'Line 5' rupture would cause worst-ever environmental disaster

by Michael Erskine

MICHIGAN—The Enbridge Line 5 pipeline beneath the Straits of Mackinac has been cited by environmentalists as holding the potential for the worst environmental catastrophe in North American history—and the data backs them up. Yet the governor of the State of Michigan has just signed off on concerns about the line during a closed door meeting with the company, a meeting that took place on the very cusp of the start of a series of public commentary meetings.

Built in 1953 during the Eisenhower administration, the two 20-inch-in-diameter conduits that make up the dual Line 5 pipeline travel nearly 2,000 miles from the oilfields of western Canada to the Ontario refineries located in Sarnia, with roughly four of those miles running beneath the waves of the Straits of Mackinac. The pipeline carries roughly 23 million gallons of heavy tar sands crude (thinned with benzene) through what has been described as one of the most environmentally sensitive areas in the world.

Sections of Line 5 are cracked and dented, with recent reports noting new dents that came apparently from anchor strikes. Some

Edna Manitowabi a vital Nokomis in Indian Horse

Her pivotal role in the movie drawn from her own childhood experiences

by Alicia McCutcheon

PETERBOROUGH—At almost 78-years-old, Edna Manitowabi, originally from Wiikwemkoong Unceded Territory, has lived a life shaped by her time at the Spanish residential school. Ms. Manitowabi, a success in her own right, has recently acquired much media attention from her role as Naomi, Saul Indian Horse's Nokomis (grandmother), in the recently-released film 'Indian Horse'—a role that has been life-changing for the elder.

Ms. Manitowabi played alongside fellow Wiikwemkoong band member Sladen Peltier, who acted the part of young Saul in the movie. Sladen, who had never act-

Ontario Votes 2018

EDITOR'S NOTE: From now until June 6, the day before the Ontario election, this newspaper will pose questions—meaningful to the people of Manitoulin Island—to the six candidates in the riding of Algoma-Manitoulin. Their responses will follow each and every week on Page 3 of this newspaper.

We are in the midst of an epidemic. Opioid deaths continue to rise in Ontario, with a 52 percent increase in opioid deaths from January to October 2017 (1,053) over the same period in 2016 (694,) and a 72 percent increase in opioid-related emergency department visits with 7,658 in 2017 versus 4,453 in 2016.

Given the right circumstances, anyone can become an addict. It could be your 14-year-old neighbour or the grandmother playing bingo. Addiction, whether to prescription medications (like hydromorphone or dilaudid) or street drugs (like cocaine, heroin or synthetic fentanyl) is treatable and can be managed. However, while research has shown that combining addiction treatment medicines (such as methadone and suboxone) with other therapies and community supports offers the best chance of success, rarely are addicts offered the full range of assistance options.

If your party forms the government after the upcoming election, what measures will it put in place to reduce the risk (or prevent) drug dependencies and to assist addicts with recovery and reintegration into society?

Tommy Lee,
Northern Ontario
Party

Thank you for including our party, and myself, in this very important and informative process. I'm very excited to represent the Northern Ontario Party for the very first time in the Algoma-Manitoulin constituency, and across the North as the party president. As a regional party, only representing Northern Ontario, we realize that we will not form the government, and the majority of our policies are geared toward Northern Ontario issues. Saying that, we look forward to working with the party in power for the best

Kalena Mallon-Ferguson,
Libertarian Party

Thank you for the question. We at the Ontario Libertarian Party address healthcare by allowing choice and would put an end to healthcare rationing. By opening up the market we will see government and non-government open to the needs of Ontarians. Libertarians believe that addictions and drugs are just that—a medical concern—not a crime; treatment, not jail.

The opioid issue really started by doctors who were not allowed to treat their patients. Government over-

Charles Fox,
Liberal Party

Our Liberal government has been very clear that this is a public health crisis that needs immediate and urgent action. We have been listening to people on the front lines who have told us that more support is needed to combat this crisis and we have taken action. We have put in place the most comprehensive opioid strategy in the country, investing over $250 billion to address addiction and support people in getting the help they need.

We are committed to tackling this crisis on all sides

Michael Mantha,
New Democratic Party

The opioid overdose emergency has now touched every community in Ontario. Deaths from drugs like fentanyl have cast a shadow on thousands of families. There's no question that the crisis has exacted an especially heavy toll on marginalized and vulnerable communities. For people living in poverty, who don't have stable housing, or who are coping with the legacy of colonialism and the pain of systemic racism, there's a much higher risk of dying.

This emergency is unique,

Justin Tilton,
Green Party

This is an important question for our governments to respond to. We need informed, rational, compassionate and open minds if we are going to create solutions that truly work. I am choosing to expand the scope of my answer beyond opioids because such a narrow focus on this class of drugs fails to understand and respond the bigger picture.

While some addictive proclivities are rooted in genetics, the vast majority of people end up addicted to drugs,

Jib Turner,
Progressive
Conservative Party

The Ontario PCs have been very clear, Ontario is in the midst of an opioid crisis.

In nine years, fentanyl overdose deaths in Ontario have soared by 548 percent. Opioid overdoses and abuse can tear apart families and communities, and our vulnerable youth are being put at risk. This is especially true in Northern Ontario.

We need to help these people.

If you know someone who has ever had an addiction, would you want them to go in a little area and do more

Island youth Eric Wahl, wins provincial public speaking competition

by Jeff Wahl

TRENTON—The Royal Canadian Legion Provincial Public Speaking Competition finals took place on May 5 in Trenton, Ontario. The event was held at the waterfront Legion building Branch 110 and attended by 16 students who qualified from all of the four combined districts within the province as well as many Legion officials, parents and family members.

Competing from Manitoulin Island and Legion Districts H&K were Eric Wahl, a Grade 3 student at Central Manitoulin Public School (CMPS) representing Branch 177 in Little Current and Mason Leighton, a Grade 8 student at C.C. McLean Public School (CCMPS) representing Branch 514 in Gore Bay.

Eric competed against three other students in the Primary Division (Grades 1-3). His five minute speech on "Shopping Trips" recited completely from

The entire process took just under six months and "hundreds" of practice runs. He was given the honour of being the top public speaker for his age division in the entire province! Way to go, Eric!

Mason competed against three other students and placed a very respectable 2nd runner up with his five to seven minute speech on "Laziness," also recited completely from memory with no cards. At the end of each division placement announcements, every competitor was asked to say who they were and where they were from. Both Eric and Mason announced that they were from Manitoulin Island, their respective schools and Legion Branches. It was a proud moment for both boys, their families and hard work recognized for excellence in Public Speaking. Congratulations to both Eric and Mason for a job extremely well done!

First Nations leader Charles Fox nominated as Liberal candidate

ESPANOLA—Long-time First Nations leader and advocate for Northern communities Charles Fox was nominated on May 9 as the Ontario Liberal Party candidate in the riding of Algoma-Manitoulin.

"I have spent my life fighting to create more opportunities for our communities and building bridges between Indigenous and non-Indigenous people," said Mr. Fox. "I'm determined to stand up for decades of hard work and real progress. Only Ontario Liberals will respect our right to self-government and keep essential services that northerners rely on." For over 35 years, Mr. Fox has been a leader in bringing together governments, businesses, community groups and First Nations. Mr. Fox is a member of Bearskin First Nation and from 2000 to 2005, served as Ontario Regional Chief for the Chiefs of Ontario, a political forum and secretariat for collective decision-making, action and advocacy for the 133 First Nations communities located within the boundaries of the province of Ontario. Between 1994 and 2000, Mr. Fox was Grand Chief of Nishnawbe Aski Nation, representing 49 Northern First Nations.

"Kathleen Wynne is the greatest champion of First Nations we have ever had in the premier's office," Mr. Fox added. "She has put Ontario on a path to reconciliation and taken real steps to get us there, like resource revenue sharing and big investments in First Nations health care. Line 5 pipeline should be of concern for us all

There are some interesting similarities between the waters of the North Channel where they travel under the Little Current swing bridge and those of the Straits of Mackinac that flow under the Mackinac Bridge linking upper and lower Michigan—both sets of waters flow back and forth, depending on a number of environmental factors. That similarity is one of the factors that make Enbridge's Line 5 pipeline a concern for anybody with a connection to the waters of two of the Great Lakes—Huron and Superior.

Scientific data indicates quite conclusively that the ebb and flow of currents through the Straits of Mackinac guarantee that anything that spills into the waters in that region will alternately impact Lake Superior and Lake Huron. We are front and centre on that firing line.

There are safeguards in place to ensure that a major catastrophe does not come to pass. Those safeguards have proven to be quite inadequate to prevent spills along other, more accessible parts of the pipeline, but even more troubling are the revelations that the company operating the pipeline was found to be out of compliance with those safeguards.

Compounding the issue in this age of terrorism, a cloak of secrecy lies across most details of the pipeline and its operations and inspections. Many of the normal checks and balances provided through transparency and accountability are thereby short circuited.

