communities more age-friendly and helps seniors contribute to all aspects of life.

Applications are open until January 30, 2015.

"This seems like a perfect opportunity," said Councillor Fields.

"I was glad to see this," added Councillor Moggy.

Principal retiring

Council received a note from Assiginack Public School Principal Margaret Stringer, informing them of her plans to retire at the end of December.

Assiginack council agreed to send Ms. Stringer a letter of congratulations.

EMS Awards

Following review of the Manitoulin-Sudbury District Services Board CAO's Quarterly Activity Report, Councillor Fields acknowledged the Exemplary Service Medals received by Island paramedics Bonnie Smeltzer and Rudy Corbiere. The councilor asked that the municipality send a note of congratulations to each of the paramedics as they both work to service their community.

Bylaws

Bylaw 14-32 was passed, authorizing an agreement with the Queen in Right of Ontario as represented by the Minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs under the Ontario Community Infrastructure Fund Program, formula based component; and Bylaw 14-33, appointing members of council to various boards and committees: Assiginack Public Library Board, Les Fields and Brenda Reid; Hilly Grove Cemetery Board, Bob Case; Medical Clinic Board, Paul Moffat; CPAC, Hugh Moggy; POA Committee, Les Fields; Manitoulin Planning Board, Paul Moffat; Manitoulin East Airport Commission, Bob Case and Paul Moffat; Manitoulin Centennial Manor, Paul Moffat; Manitoulin Municipal Association, Paul Moffat (Hugh Moggy alternate). Reeve Paul Moffat is an ex-officio member of all communities.

Council also passed Bylaw 14-34, authorizing an agreement with Computrek for server monitoring, patch and backup management for the township's computer systems. The cost is $199 per month, up $99 from the previous service provider.

Mr. Hobbs explained that the municipality's ability to function is dependant on software, which would otherwise be unmanageable by in-house staff in the event of an emergency.

Reading the newspaper is a greener choice than you might think.

We in the newspaper industry are committed to reducing our impact on the environment. We take our responsibility seriously, and our production processes are now more energy-efficient and environmentally friendly.

We recognize the importance of preserving and protecting Canada's forests, and we only use newsprint from responsible producers that embrace 5 widely accepted sustainability principles in their forestry operations. For Canadians, this means that the forest industry plants more trees than it takes and it has successfully reduced gas emissions by 10 times what is required under Kyoto!

And then, of course, there are your efforts. You've helped make newspapers a recycling success story by recycling over 80% of all newsprint in Canada. Thank you for your waste reduction efforts. We will continue to do our part to reduce our carbon footprint. There is more to do, and together, we can work toward sustainability.

Because sustainability isn't just another story to us. It's how we're shaping our future.

Manitoulin Minor hockey spotlight

In the Spotlight this week is the Mindemoya Thunder Atom squad. The team has been as high as third position in the MMHA standings and is looking to finish their season strong and position themselves for a great playoff run. A couple of examples why the team is improving can be seen in two players who are new to the game and his position. Jude Debassige is with the team for his first year of hockey and his skating has made huge improvements. Jude has a good shot that coaches are working on getting him to utilize. Alex Hore is learning the goaltender position for the first time this year and learning how to shut down opposition shooters.

They are 11 players strong this year and features: #21 Alex Hore, #4 Sage VanDeyl, #7 Carter Moggy, #8 Garrett Sheppard, #10 Jacob Wilson, #12 Zoe Redmond, #16 Lindsay Sheppard, #20 Zachary Gibbons, #23 Jaemie Moor, #25 Jude Debassige and #35 Ben Dewar. Staffing the Atoms are coaches Paul Sheppard and Steve Redmond, trainer Darren Dewar and their manager is Kim Moor.

This week is busy for the team. They play at home vs. Manitowaning Tuesday evening at 6:30, then another home game vs. Wikwemikong on Thursday. The following morning the Thunder atoms all head over very early to compete in their first game at 9 in the Walden Friendship Tournament for Thunder, Atom, PeeWee, and Bantam teams. Good luck atoms!

Coaches and managers looking to get their team into the Spotlight are asked to please send similar information to chipstoquips@gmail.com

Resolution Run

Congratulations to Manitowaning's Paula Fields who appears to be the sole local runner in the annual Resolution Run where fitness resolutions can be put to the test on day 1 when rubber meets the road. The January 1st race attracted nearly 100 hearty runners for a snowy and chilly 5k race. Next in the Running Room Series includes February's Hypothermic Half. Check out Sudburyrocks.com for more information.

Mustangs need noise Friday!

The Manitoulin Secondary boys' hockey team is playing at home this Friday night against the SDSSA's leading squad, Notre Dame. As of Monday morning all teams in the league had played 10 games. The Mustangs were listed in fifth place with the exact record as 4th place St. Charles: 6-4 while Notre Dame is an unbeaten 9-0-1. The 'Stangs always get up for these important games with some extra positive energy in the stands so try to get out to the game if you can. The puck is scheduled to drop at 7:30, Friday the 9th at the NEMI Recreation Centre.

The Mustang girls need the same support next Thursday when the Lo-Ellen skates into the M'Chigeeng arena for a 5 pm tilt with the very young Mustang side. The Thursday game will be preceded by three games on the road starting today, tomorrow and next Tuesday all over in Sudbury so they could use some extra energy.

The team's roster features a majority of Grade 9 and 10 players and have been showing flashes of great things to come. The team sits in 5th place in the 8-team, B-Division with a 2 and 4 record and not far from the visiting LoEllen squad.

Active adults...play Pickleball!

The year-end newsletter of Pickleball Canada has a long feature on Little Current couple, Bud and Pierrette Hebner. The couple discuss how they just recently were introduced the game a couple of years ago at the NEMI Curling arena. Although the sport is easy to pick-up there is always room to grow and challenge yourself as the Hebners attest. Despite just over a year in the sport the pair were able capture gold at the Ontario Provincial Championships in 2013 in the under 60 division and silver this past year in the 60–65 class. In 2012 however they didn't win a single game at the Provincials!

They extoll the virtues of the sport they play from spring through fall before the curling sheets are put in. They have a unique set-up at the local rink where they don't have to compete as most clubs do with tennis players on converted outdoor courts but get lots of room in climate controlled comfort. The article also describes the amazing physical and social benefits that the game affords. Although the season won't start until curling stops, try to stay active through the winter so you are ready for this growing sport. Watch this spring for new Pickleball announcements.

A good sport is good for sports.

CIHL hockey moving forward with its commitment to promote student-athletes

TORONTO—The Canadian International Hockey League, under the auspices of the Canadian International Amateur Hockey Federation, of which the Espanola Rivermen is a part, is moving ahead with its plans to promote its student/athletes at two college showcases.

The first, to be held this January 8 to 10, is the CIHL Hockey International Independent College Showcase Weekend. Hosted by the Kalkaska Rhinos of the CIHL in Kalkaska, Michigan, this tournament will feature some of the best talent this league and US-based clubs have to offer to scouts from NCAA and or ACHA university programs.

