Increased diagnoses of Lyme disease on Manitoulin cause for concern

by Robin Burridge
MANITOULIN—Scott Veterinary Services in Mindemoya is part of a new study, the Canadian K9 Lifetime Lyme Study, seeking to better identify, prevent and treat canine Lyme disease and improve quality of life for both dogs and their people.

“Dr. Michelle Evason did a talk on Lyme disease at a conference I attended in January and noted how more information was needed about where dogs are contracting Lyme disease and how to prevent it,” explained Dr. Darren Stinson, who took over Scott Veterinary Services earlier this year. “The study is trying to gather good solid data on where the ticks are in Canada and how we can prevent the disease and better manage the problem.”

Dr. Stinson noted that his practice has seen six cases of canine Lyme disease this year alone, in addition to the six cases that The Expositor reported last year between the Island Animal Hospital and Scott Veterinary Services.

Symptoms of Lyme disease in canines include: fever, loss of appetite, reduced energy, lameness and generalized stiffness, discomfort or pain.

“Ministry staff met with the United Chiefs and Councils of Mniidoo Mnising (UCCMM) on May 23, and appreciated the opportunity for conversation and knowledge sharing with the UCCMM regarding the Official Plan and ways the Official Plan could be further revised to consider the interests of Manitoulin's indigenous communities,” Con-

Manitowaning's Henley Boats explores major expansion plans

by Alicia McCutcheon
MANITOWANING—In order to effectively keep up with the high demand of the “world's toughest boat,” Henley Boat Manufacturing of Manitowaning is currently researching plans for expansion.

“We're so overtaxed right now building boats, we just don't have enough space to keep up with the demand,” says Henley Boats proprietor Dave Ham. “We can't produce product fast enough. Sellers will only put up with that for so long.”

Mr. Ham explains that he has hired a production engineer to help him explore options, such as adding to the existing building, moving to a different building and subletting the existing facility.

Manitowaning light gets Canada 150 facelift

by Alicia McCutcheon

MANITOWANING—The Manitowaning lighthouse (or ‘light station,’ as it never actually housed a keeper) has had a facelift, thanks to the lobbying efforts of Assiginack mayor and council and Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing MP Carol Hughes.

The light station saw work undertaken by the Department of Fisheries and Oceans (DFO), which owns the light, over the course of three weeks, with the finishing touches completed last week.

Assiginack Clerk Jeremy Rody explained that the light station was first scraped completely of its paint by the DFO crew then repainted white with the red trim also touched up. The DFO also replaced the plexiglass found in the tower with glass, which was paid for by the municipality. There were always at least two or three workers on-site over the three-week period.

Mr. Rody explained that Councillor Les Fields first brought the project idea to her council who agreed to begin lobbying. In the spring, Canadian Coast Guard representatives flew to Manitoulin to check out the light station and assess the scope of the work following a letter penned to the DFO from Ms. Hughes. The clerk said the municipality is viewing it as a Canada 150 project.

The light station is in active use and remains a beacon of light for boaters approaching the Manitowaning Bay marina. The DFO promised to return soon to trim any overgrown trees that may be impeding the light’s view over the bay.

Laurentian University officially opens Indigenous Sharing and Learning Centre in Sudbury

by Michael Erskine

SUDBURY—Laurentian University officially opened the new Indigenous Sharing and Learning Centre located centrally on the Sudbury campus. The official opening ceremonies took place on Wednesday, June 21 at the new centre and it was standing room only. The opening was a nice cap to the nine-year Laurentian University board of governors member Dominic Beaudry’s service on the board.

“It was a great event,” said Mr. Beaudry. “It was so well attended that there was standing room only. Actually, there were about 50 to 70 people who had to stand outside because there wasn’t enough room inside at the ceremonies.” That’s saying a lot, since the main meeting hall can easily accommodate up to 200 seated people.

“All the politicians were there for the opening, including Sudbury Mayor Brian Bigger,” said Mr. Beaudry. “It was pretty packed.”

Unlike some efforts in the past, the new centre is not tucked away, hidden on a remote part of the campus, but is rather front and centre where it will play an intimate role in university life. “It’s not on the margins,” he said. “It is a powerful statement. Incoming and new students will see the centre and know that indigenous people are a vibrant part of the university.”

Mr. Beaudry said that the centre is a concrete expression of the university’s commitment to the recommendations of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. “I have seen a lot of positive changes during my tenure on the board of Laurentian University,” he said. “It is good to see things actually happening in response to the TRC commission’s report and that it is not just simply sitting on

Culvert concerns trouble Sheguiandah FN residents

by Michael Erskine

SHEGUIANDAH—A portion of Highway 6 near Ge Te Miikan Road in Sheguiandah First Nation was causing considerable concern to residents over the weekend when it appeared that the road was caving in over a wooden culvert.

A dip had appeared in the road, with a hole and crack developing. Residents note that the issue has been ongoing for some time but alleged that despite complaints and concerns being expressed there was no action being taken by the Ministry of Transportation’s (MTO) contractor DBI.

The roadway was patched over the course of the weekend and the MTO has issued assurances that the roadway remains safe to travel. “At the location of culvert on Highway 6 that you asked about, there has been some settlement of the roadway above the culvert,” said Lara Cantin, MTO regional issues and media advisor. “The culvert is scheduled for replacement in 2018. Our maintenance contractor is continually monitoring the site to ensure it remains safe for travel.”

A hole in the road on Highway 6 near Ge Te Miikan Road in Sheguiandah First Nation had residents concerned.

Silver carp pulled from Illinois Waterway just miles from L. Michigan

LAKE MICHIGAN—A Lake Michigan commercial fisherman made an unsettling discovery in his gill net last week when he pulled a silver carp, of the invasive Asian carp family, from the waters not far from Chicago.

The Asian Carp Regional Coordinating Committee (ACRCC) in the United States announced that the male fish had been discovered on June 22 in the Illinois Waterway below the TJ O’Brien Lock and Dam—nine miles from Lake Michigan and past the electric barrier.

According to the ACRCC, the silver carp, measuring 28 inches and weighing approximately eight pounds, was captured by gill net by a contracted commercial fisherman as part of the committee’s Monitoring Response Work Group’s seasonal intensive monitoring.

The find triggered two more weeks of intense sampling in the area.

“It is important to note that this preliminary finding does not confirm that a reproducing population of Asian carp currently exists above the electric dispersal

Manitoulin cenotaph sees renovations

by Michael Erskine

CENTRAL MANITOULIN—The Manitoulin District Cenotaph is looking sharp these days thanks to a bit of a floor lift, with the interlocking block being replaced thanks to the diligent fundraising efforts of a small group of volunteers and a contribution from Veterans Affairs Canada’s partnership program.

“We started fundraising back in March,” noted volunteer Linda Bowerman. “We raised $800 at the Manitoulin Trade Fair after expenses.”

The renovation program was badly needed, noted Ms. Bowerman, as there was a lot of plant growth coming up between the previous bricks. “They had to replace all of the bricks because the old ones were not standardized.”

Ms. Bowerman was effusive in her praise for S & T Landscaping, the contractor secured to complete the project. “They did a great job and had it ready for us for Decoration Day,” she said, “including the Youth Memorial.”

The original application for the $3,726 grant did not initially include the Youth Memorial, noted Ms. Bowerman, but as the project developed it was expanded to include the brick surrounding that memorial as

Trial date set for Wikwemikong Way hit and run

GORE BAY—A trial date has been set for the Wikwemikong Way hit and run case of Darin Noel Peltier, the accused driver in the November 2, 2014 accident that left a man hospitalized with life threatening injuries.

As was reported previously, on November 2, 2014 at 2:40 am, David Andrew (Andy) Oshkabewisens of Wikwemikong was struck by a truck with the driver fleeing the scene and leaving Mr. Oshkabewisens with life threatening injuries along the side of Wikwemikong Way.

Mr. Oshkabewisens was transferred to the Manitoulin Health Centre in Little Current from where he was airlifted to Health Sciences North in Sudbury. He remained there, in a coma, until December of that year.

The Wikwemikong Tribal Police Service, the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) North East Crime Unit, under the direction of the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch (CIB) Acting Detective Inspector Dave Robinson, arrested Noel Darin Peltier on Sunday, November 9, 2014 and later charged Mr. Peltier was attempted murder and failing to remain at the scene. Mr. Peltier has since had his charges reduced to fail to stop, offer assistance; cause bodily harm; criminal negligence of a motorized vehicle causing bodily harm; and operation of a motorized vehicle in a manner that is dangerous to the public causing bodily harm.

The trial date of Mr. Peltier has been set for September 25 to 29, 2017 in Gore Bay court.

There is much to celebrate about our imperfect nation

This Saturday marks 150 years since the Confederation of Upper and Lower Canada (then known as the province of Canada) along with the Maritime provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick under the British North America Act into the new Dominion of Canada—complete with four provinces, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Since then, this nation has grown from the original four provinces to 10 (and three territories).

In its formation and growth Canada has certainly seen its share of growing pains. Replete with cleavages that seemed destined to tear it apart right from its very inception, including the long-standing English-French divide, invasions from the south, both from our exuberant and boisterous republican neighbour and wild-eyed expatriate Irish patriots, the Fenians, who, in the wake of the American Civil War, wished to use our nation as a bargaining chip to free Ireland from what they saw as the oppression of the British interloper—the British for their part were convinced they were bringing the height of civilization and Protestantism to the benighted people of the Emerald Isle languishing under the repressive hand of the Catholic Church. We still struggle with the ripples from those events onto this very day.

To many of our First Nation allies, the original inhabitants of the land upon whose territories Canada stands and thanks to whose military might we remained under the Union Jack, the 150 years since Confederation have not been anything to celebrate.

In a series of questionable "treaties" in which the First Nations were steadily and increasingly stripped of their lands to make way for waves of newcomers, and even those one-sided treaties were not honoured before the ink had even dried. Instead, a policy of cultural genocide was instituted by the founders of the nation and their minions, where residential schools under the guise of education and trades training sought to strip away their "Indian-ness" and replace it with something more amenable to being good servants of the Empire—with the end goal of their being totally absorbed into the mainstream culture. It was for their own good, the Fathers of Confederation told themselves. It was a noble cause. The indigenous victims of this cultural (and in some instances blatant) genocide have every right to disagree. But the residential system is now history, and while we may still be dealing with its aftermath, we may celebrate its demise and lay to rest the bigoted attitudes upon which it was founded.

The accumulated debt of the policies toward our indigenous hosts upon this land is so huge that the federal government (sorry, but of any political stripe) spends much of its time obfuscating and delaying settlements as a tactic of first resort—the bill is simply that large. But step by step it is being addressed, not fast enough, but being addressed nonetheless.

But despite our many failings and shortcomings, there is a tremendous amount that we as Canadians have to celebrate on July 1, both as a nation and a province. We are a rich and free nation, a vibrant swirling hodgepodge of cultures and languages in a democracy where people are largely free to celebrate their own traditions and to protest those things they do not agree with. We may express our dissatisfaction in the press, in voting a government that displeases us into the hinterlands, even to take to the streets waving placards decrying injustice (including those that still reign on reserves and in our urban centres for minorities of colour, religion and disposition).

We have political leaders who are making inroads in those historical injustices, albeit not nearly fast enough; we have a social safety net system that largely protects the most vulnerable among us; and we are blessed with a national health system which each citizen has the right to access, not simply the rich or privileged few. We have a generally tolerant and welcoming society in which most of us are secure enough to be able to celebrate each others differences. Few across this globe can boast the same.