Pipelines are efficient, cost-effective means of transporting natural gas, crude, gasoline and a host of other fossil fuels and there is a massive economic benefit associated with pipelines, for all Canadians. They are arguably safer and less prone to spills than the alternatives of rail or truck transport. But, and this is a very big but, when they do fail us, they fail us in a very big way with clearly demonstrated massive economic and environmental costs—we know all about oil spills, in some cases through dealing with spills in other lengths of the Line 5 line.

There are those who will quickly point out that if you factor in all of the costs associated with our dependence on fossil fuels, pipelines are not at all efficient or cost-effective when placed up against the clean energy alternatives and conservation. In time, that argument will win out. The mere fact that fossil fuels are a finite resource will establish the truth of that argument even if no other appeal to reason does in the meantime.

But that day remains somewhat distant. So we are left with the question of how to proceed down the road to ever increasing climate change perdition. Do we proceed with breakneck speed, damning the environmental torpedoes and trusting to luck the goodwill of massive faceless corporate entities to protect our interests? We would argue that gamble is not worth the throw of the dice. Do we shut down all pipelines, cancel all oilsand leases and take the economic hit for the benefit of mankind—probably a better choice, but not one that will find any traction in creating the political will or capital necessary to actually make it happen.

We all want to save the world, so long as it doesn't cost us anything to do so.

So in practical terms, a balance must be found. But it is a balance that must take into account that 40 million people depend on those waters for their drinking water.

But while pumping heavy fossil fuel products through a more than half-century-old pipeline vulnerably laid out across one of the most environmentally fragile and significant waterways on the Great Lakes may be the least expensive short term option for the pipeline company and its shareholders, and therefore in the convoluted calculus that lies behind corporate math the most desirable, it simply isn't in our best interests or the long-term interests of the company itself. The cost of a significant spill in those waters would devastate the share prices and dividends of even so massive a corporation as Enbridge.

One of the main justifications for the modern democratic state and its impositions on the conduct of our individual lives is the duty to protect society from our worst instincts. Leaving a corporate entity, essentially a creature of sociopathic conscience, to oversee the inspection and remediation of an aging pipeline is not in at all in our collective best interests. Giving a corporation (or government for that matter) the cloak of national security to place over their operations ups the ante on the environmental gamble almost to the point of making the use of the pipeline in the Straits of Mackinac something of a Hail Mary pass.

Laying a pipeline across the Straits of Mackinac was simply a bad idea. It remains a bad idea a half-century later and is only compounded by the age of that pipeline and the complications inherent in maintaining the required security blanket that keeps us all in the dark.

If a pipeline is needed to transport those materials from the west to our eastern refineries another option must be found. If it cannot be afforded, then it simply does not make economic sense and the idea should be abandoned for the sake of all of our best interests.

Expositor headline on Tehkumah Ombudsman report questioned

But coverage of council meetings appreciated

To the Expositor:

Many residents, permanent and seasonal, of the Township of Tehkummah are very appreciative of the reporting that the journalists of The Expositor have undertaken in the past year, shedding a light into the municipal government affairs which impact us.

However, the most recent article had a misleading headline: "Tehkummah council cleared by Ombudsman in December 2017 closed meeting."

The Ombudsman Report, as published on the Office of the Ombudsman website, states that "the complaint alleged that township council did not provide proper notice for a special council meeting held on December 22, 2017 in contravention of the Act and the township's own procedure bylaw."

The meeting was attended by three of the four sitting councillors, as well as the acting deputy clerk-treasurer. Councillor Ron Hierons and Clerk-Treasurer Karen Gerrard were not present at the meeting as they stated that proper notice was not being provided and they would not be part of a meeting that contravenes the legislation and would be considered to be an illegal meeting.

"The right of citizens to attend public meetings and view council proceedings in action is the foundation of the municipal open meeting requirements. The open meeting requirements set out in the Act demonstrate that the public has the 'right to observe municipal government in process'."

The Ombudsman Report clearly states that the council for the Township of Tehkummah failed to abide by the Municipal Act and the municipal procedural bylaw, by failing to provide adequate public notice of the meeting. "With respect to the December 22, 2017 special meeting, the procedure bylaw requires that public notice of meetings be provided by posting the meeting agenda for public viewing in the township office at least two days prior to the meeting being held. The December 22, 2017 meeting did not meet this requirement. Not only did the reeve call the special meeting only one day prior to the meeting date, but based on the information provided to the Office of the Ombudsman, public notice of the meeting was not posted in the township office at all or otherwise advertised in the township."

"...the failure of council to provide notice for the special meeting is a violation of the open meeting requirements in the Municipal Act, 2001 and the township's procedure bylaw. In addition, council failed to ensure that minutes of the in camera meeting were recorded."

Although the reason for a closed meeting was valid, the Tehkummah council was not cleared by Ombudsman in December 2017 closed meeting.

A poorly worded headline such as this leads readers to believe that the council did not break any rules, when in fact Council failed to follow its own rules and turned their backs once more on the Municipal Act.

A sometime Conservative voter weighs in on Doug Ford

Can I trust this fox in my henhouse?

To the Expositor:

I love politics. I have always loved politics. I have always voted—sometimes Green, sometimes NDP, sometimes Liberal, sometimes even Conservative. I liked Jean Charest, a young man, with a young family, who drafted a plan for Canada that spoke to a philosophy of fiscal responsibility tied to a social conscience.

I liked Bill Davis, despite his controversial public funding of Catholic schools, because I could see some element of fairness in it. And I liked Terry McCutcheon for his forward thinking plans to build the economy of my beloved Manitoulin Island, while preserving its serene nature.

So, is the provincial election this time around one of the times I can see myself voting Conservative? Absolutely not! While Trump is no Lincoln, by a long shot, Doug Ford is no Bill Davis, that's for sure.

So, when did I begin to lose complete faith in the ability of conservatism to offer any solace to ordinary people like me? It began with Harper, I think, and the sleazy shenanigans of his administration.

Then there was Trump, a Republican snake who bragged about being a snake. I was dumbfounded when voters rewarded him for his "honesty." The fact that those voters won't really know how duped they were until the true pain of the gutting of Obamacare and the huge tax breaks for the top one percent kicks in, added to my cynicism.

These experiences, therefore, have tended to make me less and less trustful of today's conservatives in general, and especially of the one running for premier of our province.

But, I didn't want to be one of those infuriating people who insisted they "just didn't trust Hillary," but could not point to anything in particular that made them distrust her. So, I had to wait for Doug Ford to show his true colours before I could feel secure in my gut feeling.

Now he has given me something to point to that speaks to the essence of what this new brand of conservatism reeks of that makes me "just not trust" Doug Ford to act in the best interests of anyone that doesn't run in his moneyed circle.

His proposal to construct "affordable housing" in Toronto's Greenbelt areas is so morally bankrupt on so many levels. It was a blatant attempt to deceive people, much less fortunate than he is, into believing he actually cares about them.

At the same time, he proposed to change a landscape that feeds people, cleans the air we breathe, and nurtures the human soul with its beautiful vistas, essentially enriching the contractors who would be paving paradise to put up a bunch of parking lots, as Joni Mitchell wrote many years ago.

Though the plan he floated created a resounding backlash that resulted in his backtracking on the idea, it speaks to what guides his thinking in general, and where he would be likely to go with his original and similarly questionable ideas, if he actually gained power.

The man has revealed who he is. The tiger has shown his true stripes. He is smart and wily and sly as a fox. Being that way has made him a lot of money that has, for so long, removed him from the realities most of us face on a daily basis, making him basically unqualified to speak for us or our needs.

Think of this the next time you check your hydro meter to see whether, because of numerous conservation strategies, you are still maintaining your average 9 kwh per day; or you decide to cook your casserole for next night's dinner after 7 pm, in order to keep costs down.

Do you think Doug Ford has to turn down his AC on a hot day, just to save a few dollars? If he wants to update his kitchen, would his choices be just between butcher block and laminate, or would they also include granite and marble?

He's entitled. He's wily. He's sly. He doesn't share the realities of most people in Ontario. How can he speak with conviction on our behalf? Can I trust this fox in my henhouse? I don't think so.

Sincerely,

Deborah Wilson

An Assiginack municipal candidate cites a litany of references for his concern

Vows to use letters page as election platform each month and each month thereafter for four years

To the Expositor:

Everywhere around us, we can see/hear, read on different media, announcements and proclamations for the May 1 declarations of nomination openings for October municipal elections. Everywhere but Assiginack, that is. I wish to take this opportunity to remind council they have not been elected for life. Having stated same, I would also appreciate this opportunity as well to file a 'report card,' something contributed by the Electorate of Assiginack and through this media. I am finding great difficulty in a reasonable rationale to re-elect any of the present Assiginack council Members. They should properly deal with their fears of not being elected one more time, and properly announce May 1, and October's protocol.

I shall be running for a seat on the Assiginack council, and my election shall present an interesting conundrum as council meetings, etc. shall be held in the underutilized Taj Mahal gazebo. I have been illegally banned from Township chambers, as well as other Assiginack locations. I vow to speak here, every month from present to October, and then so much more thereafter, for at least four years.