One month later, from February 6 to 8, the Detroit Fighting Irish will host the CIHL Hockey International Winter College Classic in Brownstown, Michigan. The Fighting Irish will host yet another showcase, The CAN-AM Independent International College Showcase Championships the April 3 to 5 weekend.

"American players understand the NCAA and ACHA college hockey process as they have grown up with the criteria of these university programs," said CIHL president/CEO Tim Clayden. "It is Canadian and European student-athlete players that need a little more guidance and help with direction and their promotion to individual USA college and university programs that meet each player's college family budget."

The two showcase tournaments usher in 2015 for CIHL Hockey, while putting what can be best described as a trying four months for the league into the past.

"CIHL Hockey cannot deny that our league has experienced unforeseen growing pains that has hurt our growth in our inaugural season," said Mr. Clayden. "We have and it has made everything involved that much more difficult. We remain committed strongly to finishing on behalf of all players and each community that has remained involved. Quitting is not an option. Quitting sends the deepest insincere message to the student/athlete players and parents and communities that have not quit on our CIHL Hockey vision and our executive and remaining teams will keep the very same commitment."

Mr. Clayden said that even with the growing pains, there is still a demand for the CIHL Hockey model from not only European and North American players, but also from the various communities and individual hockey people that wish to become involved as early as next season.

"The future is bright with interest," Mr. Clayden added. "However, a proven ownership screening process and expansion committee is now in place to avoid the same pitfalls that CIHL Hockey had experienced this past season. We also have tremendous interest from a European player management group that will direct a number of their clients to our teams next season, including the organization of a number of European player prospect camps that we expect to announce very early heading into 2015. This will allow us to be better prepared for spring prospect camps here in North America and Europe."

The president said the next 90 days will determine the success of the league in its first season, one that will not be determined by wins and losses but in how many student-athlete players the league has helped better prepare for college hockey and have helped move on to the next level of play.

"Playing in college showcase tournaments in the next half of the season and is an expensive undertaking for all teams," he continued. "Part of the CIHL Hockey vision is to ensure our student/athlete players get out and in front of the schools, through college showcase tournaments, league play, player video-resume building and the promotion of individual players to individual USA college and university programs that meet each player's college family budget."

Approximately 2,000 American college and universities offer athletic scholarships or financial aid to gifted student-athletes from the USA, Canada and other countries annually. Due to lack of knowledge of the recruiting process and lack of exposure, thousands of athletes are overlooked every year. CIHL Hockey is committed to changing that for each of its players and teams, a press release states.

"You can't play in college if you are not academically eligible, no matter how good you are," Mr. Clayden added. "Our newest program, the CIHL Hockey Academy Student-Athlete Players Services, has a step-by-step plan in place that helps talented young hockey players with their promotional needs. Our goal is to help each of our academy-committed players get recruited. Our primary goal is to help athletes find the best education that meets each individual families budget, while allowing them to continue to participate in a sport they love," said Mr. Clayden.

The program's database allows CIHL officials to sit down with each of player and find a school that best fits their needs, both academically and financially. College hockey recruiting process is unlike all other university sports in that coaches expect you to play several years of Junior A hockey in a North American league before you attend university. The university hockey recruiting process takes longer than any other college sport. NCAA and ACHA coaches prefer players who play at a high level of junior hockey. CIHL Hockey is heading in the right direction in providing the necessary exposure that is needed.

we don't know what is causing a decline in a species, it causes us to investigate to discover the cause," he said. "And if there is more attention being drawn to potential environmental issues the more people aware of those issues, the better."

"This is an iconic species," he said. "Everybody loves the monarchs, they look for them to appear in the late spring."

"The Endangered Species Act is the most powerful tool available to save North America's monarchs," said Tierra Curry, a senior scientist at the Center for Biological Diversity in a centre release. "I'm really happy that these amazing butterflies are a step closer to the protection they so desperately need."

"Our petition is a scientific and legal blueprint for creating the protection that the monarch so direly needs and we are gratified that the agency has now taken this vital first step in a timely fashion," George Kimbrell, senior attorney for Center for Food Safety, was quoted in the same release. "We will continue to do everything we can to ensure monarchs are protected."

"We are extremely pleased that the federal agency in charge of protecting our nation's wildlife has recognized the dire situation of the monarch," said Sarina Jepsen, the Xerces Society's endangered species director. "Protection as a threatened species will enable extensive monarch habitat recovery on both public and private lands."

The centre's release notes that the butterfly's dramatic decline is being driven in large part by the widespread planting of genetically engineered crops in the Midwest, where most monarchs are born. The vast majority of genetically engineered crops are made to be resistant to Monsanto's Roundup herbicide, a potent killer of milkweed, the monarch caterpillar's only food source. The dramatic surge in Roundup use with Roundup Ready crops has virtually wiped out milkweed plants in the Midwestern corn and soybean fields. Estimates are that the monarch butterflies have lost in excess of 165 million acres of habitat, that is an area about the size of Texas, and which include nearly one-third of their summer breeding grounds.

The monarch population has declined from a recorded high of approximately 1 billion butterflies in the mid-1990s to only 35 million butterflies last winter, the lowest number ever recorded. The overall population shows a steep and statistically significant decline of 90 percent over 20 years. In addition to herbicide use with genetically engineered crops, monarchs are also threatened by global climate change with threats from drought and heat waves, other pesticides, urban sprawl and logging in their Mexican wintering grounds.

Climate change presents a significant threat to the monarchs, as scientists have predicted that the monarch's entire winter range in Mexico, and large parts of its summer range in the states, could become unsuitable due to the changing temperatures and increased risk of drought, heat waves and other dramatic weather events predicted to increase in coming years.

Despite an expected rebound in this year's numbers due to favourable weather conditions, the monarch species is still particularly vulnerable as it requires a large population mass to offset losses from severe weather events and predation. The Centre points out that nearly half of the overwintering population in Mexico can be eaten by bird and mammal predators in any single winter and provides the example that a single winter storm in 2002 killed an estimated 500 million monarchs, that translates to 14 times the size of the entire current monarch population.

"It is amazing to realize that when we see a monarch butterfly in the late spring we are looking at the descendant of the great grandparent who set out on the journey here from Mexico," said Dr. Shorthouse. "Even more amazing is that the butterflies will make their way through generations to a few mountaintops in Mexico, this in an age when with all our technology we are unable to find a missing plane in southeast Asia."

Manitoulin schoolchildren have stepped up to the front lines in the battle to save the monarch butterflies, creating butterfly gardens and raising the insects sheltered in their classrooms, releasing them to begin the long intergenerational migration back to Mexico each fall.

Having accepted the petition, the US Fish and Wildlife Service must next issue a 12-month finding on the monarch petition that will propose protection under the Endangered Species Act, reject protection under the Act or add the butterfly to the candidate waiting list for protection.