Canada is well and truly blessed. Not perfect, we still have many hills to climb, but along that long road we have made incredible accomplishments. July 1, Canada Day, is a day to recognize not how far we have to go, but to celebrate how high we have already climbed these 150 years.

Sad that the greed of the few threaten the future for many

Harvesting spawning fish will destroy the resource for the next generation, let alone seven

To the Expositor:

It is unfortunate that we appear to be living in a time where common sense and common courtesy are becoming less important than our own enjoyment or personal gain. Yet those who do things lacking in common sense and common courtesy for their own personal gain, without concern for its impact to others, seem to take significant offence when they feel things lacking in common courtesy and common sense are done, in their opinion, against them—it makes very little sense. Common sense and common courtesy is a two-way street whether it's something like boaters who fly by docks with boats on them (private and/or marinas) throwing wake and tossing the boats around without concern for its impact, or netting fish in stocked lakes during spawning season.

The Little Current Fish and Game Club have for many years had dedicated volunteers spending hundreds of hours harvesting, looking after the fry and stocking Pike and Bass lakes with pickerel. As well, hundreds of volunteer hours have been put in doing night watch at Bass Creek for poachers. The entire process being one, to not only ensure a legacy of fish, but to also educate the youth on the processes and the need to ensure fish are there for the next generations. Hundreds of Manitoulin school children have been given tours and instruction by these dedicated volunteers, as well as volunteers from Manitoulin Streams, on the need to not only enjoy the land and the ability to fish in these marvellous Island waters but to be aware of the need to protect what we have, not just the fish but the land, streams and the water.

I am saddened to hear that the Little Current Fish and Game club volunteers are now at a crossroads and are seriously considering stopping their fish harvest and education programs because there are some, who without concern for common sense or common courtesy, have made the decision to do something for their own gain without concern for the consequences. The netting of fish during the spawning season, which has been happening for too long now, has now achieved the consequence of almost completely depleting the pickerel again. It is the opinion of the Little Current Fish and Game Club that it is no longer worthwhile to continue this worthwhile harvesting for the gain of those who just want to do the fishery harm. So very sad! It is not like the club members have not attempted to speak to those who have influence to see a change and stop the netting, but it has been to no avail. So pickerel will become a thing of the past and not a thing of the future. Too bad some more common sense and common courtesy could not come into play.

An ode to the odious misidentification of defecation

When if comes to scat, sometimes a closer look is called for before making comment

To the Expositor:

Re 'Dog' feces on Providence Bay Beach,
June 21, 2017.

The verbal diarrhea of defamation
About sand lousy with defecation,
On our beloved beach,
Does need a bit of clarification
As it well may have a long reach.

There is indeed some fowl pollution
And foul it may well seem,

To people who are so full of it
That they can't tell 'goosings' from dog sh*t
And will next try to get rid of 'it'
By going after geese.

Before the folks cleaned up the beach
The goose crap, it was out of reach,
Mostly hidden in the greenery,
For now, plucked out by heavy machinery,
Which for the better changed the scenery.

The answer to the goose pollution
Would be a simple 'dog solution'.
To have a canine foot patrol
Would make the geese fly, one and all,
And we who've always done our bit,
To keep it clean and clear of sh*t,
Will carry our little doggie bag
And that should be the end of that.

Keeping online information up to date is important

People make plans based on what you post on your website

To the Expositor:

We agree with your editorial 'Tourism is everybody's business,' June 14, Page 4. Sadly, we found two major "misses" in our trip of June 6, 7 and 8.

Using posted open hours for two Island museums, my wife and I took our five-year-old granddaughter on a mini vacation via the ferry. The plan was to visit those museums on Wednesday, June 7. I had sent a late May email giving a heads up to one of the two museums and did not hear back. We had every reason to believe they were open.

Our message is simple, if tourism is important to you, make sure your own website has the correct hours that you are open. Upon returning home, I rechecked the websites of both museums. They were supposed to have been open on June 7.

Donna Phillips

Donna welcomed this writer into her 150 year-old log home, perched on a hill on the southeast side of Lake Mindemoya. The foot-thick logs are hand-hewn. A visitor must dodge the roof line at the top of the stairs to avoid hitting their head. The top level boasts 14-inch wide floor boards that line the cozy bedrooms, harbouring traditional quilt-covered beds. The windows and doors are deeply recessed, completing the feeling of having emerged from a 'time machine.' Donna has lived here much of her life, time spent helping others, including two husbands. In due course, she formalized her experiences and trained as a health care aide.

"My maternal grandfather, Joseph Coe of the Slash, built many boats that were used on Lake Manitou to ferry goods and people to various ports. Joseph's sons, my uncles George and Armen Coe, worked on the mail boat that ran along the North Shore. "I remember the Norgoma arriving in the fall to stock winter supplies for the Island. Another boat, the Jacqueline, took us to the main shore to pick blueberries. She is buried in eight feet of water near the bridge in Little Current. I am surprised she hasn't been restored for historical purposes."

"My Grandmother Helene (Pugh) Coe used to play the organ along with my mother, my sister and Aunt Lucy. Mother was their soloist. Mother was talented enough to go to Belding, Michigan. She could have been a professional singer but came back to marry my dad."

Paternal Great-grandfather Benjamin Leeson was born in 1877. He lived near South Bay with his wife Elizabeth (Hanley) in the 'white house' he built. Paternal grandparents James and Wilhelmina Leeson lived in Manitowaning. "James was a fiddler even after he was blind. Many in our family had eye problems, tunnel vision and retinitis pigmentosa." James would sit on the porch and play under the eaves. His sister, my great aunt Elizabeth, kept a diary and lived in Squirreltown.

Donna Louisa Jane was born to Westen 'Wright' and Ellen (Coe) Leeson on September 15, 1931. She was named after her niece Donna, dad's sister, Louisa and mum's aunt Jane. Siblings are Wes, Rozella, Moyra, (deceased) and Carole (deceased). Wright was a 'jack of all trades and a master of none,' according to Donna. "Dad cut pulpwood all winter. He could size up a tree and declare with certain accuracy the number of boards to be cut. In the summer, we helped him take care of the big garden. Dad would hitch the horse to the wagon and load it with extra vegetables to be sold door-to-door in South Bay."

"An early memory was running away from school the day the dentist came. There were rumours he had slapped some kids." Perhaps he had been bitten first? Nevertheless, the young lass wasn't going to enter that van and ran home as quickly as she could. Mother intervened and brought her back to the dentist, explaining her fears. The examination went well and did much to raise the acceptance level of future dentist visits.

Fishing with her grandfather at Leeson's Creek was memorable as well. "All we had was a pole, a string and a fish hook we found. We caught sunfish and bull heads. Grandfather would let me hold the pole and I caught some fish myself. Sometimes we hunted partridges. He held the gun and I walked quietly behind him."

At log-shipping time, a long tent and table would be set up in South Bay to feed the workers; pails of pork and beans and corn syrup were put out and food was taken on the run. Anishinaabe folk came to peel the logs and stack them on the beach for the boats. The logs would be chained on the outside of the boom and pushed to the boats.

When the cousins came for a visit, the girls would all sleep in one bed and the boys in another, laying crosswise on the mattress, legs and feet dangling over the edge. "We had fun but not much sleep." On Sundays, the Leeson family might take the row boat and head for the beach for a shore picnic. "We loved to walk the shoreline of South Bay with dad and look for stuff, like old wooden floats from fishing nets, light bulbs or fishing tackle."

The barn was a favourite haunt. It had two layers, the hay mow and the sheep pen below. We would hold 'haw' concerts there practicing our songs for the Christmas concert, or reading poems. Occasionally one of us would get pushed off the upper 'mow stage' into the sheep pen below. The School Christmas concert was orchestrated by the teacher, much as soldiers doing a drill, with a lot of emphasis put on discipline. 'Practice makes perfect.' Everything had to be well-rehearsed before parents arrived in their sleighs."

Donna remembers heating up blocks of wood in the oven, before they jumped on the horse-drawn sleigh to go from Hilly Grove to Manitowaning in the winter. "The wood kept our feet warm. Straw and blankets kept the rest of us warm."

At Christmas, the sleigh would head for the grandparent's home for family festivities. The tree, all lit up in a bay window, awaited their arrival. As it was near the stove, it didn't stay there, long. Gifts were often a pen or a pencil, sometimes a handkerchief and rarely, a celluloid doll. "We were happy with these gifts and just being with family. Dinner was usually a goose or a turkey and lots of vegetables. We always had some nuts too. Grandmother played the organ and grandfather the fiddle. By the time we returned home, the moon and an amazing array of stars would shine above. I used to imagine there was a man on the moon sawing wood."

"Wintertime was also perfect for sledding parties by lantern light. It was more fun but more dangerous too, with all the rocks and trees. The hill was steep and we are lucky we got to the bottom of the hill alive." Frozen lakes and rivers were ideal for skating too. "We didn't have skates so we slid on shoes and boots."

Donna enjoyed primary school and didn't mind the walk but high school, 16 miles from home, meant boarding in Manitowaning. For Grade 9, Donna lodged with the Hunter family. Grade 10 was in the Sault where she could stay with Uncle George and Aunt Pearl Coe.

After completing Grade 10, Donna came home to work at McDermid's store in Providence Bay for $25 a month. "The hours were long, sometimes from eight in the morning to eleven at night, especially on a Saturday. We worked until everything was done."

"Providence Bay was an interesting place. Toots McDermid and other young ladies I had met lived there. Lots of older people lived there too and I boarded with one of them. When we had time off, we loved to hold races on the beach. Sometimes we would take the row boat out for a paddle but the river could change course and push us further out. Then we jumped out of the boat and pushed or pulled it back. We caught a lot of smelt in that river."

Donna was getting ready to head to Owen Sound for her next job, when she was offered work at Harold Burt's locker in Mindemoya, where the pet store is today. Harold took in meat for storage and he needed some help. Donna soon met her future husband, Lloyd Hallett. His friend was going with sister Moyra. Lloyd tried to join the war effort in 1945 with his friend Bill Graham, but Lloyd was diabetic and he was not inducted. He stayed in Toronto and contributed by working in the munitions plant.

Lloyd was 28 and Donna, 20 and they hit it off. "I told him my cousin was diabetic too." They dated and considered marriage but Lloyd's mother didn't want him to marry anyone. She was afraid he would not live long because of the diabetes and that it would be a big problem for him. He was on insulin and had been hospitalized many times with complications. She also thought it was unwise of him to have children. Lloyd's little five-year-old brother had died of diabetes at ten and other members of the family had diabetes too.

"I didn't agree with her position. I felt he deserved some happiness in life too." The couple married at four in the afternoon on December 24, 1950 in the Missionary House in Little Current. "We picked that date to reduce the likely number of guests because we had so little money to spend." Sister Moyra stood up for Donna and Bob Nevills stood up for Lloyd. Afterwards the newlyweds returned home. There was no money for a honeymoon.

Donna moved in with her in-laws, the Halletts, and worked to help them for the next seven years. "They had a farm and I pitched hay for the cattle and ran the tractor to disk the land." The couple had three children, Glen, Marlene and Janis. Donna's mother-in-law helped with the children. Sometimes the babies were placed in the buggy at the edge of the field. After they had moved to their own home, four foster children were added, Roy Panamick, Lora Jean, Marion and Jimmy Corbiere.

At 18 heading for church in her Eaton's hat and gloves.