A plea for stability and accountability from a concerned Tehkummah taxpayer

No intention to cause offence—just a plea for the "nonsense to cease"

To the Expositor:

As a concerned taxpayer of Tehkummah Township, I would like to ask the question that's on a lot of minds these days. How and where are our hard-earned dollars spent? This would appear to be a simple, straight forward query to most municipal bodies as they are, in fact, a business and businesses are managed by implementing a budget, each department being allotted a portion of the income. This is where Tehkummah differs from most, as we have not had a budget for years. This is only one of numerous issues plaguing the taxpayers.

Council meetings are a joke, a waste of time and money with topics going in circles, arguing, in-fighting and finger pointing. In the end, not much is accomplished.

Present reeve and council are elected to manage municipal affairs in the best interest of the taxpayers. Three and a half years later we are, in my opinion, worse off than when we started. I strongly present handling money over to people who can't account for how they spend it. They are, after all, accountable to the ratepayer. I have been wondering lately if it is possible for any interested parties to place their property tax payments into an escrow account (Funk and Wagnall's definition of this is: A written deed, contract, etc., placed in the custody of a third party and effective upon fulfillment of a stipulated condition).

Another bone of contention is our clerk, who is under suspension by council, yet we still pay her wages. Should we not allow her to do the job she was hired to perform?

One more question before closing. How close to bankruptcy are we? My guess is we're on the brink, with one foot on a banana peel.

Remember the great Easter egg hunt debate back in March? This township has been made a laughing stock and out of respect for all of Tehkummah ratepayers, council should either collectively pull its head from out of its nether regions and get on with the business at hand or step down as a whole.

This letter was written from a canoe, up the proverbial "brown creek" with nary a paddle in sight. A paddle is not really necessary though since the creek is so thick I could step out and walk on it!

Respectfully yours,

Tammie Kay

P.S. It is not my intention to offend, it is a plea for the nonsense to cease.

A call for the Island to respect its heritage and protect it for future generations

Manitoulin presents a different reality for those who cross over to its shores

To the Expositor:

The Expositor published a letter on March 28 expressing concern for Island history and a need to maintain and retain the tourist industry.

On April 18, a story was published about Manitoulin being featured in a tourism television show, 'Seeing Canada,' hosted by Canadian journalist Brandy Yanchyk. Ms. Yanchyk says, "Manitoulin is a wonderful place."

This recognition might be cause for the citizens of Manitoulin to contemplate the Island's future.

The March 28 letter by Joanne Wade says, "The Manitoulin has always had a very special uniqueness about it. It has an atmosphere of serenity and quiet solitude. Our life here is far different than the hustle and bustle of city life."

Some 30 years ago my Manitoulin experience began. I recognized Manitoulin as being thoughtfully protected from the seemingly uncontrolled development and habitat destruction elsewhere. A camper then, a seasonal resident now, I continue to see myself as a visitor due to the unique environment, so different from where I come.

My family and I arrive either by Chi-Cheemaun or Swing Bridge, both unique approaches to the Island. Over the years I have experienced the transformation of the Chi-Cheemaun from a vehicle transport to a tourist destination complementing Manitoulin. Crossing the Swing Bridge with its unique design and function is cause to pause and contemplate its place in Island history. The picturesque view of Little Current harbour reminds me I am leaving the mainland and entering a different reality.

To be remembered as a society that respected its heritage and protected it for future generations is a noble and worthy cause.

Conscientious OPP officer spots restaurant fire in Little Current

by Michael Erskine
LITTLE CURRENT—An alarm was triggered at Elliott's Restaurant in the early morning hours of this past Saturday, but the police response was subsequently called off. Since the officer responding was nearing the end of his shift and going to be headed to his Island home, he decided to stop and check in on the site. Looking through the window of the restaurant the police officer spotted the flames and called in the fire department. That timely response likely helped reduce the damage caused by the fire.

It proved to be a busy weekend for the Northeast Town fire department, with an early morning kitchen fire at Elliott's Restaurant in Little Current on Saturday, followed by a grass fire in Sheguiandah and a brush fire in Rockville on Sunday night.

In the case of the restaurant fire, the Northeast Town Fire Department was called to the site around 6 am Saturday morning and arrived around five minutes later. According to Northeast Town Fire Chief Duane Deschamps the fire was "relatively" minor and confined to the kitchen area of the restaurant.

The owners of Elliott's had originally hoped that they could quickly be up and running again, especially with the long weekend and the accompanying Rainbow Roundup looming close, but they have since discovered that would not be the case.

"There was quite a bit of smoke damage," said Jodie Shmanka, who owns the restaurant with her partner Jason Elliott, "so it looks like we will be closed for about three weeks. The whole kitchen will likely need to be redone." Ms. Elliott was adamant that this setback, as distressing as it is, would not keep the couple down and wished to assure customers that the restaurant would not remain closed a moment longer than necessary.

As of press time Monday, the fire was still under investigation by the Ontario Fire Marshal's

Office and little information or comment was available as to the cause or source of the fire from the Northeast Town fire department.

On Saturday morning the restaurant was surrounded by yellow tape and a police officer was stationed onsite awaiting the arrival of the fire marshal, as per normal procedure, but by Monday morning the site had been released.

"We are just waiting for the insurance to come and inspect things so we can get to work," said Ms. Elliott.

The fire department also responded to a grass and structure fire on the Sheguiandah First Nation at around 6:45 pm on Saturday. The structure entailed an abandoned house.

In the case of the brush fire in Rockville, the fire department responded around 5:45 pm on Sunday and the fire was quickly brought under control.

"We would like to remind people that any fire over six by six foot in diameter requires that a permit be obtained from the town office," said Fire Chief Duane Deschamps. "It is free of charge, but it is a requirement of the town bylaws."

Knowing where a fire will be taking place and who is in charge is of great assistance to the fire department should a call become necessary.

Young driver charged with impaired driving

On Sunday, May 13, an officer from the Manitoulin-Espanola Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) was conducting traffic patrols on Cross Hill Road in M'Chigeeng First Nation.

At approximately 3:52 am, the officer conducted a traffic stop. Investigation revealed that the driver had been consuming alcoholic beverages.

As a result, a 17-year-old male from Central Manitoulin Township has been charged with: driving while ability impaired by alcohol and driving with over 80 mg of alcohol in blood.

The youth cannot be identified under provisions of the Youth Criminal Justice Act (YCJA).

The accused is scheduled to appear before the Ontario Court of Justice in Gore Bay on June 19.

Three people injured in Highway 540 collision

On Tuesday, May 8 at approximately 7:27 am, members of the Manitoulin-Espanola Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police with the assistance of the Sudbury-Manitoulin District Emergency Medical Services (EMS) responded to a single motor vehicle collision (MVC) on Highway 540 in Dawson-Robinson.

Officers attended and determined that an east bound pick-up truck, with five occupants, had left the roadway. As a result of the collision, three males were transported to hospital by ambulance with non-life threatening injuries.

Robinson Fire Department assisted at the scene of the accident.

"We are very thankful for their response and help at the scene," said

Island runners rock, Sudbury Rocks

The annual, Sudbury Rocks, race weekend is an amazing event that raises precious money for diabetes research. Although no Manitoulin runners took in the full 42.2 km marathon it was interesting to see that a run that took place on Mothers' Day, three of the top five finishers, were women. Spectacularly, Lindsay Moreau-Verlaan, competing in the 30 – 39 year old division, who finished in second overall place and just a scant, four seconds back from winner, Ryan Marsaw who broke the tape in 3:11.

Taking the fourth and fifth places respectively were Betty Annala; 3:43 in the 50-59 year old division and Helen Francis in the 40 – 49 division who was the 5th place runner overall to bring her Chiptime device across the line!

Completing the 21.1 km Half-Marathon were local runners: Paula Recollet, Marie-Lee Wright, Tammy Rolston, Steve Fessenden, Victoria Pitawanakwat, Ben Quackenbush and Lorraine Lorranger.

In the 10 k running, hats off to: Caitlynn McCaig, Rudy Corbiere, Tahshiina Brisard, Lyndsay Brisard, Jacinta Manitowabi, Nancy Curtis, Ryenn Brisard and Nicole Green.

In the 5000m, 5K event, hats off to Wiikwemkoong's Aurel Fox who took 5th place overall with an amazing 19:03 clocking! Birch Island's Myles Sutherland who finished 27th out of 800-plus runners turned some heads in the Nickel City. Grade eight'er, Liam Bridgeman, who finished 31st, amazingly, but will shine when the metric in-game, hockey effectiveness in the throng. None the less impressive, are the following competitors in the race, which featured: Avery Sutherland who was the top of her 13 – 16 division as she finished 35th overall and first in her division! Cameron Beaudry was fourth in his 20 – 29 category as did Shaolin Roy, in her 13 – 16 division.

Congratulations as well to 5K competitors: Patrick Beaudry, Robin Cooper, Mariette Sutherland, Dominic Beaudry, Tamara Flannigan, Jacqueline Odjig, Nicholas Corbiere, Sarah Odjig, Brenda Beaudry, Bernadette Pangowish and Jane Hladki.

Junior Soccer wrap!

The annual, Island elementary soccer championships took place last Monday with the senior squads in Wiikwemkoong and the grade 6 and under, Juniors in Mindemoya at C.M.P.S. As usual, Bruce Lindsay, an organizational guru put in an amazing amount of work to put together another seamless event. Bruce had some integral help from MSS Math Wizard, Jon Balfe for his help lining the field on the Saturday before. Straight lines courtesy of the Pythagorean Theorem, of course.