Dr. Shorthouse expressed hope that despite all the environmental odds stacked against the monarch butterfly, the species will somehow prevail and continue to bring an "aesthetic joy" to those who witness its annual return to Northern Ontario.

In this time of annual renewal, the United Church of Little Current and the Bahá'ís of Manitoulin are planning a get-together on World Religion Day, Sunday, January 18th, from 6 to 9 pm.

We propose a fresh look at how religions can promote unity among peoples both globally and locally — at a time when religious differences often appear to be causes of conflict, for instance in Palestine.

As Christians and Bahá'ís, we are especially hoping to hear from Islanders belonging to other spiritual communities (Muslim, Jewish, Buddhist, Hindu, Native and others) about the contributions these communities can make to love, respect and unity among us all.

The gathering will take place at the United Church in Little Current starting with a potluck dinner at 6 p.m. If you'd like to take part, or want to know more about this gathering, please call 1-705-662-1845 or email pam@gnusystems.ca describe trees present at key historical events or events specific to a particular person such as a wedding or engagement.

"We will be asking people to register significant trees for the TAM," Ms. Lee further explained.

"Manitoulin trees that are unusual, significant to families and individuals, bent trees—any trees that stand out."

What exact form the TAM will take is still being ironed out by the TAM committee of the Manitoulin Nature Club, but one thing is certain: all tree nominations (above the required minimum size) will be included. The club hopes to launch TAM around Earth Day (April 22) and will have registration forms and further information available leading up to the launch.

The Expositor will be following this project to fruition, publishing some of the nominations, their stories and keeping the Island community up-to-date on this exciting new Island tree atlas.

Island citizens and summer residents are encouraged now to start thinking about local trees of significance that they can eventually nominate.

Providence Bay local food advocate denied chicken appeal

by Michael Erskine

TORONTO—A Providence Bay bed and breakfast operator and local food advocate, Glenn Black, had his appeal before the Agricultural, Food and Rural Affairs Appeal Tribunal of the 300 chicken limit placed on farmers without chicken quota under the supply management system dashed with cold water, when Glenn Walker, vice-chairman of the Ontario Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs (OMAFRA) Appeal Tribunal, announced in a December 23 decision that a request for a reconsideration of a previous Tribunal decision on an application by Mr. Black was rejected because the request was “frivolous, or vexatious or made in bad faith.” Mr. Walker went to say Mr. Black’s request for reconsideration “can be rejected on any one of those reasons.”

Mr. Black was essentially seeking to have the quota-exempt limit on raising chickens raised to 2,000 birds per year per farm, or in the alternative, to 1,295 birds per year per farm, but there were 14 orders sought in his original application, including a request for lost business and incurred legal expenses.

According to a previous finding of the Tribunal outlined in Mr. Walker’s published decision, the Tribunal first considered Mr. Black’s appeal at a May 14, 2014 motion hearing. That motion, made by the Chicken Farmers of Canada (CFO), sought to dismiss or limit Mr. Black’s appeal.

Rather than dismiss the appeal outright, the Tribunal, in its decision of May 21, 2014, “struck Mr. Black’s Appeal Notice and provided leave to re-file the appeal within 60 days of the decision with a direction that Mr. Black’s appeal be restricted to CFO Regulation No. 2425-2013 and a CFO policy known as the 300 bird exemption policy.”

According to a backgrounder provided with the most recent announcement, “the Tribunal gave that direction to Mr. Black in a decision that explained in detail the Tribunal’s jurisdiction and how most of what Mr. Black sought in his initial appeal was not justiciable before the Tribunal.”

Following that earlier decision, Mr. Black filed a 98-page Revised Notice of Appeal (RNOA). The initial Appeal Notice itself apparently comprised 21 pages. After filing the 98-page RNOA, Mr. Black then sent the Tribunal a two-page Notice of Appeal and incorporated into his written submissions another Notice of Appeal of just over two pages.

The Tribunal then received a request from CFO to schedule another motion to dismiss Mr. Black’s appeal, but rather than schedule the requested motion the Tribunal on its own initiative issued a Notice of Intention to Refuse to Hear Appeal to the parties and provided Mr. Black and CFO an opportunity to file written submissions.

In the Notice of Intention, the Tribunal cautioned Mr. Black he had one last opportunity to persuade the Tribunal that the appeal was not “frivolous, vexatious or made in bad faith.” The Tribunal then directed Mr. Black to provide written submissions dealing with whether the Tribunal has jurisdiction to grant the relief as set out in section 11 (Requested Orders) of the RNOA.

According to the backgrounder included in the tribunal decision, Mr. Black was seeking a request for review of the decision to deny his application citing the following reasons:

“He feels he has been denied fundamental justice by having his appeal summarily dismissed without just cause; he feels there are significant adverse consequences to him and the general public as a result of the dismissal of his appeal before a hearing of the matters raised in the appeal; his efforts and costs in preparing, filing and advancing his appeal will be wasted if his appeal and the issues raised are summarily dismissed and not heard; he feels there is no other adequate, timely, and affordable forum for his appeal to be addressed; he feels that it is against the public’s best interest and public policy for his appeal to be dismissed without a public hearing of the issues raised in the appeal; he believes he has reasonable and probable grounds to believe the Tribunal made a material error of law and/or fact in its decision; he believes the Tribunal did not receive, or did not correctly apprehend, or did not adequately consider all of the submissions and evidence put before the Tribunal; he believes the Tribunal did not decide on all of the issues properly before the Tribunal; he feels the Tribunal has not yet provided full and comprehensive reasons for its decision; he feels the Tribunal’s decision contains: errors of law; errors of fact; errors of both law and fact; misapprehension of the evidence before it; erroneous and unsupported assumptions; findings of facts and resulting decisions that are not adequately supported nor logically derived from the evidence before it; and other good and sufficient reasons.”

But Mr. Walker wrote in his December 23 ruling that “I am convinced that his intention is, as stated by the Tribunal’s (September) decision, to use the 300 bird exemption to gain a ‘toe-hold’ and then to advance and debate his own personal political agenda. I find that to be not only an abuse of the process of the Tribunal but to be in bad faith. I am not convinced that Mr. Black has made an arguable case that the Tribunal committed an error of law in determining that it should refuse to hear his appeal on those grounds.”

Mr. Walker also dismissed the claims for recompense on the basis that had Mr. Black followed the earlier instruction of the Tribunal in submitting his appeal he would have largely been spared the expenses for which he was seeking redress.

Mr. Black was unavailable for comment prior to press time Monday.

...recognition of treaty relationships beneficial

“In a very respectful way,” he said. “You listen and concentrate on the directions coming from the assembly. When you do that, you can get things done.” In order to accomplish the AFN’s goals the contribution of the national chief must be both respectful and relevant.

The key to success as national representative, he said, is to recognize that “it is really a team agenda.”

That is no mean task when there are 639 members comprising 58 different language groups.

The national chief said that his focus moving forward remains the same as the direction he outlined in his election platform. “Establishing a new fiscal relationship with the federal Crown; an immediate action plan and inquiry into missing and murdered indigenous women and girls; committed focus on the revitalization and retention of indigenous languages; and upholding indigenous rights as human rights in international forums.”