Lloyd was a carpenter and stone mason. He did a lot of work for his friend Ken Elford's dad. In July of 1960 the Hallett family moved into the log home that still shelters Donna today. The farm soon had cattle and horses. "I helped deliver calves in the spring. There was an old barn on the property and some sheds. I remember the day our bull got into the wrong stable. I put a stick through his nose ring and began to lead him back. He outmanoeuvred me and the stick fell. I tried to run but my boots were stuck in the mud so I jumped out of them and raced to the house. Thankfully the bull went back to the right barn and a crisis was averted. I have never trusted bulls."

Occasionally on Sundays they would pick up Donna's parents and take them for a car ride. "My mother had always loved the wild flowers in South Bay. A week before dad died we took him back to the farm and the lake. We talked about mother's passing and Wright added, "It won't be long before they say that about me."

By January of 1961, Lloyd's diabetes had claimed his leg. The flesh in his foot had broken down. Donna discovered the extent of his injuries when Lloyd fell outside and his foot started to bleed.

She got him back into the house and then got the neighbours. He was taken to Toronto for the amputation.

Donna travelled by train to visit him and was quite upset at what she found. Lloyd was very sick and weighed about 60 lbs. The nurse said to her, "Please don't touch him, we can't risk any infection. He had 'gas-gangrene' damage to his leg, similar to what some soldiers suffered during the First World War." They had to operate quickly to save his life and the next 48 hours were the most critical. Lloyd spent six weeks in isolation.

By September Lloyd had to be hospitalized with another infection. He got back home again on December 23 to join his family for Christmas. He had received a wooden leg from someone that no longer needed it, and he fitted his knee into it. He managed quite well for a number of years. He could even lay blocks with his peg leg.

When son Glen graduated from nursing in 1974, Lloyd had to have his second leg amputated. They had a bedroom set up downstairs for him so he wouldn't need to get upstairs. The washroom was close by and he was quite comfortable with Donna's help. Lloyd was 53 when he died of diabetic complications in 1977 on the seventh day of the seventh month. He had just held his first grandchild but he was blind and so couldn't see him. It was a sad time for the family.

It was three years later, in 1980, when Donna met Andy Phillips, who had been a welder for INCO. In due course they were wed and lived in Sudbury. Sadly, Andy became ill with cancer. Donna cared for him in his last years. Andy died in 1983.

In 1982-85, Donna worked in Home Care in Sudbury, helping others with their health issues for four years. In 1985 she was one of the first five people who decided to become a Health Care Aide and take classes. "We were the primary group to take this particular course and we assisted people all over Sudbury, washing dishes, cleaning kitchens and bathrooms, doing laundry and vacuuming. All patient care, including wound dressings and bathing, was done by the nurse at that time." Donna trained at Pioneer Manor and Extendicare in Sudbury.

"It was also my job to help teach patients how to exercise and do some of their daily tasks, after they had recovered from their urgent health issues. Some folk didn't know how to shop or take care of some aspects of daily living. Some had no sheets for their beds. Others wanted you to clean the silverware. One man with Alzheimer's started to rip his porch apart, likely in an attempt to fix what really didn't need fixing. Another lady lived deep in the bush with a dozen cats. Her house was hard to find. Overall, despite the barriers, I found I was indeed helping people. The job was never routine."

Donna spent a year in Sebringville in southwestern

'Canada's 150 Most Famous Great Lakes Shipwrecks' book on sale now

MANITOULIN—There's another Canada 150 event marker that has been tailored to this uniquely sesquicentennial year and is relevant to both Manitoulin and the entire Great Lakes region.

Great Lakes books publishers Cris Kohl and Joan Forsberg have researched and published a book titled 'Canada's 150 Most Famous Great Lakes Shipwrecks.'

Mr. Forsberg told the Expositor the couple dived into their enormous archive and in recognition of this special Canadian anniversary year, selected 150 Great Lakes shipwrecks, each of which was selected for some unique feature.

The book is neatly divided into sections: the St. Lawrence River, each of the Great Lakes that has a Canadian side, the Detroit River and the St. Clair River system. It's interesting to note that more pages (and shipwrecks) are dedicated to Lake Huron than any other region.

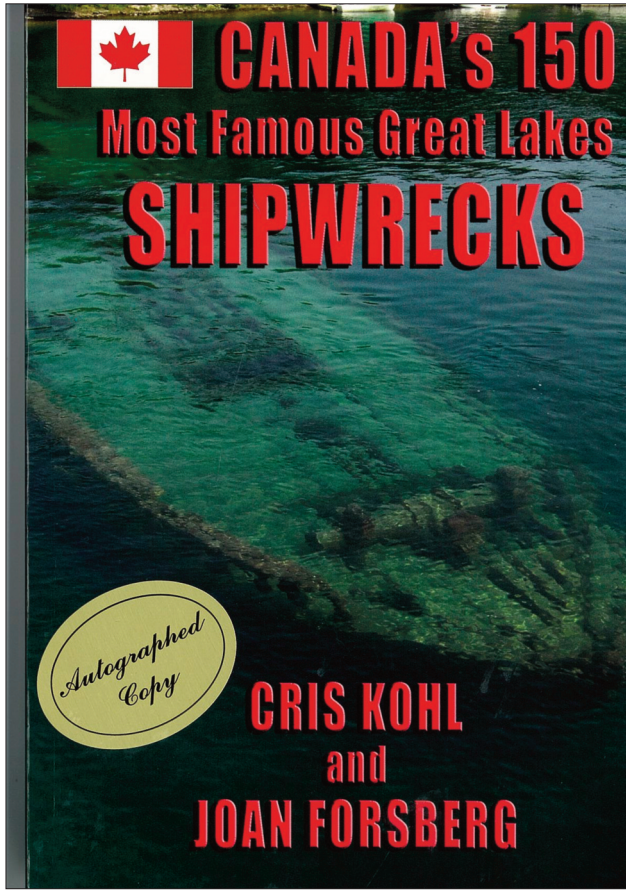

In the book's introduction, Mr. Kohl and Ms. Forsberg recall that the germ of the idea for this particular book came about when the couple (along with friends) had been diving on a well-known but unidentified shipwreck in Lake Erie last summer.

They're enthusiastic researchers and they were able to finally put a name to the mystery boat: it was the Otanabee which had been freighting lumber from Collins Inlet, near Killarney when it was wrecked in a gale on September 7, 1888 with no loss of life.

Farther investigation revealed that the Otonabee had been built in Quebec City in 1867 and this, according to the introduction, became the genesis of an idea that would "celebrate Canada's glorious and dramatic Great Lakes maritime history. Working beyond the year 1867, this idea gradually developed into selecting, listing, researching and uniting the stories of our choices for the 150 most famous shipwrecks on the Canadian side of the Great Lakes."

This was a tall order, editing and compiling a representative book with the "150 most memorable" shipwrecks in time for the Canada 150 celebrating year, all from a standing start last July.

Interestingly, the publishers offered sponsorship opportunities as a way of helping to keep the price of the book as low as possible. Three of the 31 sponsors are from Little Current. The Manitoulin Expositor, Turner's store and the Port of Little Current are individual sponsors, the most from any single community.

Turner's sponsored the article on LaSalle's Griffin, thought to have foundered off Manitoulin's western tip (and the first Great Lakes shipwreck).

Little Current sponsored the article on the North Wind, wrecked off Clapperton Island with a load of grain down bound from Fort William to Little Current. Interestingly, she foundered on Canada Day (Dominion Day then), July 1 in 1926 with no loss of life. The first reports of the wreck appeared in the next issue of The Expositor as a copy of that paper's headlines indicates in the North Wind story.

The Manitoulin Expositor sponsored the details of the wreck of the Asia. This ship, bound for French River from Collingwood, was lost in a severe storm on September 14, 1882 with the loss of 121 lives with only two survivors. The Asia remains Lake Huron's greatest loss of life shipwreck. The Expositor reported the tragedy of the Asia a few days after the tragedy as breaking news and many of the passengers aboard the Asia were members of Manitoulin Island families so the tragedy was a significant one here in the early days of pioneer settlement.

Stories like this one, each an interesting piece of history, comprise the content of this new piece of Great Lakes history. It will make a useful addition to any bookshelf or library and as a souvenir of this special anniversary of Canadian history.

'Canada's 150 Most Famous Great Lakes Shipwrecks' is available now at The Expositor office. It is priced at $19.95 plus tax.

Wasse-Naabin Youth Centre partners with positive tickets

by Michael Erskine

WIKWEMKOONG—Nobody likes to hear the words "you're busted," but in Wiikwemkoong Unceded Territory this summer those words might lead to some good things happening for youth. The Wasse-Naabin Youth Centre is partnering with the Wikwemikong Tribal Police Service and other community partners in a Positive Ticket program.

"It was Special Constable Alanna Eshkawkogan's idea," said youth centre director Lawrence Enosse. "She came up with the idea to get the kids involved with the officers. The concept is "you are busted—doing the right thing."

Under the program, which will see council members, the youth centre, police and other community agencies keeping an eye out for good behaviour and issuing Positive Tickets, local businesses will be providing the positive reinforcement.

"Local businesses, like Andy's, Your Dollar Store and More, Ed's Family Restaurant and the Health Centre will exchange the tickets for treats or other items that the youth will enjoy," said Mr. Enosse. "That might be a small ice cream cone at Andy's or a small fry at Ed's Family Restaurant."

Another portion of the ticket is retained by the issuing agent to be entered in a draw for larger prizes later in the summer. "They are looking at holding draws in late August."

Good behaviour might include things like "helping an elder in the community by mowing their lawn, helping carry their bags, picking up garbage in the community or stopping someone from bullying another youth," said Mr. Enosse. Even encouraging positive behaviour in others can help qualify.

Encouraging positive behaviour is one aspect of the Positive Ticket program, but building bridges between youth in the community and police officers is another positive outcome that the proponents of the program are hoping will come about.

"This is all part of making our community a 'Youth Friendly' community," said Mr. Enosse. "Wiikwemkoong is recognized by the Province of Ontario as a Youth Friendly Community and we will be making a reapplication for our status in 2018. This is just the kind of program that can help keep our status intact."

So there will be some delicious opportunities for Wiikwemkoong youth during the coming summer months as they just keep on doing what they do so well.

Ice Chips to Canoe Quips

by Larry and André Leblanc

Classic Weekend features fun and food!

The 16th annual 'run, paddle and pedal' triathlon is ready to go this coming Sunday morning (July 2). The Mindemoya Classic has reached its "surly, teenage years" yet can be expected to provide a fun, yet, a not too early morning experience. Registration is easiest online (www.mindemoyaclassic.com) but organizers can get you set up on race-day starting at 8 am. If your online registration is received by 3 pm on Saturday (July 1) you (and your team) will receive the early-bird discount.

The event a 5.5K run, 3K-ish paddle and 13K cycle triathlon can be completed as a team of four, part of a pair or all on your own. That being said, there are always "unranked" teams who like to get creative with the established categories. So, if you have a team of three or five (maybe even the first ever Voyageur entry?) and if it is the difference between you participating or not, you are more than welcome to enter. There are no division bragging rights, but it is all about being active and having fun so, why not? As always organizers can use a couple more volunteers so visit the above website for more information. (andre@mindemoyaclassic.com)

Additionally there will be a full-fledged barbecue offered for participants, volunteers and observers alike and all for a great cause. This year the Manitoulin Pet Rescue (MPR) will be hosting a barbecue (11 am to 2 pm) with all proceeds going directly to MPR. For those unfamiliar with this lauded charity here is some details: volunteer operated, not-for-profit charitable organization dedicated to rescuing and re-homing unwanted or displaced cats and dogs of Manitoulin Island and the North Shore. Dogs and cats coming into MPR go into caring and committed foster homes and assess their individual needs to find permanent, responsible, forever homes; M.P.R. is sustained by public donations; all donations go directly toward the care for the animal in the program. There will be a donation jar to collect all of your generous donations.