Special thanks to Lakeview Grade 8s: Gabe Hare, Hudson Hare and Damion Debassige for taking on the A Division reffing today. Really great to have a couple of students step up and take on lots of responsibility on behalf of the younger students!

L.C.P.S.'s reign over the Junior soccer pitch continues for the second year in a row, congratulations!

Here are the results for the "A" Division. In first was L.C.P.S.; second Assiginack and third, CC McLean.

The "B" Division medalists included 1st – L.C.P.S., 2nd – Assiginack and 3rd - CC McLean.

On the Winning "B" squad coached by Joanne Peltier were her charges: Sydney, Caleb, Ryland, Jack, Keannu, Rhyis, Paige, Hannah, Nyaeli, Matthew, Kalli and Zee! Good job, Coyotes!

Future phenom shows his stuff! Easton Assinewai, (Brent Assinewai and Tamey McAllister are his parents) was noticed at the Little NHL by an organization called Flamme Olympique Hockey and thus invited to a couple of "AAA" tournaments with their prospects team.

This past weekend was the first of his two tournaments that he will be attending with them. It was the Gouverneurs "AAA" Prospects Tournament in Brossard, Quebec and the Grade two student played in the 2011 division. His side won two games and lost two games and finished seventh overall out of 23 teams and went on to play the second place team in the Quarter Finals but lost. Out of 14 kids on the team, only three played defense. The coaches told the kids they would be rotating each kid through that position, however Easton was asked to stay there as he was marked as such a strong defenseman, When he received the MVP in his second-last game it completely made his day! Interestingly, Easton he was just so happy to play 5 on 5 hockey again and make some new friends as well. His next tournament is Jun 30th - July 2nd in Ottawa with the same team.

...Entire Island shoreline is under threat from aging oil pipeline lying beneath Mackinac Strait

segments of the line have lost over a quarter of their original wall thickness to corrosion and, despite admonitions against unsupported sections of the submarine pipeline longer than 250-feet contained in the easements from the State of Michigan, there are apparently several unsupported sections far in excess of that limit currently along the pipeline's length. The pipeline lies in waters ranging from 50 to 250 feet below the surface, running along the lakebed. These sections are flexing continuously in the strong currents to be found in the Straits of Mackinac.

A water current simulation study by the University of Michigan shows the distribution of oil from a rupture in the Line 5 pipeline in the straits could potentially impact as much as 740 miles of shoreline in Lake Superior and Lake Huron, including the entire northern shore of Manitoulin Island. It should be noted that Enbridge, a massive Canadian company disputes the simulation results.

A PBS special documentary 'Beneath the Surface: The Line 5 Pipeline in the Great Lakes' produced by Great Lakes Now, follows the story of the pipeline since its first conception to the current concerns being voiced by those living and working in the waters that could be impacted by a spill from the Line 5 pipeline.

"If you were to pick the worst possible place for an oil spill in the Great Lakes, this would be it," said David Schwab, Ph.D., research scientist at the University of Michigan Water Center, one of the foremost experts on Great Lakes water currents and the creator of the animation that models how a spill from the pipeline would impact the lakes. "The currents are powerful and change directions frequently. In the event of an oil spill, these factors would lead to a big mess that would be very difficult to contain."

The waters of the strait can be very rambunctious throughout the year, but should a spill occur during the dead of winter, remediation and containment efforts would be hampered exponentially.

"We do some pretty stupid things, but that takes first prize," said Mike Wilton of Algonquin Eco-Watch. "Especially when you consider that there are other options available."

Mr. Wilton points out that if the line were to be extended overland to Duluth, Minnesota, it could traverse nearly its entire length over a more accessible land route.

"All of Manitoulin should be concerned about this," pointed out Mr. Wilton. "This will effect us directly. With the prevailing southwest winds the Island is directly in the path of any spill."

But aside from the direct impact that a Line 5 would have on Manitoulin Island, Mr. Wilton notes that the environmental impact would be disastrous for literally millions of people. With more than 40 million people dependant on the Great Lakes for drinking water and for commercial activity, including tourism and the fisheries, a spill would be the largest single environmental disaster in human history.

Chief among the concerns about the Line 5 pipeline is the track record of the company when it comes to transparency and safety. The aforementioned recently released PBS documentary (available online on YouTube) noted that when private citizens attempted to save oil-soaked wildlife from a previous massive oilspill on the Kalamazoo River, the company threatened those volunteers with lawsuits.

When it comes to cracks in the pipeline, Enbridge had been aware of the issue for five years and when a spill did eventually occur, it took the company 17 hours to shut the pipeline down.

Enbridge spokesperson Roger Duffy, a former journalist who in fact covered the earlier Kalamazoo River spill has since gone to work for the company. He said that during his investigative reporting he discovered that Enbridge was a "good company" that has learned from its mistakes and seeks to do the right thing and "changed the way we do things" in response to the disaster. He maintained that the company shares the environmentalist concerns and that the pipeline through the Straits of Mackinac is "the best way to protect the Great Lakes."

That argument lies at the heart of the creation of the Line 5 pipeline. It was built during the aftermath of one of the worst disasters of the 1950s, when a tanker (the previous preferred method of shipping fossil fuels) exploded shortly after entering the harbour at Sarnia. One person was killed and others wounded in that incident.

The design of the pipeline, with its attendant two pipes, was designed to reduce corrosion. The pipelines are coated with seven layers to shield the metal from corrosion, but inspections have indicated that those seven layers "have been reduced from one to zero" according to the documentary.

Spokespersons for the US Coast Guard, those who would be tasked with dealing with a spill in the Straits of Mackinac, suggest that "it isn't as big a concern as people think."

The propane industry is one of the key supporters of the Line 5 project, with industry spokesmen citing that it would require 10,000 rail cars loads a year to replace the capacity of the line. With visions of Lac Magentic not yet faded from the public consciousness, that prediction may make the cure worse than the disease in some minds.

But the Pipeline Safety Alternatives Board formed by the Michigan state government and tasked with creating a report on the pipeline, a report released in October 2017, seemed to place the future of the pipeline in question and the board had scheduled public meetings seeking public comment on its report.

In November, the governor of Michigan and Enbridge signed an agreement that included seven new safety requirements (of the company that allegedly ignored previous safety commitments), including the concept of creating a new pipeline into a tunnel under the lakebed.

In the meantime, according to environmental groups monitoring the issue (including retired former company scientists), Line 5 continues to be a major concern and potential threat to the way of life of practically everyone who lives and works along the shores of the Great Lakes.

Mya also participated in Track & Field in grade 9 and 10. Mya is looking forward to playing Hockey again in September, as well as Badminton and Track & Field in her grade 11 year.

Mya's favourite sports are Hockey and Track & Field because hockey is just generally fun, but what she loves most about it is skating hard and playing with her friends. Track & Field has always been one of her favourite sports because she loves sprinting and jumping. She loves sports in general because she gets to be with her friends and make new ones while staying fit.

Mya is just as book smart as she is game smart. Her favourite class is math. Mya makes sure to enjoy her time in school by participating in X-Fit and all of the fun events at MSS. interest of our constituents.

The opioid crisis and drug addiction in general is one that effects Northern Ontario and our riding in a big way. Mental health spending is roughly at the same level as it was in the late 1970s while spending in almost all other areas has increased dramatically over the same period. We need to ask the three Toronto focused parties why that is? They have all been in power since that time so this is not just on one of them, but all of them. The Northern regulates them and patients are typically forced to look for pain management elsewhere. Most opioid deaths are because of mixing medications and what is in the mix. This is a concern. Doctors trained on medications know the limits and what type of medication works best.

We need doctors to decide, not the government. There are many cases in Ontario where patients are on heavily-monitored doses of opioids and remain safe because the doctor and patent have a plan. If that patient is cut off pain medication they look elsewhere, which feeds the underground unlike any Ontario has seen before. To effectively address it we must consider utilizing new and often unconventional methods. It means addressing the problem with a sense of real urgency. Every day of inaction costs lives.

When we form government, we will declare a public health emergency, recognizing the scope and serious nature of the crisis, and we must mobilize resources across the province.

Today we have to cope with 15 years of Liberal cuts and underfunding in healthcare, mental health and addiction treatment and prevention. It is unfortunate to see that Doug Ford and the Conservatives are looking at makalcohol, smoking, work, sex, shopping or eating because they were traumatized, often early in life. If we as a society respond to this trauma as a criminal justice issue or a moral failing, we end up inflicting even more trauma on an already traumatized individual. The worst thing we can do is to respond punitively.

My position on this subject has been highly influence by Dr. Gabor Mate. Dr Mate is highly respected Canadian physician who spent much of his professional life treating addic-

Ontario Party believes that the Ontario government should be run with a balanced budget, however this is one area where spending needs to increase significantly. We need more addictions counsellors, and mental health workers, and we need them in our smaller communities, not just in our urban centers. We need to have the tough conversations with physicians who too freely prescribe medication such as oxycodone when non-opioid alternatives exist.