There are definite commonalities in the issues facing all First Nation communities through which a revisited national framework, one respecting all of the regions, can address, noted Chief Bellegarde. Among the most pressing of those commonalities is “closing the funding gap,” said the National Chief. “All of the funding agreements have been frozen at two percent for almost 20 years,” noted Chief Bellegarde. The result has been steady erosion in the ability of First Nation communities to meet the needs of their communities. “If that were to change there would be an immediate improvement.”

Chief among the consensus issues facing members of the AFN is the shortfall in education funding between the federally funded First Nations and the provincially funded education system.

International socio-economic measures place Canada sixth in human development, noted Chief Bellegarde, but those same measures applied to First Nations communities drop to 63rd. “That is the gap that needs to be addressed,” he said. “Even if you can’t get your head around treaty rights,” Chief Bellegarde addressed to non-Natives, “get your head around the business case.”

The treaty relationship between Canada and the First Nations was and is supposed to be of mutual benefit. “Get your head around aboriginal rights and talk as a good thing, because treaty implementation is good for everybody.”

Key to the discussion of self-determination is the economic well being of First Nations communities. “You can’t talk about self determination without talking about the economic development of Canada’s abundant resources.” The two, he points out, are intrinsically linked.

“As indigenous people, we have the inherent right to self-determination,” said Chief Bellegarde. “That means the ability to say ‘yes’ to development or ‘no’ to development.”

He cited the recent Tsilhqot’in (William Case) Supreme Court decision pointing out that the case can “be levered as one of several means by which to enshrine the meaning and intent of aboriginal title. It will pave the way to a new relationship between First Nations and the Government of Canada and reinforce the need for provincial and federal governments to consult and accommodate, resulting in the entrenchment of a pivotal role of First Nations in resource development.”

Chief Bellegarde has been cited as being among that group of First Nation leaders who maintain that the existing treaties are sufficient to protect aboriginal rights, provided those contracts are upheld and properly enforced on both sides.

“Recent high profile Supreme Court decisions and other events have created an unprecedented opportunity to elevate public awareness of inherent and treaty rights,” he said. “It also means that AFN success in communicating these issues has never been this important.”

Education of the general population about treaty rights is a key component of building the environment to address First Nations issues, he noted, particularly in Canada’s urban and immigrant populations, where the lack of information about the history of the treaty relationship, the contributions of First Nations to the development of Canada, and the history of the residential school system in school curriculums plays a major role in misunderstanding between the two communities.

Chief Bellegarde pointed to his home province of Saskatchewan as an example of how that dearth can be addressed. “In Saskatchewan, every school teaches aboriginal rights, every school, that is where you get to start changing things.”

While his business oriented approach heralds an opportunity to negotiate and settle the plethora of grievances facing intergovernmental and economic relations between Canada and the First Nations and building a new relationship based on existing treaties, Chief Bellegarde had a stern warning for those who believe that they can continue to exploit or ignore First Nations.

“Governments want economic certainty,” he said. “There is $650 billion in potential resource development projects in Canada and government wants to export those resources to foreign markets. What we are saying is if you want to continue to do that, and to create economic certainty, you need to involve indigenous peoples every step of the way.”

If that involvement does not happen in a meaningful and productive way, he warns that Canada’s economic road ahead will prove to be a very rocky experience.

Manitoulin's generous spirit evident at 45th annual MSS Awards Night

by Alicia McCutcheon

M'CHIGEENG—Manitoulin Secondary School's (MSS) graduates were once again honoured in that school's annual Christmas tradition of Awards Night on December 18, the 45th edition, with over 200 awards gifted numbering over $49,000.

"We are proud of our graduates," MSS Principal Laurie Zahnow began the evening by saying. "They are a part of Manitoulin Secondary School's colourful history. Their contributions have left a unique mark on our school. It is our sincere hope that we have been able to prepare our graduates with the skills necessary to be successful in their chosen area of interest. We, at Manitoulin Secondary School, have every confidence that our graduates will continue to be outstanding citizens of our Canadian communities. We trust that we have played an important role on assisting them to accomplish their goals."

Ms. Zahnow continued by thanking the parents and the community for their "ongoing, overwhelming support" of MSS. "We are truly a community school. It is due to the generous contributions of our community that we are able to assist our students in their post secondary endeavours. To the numerous businesses, individuals, service groups, community groups and organizations who have been contributed, thank you for your ongoing sponsorship."

Rainbow District School Board (RDSB) First Nations Trustee Grace Fox addressed the graduates and gave her congratulations. "May your lives be filled with much happiness, success and starfish," she smiled, referencing a story shared with the grads about making a difference in life.

"It gives me tremendous pride and pleasure to attend tonight's 45th annual Awards Night," said RDSB Trustee Larry Killens. "It's fitting that this ceremony takes place during the time of giving," he added, noting the many donors who supported the graduates.

"You've worked hard to achieve your diploma, and now it's your time to shine," he said.

"I look at your eyes and I see a lot of determination," Algoma-Manitoulin MPP Michael Mantha said to the students. "Now take those eyes and open them wide. These past few years are just a sliver of the taste of what's to come. Don't stop asking questions, stay attentive, keep looking. Some of you will leave the Island, but don't forget about us," the MPP urged the graduates.

Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing Carol Hughes also took to the podium, noting that education is among the most important endeavours one can take in life, "one that's built on the strong foundation of parents, grandparents, guardians, teachers, coaches and community organizations. It's clear your success is a community success as well."

"You're embarking on the next journey of your life with your roots firmly planted on Manitoulin, but it remains to be seen where these wings will take you."

ling, one lapland longspur, 516 snow bunting, 26 American tree sparrow, three white-throated sparrow, one white-crowned sparrow, 35 dark-eyed junco, 15 Northern cardinal, one meadowlark, 10 rusty blackbird, two common grackle, 16 pine grosbeak, four purple finch, 696 common redpoll, one hoary redpoll, 13 pine siskin, 240 American goldfinch and 21 house sparrow for a total of 4,339 birds of 53 species.

The Gore Bay bird count also had an excellent showing with 41 species counted. Gore Bay birder count organizer Terry Land reported seeing 14 bald eagles in the area he and partner Nicole were responsible for searching with eight eagles spotted in one tree. Another highlight was a large flock of snow buntings estimated at over 600.

Current United Church on Robinson Street and one in front of the hospital.

He also discussed specifically creating a sidewalk curb and drainage to compete the section of road along Highway 6 from the Manitoulin Welcome Centre to the China City restaurant.

Councillor Dawn Orr requested that the plan be updated to include work on the roads in Ward 4.

"I would like to see the road bases fixed before we start hard topping and I would also like to see some of the shoulders fixed to let the water run off so it doesn't damage the roads," explained Councillor Orr.

Fellow Ward 4 Councillor Bruce Wood added that the rural culverts are aging, especially in the Bass Lake area.