Summer hockey, highlights!

Local star, hockey player Braeden Case continues to upgrade his hockey. Recently, he was selected by the North American Central Scouting Association to play in a number of their elite summer tournaments. His great year with the Sudbury Nickel Capitals AAA midgets did not go unnoticed. He will be playing in tournaments which will mostly be staffed by older prospects than him. These players have an international flavor as they come from such countries as Russia, Sweden, as well as teams from British Columbia and Michigan. Braeden, interestingly, will be skating on the same squad as son of former Montreal Canadiens' and Toronto Maple Leafs' star Darcy Tucker. Show them your best, Braeden.

Trainer and team, terrific!

Hats off to Gerald Webkamigad of Wiikwemkoong who recently had a great day at the Warren Fair. Gerald was second in heavy class horse pulling and won the best Teamster award.

Little Current, crack kayak, contestant!

Hats off to the bridge-town's Steve Arthurs as he once again took the solo Kayak division of the annual, 9km division of the annual Sudbury Fitness Challenges' Canoe Marathon. Steve completed one loop of the marathon that including the brutal 700m portage/drag/loon-feces-hoist in a time of one hour and 20 minutes.

This beautiful locale will also be the location of this year's Canadian National Canoe Marathon Championships. The hosts of this great event (and will not likely ever be any closer to our readers) is the Sudbury Canoe Club and located within the newly built Northern Water Sports Centre on the shore of Ramsey Lake, just minutes from the downtown core.

For more information you can visit the Ontario Marathon Canoe and Kayak Association at: www.omckra.com

Fastball finery

Kudos to players such as Warren Simon and Lawrence Enosse and their Wiki Travellers ball-club as they recently captured the championship in the A division of the North Bay Silver Fox tournament. I believe they also did the same last year. Congratulations to the entire team managers and fans.

Ultimate player!

Congratulations to seasonal Manitoulin visitor Daniel Balzerson (son of Susan and David Johnson of Rockville) who just competed in the World Championship of Beach Ultimate (WCBU) last weekend in France. His mixed squad came right down to the wire to take the silver in a thrilling 12 - 10 championship game. Congratulations, Daniel! How about a little Tuesday night Ultimate down at Low Island (Little Current) when you are visiting?

The Little Current Yacht Club season is on NORTH CHANNEL—The boating season has started even if the weather is still a bit nippy, but that didn't stop the Little Current Yacht Club (LCYC) from starting off the boating season in fine form.

Friday, June 24 saw LCYC members in the Anchor Inn Conference room kicking off the season with a champagne toast. If that wasn't enough they also honoured two long time contributors to the club. Past Commodore Jim Corless, who served as Commodore for seven years (probably a world record), got his own toast along with an etched wine decanter thanking him for his service. The next honoree was Lianne Masson. While Jim had a steady hand at the helm, Ms. Masson was a guiding light and the glue that has kept the LCYC together by working to help every committee together. She too received a rousing toast and her own wine decanter. The Anchor Inn supplied appetizers and the evening continued with gusto.

Saturday, June 24 saw the first race of the year, the Cooper Cup, which is the longest running race organized by LCYC and sponsored by Dr. Cooper, so many thanks to him. The race saw some brisk winds and a few light spots as the racers reached up the Wabuno around the middle islands over to Louisa and around Halfway Island and back to Little Current. The winning margin was three seconds a mile as Knotty edged out Blue Jacket for the first-place win with Riga finishing third.

Sunday's race, The Loco Bean Coffee Cup, was postponed due to forecast rain and thunderstorms predicted for Sunday. It will be held immediately following the North Channel Race Week with a prospective date of July 22.

Vice Commodore O. H. Rodgers

Crew members Dave and Sandy Naples of Knotty took home the Cooper Cup Saturday along with boat owner Bruce O'Hare (inset).

Lianne Masson and Past Commodore Jim Corless were feted by their peers during the yacht club's kickoff event Friday.

and Secretary Mary Rodgers ran the races and cooked the dinner at the awards ceremony.

The only activities left to start the season off, are the LCYC Cruiser's Net hosted by Roy Eaton which starts July first and the Youth Sailing Program run by Tracey Chapman that starts July 3.

LCYC welcomes all boaters who are located in the area to join us and enjoy the activities and camaraderie.

Yohana Ogbamichael

It has been another great year at Manitoulin Secondary School! Hello. My name is Yohana Ogbamichael and I have been writing the Player Profiles each week for the 2016-2017 school year. The profiles share the stories of some of the talented students at MSS. The student's athletic and academic accomplishments along with their aspirations and inspirations in life were highlighted. The students of MSS have achieved so much. This year the senior boys volleyball team placed first at NOSSA which qualified them to compete at the Ontario provincial competition, OFSAA. The novice gymnastics sport aerobics team also made it to OFSAA. All of the sports teams did extremely well throughout the year. Sports has the ability to bring people together within the school and in the community. We encourage and support one another to succeed and we congratulate wonderful accomplishments. I would like to thank our coaches who dedicate so much of their time to ensure athletic and academic success for all. MSS offers a variety of sports such as track and field, hockey, basketball, volleyball, cross country, archery, skiing, gymnastics, tennis, badminton and curling. The athletic opportunities that are present at Manitoulin Secondary School teaches students valuable life skills such as teamwork, dedication and goal setting. I would like to congratulate all of the students of MSS for everything that they have accomplished so far. I hope you all enjoy your summer break!

Hair for Heroes event coming up on July 6

Area paramedics hope to donate 150 inches of hair for cancer patients

by Robin Burrige

MANITOULIN—The Hair for Heroes event on Thursday, July 6, hosted by the Manitoulin-Sudbury District Services Board (DSB) at the Little Current EMS base, is just around the corner and community members are urged to join area paramedics in donating hair and funds to those battling cancer in Canada.

“The paramedics at Manitoulin-Sudbury EMS feel it’s important to reach out to our communities in ways other than our regular day to day tasks,” explained DSB paramedic and event organizer Jess Wilkin. “When we meet the people in our communities, generally it’s a brief and often stressful time for our patients. This event gives us a chance to meet and help out our community members in a much different way. The event will be a time for all of us to come together to help our people in need, in a controlled setting and have some fun while doing so.”

The event’s goal is to donate 150 inches of hair to Pantene Beautiful Lengths in honour of Canada’s 150th anniversary. Pantene is Canadian-based and donates wigs free of charge to Canadians in need. The DSB paramedics are also accepting donations, with all proceeds going to the Canadian Cancer Society Transportation Program. This program supports a group of volunteers who provide rides for cancer patients to and from their cancer related treatments, free of cost.

Ms. Wilkin will be donating her hair on July 6 along with two of her fellow Little Current EMS fellow paramedics, Audrey Jones and Rudy Corbiere, and approximately 10 other Manitoulin and Sudbury DSB paramedics.

Manitoulin-Sudbury DSB employees have also stepped up and will be donating close to $1,000 towards the cause. The nurses at the Manitoulin Health Centre have joined the cause as well, instigating a friendly competition to see who can raise the most money/donate the most hair.

Members of the community have also donated, but Ms. Wilkin said that they need more donations to reach their goal of $3,000, in addition to the 150 inches of hair.

Pantene Beautiful Lengths requires that hair is a minimum of eight inches, free of dye/chemicals and less than five percent grey.

“We are well on our way to reaching our goals,” said Ms. Wilkin. “Every little bit helps.”

Hair for Heroes will be held on Thursday, July 6 at 11 am at the Little Current EMS base located at 30 Wilson Street East. Members of the public are invited to come out and donate their hair, money or simply show their support for the cause. There will be ambulances for kids to check out, as well as snacks and refreshments for anyone coming to join in the fun.

If you are unable to attend, financial donations can be made through cancer.ca/hairforheroes. For more information, Ms. Wilkin can be reached at 705-822-5377 or Jessica.wilkin@msdsb.net.

The new interlocking blocks are set with a new sand between them that discourages plant growth, so the new floors should not fall victim to the same issues that the previous interlocking brick system did.

In addition to individual donations and fundraising efforts a number of local businesses stepped up to the plate, including Phil Blake and Three Cows and a Cone, Calvin Pearson and Son, Manitowaning Home Hardware and Manitoulin Transport.

“We really want to say thank you to the fundraising committee for the great job you did and for having it done for Decoration Day including the Youth Memorial,” said Ms. Bowerman. “The perpetual care of these memorials is made possible because of the donations that the committee receives and all the donations are greatly appreciated.”

On the national level, he noted that the prime minister had approached the Pope to seek an apology from the Catholic Church for the role it played in the residential school system. “He was asked to get an apology by June 17,” he said. “He did try to make that happen.”

The opening of the new Indigenous Sharing and Learning Centre on National Aboriginal Day (soon to be universally known more appropriately as National Indigenous Day) was fitting.

Shelly Moore Frappier is the first director of the centre and acted as master of ceremonies for the opening ceremonies. Ms. Moore Frappier gave homage to those past and present who made the centre a reality. “We stand on the shoulders of giants,” she said.

The afternoon proceeded with culturally appropriate ceremonies, including drum songs and an elder’s prayer.

Mr. Beaudry had high praise for outgoing Laurentian University president Dominic Giroux, whose tenure was largely concurrent with his own. For both gentlemen the opening of the centre ranked among their last official duties. Mr. Giroux is moving on to head Health Sciences North. “He has overseen a lot of positive changes at the university and I was honoured to be able to be a

The Indigenous Sharing and Learning Centre is comprised of a large round room, “a huge beautiful room” said Mr. Beaudry. “There are many wooden accents and there are potted lights in the ceiling that are like stars in the night sky.” Off to the side is a hallway leading to several study rooms, a small computer lab and a kitchen. “Like a home away from home for the students,” he said.

with Ms. Seabrook and organizers hoping other communities will step forward and organize events as part of Pride Manitoulin.

"We will be creating a map with organizations and businesses across Manitoulin that will be participating," said Ms. Seabrook. "It will identify destinations so that all welcoming Island businesses and communities can benefit from the influx of tourism that we hope to attract."

The events planned so far include a gay and allied boat tour with North Channel Cruiseline on Saturday night (August 19), kids crafts and games at Low Island Park, a colour run on Sunday at 9:30 pm, followed by a Pride parade at 11 am.

"Youth from across the Island will be working to design a permanent art sculpture which will be made by One Kwe and the Ojibwe Cultural Foundation will be leading a workshop from two-spirited artists," added Ms. Seabrook. "Wiikwemikong Tourism is also looking at doing some kind of art-based event."

Ms. Seabrook stressed that Manitoulin Pride will include family friendly and cultural events.

"We have extended an invitation to work with the Whitefish River First Nation powwow, which is the same weekend," said Ms. Seabrook, "and we are looking at organizing a two-spirited sweat lodge/social. We will have some 19 plus events (the group is exploring an event for the Friday night in addition to the Saturday boat trip), but we want to make it an inclusive weekend with cultural and family friendly events."

The Pride Manitoulin

committee is seeking sponsorship to help buy participating businesses and organizations a Pride flag and to help with events such as the parade.

If you are interested in becoming a sponsor, organizing an event or helping in any other way with Pride Manitoulin, contact Ms. Seabrook at 705-348-1964 or email pride@gshmanitoulin.com. There is also a Pride Manitoulin Facebook page which has more information and will have updates on the event.