Finally, it should also be known that if I were elected as MPP for this riding, I am committed to polling the constituents prior to every vote in Queen's Park. So when a bill is pre-market for pain medication and puts them at risk.

At present, Ontario taxpayers pay for a generic health insurance plan. This plan serves many people's needs very well, but some people are not well served at all for many reasons. In order to address this, new insurance options will be allowed. For instance:

- An "Athletes Plan" could be offered - including basic medical, and more service in physiotherapy and less cancer treatment.
- An "Autism Plan" could be offered - including basic medical, and more autism treatments.
- A "Healthy Living Plan" could be offered - including basic medical, dental treatment and eyeglasses, and less treatment for chronic disease such as diabetes.

- Any kind of plan can be offered if there is a market for a plan.
- The current OHIP plan will continue to be offered.
- A drug recovery plan could be done very easy with supports to the addict.

Libertarians encourage personal responsibility, however right now through government monopolies, choice is limited as to what government says is available. By ending government monopolies, Ontarians can and will have many more choices for addiction and overall healthcare.

the opioid crisis. At a personal level, I know that there are children—many of whom are Indigenous—that are suffering after having been born with opioid addictions. It is critical to me that we develop a protocol to help these children both at home and at school.

While we know that these new measures are important steps that will help save lives, we are committed to continuing to take strong action to combat this crisis head on.

with police services across the province, ensuring they have the resources to pursue traffickers and high-level dealers, while recognizing addiction and treating addicts with dignity.

Finally, we will work with the Opioid Emergency Task Force to provide evidence-based strategies to save lives and fight addiction. Today, 11 ministries deliver a patchwork of programs and services for mental health and addictions. The result is predictable and damaging: a confusing, hard-to-navigate system with far too many cracks for people to fall into. An NDP government will establish a new, dedicated Ministry of Mental Health and Addictions so our efforts can be consolidated and Ontarians can finally have effective change for the better.

Our investment in 30,000 new supportive housing units will help people who are ready to begin recovering; helping them rebuild their lives in a safe, stable home with the services and supports they need. We will work ing an additional $6 billion in cuts and are opposed to safe injection sites which is a key measure for recovery and prevention.

Andrea Horwath and the NDP will focus most urgently on harm reduction, to save lives now. We will expand the distribution of Naloxone and other anti-overdose medications, and support the establishment and operation of supervised injection sites and overdose prevention sites wherever they are needed. We will listen to front-line harm reduction workers and people with first-hand experience because they are the experts—and the heroes who are saving lives every day.

There are highly successful models internationally that are worth considering as an option in Ontario. The largest that I am aware of is San Patrignano in Italy. It is an enormous community that exists to support those on the personal and spiritual journey of healing trauma and resulting addictions. There is much we can learn and borrow from them.

I have (for lack of a better term) a liberal position on drugs. I am in favoured by any party in the Legislative Assembly it would ultimately be up to the constituents of this riding whether or not I would support that legislation. The constituents would control the direction of the party concerning addictions as well as every other issue on the table. The other candidates belong to parties that employ a party whip, therefore they vote how they are told to vote by their leader, and have to represent their party over and above the people of their riding. That is why Northern Ontario under those parties will never be properly represented in Queen's Park. Thank you once again for this opportunity.

- Any kind of plan can be offered if there is a market for a plan.
- The current OHIP plan will continue to be offered.
- A drug recovery plan could be done very easy with supports to the addict.

Libertarians encourage personal responsibility, however right now through government monopolies, choice is limited as to what government says is available. By ending government monopolies, Ontarians can and will have many more choices for addiction and overall healthcare.

Single tender for gravel bid accepted by council

by Michael Erskine
CENTRAL MANITOULIN—Only one tender to supply Central Manitoulin with granular “M” gravel was received in response to a request for proposals issued by council. The Road Committee meeting of May 1 recommended that the tender be accepted as presented.

The successful bidder for the tender was C. Pearson and Son, who submitted a bid of $13.50 per cubic metres for 500 cubic metres at $6,750 plus $877.50 HST and $17.49 for 6,000 cubic metres for a cost of $104,940 plus $13,642.20 and a total of $126,209.70.

The motion to accept the bid was moved by Councillor Derek Stephens and seconded by Councillor Ted Taylor and passed without dissent by council. Mayor Richard Stephens was not in attendance, Deputy Mayor Alex Baran was in the chair.

“I was very surprised that we only got one bidder,” said Councillor Stephens. “Usually we get two or three.” Councillor Stephens quickly added that “Calvin really sharpened his pencil, so we did get a good price.”

A tender process in May 2016 saw council reject the lowest bid in favour of a local supplier. That local bid, also from C. Pearson and Son, was awarded the contract to supply both with a bid of $7,401 at $13.10 per unit for 500 cubic metres of broken 3” and $116,073 at $17.12 per unit for 6,000 cubic metres of granular M.

Mayor Stephens noted during the 2016 debate that the difference in tender amounts was not significant enough to move the municipality from its current supplier.

to drug dealers and organized crime. Finally, education on the subject of drugs and addiction needs to grow up.

To help these people, we need to tackle this problem head on and focus on mental health and addictions.

We are going to invest $1.9 billion into our mental health system. The Liberals haven't done enough to deal with this crisis. A PC government will take this seriously and help people struggling with mental health and addiction.

An Ontario PC government will do all we can to fight Ontario's opioid drug crisis and get people struggling with addiction the help they need.

Let's fix this mess. Help is on the way!

From early on in school, kids are taught, "drugs are bad." If you do drugs bad things will happen. This is a superficial and naïve point of view that is often shared by teachers and law enforcement. We need to be honest. Young folks are going to do drugs

if they want to. Let's not judge them but create safe spaces for meaningful dialogue. Let's support them to make more informed choices. Youth would be better off hearing from a variety of perspectives, particularly from those who have first-hand experience.

ed before, is "going places," Ms. Manitowabi told The Expositor in a Monday interview.

Ms. Manitowabi, along with fellow Wiikwemkoong band member and Trent University traditional elder Shirley Williams, acted as the official residential school consults for the movie, as both attended school in Spanish.

"It's a difficult film to watch; it's heavy," Ms. Manitowabi said.

Ms. Manitowabi said she was excited to plan the role of Naomi, wanting to leave a legacy for her grandchildren and great grandchildren.

"I was six-years-old when I was taken," she said. "It's a part of history that's been very difficult. Even at my age we've struggled with those emotions all our lives; those issues of abandonment, rage, anger."

Ms. Manitowabi explained that nine of her brothers and sisters were taken away from the family home and placed into residential school. She was the youngest.

"We ended up being quite dysfunctional," she allowed. "You're severed from your family and there's a disconnect that went on into adult years."

Ms. Manitowabi said she was familiar with Richard Wagamese's work, the author of the book of the same name on which the film script is based and felt she could relate to his books as he is also the child of residential school survivors and a product of them, having been placed in foster care as a child.

"Reading was his way out," she said. "For me, it was ceremony. It wasn't until my late teens and 20s when the powwow first came to Wiky. It was quite cathartic. It created a hunger and a thirst for cultural knowledge."

Until that time Ms. Manitowabi felt almost naked, that she was lacking something.

"In the 1960s it was taboo to talk about traditional or ancestral knowledge," she continued. "I pursued that knowledge in my 20s and into my 30s. I had to find the elders and teachers." That quest for knowledge even took Ms. Manitowabi west and eventually led her to become a professor at Trent University in the school's Chanie Wenjack School for Indigenous Studies. Seeking a creative outlet for tradition,

Ms. Manitowabi founded the Nozhem Theatre, Trent's Indigenous theatre space. It was after seeing a production of Debajehmujig's 'Lupi the Great White Wolf' that Ms. Manitowabi was spurred on to use theatre as a way to pass on the language.

Ms. Manitowabi, who's now retired but stays on with the university as an elder, received a phone call from her sister who had received a call from a Mohawk actor. The actor had been asked to audition for the role of Naomi, but didn't know Anishinaabemowin so didn't feel comfortable with the part. Ms. Manitowabi's sister recommended her for the job, and so she auditioned and got the part.

"I really have to thank his spirit," Ms. Manitowabi said of Mr. Wagamese (who passed away earlier this year before the film's release). "I was able to use his spirit and his words to really help me with my own healing. He helped me conjure up strong emotions that were buried deep inside." When she first read 'Indian Horse,' Ms. Manitowabi cried and knew it was a story that had to be told.

"It's about a grandmother who loses a grandson to the school," Ms. Manitowabi said of the story. "He runs away to find her (his Nokomis), but comes back with the coughing disease, TB (Tuberculosis). Another son, Saul, him and I really bonded. I'm trying to protect him and the boys so I encouraged the parents to let me take them to a safe place where they can't be found."

Ms. Manitowabi explained that in the movie, her grandsons' parents are struggling with alcohol and, eventually, the eldest grandson passes away. In that scene director Stephen Campanelli asked the grandmother to wail.

"I thought 'how am I going to do this,'" Ms. Manitowabi shared. "I use the images from my own childhood and remember the look on my mother's face as her last child was taken away and her own wailing. There wasn't a dry eye on the set," she said. "Even the cameramen had tears in their eyes."