Councillor Marcel Gauthier said he would like to see more street lights, especially in the Cedar Cove area where there are a lot of people walking at night.

Mayor MacNevin agreed, saying that adding additional street lights throughout the municipality into the plan was a good idea as there were other areas in need of this as well.

All of council agreed that there needed to be a focus on the municipality's trees.

"Robinson Street has some very beautiful old trees," said Councillor Orr. "We need to ensure that new ones are being planted to replace the ones that die."

Councillor Laurie Cook informed council that the Manitoulin Nature Club had started a tree mapping program and that there could be potential for the town to partner with the club.

Councillor Orr also mentioned trees in Howland that were dying and needed trimming or potential removal and replacement in the cemetery, and along the roadways.

"Low Island is very important to this community so we need to do whatever we can to keep it in good shape," said Councillor Koehler.

Councillor Gauthier told council of a project at Low Island that would be coming up to replace trees thanks to a grant.

"I think the Sheguiandah Archaeological Site is very important for us to develop as well," said Councillor Erskine. "It could be a big attractant for tourists."

Councillor Cook mentioned the further development of geocaching in the municipality to attract tourists.

All of council discussed that more marketing of the municipality was needed, promoting areas that people may not know of such as Sheguiandah.

"It's a real gem," said Councillor Gauthier.

Council also discussed the need for more signage throughout the municipality for parks, tourist sites and directional signs.

Councillor Koehler suggested 'poop and scoop' stations at Low Island and by the information booth to help keep the town clean.

Councillor Orr suggested working with the Manitoulin Health Centre (MHC) on doctor recruitment, noting that she had been out a family physician for two years.

Mayor MacNevin agreed that this was an important issue and noted that representatives from MHC were on the agenda for the first meeting of the New Year to talk about physician recruitment.

Councillor Koehler told council that he would like to see an incentive to get more people to buy lots in the new subdivision, suggesting a deal for builders.

"I would like to see new washrooms at the park in Sheguiandah," Councillor Orr said. "They are in need of an upgrade and get used a lot in the summer."

Staff also provided staff with 'wish lists' for their departments.

A long term plan listed for the recreation centre was consolidating the town library, Channelview Drop-In Centre and the addition of a fitness centre, indoor walking track and pool.

Council agreed that this would be a long term idea, but discussed the lack of feasibility of building a pool in Little Current when there was already one in Espanola and due to the high maintenance costs associated with it.

Other items were the replacement of the ice plant at the recreation centre, ensuring the continued access to the Cup and Saucer Trail, increased seating in parks, outdoor fitness equipment along the waterfront Trail or at Low Island park, a splash pad at Low Island Park, the development of the archaeological site, incorporating new technology into the exhibit spaces of the museum to stay current, developing a self-guided tour of historical sites or points of interest using smart phone technology, the development of land the municipality owns next to the museum for interpretive and education opportunities such as tree tapping, increasing the town's marketing through technological presence and billboard advertising, developing key services in the municipality such as a Service Ontario location, a seniors' housing complex and increased capacity at the lagoon and landfill, continuing to support taxi services and transportation and encouraging the development

Treaty of Niagara the focus of OCF seminar

An outreach that seeks to educate Native and non-Native alike

by Betty Bardswich

M'CHIGEENG—The Ojibwe Cultural Foundation in M'Chigeeng seeks to teach the art, language and history of the Anishinaabe people, not only to First Nation individuals, but to the rest of the population as well.

On November 24, Alan Corbiere, the coordinator of the Anishinaabemowin Revival Program at Lakeview School and an Anishinaabe historian and university professor, hosted a seminar at the foundation to speak about the 1764 Treaty of Niagara to help to educate individuals about the history of his people.

"This whole treaty business," he began, "I still feel that I am learning about it. I've read a lot and I've learned a lot. But the way the elders tell our history and the way it is written down are different and sometimes contradict each other. Of the main treaties of our area, this one is a fundamental treaty and is sometimes called a peace and friendship treaty. Mr. Corbiere went on to say that the treaty is based on what the chiefs wrote in 1862 in Ojibwe and is the ultimate document. 'It says 'usual ceremonies' in the treaty records but we don't know what that is at this time."

What is known about the Niagara Treaty, according to Mr. Corbiere's research, is that it involved the whole Great Lakes area, was written in diplomatic language adapted by the English who signed the agreement and that wampum belts played a part in the treaty signing. Mr. Corbiere knows of examples where the Anishinaabe used wampum belts. "Before the white man came," he told his audience, "we had those belts. We never had men or women or animals on these belts before. We used circles, squares and triangles."

Sir William Johnson was the commanding officer for the British for the signing of this treaty and Mr. Corbiere added that this gentleman wanted a large wampum belt at every meeting and that the Niagara Treaty belt is at the Canadian Museum of History. Sir Johnson sent runners throughout First Nation territories, along with a copy of the treaty and wampum belts signifying peace. These actions led to over 2,000 people, representing 24 First Nations, showing up to attend the signing of the treaty. The treaty was signed by Johnson, representing the British Crown and representatives of those 24 First Nations including Seneca, Algonquin, Nipissing, Mohawk and Ojibwe. Promises made by Johnson at the signing were preserved on wampum belts. One of the belts showed 24 people holding hands from a rock to a ship with the vessel representing Great Britain.

There were several alliances and treaties signed during the 17th century which was called the Covenant Chain. A strip of land around the Niagara River was given to First Nations at this particular treaty agreement and this Niagara Anishinaabe historian Alan Corbiere, coordinator of the Anishinaabemowin Revival Program at Lakeview School, hosted a seminar at the Ojibwe Cultural Foundation on the 1764 Treaty of Niagara to help educate individuals about the history of his people.

Treaty reaffirmed the political foundation for the Covenant Chain relations between Great Britain and the Indigenous Nations of the Great Lakes. The treaty guaranteed an annual flow of gifts and goods to maintain the validity of the agreement. As Mr. Corbiere explained, these goods included blankets, pipes, pelts and tools. The British would come every year with goods, but this eventually tapered out.

Mr. Corbiere also had several comments to make about other aspects of First Nations dealing with the British. "We don't have concrete proof, we don't have the records to prove it," he said, "but I think the Debassige clan were part of this treaty." He also mentioned that between 1836 to 1854, the main council fire of the British and Anishinaabe was at Manitowaning. "People don't seem to see the significance of this," he noted and also emphasized that non-Native people should learn their history too.

A winter fishing tradition

Three-and-a-half year old Iris Spry and her dad Bud Spry of Sunset Estates enjoyed the Christmas holidays ice fishing on Pike Lake. The pair caught a small walleye, but threw it back. Mr. Spry told The Expositor that he has been taking his daughter out fishing since she was one-and-a-half-years-old.

 father bought a furniture and hardware store. When Mr. McDermid grew up, he played baseball in the United States for the Brooklyn Dodgers organization but a fall off the back of a truck put an end to a career in athletics, although he did return for a time in 1950 when a fire burnt the store.