...Island pups sought for Canadian tick study

"Through my practice here I have seen a huge population explosion with ticks," said Dr. Stinson. "We have added a Lyme disease vaccination as part of our core vaccinations because of the high incident rate. This study is so important because it will provide the raw data needed to find a solution to this problem."

The study is being conducted by Dr. Scott Weese and Dr. Michelle Evanson of the Department of Pathobiology at the University of Guelph.

"The purpose of the study is to enroll pet-owners and their puppies (seven months of age or younger) that will be followed for evaluation of exposure to ticks carrying Borrelia burgdorferi (the cause of Lyme disease) and their possible development of signs of illness due to Lyme disease," the consent form to participate in the research study states. "This is part of a larger long-term (lifetime) Lyme disease and canine health study."

Dr. Stinson explained that the study will involve either himself or a member of his team drawing blood from the participating puppy at the age of seven months (or less) and repeated every 6-12 months. The puppy owner will also be asked to complete an electronic or telephone questionnaire on the puppy at six-month intervals over the course of the study (three years). Commitment to the initial phase (three years) does not commit participants to the later phases of the study but it is hoped that long-term the puppies and their owners will participate throughout following the dog's life.

"Additionally, if a tick is found on the puppy, owners are asked to submit it for identification and testing," said Dr. Stinson. "Participating in the study comes at no cost to the pet owner, it is just their responsibility to bring the puppy to have the blood drawn and complete the questionnaires."

The Expositor spoke to Dr. Evanson about the study and the motivation behind it.

"The biggest reason for the study was the frustration of vets and pet owners not knowing how or why dogs are getting Lyme disease," said Dr. Evanson. "It is unclear right now if it is because of a lack of awareness on the part of pet owners or not being proactive enough or if the disease is still happening in spite of (preventive treatment). There are so many dogs contracting this disease and people are at a higher risk of contracting it if they are a pet owner."

The Expositor reported in April of this year that the Sudbury and District Health Unit (SDHU) felt there was no evidence to support or refute an influx of black legged/deer ticks this year. They also stated that black legged ticks are not common in the area (Manitoulin) and had no plans to conduct tick dragging this year, despite the number of canine cases last year.

Dr. Evanson said she couldn't comment on why the SDHU had elected not to do tick dragging, but did note that they are definitely in Ontario and based on the number of cases at Scott Veterinary Services, on Manitoulin.

"We know they (ticks) are here (Ontario) and there have been positive cases of Lyme disease," said Dr. Evanson. "There is probably going to be an increase as more ticks head across the boarder (from the US)."

Dr. Evanson said the Canadian K9 Lifetime Lyme Study is hoping to have 200 puppies enrolled across Ontario and is hoping to open the study to another 100 in Atlantic Canada. "We would really like to make this a Canada-wide study," she said.

"Veterinarians don't need to do this, but the number that have stepped forward really speaks to the veterinarian community in Ontario," Dr. Evanson said. "The funding right now is very limited, so the help of the veterinarians is the only way we can do this study. They are doing this because they want answers and to improve the health of pets and their owners—it is really inspiring."

If you have a puppy seven months old or younger, you can contact Scotts Veterinary Services in Mindemoya for more information or to join the study.

"Every puppy we have seen (since the study opened earlier this month), the owner has signed up," said Dr. Stinson.

The initial results will be available at the end of the year, but the first phase of the study will be held over the next three years.

For more information contact Dr. Stinson at 705-377-5666 or stop in at 2058 Highway 551, Mindemoya, Ontario.

...Henley explores expansion

ty or even moving to a 24-hour operation.

"It's a good problem I've got," Mr. Ham admits.

He says that should he decide to add another 40,000 or even 60,000 feet to the facility, it would mean ramping up on employees too, which would also require greater water and sewer servicing. Henley Boats currently uses a field bed, but this would not be sustainable, Mr. Ham adds. He has hired the engineering firm Exp Services Inc. of Sudbury to investigate the scope of services required.

"We're looking at all these different solutions to solve the problem," he says.

Mr. Ham has distributors of his welded aluminum boats across the country, including Victoria, Vancouver, Halifax, Yarmouth, Montreal and a freelancer in the United States.

"In consumer boats, we're producing between 45 and 48 a year," Mr. Ham explains. "We're still building a lot of commercial/industrial boats, most of which go to BC. Last year, we made 13 of these boats, some of them are big, big boats that were too big to put on the swing bridge." These vessels leave Manitoulin via the ferry instead.

The production engineer is also looking at staffing needs, should an expansion occur, with Mr. Ham hopeful that all of his needs can be met with Manitoulin people. The engineer is also looking into different machinery, as well as a need for more administrative staff to see an expansion through.

Mr. Ham says he hopes to have a plan in place by the end of the summer.

"I now just have to figure out what I want to do," he says.

Stories From Our Land

Celebrating Canada's 150

EDITOR'S NOTE: In conjunction with Canada's Sesquicentennial in 2017, members of the Manitoulin Writers' Circle are crafting stories and poems to pay tribute to our country on this pivotal milestone birthday.

O Canada

by Ev Cardiff

So, Ms. Canada, you have come to me in search of enlightenment? You want Madam Grizelda to take a peek into her crystal ball for you or ask her cards for guidance? You are curious about what the fates have in store for you as you prepare to celebrate your 150th birthday as a nation? I shall try to clarify a few truths that a youngster such as yourself would do well to understand and heed.

This auspicious occasion is occurring in 2017, the year of the Rooster, according to ancient Chinese astrology. Rooster years are not without challenges and turbulence both on the world's stage and at home. There will be much posturing and flexing of military muscle internationally, although some of this is just to impress. The increased unrest among minorities over longstanding resentments will be unsettling, and much hard work and effort must be expended to soothe the troubled waters and settle their demands. There will be some splendid achievements and exciting new discoveries in space and medical research, but not without much hard work and diligence.

As one born in the more gentle and gracious year of the Rabbit, and under the Tarot card of the Empress, my dear Ms. Canada, you will not be completely comfortable with the heady pace and bristling activity of the year. But there is much to be learned that will stand you in good stead in the centuries ahead. You are very young yet, but with your inquiring mind and amiable nature you can gain valuable skills and experience to build upon. An area which requires care is finance, and this is not a year to be lax. Transactions must be scrutinized, impeccable records must be kept, and you must check carefully anything that you do not understand.

The world is revolving as it should, you know, in spite of all the atrocities its citizens perpetrate upon each other. As it is now, so it has always been and so it shall remain for many generations to come. Strife and dissension, wars and corruption, hatred and greed may prevail, but there are also moments of beauty, pockets of peace, deeds of greatness and occasional glimmerings of knowledge, wisdom and truth. There is nothing new under the sun. Nations come and go as the sands of time drift across the universe, and each in turn takes its place upon the world's stage for awhile.

You, Ms. Canada, are tiptoeing upon the brink of womanhood. You have shown yourself to have warm, caring motherly traits for one so young, your landscape is rich and fertile, and your bounty could ease the hunger and suffering of the world. Your destiny is not to go forth and do battle but to remain on the periphery, like a Mother, waiting to welcome the lost and to heal the wounded.

A cycle for you is now almost finished. It is time for you to lead worthy projects to their logical conclusions and put an end to futile enterprises as very soon new ideas and tasks will be clamoring for your attention. Once your birthday has passed you will be seeking new roles to play and investigating options to make the world a better and kinder place. Do not commit to anything until it has been tested and found to be worthy of your attention. Be vigilant. All around you there will be dark clouds of misery and evil, but do not be drawn into them. Use your maternal traits of warmth and wisdom and wait for the sunshine to return, as it surely will.

According to my cards, the spinning of the wheel of time will uncover the new direction you are to follow. With your new maturity and insight, with your innate tact and diplomacy, you will be forging business and commerce in unexpected quarters. Other nations will see you with new eyes and respect your womanly presence upon the world's stage, not as a raucous or pompous force bellowing for attention, but as a strong, wise and gracious nation offering meaningful help.

The next 150 in the calendar of mankind will pass in the blink of an eye, but as the mists clear in my crystal ball I can see you, Ms. Canada, standing tall and content in 2167, with heart and mind in balance. You will be the glorious nation you were meant to be, and well prepared to usher in a new and very different way of living together upon this planet.

...tribal council delays new Official Plan

rad Spezowka, media relations spokesperson with the MMAH, told The Expositor on Monday. "Ministry staff are in the process of reviewing the comments that have been received, and have reached out to the Manitoulin Planning Board and the UCCMM to set up further meetings. The ministry truly values the opportunity to consider the UCCMM's concerns on the Official Plan and to consider ways to strengthen the land use planning decision-making process on Manitoulin Island."

The MMAH has delayed its final decision on the final draft Official Plan due to concerns raised by the UCCMM. The ministry did not issue its final decision on May 26 as the UCCMM had requested more time to respond to the Official Plan.

Mr. Spezowka would not discuss the UCCMM's concerns with the OP.

The Expositor contacted the UCCMM, but did not hear back as of press time on Monday.

Central approves detours from Tehkummah

by Michael Erskine

CENTRAL MANITOULIN—Central Manitoulin Council has approved a detour of traffic from Tehkummah's 10th Concession Road onto Townline Road at the behest of the Ministry of Transportation (MTO), but only if the MTO ensures the safety of travellers and assumes responsibility.

The detours are required as part of the bridge replacements on Highway 542 at the Blue Jay Creek culverts located approximately 1.2 kilometres, 1.6 kilometres and 1.19 kilometres north of Highway 6. Those culvert replacements, slated for next year, will require a full road closure of Highway 542.

Council agreed to the detours, but placed several caveats on their approval including that the MTO agree that gravel will be placed as needed, the roadway will be graded as needed, proper signage will be installed to ensure safety, calcium is to be applied, that the MTO assumes liability of the road during the detour, that the MTO will determine if the roadway is safe for detour traffic volumes and that the Central Manitoulin municipal road superintendent will be consulted at all times on the stated requirements.

New marina pumps to take up to six weeks

by Michael Erskine

TEHKUMMAH—Council was sent scrambling following the opening of tenders for the replacement of a fuel dispensing pump for the South Baymouth Marina when they learned the timeline for the new pumps to come in could take from four to six weeks.

The three bids opened at the council table, which included the removal of the existing pumps, supply and installation of syphon lines between fuel tank compartments, included the winning bid of $14,850 from J. R. Hendry, and bids of $21,200 from Waggs and $20,680.44 from PSL.

Questioned on the timelines and whether one of the losing bids could bring the changeover sooner, clerk treasurer Karen Gerrard noted that the other bids had indicated six and eight weeks for the work to be completed.

One commercial operator in the audience who had earlier noted that he had been hauling 25-gallon drums of fuel to his vessel left the meeting voicing his frustration.

Council members were also clearly upset about the timeframe. "This is someone's livelihood we are dealing with here," said Councillor Laurie Leeson.

Councillor Laird Lee asked if the equipment was equivalent across suppliers, which was determined to be the case.

As discussion unfolded it was suggested that the marina fuel tanks would be pumped clear of regular gasoline and filled with enough to bridge the timeframe necessary to bring in the new pumps and that the winning bid contractor would be approached to expedite the acquisition and installation of the replacement equipment.

In other tenders opened during the June 13 meeting Superior Propane's bid of 51 cents per litre fixed for one year, with no tank rental at all three locations, won. Manitoulin Fuels had bid 68.9 cents per litre with monthly tank rentals of $40 per location.