Ms. Manitowabi also used her own lived experiences for the scene when the parents come to take the body of their son away. Naomi tells the parents to leave the booze behind, that they won't find their way. "I used my own experiences with my brothers; I remember hearing my mom say to them 'don't drink, you won't find your way back home.'"

The scene that sees young Saul and his Nokomis trudging through the snow after losing their boat, with Naomi losing strength with every step, was also a powerful one for Ms. Manitowabi. "As we're trudging I'm encouraging him," she explained. "I'm using that scene as a metaphor for the way I taught my own children."

"I always taught my children to find the Red Road—it's been my own salvation," she explained. "A way to overcome the 'ghosts from the past,' as Richard says. The road is up ahead, but grandma knows she won't make it. 'No matter what, don't stop. It's just ahead.'"

Ms. Manitowabi also spoke of the scene in 'Indian Horse' when Saul first arrives at the residential school and is forced to cut his long hair.

"That scene is pretty traumatic. When your hair is cut like that, it's like something is severed. (With residential school) everything is severed—relationships with your mom, dad, siblings."

Being a part of the cast of 'Indian Horse' was a powerful experience for Ms. Manitowabi and one that has helped her on her path to healing. "It's almost as though it shifted me to a different space."

"It was a story that needed to be told," she added. When word of the film first got out, there was talk of cultural appropriation and even some protest, but Ms. Manitowabi credits the directors with shooting the film true to Mr. Wagamese's vision and doing their due diligence

Central Manitoulin votes to launch garbage haulage pilot project pending MOE approval

by Michael Erskine
CENTRAL MANITOULIN—A pilot project aimed at alleviating pressure on the Central Manitoulin landfill site received tentative approval during a May 10 meeting of council. The motion recommending that the garbage haulage pilot project start in July pending discussions with the Ontario Ministry of the Environment was moved by Councillor Derek Stephens and seconded by Councillor Patricia MacDonald.

“This is something that we have talked about for several years,” said Councillor Stephens. “We have actually put money aside for a number of years for the pilot, not this council, but previous councils. I think this is something we have to do.” Councillor Stephens noted that the current landfill site is rapidly filling up, but referenced that the rate has varied according to which study is referenced.

“What is the cost per year of hauling the material to the Dodge landfill operation?” asked Councillor Dale Scott.

“About $100,000,” responded Councillor MacDonald.

“But if we go with every second week it will whittle down to around $50,000,” offered Councillor Stephens. “We do have the money in reserves for this. We need to see how the MOE (Ministry of the Environment and Climate Change) feels about it.”

Councillor Ted Taylor said that he was surprised to learn that the haulage of waste to an outside landfill could extend the life of the town’s current landfill by between 10 and 20 years.

“One of the things I was surprised to learn was that as much as 50 percent of the garbage going into our landfill was commercial, not residential,” said Councillor Stephens. “I would have thought that most of the garbage would have been residential.”

Councillor Scott noted that household garbage is a concern for many municipalities and suggested that the town might want to consider a ticketing system wherein residents purchase tags for the disposal of their garbage.

“Tickets go by weight,” he said, “so households are more careful, being as they have to pay for it. It works in a lot of communities that are using the system. It would probably reduce a lot of garbage.”

Councillor Alex Baran, who was chairing the council meeting in his capacity as deputy mayor, suggested that some form of composting and programs to redirect recycling away from the landfill might be explored as well.

“This may extend the life of the landfill while the municipality explores other avenues to deal with the issue,” said Councillor Baran.

with every facet of the movie.

“I may have done some things in my past with my own kids to make sure my kids didn’t go through what I did,” Mr. Manitowabi admitted. “I left the reserve quite young. I was always searching, and for me it was searching for the Road—my identity, my voice, my spirit, my songs, my music.”

“I wanted to make sure my children got that and we got ceremonies, even if we had to travel a great distance to get to them,” she shared.

Ms. Manitowabi says she feel strongly that the healing is to be found in the culture. “Tell your story, express it. Tell the whole world.”

“The images on a big screen—this is a powerful way to communicate to the rest of the world what happened to us. You get tired of people saying ‘get over it.’ In order for a person to heal you need to bring it out or the poison inside will fester, and what an incredible way to do that.”

“Our people have a feeling of being inferior,” Ms. Manitowabi continued. “When that is drilled into you from childhood, things latch on—they stick to you, you wear it. But now you can’t shut me up,” she laughed. “I struggled with finding a voice; that’s why I got into theatre.”

When the movie first came out she said she heard a lot of ‘I didn’t know.’

“Well how come?” she questioned. “How come you didn’t have the sense to ask what happened to the original people of this land?” This dark chapter of Canada’s history, until recently, has been an afterthought with hardly a mention in any textbook. “I say to mainstream society, ‘you have to be enlightened because you are enjoying the fruits of this land.’”

“It’s about time this story was out there in the open,” Ms. Manitowabi said. “Before reconciliation can happen we have to tell our truth. Before we begin our healing, there has to be compassion.”

“I’m glad I did it,” she said of the film. “What a relief. It’s something I carried all my life and now I’m free.”

...FN leader Charles Fox nominated as Liberal candidate partners. As our MPP I will make sure we continue down the path to reconciliation and create real opportunities right here in Algoma—Manitoulin.”

The Liberal plan includes building a stronger, healthier Ontario through historic new investments in health care, including publicly funded medications for everyone under 25 through OHIP+ and a commitment to expand publicly funded medication to everyone over 65 next year. The plan is providing public funding to cover the cost of postsecondary education for over 235,000 students and helping 100,000 kids access quality, licensed child care, including a commitment to publicly funded preschool child care for every child from age two-and-a-half to Kindergarten.

The Conservatives will cut the $15 minimum wage. They have given up the fight against climate change and will not make big polluters pay, and are threatening billions of dollars in cuts to critical public services. While the Ontario Liberal Party’s focus is on investing in the services and infrastructure people rely on, the Conservatives will gut health care and education, denying working people a decent paycheque, and threatening much-needed northern infrastructure projects.

Mr. Fox is a residential school-survivor, an avid hunter, fisherman and trapper. Since 2012, Fox and his wife Meladina have been the owners and operators of Penasi Group Homes, providing traditional land based programming for First Nations youth.

Central mayor gives two thumbs up to bus service

by Michael Erskine
CENTRAL MANITOULIN—The new Ontario Northland bus service on Manitoulin Island got an enthusiastic review from Central Manitoulin Mayor Richard Stephens this week. Mayor Stephens utilized the services of the bus line to travel to the recent Federation of Northern Ontario Municipalities (FONOM) conference in Parry Sound.

Central Manitoulin Mayor Richard Stephens took the new bus from Parry Sound to Mindemoya last week.

driving, scheduling and everything to somebody else.”

“It was fantastic,” said Mayor Stephens of his experience aboard the Ontario Northland bus. “It was the most relaxing trip I ever had. I left all the Mayor Stephens caught the bus in Sudbury, where he was on other business when it was time to set out for the conference, but he travelled all the way back to Mindemoya aboard the bus service.

“It was really great because FONOM picked up the tab for the cab from the bus to the conference and the hotel,” said Mayor Stephens. “As for coming back, I just got on the bus in Parry Sound and got dropped off in Mindemoya.”

As an added bonus on the trip, Mayor Stephens struck up a conversation with fellow travellers that led to a potential family connection. “We realized we were probably cousins,” he said. “We exchanged business cards and will keep in touch.”

Mayor Stephens said the buses were clean and comfortable and he would heartily recommend the service to anyone.

“It was pretty economical too,” he said. “It cost about $40 to go from Sud-bury to Parry Sound, you would be hard pressed to match that if you were paying for gas in your own vehicle.”

As to whether he would choose to take the bus again in the future, Mayor Stephens did not hesitate. “You bet,” he said. “It was a great experience.”

Highway 540 was closed for approximately five hours while officers investigated the collision. No charges have been laid.

Province-wide campaign yields unwanted weapons and ammunition

Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) and its municipal law enforcement partners have received and rendered safe hundreds of weapons and thousands of rounds of ammunition during a month-long Gun Amnesty.

During April 2018, the OPP received 592 gun amnesty calls for service, 86 of which (or 14.5 percent) were received through the online reporting option on the OPP website; recovered 689 items through appointments made with OPP officers including 267 rifles, 156 shotguns, 113 prohibited firearms and 62 other guns such as replica and vintage weapons. The OPP also collected 12,615 pieces of ammunition.

All Ontario police services participated in the month-long initiative. During that time, a total of 1,503 guns were voluntarily surrendered in non-OPP jurisdictions.

A majority of firearms that have been surrendered to police will be destroyed, but a number of guns will be retained for historical, educational or training purposes. Although the gun amnesty has officially ended, police will continue to accept submissions from the public. Interested gun owners may call the OPP at 1-888-310-1122 or their local police service’s non-emergency lines to arrange for officers to attend and safely retrieve the weapons.

Police continue to encourage members of the public to turn in unwanted weapons despite the conclusion of this initiative. Police retain the ability to exercise discretion (amnesty) regarding weapons related charges at all times, not just during this month long event. The public is reminded that no one should ever deliver guns, ammunition or military ordinance directly to police facilities.