"When I came home," Mr. McDermid explained, "my father had the two stores and he bought a store in Little Current which he named Murray's."

So I worked full time in Prov and replaced Art Wilkinson in Little Current when he went on holidays. Heck of a good man. He and Sue Ferguson ran that store."

Mr. McDermid sold the Providence Bay Home Hardware and retired in 2007. When asked what he does now that he is retired, Mr. McDermid quipped that he goes to the bush for wood 'when his wife lets him' and also does leather craft. "It's a hobby I got into when I got hurt," he said, "I taught leather craft at night school for 10 years."

As part of the honour bestowed by Home Hardware, Mr. McDermid also received a specially hand-crafted pin and his name will be engraved on the builders circle granite monument located in the Tribute Garden at the Walter J. Hachborn Complex in St. Jacobs. Home Hardware also gives a golden hammer to any employee with 50 years of service. Mr. McDermid has one, as do his wife Toots and his son James.

"The new building is beautiful," commented Northeast Town Mayor Al MacNevin, while taking a tour prior to Christmas as the building's construction was ment of small business in the community.

The public works department listed Howland municipal drain number three was first on its priorities list with a price tag of $18,000, followed by Bass Lake Road grade raise at $30,000, Hayward Street surface treatment at $24,000, landfill bulldozer replacement at $150,000, Vankoughnet Street repayment at $60,000, Honora Bay Road dig out at $37,989, Rockville Road work at $6,300, White's Point Roadwork at $10,000, grader replacement at $200,000, North Channel Drive roadwork at $4,200, Low Island Park surface treatment at $10,000, Guida's Sideroad surface treatment at $36,000, Town Line-Highway 6 1.5 km of regrade at $93,000 and Red Lodge Road work at $65,600.

Council agreed to add these 'wish list' items to their brainstorming list for further review.

Mr. Williamson told council that staff would compile all of council's and the department's suggestions for council to review in the New Year.

Councillor Erskine also suggested a public meeting to hear suggestions from ratepayers.

Tehkummah Talk and Times

Love- Love- Love- Love- perhaps you've had the family love experience over your holiday season. Love is the answer you know, to everything, and love was our sermon base on Sunday.

Saturday evening "The Michael's Bay Historical Society" annual old-fashioned Christmas Concert was wonderful. Lots of beautiful Christmas music by Ben and George; and Christmas Carols (by all) and wonderful skits, etc.; some amazing young singers and wild kittens!!?

I guess Mom beat me a couple of (close) games of cribbage after. Marilyn was an excellent M.C., Carole was between Sudbury visits with her daughter Gwen, I hope all is well.

Me since Sunday, now have been battling a bad cold, I didn't think I had completely recovered from the flu bug of a couple of weeks back!

Cal and I were at C & E's for supper on Saturday evening- Keith and Kathy Size joined us and we had a nice visit. They had just put their dog Lucy down that day, fifteen years (I think), always a sad affair. We went down in doggie population in Tehkummah by four in just a few months: Mary's "Rocky," Amanda's "Thunder," our "Poppy" and Silvio's "Bean," all within a few steps of each other.

It's amazing what one can fit into a day or two isn't it?

Christmas Eve in the pouring rain, what a day that was. Played cards with Mom in the afternoon, we went to the Christmas Eve service at St. Andrews, "The Story" and lots of carols. After, Mom and I went to Pauline and Wayne's where she had prepared wonderful food for Santa, I guess, Ho ho!!! Mom and I taste tested for him, Susan and Simon came later, after snacks; a game of "Oh Crap" was fun, Simon won. Midnight as we drove home heavy wet snow would help Santa with his rounds I'm sure. Hail by the time I got to Mom's. Thursday morning parcel opening at Ray and Tara's, quite a few wrappers removed by the time I got there; visited, got to open stuff myself even. Ray always cooks a good breakfast Christmas morning. Cal came and joined the clan: Marion, Sherry, Dave, Billy Joe, Marg and Jim, their son Ken (from B.C.), nice visiting time.

I made a couple of macaroni salads; soon Cal picked me up "Mindemoya." We visited Gib and Florence, their family Anita, Jeff (Grands), Joseph, Faith and Anna. We stayed about an hour then visited Rick and Kathleen (Pyette), Jeff and Connie too. We enjoyed a great visit and a wonderful turkey dinner and raisin pie dessert.

Boxing Day I went to Sherry and Dave's for leftover turkey dinner. On my way home I stopped at Lori and Rick's Jase and Zoe the happy Christmas pup (Santa came to Zoe).

Pauline and Wayne had Sudbury area family around their table on Boxing Day. Anita, Alisha and Samantha, Dave and Christine, Dave just lost his mom (they'd just returned from Toronto), little Ava, Susan, Simon and Mom were with them too.

I got a phone call from my cousin in Delta B.C..

With the holiday now behind us and the New Year reasonably presentable, a bit of snow driving and another birthday under my belt here, I am pen in hand, going to try to recall some of the special moments of the last few days. As I'm all turned around time-wise, it's been like having two weekends in a week. I'm not sure of my days but I think today is Friday!! And Friday, around 1 I guess in the morning. I got home after spending a couple of nights at Sherry and Dave's where their open house held more than a houseful. Derek and Jodi arrived on the 29th, Kim and Kathy on the 30th (which was last year!!). I was there Monday-Wednesday, stayed over Wednesday,

New Year's Eve, a house full adding Mom, Susan, Cal, Ray, Tara, Jacob, Skylar and Billie, Ed and Diane, Lori, Rick and Jase. We listened to the fine song stylings of Lori and Kim; we ate and played a great game of Tiki. Everyone sang me the happy birthday song complete with cake and candles (not all???) ten minutes before my birthday expired. After the New Year's salute and all (with bells) most all folk headed for home, convoy style, through the bad snowfall, we talked our way to bed! Visiting the New Year's Day away playing cards, snacking on leftovers, playing cribbage. Derek picked-up Mom then we all played a game of Tiki and then taught the new comers the "Oh Crap" game, which they really liked; so much fun and excitement. So when Kim and Kathy brought Mom home I came home too (just to check on the cats!!). Anyway, as comfy as it was at Sherry's I do like my own little "beddy bye", but for some reason I still seem tired. Must have been the game of cards. Pauline was sick over the New Year; Susan had a cold but couldn't miss the get-together. Derek and Jodi spent Tuesday evening visiting her sister Colleen and John Castleton (had a good dinner with them). Ross and Susan spent some time with Justin and Crystal.

Mary has been helping Elaine at the store, they are taking inventory.

Well here it is 1am Saturday morning just crawled into bed after dropping Mom off. We went to Susan and Simon's around three. Had delicious lasagna, chili, salad, rolls, multiple desserts and then some choices. Mom made butter tarts too. We listened once again to the music of Lori and Kim, then played (2 tables worth) of "Oh Crap."