In gravel tenders, Mike Varey and Sons Excavating had the winning bid of $14.44 per cubic metre for gravel. C. Pearson and Son Excavating had bid $14.77 per cubic metre. The bids are subject to material testing and determination of suitability of material by the town's public works department.

Little Current Swing Bridge experiences another failure

by Michael Erskine

LITTLE CURRENT—A number of travellers hoping for a swift passage over the North Channel to and from Manitoulin Island on June 23 found themselves waiting on the wings a little longer than expected as switch failure prevented the bridge from closing.

"Regarding Little Current Swing Bridge, on June 23 there was an electrical switch issue on the bridge," said Lara Cantin, regional issues and media advisor for the Ministry of Transportation. "The bridge operator had to close the bridge manually, causing a short delay to traffic. The switch was replaced that night and returned to a normal swing schedule. We have had other issues similar to this in the past that have caused minor delays."

Ms. Cantin noted that the bridge is now functioning normally and is expected to operate normally going forward.

Carol Hughes invites prime minister to Kagawong exhibit

by Michael Erskine

OTTAWA—Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing MP Carol Hughes rose in the House recently to deliver a member's statement that included an invitation to the prime minister to visit Kagawong on August 10.

Ms. Hughes was delivering a traditional member's statement before the summer break that MPs use to celebrate the many events taking place in their communities over the summer. Ms. Hughes referenced events along the Highway 11 corridor in French before breaking into English for those taking place in the southern portion of her vast riding.

Ms. Hughes noted the many National Aboriginal Day events taking place across the riding on June 21, as well as the hundreds of Canada 150 activities taking place on Canada Day. She also noted that the unveiling of the new edition of the famed Canada goose in Wawa, which Ms. Hughes noted is one of the most photographed landmarks in the nation. She also noted that Echo Bay will be celebrating the 30th anniversary of the Canadian one dollar coin, the Loonie, which has become a Canadian icon. Echo Bay will also be celebrating 25th anniversary of their giant Loonie coin, erected in honour of the designer of the Loonie Robert Ralph Carmichael, who makes Echo Bay his home.

Ms. Hughes saved the best for last, however, referencing "the official launch of the Old Mill Heritage Centre museum's exhibit of their Lester B. Pearson collection." Ms. Hughes may be forgiven for interchanging the August 10 Kagawong History Day events with the launch of the Pearson exhibit, which is already in full swing and can be visited each day of the week through the summer, as she delivered the information in a whirlwind delivery to get everything into the time allotted.

She most certainly got the timing of the appearance of Patricia Pearson's presentation on her grandfather's life and times spot on as she invited Prime Minister Justin Trudeau to visit.

"We hope the prime minister will attend to celebrate the life of a close family friend," she said in concluding her address.

There is no word yet on whether the prime minister will take Ms. Hughes' invitation up, although most of the signs seem less than hopeful.

"I'm not giving up," said Old Mill Heritage Centre curator Rick Nelson, who has been pounding on both front and back doors to bring the prime minister to the exhibit.

Dark skies clear for South Bay Traditional Powwow

by Michael Erskine
SOUTH BAY—The South Bay Traditional Powwow seemed destined for a damp welcome this past weekend, but aside from a slight mist in the early afternoon, the skies held back their largesse and even cleared later in the afternoon. Certainly the damp weather did not deter participants and visitors from taking in the proceedings.

Emcees for the South Bay Traditional Powwow were Chris Pheasant and Dan Fox, arena director was Robert Stonepoint of Sagamok First Nation and head elder was Raymond Jackson, crane clan. Head dancers were Harmony Rivers and Colten Trudeau while sound production was handled by Playboyz Enterprise.

The eagle staffs present at this year's grand entry included the Wiikwemkoong Community Satellite Staff, the Warriors Veteran Staff carried by elder Raymond Jackson, the Sagamok Community Eagle Staff, the Waashkesh Eagle Staff carried by Ron Peltier, the Earth Wellness Medicine Staff carried by Tory Tyson, the Wasse Abin Junior School Staff carried by Liam Rivers, the Wiikwemkoong Community Staff carried by Stitch Manflags under which Anishinaabe veterans have fought, including the Canadian flag, the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes, along with the POW/MIA flag which had been held in the community "until some time in the 1940s or 50s it left. It wasn't until the early 80s that it resurfaced in the National Museum in Ottawa."

Following Chief Peltier's address, the Sword of Mookmanish was danced around the arena with the veterans and other dignitaries as the Chippewa Travellers sang a veterans song.

A door prize of a 2017 Arctic Cat Side by Side with plow and winch from Sudbury Boat and Canoe was drawn by a tourist from Iceland at the conclusion of the powwow and won by Sebastien Pheasant. The $500 second prize was won by Matt Chiblow of Missisquoi First Nation, the $250 third prize was won by Alan Bois of Espanola and the fourth prize of $100 was won by Rachel Manitowabi.

were carried in and posted. "Not to show any disrespect, but it was decided not to have any flags," said elder Raymond Jackson. "Flags were not part of our traditions."

Elder Jackson began the day's ceremonies with the rising sun with a pipe ceremony and addressed the grand entry with a prayer invoking the four directions and the spirits of the people.

Wiikwemkoong Unceded Territories Ogimaa Duke Peltier welcomed everyone on behalf of his community and thanked the veterans, "the one's who have stepped forward to protect our Anishinaabe lands."

Following the posting of the eagle staffs, and as part of the opening ceremonies, Chief Peltier presented a replica of the sword of Mookmanish. The original museum should continue to preserve and protect the sword.

The sword was presented to the Anishinaabe warrior Mookmanish by a grateful British government for his assistance

Your kindness and compassion made this time easier for Marie and family. To the ladies of Spring Bay Pentecostal Church, thank you for the wonderful luncheon that you provided following the service. I would like to extend a huge thanks to the medical team who took care of me during an emergency on Wednesday, June 14, 2017. Thanks to Dr. Mary Ellen Gedye who was the first to attend to me at the Emergency Department in Mindemoya Hospital and follow up appointment in Gore Bay on Friday. A special thanks to Dr. Maurianne Reade and Nurse Dana who accompanied me in the ambulance ride to the Sudbury Hospital. Thanks to paramedics Monic Rochon-Shaw and Kaylie Lacasse who provided the efficient ambulance service and who were very helpful and accommodating to assist Evelyn, during this stressful and anxious time for her. Thanks to Dr. Kerr and Dr. Mireau at the Intensive Care Unit at Health Sciences North in Sudbury. Also thanks and appreciation to Nurse Maggie and Nurse Crystal for keeping a vigilant watch during my stay in the ICU. It is often easy to complain about the long time to sit in an emergency waiting room in a non-life threatening situation. I am very grateful for the priority that was given to me with absolutely no waiting or hesitation about what had to be done. So thank you also to anyone who may have had a longer wait so that I was able to get the quick attention to an allergic reaction that would have had serious consequences if not treated immediately.

To our Island community your generosity knew no bounds, we are thankful and truly blessed to call this home.

Phillip was blessed with many great friends who journeyed many miles to visit him one last time.

We are deeply and truly grateful to our boys that honored Phillip on his journey to rest.

In the short time Phillip was with us he touched many lives from the very young to the old, he will be missed for ever but, he will live on in our hearts and memories.

Warmest regards,
Kevin and Kim Moulton

 marina with his dad. Glen continues to work in the mental health field where he has accomplished much. His daughter Rebecca and her husband are both paramedics in Sudbury. Roy Panamick lives and works in Chapleau, Lora Jean caters in M'Chigeeng, Marion was a hairdresser and Jim helps street people in Toronto.

"Most important to me has been watching my children, grandchildren and great grandchildren grow-up and be healthy. Today, I have six grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren. Lucky for me, the girls in the family have all let me pick out their wedding dresses. I stayed involved. One Christmas I bought CAA memberships for my grandchildren." The Hallett household was always a gathering spot. Good meals and the fun activities are recalled by all.

"Glen has a sugar shack in his maple bush. We used to take the jumper (sleigh) to reach it. One winter when I was younger, I helped put a new roof on the shack. They used the bucket of the tractor to help me reach the roof. Maple syrup time is great for getting together with family."

"I have had an exciting life, perhaps not as happy as it could have been but life is about 'good' and 'bad'. My perseverance has also gotten me through life's challenges; adjusting to the debilitation that Lloyd faced, to helping family, neighbours and home care patients to the best of my ability. I even got to use a tractor and lift hay bales."

"I keep busy with quilting." A beautiful colourful quilt, in progress, was displayed in an upstairs bedroom. "I enjoy visits too and being greeted in town. In the '80s and '90s I made a lot of friends. I am part of the seniors' groups in Mindemoya and Providence Bay and part of the local historical society. I still have 50 pieces of Blue Willow dishes, the Millstream pattern, and I attend the United Church in town with a friend. What would I still like to do? I would still love to plant another tree but I guess I won't see it grow for long."

"Manitoulin is special for me. This is where my roots are and where I belong. I still enjoy seeing my grandchildren come across the field. Anytime I left the Island, I always looked forward to coming home. I don't know how many days I have left, so I am really looking closely at my world and surely appreciating it. There is nothing I would change if I could go back in time. This is my perfect home."

LITTLE CURRENT—Manitoulin Streams Improvement Association hosted its second annual Jackets and Jeans fundraising gala at the Northeast Town Recreation Centre, raising funds and awareness for the stream stewardship organization.

“We don’t have a final count yet (of the funds raised) but all the money raised is spent here on the Island and goes towards stream restoration projects supporting businesses on the Island (construction, materials and supplies), supporting our youth programs (hunter education, youth trappers course) and educational awareness programs (supporting staff travelling and conduction school programs, invasive species awareness and stewardships activities),” Manitoulin Streams Project Coordinator Seija Deschenes told The Expositor. “We would like to sincerely thank all the businesses that donated and supported our gala. We cannot believe the support that we have received and are amazed at the generosity and how community minded the businesses are here on Manitoulin and would like to thank them for supporting local grass roots initiatives like ours.”

The gala began with a social hour, followed by a buffet dinner by the Anchor Inn Hotel.

Manitoulin Streams Chair Ted Williamson thanked everyone for attending and commented on the great turnout.

Mr. Williamson thanked all the board members including Algis Tribinevicius, Delmer Fields, Lynn Hughson, Ted Williamson, Brian Ramakko, Ken Pearce, Neil Debassige and Therese Trainor.

He also thanked master of ceremonies John Diebolt, Ms. Deschenes and the staff at Manitoulin Streams and the evening’s volunteers including Al Tribinevicius, Brian Ramakko, Ed Burke, Margo Charbonneau, Paul Skuce, Brandice Ramakko, Jesse Beaudin and Mike Laende.

“Thank you everyone for attending,” said Ms. Deschenes.

The Jackets and Jeans gala was yet another sold out affair.

“Thank you to all the sponsors. I’m sure a lot of you are looking at all the great work that has been accomplished by Manitoulin Streams and have asked yourself who was responsible for being the visionary or brain child that thought of creating this grass roots stream restoration organization. Well today we would like to take the time to thank Bob Florean for making Manitoulin Streams what it is today.”

Ms. Deschenes noted that Mr. Florean started his career as a fire crew member with the Ministry of Natural Resources in 1975 and expanded his experience in forestry. In 1999 he moved to Espanola as a fish and wildlife technical specialist. Before retiring, he worked as the Manitoulin Stewardship Coordinator and convinced the MNR to allow him to help build what Manitoulin Streams is today.

“Anyone that knows Bob knows that he is passionate about two things: being out in nature and educating people on becoming Mike Terry of Manitowaning was the winner of the $750 box of cash. Last year Mr. Terry won a rifle at the event.