Manitoulin-Espanola OPP April statistics

During the month of April, the Manitoulin-Espanola Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) responded to 532 calls for service which included the following: four drug related occurrences; four driving related occurrences; one impaired driver; 13 violence related occurrences; 18 property related occurrences; and 37 motor vehicle collisions (MVC) (75 percent of which were animal-related).

In addition, Manitoulin-Espanola officers conducted numerous hours of traffic patrols, foot patrols and Reduce Impaired Driving Everywhere (RIDE) checks.

As we ease into the warmer weather, Staff Sergeant Webb, detachment commander of the Manitoulin-Espanola OPP, reminds motorists that “Canada Road Safety Week is approaching May 15 until May 21, during this time the OPP will be focussing on the ‘Big Four,’ which consists of impaired, inattentive and aggressive driving as well as lack of seat belt use. These causal factors account for the majority of MVC fatalities in jurisdictions across the country, including those policed by the OPP.”

OPP continues to make mental health strategy a priority

ORILLIA—Mental Health has long been a priority for the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), a press release states. This week marks the Canadian Mental Health Association's Mental Health Week with communities across the country supporting mental health initiatives. The OPP is proud to provide ongoing support to its people and communities with its Mental Health Strategy: Our People, Our Communities.

Mental health and wellness go hand in hand, a premise that underlies the OPP Mental Health Strategy. The strategy has two related but distinct components - Supporting Our People: Healthy Workforce and Supporting Our Communities: Police Interactions with People with Mental Health Issues. The OPP has made considerable progress since launching the strategy in December 2015.

"Mental health is an important issue, for everyone. The goal of the strategy is to improve the response to the mental health needs of our people and the individuals in the communities we serve," Commissioner Vince Hawkes said.

Some of the notable achievements over the last two years in Supporting Our People include delivering mental health awareness and resiliency training to more than 8,000 OPP members, expanded formal training to the Auxiliary Program and increased access to the OPP Critical Incident Stress Response Team/Peer Support Program.

Continued progress was made in the established priorities for action during the second year of implementation of Supporting Our Communities. Achievements include increased referrals to community support services, tools to aid police in communicating more effectively with medical professionals and people experiencing a mental health crisis, over 1,200 OPP members have completed Crisis Intervention

Training, and continued training for OPP members in de-escalation techniques.

"Members across the organization continue to embrace this evolving strategy," Commissioner Hawkes said. "We have made significant achievements, but recognize there will always be more work to be done. I am proud of all that has been accomplished in just over two years in support of the important issue of mental health."

Making an Island-wide clean sweep of it

One of the many teams that fanned out across Manitoulin Island in honour of Earth Day, slightly weather delayed, pose in front of the collection of trash they harvested from the roadside ditches. The day of action will take place each year, on Earth Day weather permitting.

OPP to offer Safeguard Ontario Property Security Program

by Alicia McCutcheon
SHEGUIANDAH—In light of a spate of recent break and enters and thefts in the village of Sheguiandah, the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) will be hosting a community crime prevention program at the Howland Seniors' Hall in Sheguiandah later this month.

Community Services Officer (CSO) Constable

Marie Ford explained that, following the recent article highlighting the Sheguiandah crime, Auxiliary Constable Brian Boyd, formerly of Little Current (and son of retired CSO Al Boyd) reached out to Constable Ford and suggested he present the Safeguard Ontario Property Security Program to the community, a program in which he is trained.

Constable Ford noted that there have been no further occurrences in Sheguiandah to date but the community was chosen as a good place to offer the program, which is open to anyone who would like to attend.

"Safeguard Ontario is a community-based crime prevention program developed to help citizens 'lock criminals out of house and home'," Constable Ford told The Expositor. "It also gives the public a chance to see what auxiliary constables do and have a chat with them."

"It can happen to anyone," Constable Ford said of crime. "If we can give people the tools, we're maybe one step ahead."

The Safeguard Ontario Property Security Program will be held on Monday, May 28 at 7 pm at the Howland Seniors' Hall in Sheguiandah.

Ontario Liberals release Northern Ontario platform

SUDBURY—Last week the Ontario Liberal Party released its plan to build Northern Ontario up by continuing to grow the economy, lowering costs for people and businesses and making sure everyone has every opportunity to get ahead, a press release from the party stated. "Ontario Liberals know that a one-size-fits-all approach does not work in the North," the press release states. "Northerners need continued leadership that recognizes the realities of Northern living."

The press release notes that Ontario Liberals will continue to deliver for our families by: investing in more home care by adding 5,500 personal support workers, prioritizing Northern and remote communities; protecting consumers by creating an independent gasoline-price watchdog to ensure there is no price fixing on transportation fuels anywhere in our province; increasing NOHFC funding to a total of $150 million in the next three years and expand its programs to better support infrastructure projects and large-scale investment opportunities; committing to completing the twinning of Highway 69 between Parry Sound and Sudbury and permanent annual funding to four-lane the TransCanada highway until the project is fully completed and call on the federal government to match the investment; and building a year-round access road and making upgrades to existing highways and bridges as part of a $1 billion commitment to the Ring of Fire.

"The Doug Ford Conservatives will cut billions from the services people depend on—like health care, education and transit—while rewarding the rich with unnecessary corporate tax cuts," the press release continues. "The NDP have no plan to strengthen Ontario's economy—which supports the services people depend on—and they would slam businesses with a huge tax hike. Only the Ontario Liberals will build a stronger economy that supports strong public services."

The Liberal plan expands publicly funded prescription drugs to one-in-two people in Ontario, makes the largest mental health care investment in Canadian history, builds a record amount of transit, boosts hospital funding, helps more people go to college or university with publicly funded tuition and lets more parents go back to work by funding preschool child care from two-and-a-half to Kindergarten, the press release continues.

"Ontario's economy is the strongest it has been in two decades, but that growth and the care and services it funds are at risk this election."

"We know that Northern Ontario is a distinct part of our province with unique needs. That's why our plan invests in more of the things Northern families need: better home care, more affordable public transportation, reduced electricity rates, and more economic opportunity for every family," Premier Kathleen Wynne said in the release.

Heritage display highlights a vast array of Island ancestors

by Michael Erskine
SHEGUIANDAH—Their portraits stand sentinel, perched stolidly on the walls of the Centennial Museum of Sheguiandah gallery, their stern Victorian/Edwardian style gazes surveying Island descendants who come to visit the 2018 Manitoulin Genealogy Heritage Exhibit.

The portraits may be forgiven their sombre demeanor, as these are the hardy folks who hacked farmland from a tangled wilderness, first hewing rough log (and even sometimes earthen) shelters to protect their families from the elements in what was then generally considered a wild and savage land located on the very fringes of

“New Ontario.”

The Heritage exhibit runs from May 8 to May 19 and was complemented with a Heritage Tea held from 2 pm to 7 pm on Thursday, May 10.

“We encouraged people to bring in their family photographs, antiques and family treasures,” said Manitoulin Genealogy spokesperson Marjorie Collie. “Or to just come in and view the portraits we have on display.”

The Heritage Exhibit is intended as an interactive experience. “Kids can do their family tree, and so can adults, view the genealogy materials and get in touch with their family roots.”

Ms. Collie noted that Manitoulin Genealogy

members have conducted a lot of research into local families and their antecedents and their records provide a veritable treasure trove of information for any student working on a school project or adult seeking more information on their own roots.

The portraits themselves are well worth the visit, many of them appear to be paintings as opposed to photographs. Being able to look into the eyes of those from whom many of our friends and neighbours are descended is quite an experience.

The museum is open Tuesdays to Saturdays, 9 am-4:30 pm, and closed Sundays and Mondays.

A group of Providence Bay residents turned out for the annual beach cleanup on Saturday, May 12. Volunteers bagged piles of debris, picked up garbage and searched for invasive plants before enjoying a barbecue lunch.

Providence Bay Beach cleanup permit is being put to good use

by Michael Erskine

PROVIDENCE BAY—Central Manitoulin crews were busy at the Providence Bay Beach recently as they conducted remedial work on the famed beach and boardwalk under the auspices of a 25-year permit secured by the town last year.

“It’s a little bit funny,” admitted Councillor Alex Baran. “For years it was assumed that because of the stringent environmental regulations that are in place these days and the presence of endangered species that nothing could be done about the beach.” So essentially nobody really pushed the matter with the Ministry of the Environment or the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry (MNRF).

But a couple of well-placed phone calls and a bit of follow up discovered that there was actually a process whereby the beach could be cleaned up and maintained. Particularly since much of the damage being done was actually being caused by the presence of invasive species that were crowding out the endangered native species that were assumed to prevent any cleanup attempt.

“We are in the second year of our permit,” said Central Manitoulin Economic Development Officer Nancy Kinoshemeg. “The permit allows us to conduct beach and boardwalk cleanup.”

Under the careful guidance of Island biologist Judith Jones of Winter Spider Eco-Consulting the town has identified those parts of the beach where endangered species are located and what invasive species have encroached on the beach.