This game incited lots of loud yelling and laughter. After Chris, Lori and Rick, Wayne and Cal left, one more game with Sherry, Kim, Kathy, Jodi and Derek, Susan, Simon, Mom and I, the reason for another late return. What a lot of fun. Was a nice clear night at least for driving.

Saturday morning. As always the time goes so fast, and Derek and Jodi are heading back home (to Mackenzie B.C.) and Ken and Kathy back (to Clarksburg). Though it is snowing here to day the kids that live the closest will possibly have the worst trip??

What a blessing my family is to me, so I'm teary eyed. Was so special for all our together times in the past six days!

Challenged Mom to a game, she beat me one when Jennifer and Matt (King) came in. She (they) have been visiting parents his first, in Toronto, then hers, Paul and Barb (Bowerman). Cole and Barb picked them up at the airport last Sunday.

I heard that Carole and Neil Middaugh lost their daughter Gwen (Young) over the holiday, much sympathy to the family.

While Linda and Martin Garniss were away they found sadness in their journey.

I have to get a tooth looked at soon, my jaw and ear are kind of bothering me. May be residue of the cold or flu too I guess. So I didn't go to church Sunday morning, I'm going to be

I hope everyone had a great Christmas holiday! I am sure that all of the Mustangs are excited to get back to school! In the upcoming new year, MSS is going to be very busy.

On Friday, January 9 the students council is hosting the second school dance! Students will be treated to their Winter Formal dance, where everyone will be decked out in their dresses and tuxes, with purses and bowties.

Exams and culminating tasks are coming up fast bringing an end to the first semester. All of the students will be studying hard in preparation for their tests.

Rehearsals for the school's production of Oklahoma are starting up again with the whole crew working hard to finish preparing for the fantastic musical. The lead actors and actresses in the play include Max Chapman playing Curly, Lacey Fownes playing Laurey, Jessica Jordison playing Aunt

Eller, Taylor Van Horn playing Ado Annie, Cody Crawford playing Ali Hakim, Brad Sayya playing Will, Rebecca Dawson playing Maggie Carnes, and James Scott playing Jud Fry. The choreography is being done by Casey Boisvert for all of the play except the ballet sequence.

This ballet sequence is being choreographed by Maja Mielonen and being performed by her senior ballet class. The set will soon be taking shape on stage.

The first semester is quickly coming to an end, and all of the staff and students will be very busy finishing loose ends. 'Till next time, stay golden Mustangs.

Rural Economic Development Program

The current Rural Economic Development Program intake date will be extended until January 31, 2015 (from December 31, 2014). Intakes will be open on a continuous basis. Application review periods from this point on are: November 1, 2014 to January 31, 2015, February 1, 2015 to April 30, 2015, May 1, 2015 to July 31, 2015, August 1, 2015 to October 31, 2015, November 1, 2015 to January 31, 2016 and every three months thereafter. Clients emailing the RED@ontario.ca will receive a bounce-back email including the information that the intake dates have been changed. The bounce-back email will also indicate that if clients have submitted or are submitting an application during the current intake, and wish to withdraw the application, they may withdraw and resubmit until January 31, 2015.

Local Food Fund

Following a successful launch and high interest in the Local Food Fund, the program was temporarily paused on July 1, 2014 while the ministry undertook a review of the fund's design. The review provided an opportunity to look at ways to improve the fund's objectives and make any necessary adjustments needed to best target and support Ontario's local food initiatives. The program review is now complete and the ministry will begin accepting new applications on November 24, 2014. To be considered eligible, an application must be submitted between 9 am on November 24, 2014 and 11:59 pm on January 16, 2015. For more information: telephone 1-877-424-1300 or email localfoodfund@ontario.ca.

OPERATION NAY NAY

The family of little Naomi Pitawanakwat of Birch Island is appealing to the Manitoulin Island community for financial assistance to help her family meet the challenges the one-year-old faces with her diagnosis of and she also requires twice-daily hormone therapy because of a pituitary gland malfunction.

These issues mean the small family must make continual trips with Naomi to Toronto's Sick Kids Hospital (They will spend Christmas there with her).

If you can help, they would appreciate it and you can make a donation at any branch of the Bank of Montreal.

The account is called 'Operation Nay Nay' and the account number is 8982-458.

THANK YOU ALL SO MUCH.

January 5—Happy New Year to all! I hope you all enjoyed the holidays.

Christmas guests with Allen and Rosemarie Eagleson on December 24 were Louis, Leigh Anne and family from Mattawa, Royce and Tracey Young and family, Brent and Tammy and family, David and I. Connie spent Christmas with some of her family in Sudbury.

Christmas guests with Reverend Bain and Lynda Peever were Keith Finnilla and Mageon Madore, Brenda and Kari Kan-taatha.

Guests of Royce and Margaret Young for Christmas Day were Royce, Tracey and family, Cindy and family from Sudbury, Brent.

Tammy and family had Christmas supper with Heather and I. Royce, Tracey and family came for the evening and opened their gifts.

Happy birthday to David McAllister who is celebrating on January 13.

Ken and Sheila Maeck returned home after having Christmas with some of their family down country.

George and Gayle Popowich had Christmas in Sudbury with some of their family. They came over and had New Year's here at the Popowich home. The children enjoyed being here.

Get well wishes to our minister Reverend Sherry DeJonge who hasn't been feeling so well.

Belated birthday wishes to Arlene Finley who celebrated in December.

Erwin and Irene MacIntyre had some of their family home for Christmas.

Don and Patricia Norton and Laura Scott went to Lance and Lillian Greenman's for Boxing Day.

David and Bev McDermid had their family all home for Christmas and David's mother Maria.

Providence Bay Curling Club starts their regular draws next week, so curling is in full swing.

I listened to the weather report today and it is going to be very cold this week with more snow.

John and Mary White had their family home for Christmas.

Get well wishes to all who are sick and shut in.

PATTERSON—In loving memory of Doug Patterson, December 29, 2004. Ten years have passed since that sad day, When one we loved was called away; God took him home, it was His will; Within our hearts, he's living still. Lovingly remembered, Fern, Jill, Juli and families.

34oa

MCMURRAY—In loving memory of our son, brother, brother-in-law, daddy and uncle, Wade, who passed January 8, 2009. I wake each morning to start a new day But the pain of loosing you never goes away. I go about the things I have to do And as the hours pass I think again of you. I want to call you and just hear your voice Then I remember that I have no choice.

For you are not there and now my heart cries Just to see you again to tell you goodbye To say "Wade, I love you, and I always will" And hope that much of you, in me you've instilled." The day that you left I just didn't know That you were going where I couldn't go.

LOVE—In loving memory of our beloved daughter, Kathy Love, and our dear grandson, Brody Love, who were taken from us so tragically on January 7, 2006. We little knew that morning That God was going to call your names, In life we loved you dearly In death we do the same, It broke our hearts to lose you two You did not go alone For part of us went with you The day God called you home. Tonight the stars are gleaming On two lonely, silent graves Where sleeps in dreamless slumber Two we loved but could not save.