Erin Rose of Little Current shows off her new Winchester Centennial RCMP 30-30 lever rifle that she won through the raffle tables.

“Today we would like to thank Bob on the public stage so that everyone knows how much we appreciate the endless hours he has spent making Manitoulin Streams the successful working entity that we are today due to his efforts,” concluded Ms. Deschenes.

Ms. Deschenes and Mr. Williamson presented Mr. Florean with a plaque and an Island cutout of Manitoulin by One Kwe. Mr. Florean received a standing ovation from the crowd.

“Thank you,” said Mr. Florean. “I am very humbled.”

The fundraising elements of the evening included a silent auction, raffle tables and live auction with items like a canoe hatchet, firearm, Garden’s Gate goodies, tickets to the Chi Cheemaun ferry dinner cruise, a chartered fishing trip with Salmon Classic tickets, horseback ride and overnight stay at Kicking Mule Ranch, and a coyote hunt, to name a few.

Debajehmujig Storytellers launches new recording studio, open to all artists

by Michael Erskine

MANITOWANING—The Debajehmujig Storytellers Larry E. Lewis Creation Centre is always a hotbed of creative activity, and its well-equipped facility is the envy of theatre companies in much larger communities across Canada. Last week, Debaj secured yet another jewel to its artistic crown with the addition of a state-of-the-art recording studio.

“We are glad it is open for business,” said Debaj artistic director Joe Osawabine. “We hope to have a naming ceremony soon.”

Designed by sound engineer and Debaj stalwart Chris Deforge and funded through a FedNor grant, the facility is “acoustically sound and specifically designed for a quality product with digital modern equipment and methods of recording.”

In addition to its isolation booth, the recording studio features the ability to record live off the floor of the Debaj main staging floor and can provide overdubbing. The Debaj staff are well trained and experienced in sound production and are available to assist with any project.

With digital production facilities close to hand, Debaj can also design CD sleeves and duplication as well.

“Our step into digital media arts is ever-expanding and our new sound recording studio is a necessary complement to our fully-equipped digital animation studio suite,” explained Mr. Deforge. “Our other capabilities include ADR for film, sound design, post production for film and television, radio ads and other possibilities that have yet to be explored,” said Mr. Deforge.

“We are really excited about working with JUNO award winning artist Crystal Shawanda and partner Dewayne Strobel,” said Mr. Osawabine. “They work with a lot of Canadian artists up here and it is very expensive to bring them down to Nashville for recording.” Ms. Shawanda is very familiar with the expertise and skill of the Debaj engineers as some of the studio’s most recent projects included special engineering for Ms. Shawanda’s recent blues album ‘The Whole World’s Got the Blues’ and Debaj also shot, edited and produced the music video for ‘Pray Sister’ of the same album.

The Debaj recording studio is open for business for recording artists, corporate clients and can also be hired for on location recording, but perhaps the most exciting aspect of the operation is the ancillary support that Debaj can provide.

“Of course we need to make some money to help keep the doors open, but we can help with that too,” said Mr. Osawabine. “We can assist people in finding the funding for their project as well. We will work with people. We want to make it as accessible as possible to the community.”

While Debaj remains a land-based indigenous theatre company, the recording studio is open to working with any artist. “We just need you to show up with something ready to go,” said Mr. Osawabine. “We want to find people who are passionate about what they are doing.”

An advantage that Debaj has is that their sound engineers are salaried on staff and not an incremental cost in production. “It gives us a lot of flexibility,” notes Mr. Osawabine.

future stewards of the land,” said Ms. Deschenes. “He spent countless personal hours at home investing and planning and coordinating stakeholders on the Island to develop Manitoulin Streams. After Bob retired his passion didn’t stop—he started his own environmental consulting company and volunteered with many grass roots organizations on the Island like Manitoulin Streams, the United Wall-eye Club and the Little Current Fish and Game Club.”

of Nanabush—starting near the end of July, probably the Wikwemikong Powwow Weekend.

“And of course we have our Seven Minute Sideshows beginning in July and the Community Heritage Market,” said Mr. Osawabine. “Any artist or artisan can book a table at the market, just give us a call at Debaj.”

As part of the opening festivities for the recording studio, Debaj featured a stage filled with local artists’ performances.

GORE BAY—If you're in Gore Bay this weekend taking in the Canada Day celebrations (organized in partnership with the township of Gordon/Barrie Island), you'll be treated to a full-day's slate of fun for kids and adults, including pancake breakfast, parade, dog show, hoop-dance presentation by Sheshegwaning First Nation artist Celina Cada, rib dinner, free ice cream social, beer gardens with a roster of bands and DJ Deanna Smith until 1 am and clown shows by the Manitoulin Conservancy for Creation and Performance.

That's a lot to take in, but the visitor would be wise to reserve some time to look around this little town (pop. 900) that's been "serving western Manitoulin since its founding in 1890." While the first recorded "resident"

Gore Bay Mayor Ron Lane at the town's busy marina. "All boat slips are full and the boatyard is at capacity," he says of this year's tourism activities at the popular port.

The Community Hall in Gore Bay is the scene of many events throughout the year and is the summer home of the award-winning Gore Bay Theatre, staging 'Shirley Valentine' and 'Boiler Room Suite' this year.

The limestone courthouse, registry office and jailer's home (with jail cells in back (now the Gore Bay Museum) built right after Gore Bay was voted the judicial seat of the Island in 1888.

where, in those early years, it was all happening: the first store was built in 1870 on Thorburn Street; a hotel, the Atlantic, went up (near the present-day Queens Hotel). Then came a blacksmith, liveries, sawmills, shoemakers, a wagon shop, and three more hotels (the Queens, still operating as period-style accommodations, was built in 1891). Gore Bay's oldest historical homes can be seen in this area, on Thorburn, Borron and Meredith streets, built after the town's centre gravitated southward to where the business core is today.

Development proceeded quickly, with the limestone courthouse, registry office and jailer's home (with jail cells in back, now the Gore Bay Museum) built right after Gore Bay was voted the judicial seat of the Island in 1888. The Town of Gore Bay, by then a boomtown, was incorporated in 1890; the flourishing commerce in shipping and lumber and fishing exports before and during that period saw churches, public halls, a water system, a public school and an agricultural building built to support the growing community. The first Island newspaper, 'The Manitoulin Enterprise,' had been published in Gore Bay in 1877.

Today, over 125 years later, the once-thriving business core on the waterfront is a bustling hub of a different kind. "The town developed around the harbour, uniquely protected between the East and West Bluffs, as water was the only way to get things in and out, including vital supplies and the mail," says Gore Bay mayor Ron Lane. "The commercial driver today is tourism."

"The harbour has been improved to attract more boaters," adds the mayor. "Now Canadian Yacht Charters' slips are fully booked, and the boat yard (where boats overwinter in storage) is at capacity. We have a seasonal community of boaters who return year after year to spend the summer here on their boats." Nearby are the perfectly preserved Janet Head lighthouse, built in 1879, the expanded patio of Split Rail Brewery, the wide verandahs of the studios, shops and galleries of the Harbour Centre and the breezy deck of Buoy's Eatery for residents and visitors keen to enjoy the bay's waterside below the East Bluff, including swimming off the dock at the beach and walking along the new breakwall and the boardwalk.

"We have to balance everything we do between residents and visitors," adds Mayor Lane. "We must continue to support the residents of western Manitoulin as we have for over a hundred years, with facilities for seniors, a medical centre, school, courthouse, shops and eateries, a government service centre, and with solid infrastructure such as

With the last day of the school year on Thursday, June 29, the MSS Mustangs will officially be on their summer break. The Students' Council election that took place on June 19 was a great look ahead to next year. The 2017-2018 Students' Council will consist of the following school leaders: Co-Prime Ministers April Torkopolous and Jacob Maxwell, Vice Prime Minister Josh Noble, AV Technician Isaac Gosse, Secretary and Treasurer Victoria MacDonald, Spirit Representative Delaney Madore, Fundraising Representative Alicia Williamson, Junior Representative Larissa Chevette, Special Events Coordinator Amber Wahl, and me in the role of Public Relations. The staff supervisors of the Council will be Ms. Elgie and Mr. Zegil. Their first official event of the 2017-18 school year is the Grade 9 barbecue on August 30.

June 21 was National Aboriginal Day, and to celebrate the culture, the Three Fires Confederacy was giving away free Indian Tacos to all students who wanted one. Mr. Trudeau also organized a game of Capture the Flag on the soccer field. Twenty students enjoyed the game, and it was only cut short by the bell.

Also on June 21, Magical Paws brought in their dogs to the school to help students de-stress before their exams. Students were seen sitting with dogs on the floor of the cafeteria, looking extremely happy. Students have also been participating in extra sports to relieve some of that crunch time stress: Ultimate frisbee, basketball and tennis.

Mr. Scott, the director of the amazing musicals, has announced that in 2017-18 School, MSS will be staging the quintessential musical 'The Sound of Music.' After a number of successful productions including 'Anything Goes,' 'Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum,' 'Oklahoma,' and 'Once Upon a Mattress', the next production is highly anticipated. The production team is already making plans and auditions will take place in October, including open auditions for elementary students.

After what seemed like a short school year, MSS has to say goodbye to three teachers. Ms. Wilson was an English teacher at MSS and is now retiring. Dr. Johnston taught math, science and physics. Mr. Smith taught literacy and math. All these teachers will be missed in the halls of our school.

Students and staff are ready for their fun-filled, exciting summers that include working, travelling, hanging out with friends, sailing, camp counselling and more. 'Til September, enjoy your summers and stay golden, Mustangs.

Planning for weather

In 2016, many areas of the province saw very warm and dry conditions, creating challenges for horticulture and field crop producers. Many wells were still dry leading into the winter. In other years, like the start of the 2017 growing season, the province experienced periods of excessive rain, leading to saturated soils and flooding. No one can control the weather, but we can plan for it. The Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs (OMAFRA) encourages you to plan for future weather—conserving water and using it efficiently can help during low water conditions, and having effective drainage systems in place can help with saturated soils and runoff. Things to consider for low water conditions: Think ahead: Determine how much water you'll need for

One of my favourite meats to barbecue and eat is the flank steak. This cut is not quite as tender as a strip loin or rib-eye, but it is tender enough to grill and enjoy the deep beefy flavour. I like to marinate the steak because it will become a bit more tender and add extra flavour to the meat. Any leftovers are great on a salad the next day.

Grilled Flank Steak

Don't slice the flank steak right after grilling it, or you will lose its tasty juices. Let the meat rest for 5 minutes after cooking which will give the fibres a chance to relax and reabsorb the flavourful juices.

MARINADE:

- 1/2 cup hoisin sauce
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 3 Tbsp oil
- 2 Tbsp grated fresh ginger
- 4 garlic cloves, minced
- 1/4 tsp red pepper flakes

STEAK:

- 1 flank steak (1 1/2 to 2 pounds) serves 4
- Freshly ground pepper

Mix together the marinade and pour into a heavy plastic bag. Add the flank steak and let sit for 4 to 8 hours.

Prepare and preheat your grill to its highest setting. Remove the steak from the marinade and season with black pepper. Grill the steak, turning once or twice, until it reaches your favourite doneness. Medium-rare will take about 10 minutes in total.

When the steak is done, let it rest for a few minutes before slicing it across the grain into very thin strips.

the information you are reading is less than three years old. The accuracy of the information can also be judged if the author provides credible sources so you can see where they are getting their information from.