No one knows the silent heartaches Only those who have lost can tell Of the grief that we bear in silence For the two we loved so well. May the winds of love blow softly And whisper so you can hear We will always miss you and love you And wish that you were here. Forever in our hearts, sadly missed by Mom and Dad, Grandpa and Grandma Freeman and all their families.

Thank you to the nurses, personal support workers and staff at the Manitoulin Health Centre, Little Current for making Mom's final days as comfortable as possible. A special thank you to Dr. Barrs and Dr. Jeffery for the excellent care and house calls made to Mom. Anna and Wayne Aelick.

34oa

I would like to thank my TD co-workers for the beautiful gift they gave me on my last day of work, it truly was a surprise! I also want to send out a great big "thank you" to all my customers who brightened my days over the last 15 years through words of kindness, encouragement and humour on the days I needed it the most. I will miss you all but look forward to seeing you around town from time to time, as I enjoy my retirement! Sally Assinewai.

CAROL HAZEL CLARKE (AKA "OPERATOR")
FEBRUARY 9, 1961 – JANUARY 4, 2015

Carol Hazel Clarke (aka "Operator"), a resident of Wikwemikong, died peacefully at her home on Sunday, January 4, 2015 at the age of 53. Beloved wife of John Clarke and first husband Isaac Aloysius Fox (predeceased). Mother to Peter "Archie" (Winnie), and Mary Jane (Ross), and grandchildren Dawson and Dakota. Dear daughter of William and Mary Jane Shawana (both predeceased). She will be missed by siblings Robert (predeceased) (Annie), Shirley, Adam (Donna), Violet (predeceased), Margaret, Arlene (predeceased) (Patrick), Lourda and Gail (Rick). Will be missed by many nieces and nephews. Hazel (aka "Operator") loved playing bingo, writing poems/songs, listening to Country and Gospel music, and visiting family and friends. She loved calling family and friends many times throughout the day. This is where the nickname "Operator" came from. Hazel also enjoyed playing Bingo in her pastime. She shared that one day her number will be called and she would be going to claim her jackpot to that Big Bingo Caller in the sky. Family and friends may gather together to celebrate and remember Hazel's life on Wednesday, January 7, 2015 from 3 pm at St. Ignatius Church in Buzwah. Funeral to take place Friday, January 9, 2015 at 11 am at St. Ignatius Church in Buzwah. Burial in Wikwemikong Cemetery. Arrangements entrusted to Island Funeral Home Little Current. HER CLAN IS ADIK (CARIBOU)

APRIL 28, 1979 – DECEMBER 26, 2014

*We're here for a good time
Not a long time (not a long time)
So have a good time
The sun can't shine everyday
And the sun is shinin',
In this rainy city,
And the sun is shinin',*

At the age of 35 years old, Michelle was greeted by her relations December 26, 2014 to start her journey to the spirit world. Michelle, who was also known to many as "Meesh" has touched many people, and their lives with her positive embrace on life. She was kind, motivating, outgoing, friendly, caring and very loving. She had a big heart and the brightest smile. She saw the good in everybody and everything around her. Michelle loved children very much. She loved her family, friends, most animals, especially cats, dogs and dolphins. Michelle loved attending social events, especially events that had to do with making crafts. Michelle loved to attend dances and dance the night away. She loved attending social events in her community. Michelle believed in her language and culture, she enjoyed powwows and dancing. Michelle loved doing her part in keeping Mother Earth clean. Michelle loved family time with her mother and brothers. She loved playing games and drinking tea. Michelle is the daughter of Pearl Bebamash and Mitchell Panamick (predeceased), sister to Curtis and Perry Bebamash. She will be missed by her aunts, uncles, godparents, her many cousins and friends. Also appreciated the help from her adoptive grandfather Jim Windeo. Family and friends gathered from 8 pm at M'Chigeeng Community Complex with Funeral Service at 11 am on Wednesday, December 31, 2014 at M'Chigeeng Community Complex. Burial in M'Chigeeng Community Cemetery. Arrangements entrusted to Island Funeral Home, Little Current. Record your thoughts, memories and photos at www.islandfuneralhome.ca.

KENNETH GEORGE BOOTHE

Kenneth George Boothe beloved husband of Elaine Lefevre-Boothe (nee Hughes) passed away December 28, 2014 at home in Kagawong, ON (Manitoulin Island) after a courageous six-year battle with colon cancer. Ken was born in Hebburn, England on September 20, 1948. His 37-year-career with the gelatin plant of Canada Packers, eventually sold to Nitta Gelatin, was entirely spent at the same location in Toronto's west end. Ken was predeceased by his beloved parents Canadian George Henry Boothe, a WWII Vet (1918-2009) and British war-bride, Irene (Douglass) Boothe (1923-1998.) He was also predeceased by his youngest sister Sharon (1959-1989.) He will forever be missed by his cherished step-children Sergeant Derek Lefevre based at CFB Esquimalt, Victoria, BC and biologist Dr. Kara Lefevre, Rob Saint and young sons Cedar and River of Hamilton, ON. Grandsons Cedar and River were an immense joy to their Grandpa. Ken will be deeply missed by his devoted Boothe siblings: dear sister Lynda and James McVarish; brother Doug and Eleanore (Galloway), Lacey, Scott; brother John and Carol (Caleb) Laing, Jeniffer Skye, Dolly, Darlene, Phil, Rachael, Ian; brother Andrew and Michelle (Laing), Sarah (and predeceased infant Ryan.) Ken was also predeceased by many loving aunts and uncles both in Canada and England. He will be sadly missed by Aunt Helen (Boothe) Chapman Knowler (Doug); Uncle Lennie Boothe and Uncle Jim Henderson. Also mourning are many Boothe, Hutcheson and Henderson cousins in Canada, along with many Douglass cousins in England. Ken was also dearly loved by his wife's Hughes, Needham and Moore families in ON, BC and PEI. Elaine's Hughes sisters Blanche (John McGill), Rita (Edward Needham) include eight nieces and nephews in ON and BC. He was predeceased by his sister-in-law Rita in August 2013. Both growing up in Toronto, ON, Ken and Elaine became permanent residents of Kagawong, ON, Manitoulin Island in 2001 after many years of summer vacations at Viva Villa on Lake Kagawong. A celebration of Ken's life will be held at the Culgin Funeral Home, Gore Bay on Wednesday, January 7, 2015 at 11 am. Cremation has taken place. Memorial donations may be made to the Manitoulin Health Centre as expressions of sympathy. www.culginfuneralhome.ca.

Memorial donations are gratefully appreciated and can be made at the admitting office to the auxiliaries of the Manitoulin Health Centre and the Renovation Fund in both Mindemoya and Little Current and the Gore Bay Manitoulin Lodge Auxiliary Incorporated, 3 Main Street, Gore Bay, Ontario, P0P 1H0 and the Manitoulin Centennial Manor Auxiliary, Postal Bag 460, 10 Robinson Street, Little Current, Ontario, P0P 1K0.