It's Saturday night and you're out for dinner catching up with some old friends. You're having a great conversation when suddenly someone says something that contradicts what you know. A heated debate ensues and there is only one way to determine the who is right. You take out your phone and consult the all-knowing Google.

about their medications, symptoms, and health conditions. However, when using the internet to look up medical information, getting false information from unreliable sites can have serious consequences. Here are some questions to ask yourself when reading up on medical information online:

don't recognize the organization, the link of the website can also give you clues. For example, links ending in ".org", ".gov", and ".edu" are more reliable than commercial websites ending in ".com" since there are certain regulations on who are able to have those link endings.

The Internet is a weird and wonderful place. The sheer amount of information that exists in the cyber world is so plentiful that it is hard to sort through. A lot of people ask "Dr. Google" their questions

Is this site reliable? Take a look at the organization hosting the site can easily give you a good idea of the reliability of the information. For example, it is clearly better to get nutrition advice from the Canadian Diabetes Association website over a blog called Sally's 100 ways to lose weight blog. If you

Is the information accurate and current? Medical information is constantly changing so a good rule of thumb is to ensure

Is the information too good to be true? As with many things in life, common sense will always save you at the end of the day. If the website is claiming things that are too good to be true, then it probably is and the website may just be trying to sell you their product. Always watch out for bias.

With that being said, if you find yourself wanting to fact check all my articles from now, I will not take any offense. However, if you find that evaluating medical information online is just too much work, as always, just bring it to your healthcare practitioner to get their opinion and we will gladly do the work for you.

your operation, and try to predict how long your water sources will last. Have a contingency plan you can carry out in case your water sources run dry. Use the Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association's Emergency Plan low water worksheet to help you with the contingency plan. Include a list of alternative water sources in your contingency plan. This can include water haulers and well drillers. Keep in mind that these sources may be unavailable at the height of low water conditions, so you'll need to plan ahead. Things to consider for flood conditions: Think ahead: Inspect your drainage systems and make improvements where necessary to reduce flooding. Consider installing tile drainage or intensifying your tile drainage network. Look for potential ponding areas in your fields and grade the land if possible. Consider changing your tillage practices, adding organic matter into your soil, reducing compaction or using cover crops to help improve water infiltration into your soil. OMAFRA is working with other provincial ministries, conservation authorities and other partners to develop resources to help you manage water. There are existing resources that can help, too: Environmental Farm Plan Info sheet No. 13: Water Efficiency, OMAFRA's drainage resources, Books in OMAFRA's Best Management Practices Series: Water Management Soil Erosion by Water and other soil health publications and Cropland Drainage.

Ontario has business risk management programs in place to help you when factors beyond your control affect your operation. Contact Agricorp for more information about these programs. Visit OMAFRA's Adverse Weather, Low Water, Irrigation and Drainage web pages for resources to help you prepare for various weather conditions.

...Gore Bay's boomtown

...continued from page 5A the replacement of sidewalks, a new water line and storm sewers. Residents and visitors all benefit from these improvements, including new swim docks and the newly completed trail from the boardwalk downtown leading to the Harold Noble Lookout on the East Bluff." The old boardwalk itself will be completely replaced this year, at a cost of $300,000.

Short but sweet is Gore Bay's main thoroughfare, Meredith Street, offering a wide range of services and shops "to all of Western Manitoulin since 1890."

While the mayor acknowledges that people sometimes have to shop off-Island, "you can find anything you want every day" on Meredith Street, the business centre. "We don't want to be like everywhere else with factories and big-box stores. People visit here not for what they can see every day, they come to see something they haven't seen. We want to be unique and continue to offer that while at the same time maintaining the requirements of the population."

One Haweater, longtime resident, historian and former teacher, Bernadette Walker, who still lives in the Gordon Township house built by her grandparents in 1920 just a few metres from Gore Bay's town line, remembers farmers' special relationship to the town back in the '30s and '40s. "Shopping in Gore Bay on Saturday nights was a big deal. Farmers worked every day and Saturday evenings they'd come into town to shop. We'd have to clean the eggs at home on Friday evenings so they'd be ready for Saturday when we'd take the eggs, cream and butter into town to exchange for groceries."

Floyd Walker, Bernadette's husband who passed away seven years ago, raised Charolais calves to winter over at the farm then sold them the next fall, while Bernadette continuously taught school at No. 4 School in Gordon then at Barrie Island until the rural schools finally closed, finishing her teaching career in 1985 at Gore Bay public school. "We bought clothing and shoes at Smith Brothers store (now Woods Brothers). We only went to town once a week," says the nonagenarian, "but it was so exciting. We'd go to one of two ice cream parlours, sit on little wire chairs and have sundaes. We had no hydro on the farm, only a cool cellar, although Uncle Frank had an ice house where on summer Sundays we'd make and then eat so much ice cream our foreheads hurt!" Much of Gore Bay's old-fashioned charm remains today, to be enjoyed especially during Gore Bay's Canada Day festivities this weekend and during the annual Harbour Days later this month (Friday, July 21 to Sunday, July 23), each a welcome respite from worldly cares. This is where the past meets the present for an unforgettable Island experience.

'Water Reflection' by Richard Edwards. Mr. Edwards will be leading two of the workshops at Edwards Studios this summer as part of the great summer workshop lineup Edwards Studios and Art Gallery in Kagawong is offering.

Edwards Studios summer workshops provide opportunity to explore new creative methods

by Robin Burrige

KAGAWONG—Edwards Studios and Art Gallery in Kagawong has a great lineup of summer workshops for participants to explore new creative methods or to further develop existing skills.

"We are in our 21st year of business as a working studio as well as a showcase for our work and 12 regional artists," shared Richard and Barbara Edwards. "As a working studio there is always art being created and on display for the public to inquire about and learn the processes of the media being used. We have also held many workshops over the years and are continuing to offer an exciting lineup of classes for the 2017 season."

"The variety of workshops offered will allow participants to explore many new creative methods as we feature classes in fused glass, painting, creating natural pigment from plants for dyeing, sculptural wet felting and an in studio acrylic/oil painting workshop," the couple added. "Response to the selection of workshops has been very positive and classes are being filled quickly."

July 8 to 9 will be a two-day Colours of the Land workshop with instructor Nicole Varney. Participants will explore natural colour from their surroundings by gathering elements to create pigments for textiles.

The workshop will take place at the Edwards' home studio, 454 Newburn Road in Kagawong, daily from 10:30 am to 4 pm. The fee is $150 plus an additional $15 material fee.

Expressive Brush Stokes will take place from July 24-28 with instructor Richard Edwards. "This will be a plein air painting class with an open choice of medium by the painter," states the workshop description. "Emphasis will be placed on painting from nature not from photographs and working in a larger format. Richard will be instructing the class on the techniques of brushwork effects, how to create edges, texture, movement and focal points in paintings."

The workshops will take place at Edwards Studios, 15 Old Mill Road, Kagawong daily from 10:30 am to 4 pm. The fee is $50 per day with a minimum three-day attendance.

There will also be an Acrylic and Water Based Oil Painting workshop from August 10 to 13 with Mr. Edwards at Edwards Studio from 10 am to 4 pm. The cost is $75 per day and class size is limited.

Lastly, on August 12 and 13, artist Nicola Young will lead a Sculpture Wet Felting workshop. The two-day workshop is designed around the creation of a sculptural wet felt work, with a highly textured and embellished surface. The workshop will be held at Edwards Studio from 10:30 am to 4 pm and is $120, plus a $200 kit fee.

"We welcome you to visit our art gallery, Edwards Art Studios, and explore new media in the exciting workshops for the 2017 season," said Mr. and Mrs. Edwards.

For more information or to register for one of the workshops, email edwardsartstudios@gmail.com or info@edwardsartstudios.com or call 705-282-0360 or 705-282-1919.

Providence Bay News and Notes

Proud grandparents Amy and John David (JD) Wright welcomed a grandson on June 16. He weighed in at 8 pounds, 8 oz. Parents, Riley and Amanda Wright of Wiikwemkoong named their son Anubis John Harry Wright. Nana and Papa call him AJ.

Visiting Ingrid Blay and her husband was her mother-in-law Susan Blay of Odessa, Ontario. It's always wonderful to have family come and visit our little piece of paradise.

There was a letter to the editor in last week's edition of The Expositor entitled 'Dismay over the proliferation of dog feces on Providence Bay beach.' We have since received an update from the author of that letter that thanks to the work of volunteers over the past week, the shoreline of the beach has been cleaned up. We'd like to remind people to please practice the popular stoop and scoop courtesy so that our beloved dogs aren't banned from the beach altogether.

The repairs to the Mindemoya River Bridge on Highway 551 continue. The Bailey bridge has been constructed to the east of the existing bridge. They have connected each side of the temporary bridge to the road with many loads of gravel and packed it all down. Soon we'll be using that bridge so that the bridge repairs can start in earnest. We eagerly wait to see the next step.

Happy Birthday wishes go out to former resident Raymond Smith who celebrates on June 28.

Antlerless deer draw application deadline is June 30. There is still time to apply online, by telephone or in person. To apply online, visit <https://www.ontario.ca/page/apply-hunt-antlerless-deer>. You can also apply by phone on the automated phone line at 1-800-288-1155.

Another option is to apply in person at a participating Service Ontario centre or at a licenced issuer offering electronic draw entry. Whichever option of applying you use, you will have to ensure that you know which Wildlife Management Area you plan to hunt in and your valid hunting Outdoors Card number.

July 1 will be an exciting day for Canada 150 year celebrations in Providence Bay. Make sure that your house is decorated festively and register by contacting Nancy at 705-377-5726 or email: centralecdev@amt-elecom.net or in person at the Municipal office in Mindemoya or at the Discovery Centre in Providence Bay. Note: The deadline to register is Friday, June 30 at 12 noon. There will be prizes for 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Judging will be on Canada Day and there will be no night judging.

The village fun begins on the beach with the Discovery Centre hosting sand sculpture/castle building competitions as well as balloon toss, scavenger hunt and other activities to keep the kids occupied and having a fantastic time. It all begins at 1 pm.

The Lions Club will be hosting their annual yard sale in the village square while also serving BBQ Oktoberfest sausage and hot dogs. While checking that out, make sure that you attend the grand opening of the Village Square from 2 to 3 pm. They will be dedicating the donated memorial trees at the kids' community art corner and recognition will be made to all the volunteers who helped build our beautiful Village Square. You'll also get to meet the winning artist of the Great Lakes Sculpture Competition.

The township donated free cake and lemonade that can be enjoyed at the Centennial Hall from 7 pm until we run out. Make sure you don't miss out. And don't miss out on our local band "The Islanders" as they hold an outdoor concert on the bandstand at The Harbour Centre beginning at 8 pm.

Finish off the night with what's expected to be an exceptionally spectacular fireworks show. In addition to the usual display, the Lions Club was able to contribute additional monies so we're hoping to all ooh and aah. So come on down for a beach social and enjoy all the Canada Day festivities.

There has never been a better time to introduce a friend or family member to fishing. Family Fishing Week begins in Ontario July 1-9, 2017. This licence free period is so that Canadian residents can fish in Ontario without buying a fishing licence. You must still follow all conservation rules and limits. More information can be found at <https://www.ontario.ca/page/licence-free-family-fishing>

If you would like to make a submission to the Providence Bay News and Notes, please ensure that you do so by each Sunday at 3 pm. This will be for the column published the following Wednesday. You can email prov_chick@hotmail.com or you can call Cheryl at 705-377-7511. We appreciate any and all information received. There is so much going on in our village that we'd love to let everyone know.