Thanks to the detailed plans submitted to the MNRF and the 25-year permit that the ministry issued, the town has been relieved of the necessity, and considerable paperwork required in reapplying for a permit to work on the beach every year.

“We have found a balance between having an area that everyone can enjoy and protecting species at risk,” said Ms. Kinoshemeg. “Last year we removed a lot of invasive vegetation around the playground and volleyball court.” This year the work was a bit more aggressive, removing trees and shrubs that do not belong in the beach dune ecology that supports the endangered species. Some of the shrubs were removed last year and the remainder were removed this year.

There is still a bit of work to be done this year, including clearing the pathway from the boardwalk to the water.

“The most important thing to emphasize is that the work has to be completed as part of a proper beach management plan,” noted Ms. Kinoshemeg. The work has been completed on municipal property but the hope is that private landowners will take their lead from the work being done by the municipality. “The hope is that other waterfront owners would look and see what can be achieved,” she said.

The annual Providence Bay beach cleanup took place on Saturday, May 12. Volunteers picked up garbage and raked mounds of debris left behind by municipal workers. Some walked the shoreline looking for phragmites fragments and roots that constituted a tripping hazard.

One volunteer, Joanne, was singled out as someone who is instrumental in maintaining a clean and welcoming beach. In addition to participating in the annual cleanup, Joanne walks the beach daily on garbage and phragmites patrol. While phragmites removal was undertaken last year you have to remain vigilant, she explained.

The Providence Bay residents expressed relief that beach remedial work was finally underway, noting the sandy beach and clear waters were the main draw for the tourist town.

2018 Show and Share sees over 200 quilters flock to Manitoulin

by Alicia McCutcheon
LITTLE CURRENT—Manitoulin Island once again hosted the Show and Share, the annual event that tours Northeastern Ontario, allowing quilters to gather for fellowship, fun and to share their quilted creations to a large and admiring group.

Late last month the Island Quilters Guild, Current Quilts and Stitchery Guild and Happy Quilters (the three Island quilt groups) worked together to host the group of over 200 quilters from across the northeast at the recreation centre in Little Current.

“The Island Quilters had never hosted and we were feeling very guilty,” Lauren McDonald, one of the chief Show and Share organizers, admits. There is a lot of cross-pollination among the guilds and so a committee was formed and the offer to host was given. It was readily accepted.

This reporter commented on the filled-to-capacity rec centre hall on the day of the event. “That’s what it’s like every year and it’s been that way since 2004 when Rayside Balfour started it,” Ms. McDonald said.

The April 28 Show and Share saw 13 of the 14 Northeast guilds represented. “We didn’t think the (poor) weather would mean people would come, but they did,” she added. You can’t keep a good quilter down.

A Show and Share consists of lunch followed by an afternoon of, well, showing and sharing.

“It’s an unwritten rule that if you’re coming, you’re sharing,” she said.

One by one, tables are called and the quilters, or fibre artists, get in line with their creations. Ms. McDonald explained that some of the guilds, such as Current Quilts, do stitchery too, and some do fibre arts, so there is a good mix of what is being showed.

Volunteer students wait on the rec centre stage to help show the quilt off to the audience. Each quilter is then given a moment to say a few words about their piece. The unveiling of the quilts is often met with ‘ooohs’ and ‘ahhhs’ from the audience.

Each Show and Share also includes a special quilt block (the basic unit that goes into making a quilt). This year, the Island groups asked each quilter attending to create a Mason jar block. All of the blocks met the same specification (8.5 inches square) with the same Mason jar pattern. After that, it’s up to you. The walls were lined with Mason jar blocks, each jar holding something unique—from strawberries to cookies to skunks. A raffle is held at the Show and Share that sees one lucky quilter the winner of the blocks, giving them a quilt almost ready to go, or at least the pieces ready to be sewn together and quilted.

“On the Island, we’re famous for making our own food, so we picked a Mason jar,” Ms. McDonald said of the design.

Each of the place set-

Mason jar blocks were the special quilt block at this year’s Show and Share. All of the 8.5 inch square blocks contained the same Mason jar pattern. A raffle was held to determine the lucky quilter who would win all these blocks to take home and sew into a quilt.

The recreation centre hall was filled to capacity for the 2018 Show and Share. Quilters from 13 of the 14 Northeast guilds attended for lunch and an afternoon of sharing the inspiration behind their creations.

tings provided a placemat that doubled as a place to take notes. Each attendee was presented with a marker when they checked in so that people, ideas or thoughts can be quickly jotted down throughout the Show and Share.

“You go away just inspired and reinvigorated,” Ms. McDonald said of the Show and Share. “We see what we do at our meetings, but the variety (at the large event) is just amazing.”

For anyone who would like to try their hand at quilting, Ms. McDonald suggests visiting one of the local guild meetings.

“People think quilting requires patience; it’s not patience,” she said. “Working with your hands in any way can be a meditation and help to calm down the racing thoughts in your mind.”

One quilter shared this charming children’s quilt.

Assiginack Council Notes

Special council meeting
A special meeting was held April 17 with council and New North Fisheries representatives Jeff Tuerk and Ross Herbert in regards to their whitefish aquaculture project in Manitowaning Bay.

In 2017, council had supported the project and entered a memorandum of understanding (MOU) for use of a municipal road allowance for placing a sea container, for storage use, on the site.

Council expressed to Mr. Tuerk and Mr. Herbert that concerns have been expressed over the use of the road allowance, insurance and water quality of the Bay and said they would like to see this project move onto private property if it is going to continue beyond the one-year term of the MOU.

Mr. Tuerk and Mr. Herbert said that as the pilot project has not been concluded, they would like an extension of the MOU until the end of June as it would be difficult to find and prepare a new site for the sea container and move the fish cage in a short period. They did acknowledge that the project would have to move on to private property and will work towards that goal for the end of 2018.

Staff is investigating the terms of an MOU extension.

Last Chapter Used Books

The Last Chapter Used Book Store, located in the Burns Wharf, will soon have a new location at the information booth located on Highway 6.

Councillor Leslie Fields brought the idea to the Friends of the Library in April, who said they knew a move would be likely sometime in the future.

The books were moved, following the blowout book and bake sale held last weekend, into the information centre. The info booth and used book store will be run as it has in the past, on volunteer power.

Accounts for payment

Council approved the following accounts for payment: general, $23,777.22; and payroll, $18,615.06.

Support for Madawaska Valley

Council leant its support to the Township of Madawaska Valley in its resolution asking for the premier and province to provide adequate financial resources for the required municipal function of asset management planning in small, rural municipalities.

"You can't beat that one," said Mayor Paul Mofatt.

"It's very important that we pressure the government," added Councillor Hugh Moggy.

Animal control tender

Council received two tenders for municipal animal control services.

Manitowaning's John Caselton bid 2018 at $11,140.24 and 2019 at $17,710.92 while Tehkummah's Paul Methner bid 2018 at $9,300 and 2019 at $13,964.

Councillor Bob Case said he liked Mr. Methner's bid with Councillor Brenda Reid agreeing.

Councillor Hugh Moggy said he would like the services to stay in Assiginack.

It was explained that under Mr. Methner, if a dog is picked up, it gets sent to the Central Manitoulin pound.

Councillor Moggy said he thought the pound should be in Assiginack to be fair to the taxpayer. In a recorded vote, Councillors Case, Reid and Mayor Mofatt voted in favour of accepting Mr. Methner's bid while Councillor Moggy voted against.

The motion was carried to accept Mr. Methner's bid.

Assiginack receives Main Street Revitalization funds

Council entered an agreement with the Association of Municipalities of Ontario, through the province, to receive $38,541 from Ontario's Main Street Revitalization Initiative.

Council does not yet know how they will spend the funds.

Over 100 students tour Sheguiandah fish hatchery at annual visit

by Alicia McCutcheon

SHEGUIANDAH—The Little Current Fish and Game Club (LCFGC) had another successful week of tours from Grade 4 classes from across the Island last week as students had the chance to learn about the life-cycle of the walleye and of fish conservation.

Almost 100 students from Little Current Public School, Assiginack Public School, Central Manitoulin Public School, Lakeview School and new, this year, Charles C. McLean Public School toured the Bass Lake Creek Walleye Hatchery over four days. Students from Wiikwemkoong's Pontiac School were also scheduled to come but had to cancel their annual trip.

The educational tour sees the students get up close and personal with different species of fish live-trapped in a hoop net before their visit and learn about the massive amount of eggs that come from one female walleye. If that walleye is harvested before the female lays her eggs, that's hundreds of thousands of potential fish that will not be born and repopulate Manitoulin's waters.

The students got to see the hatchery in action with LCFGC President Bill Strain, learn about the native fish and wildlife of Manitoulin with Gary Green, build a bass nest with Manitoulin Streams' Seija Deschenes, tour Bass Creek and see rainbow trout and walleye in their annual spawn, have a visit with the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry's Conservation Officer Iain McGale and learn all about the tiny invertebrates found in our waterways.

At the end of each tour, the LCFGC gifts each student with a high-end rod and reel, encouraging them to get out and fishing while being good stewards of the land with their newfound knowledge.

Mr. Strain told The Expositor that this has been a poor year in terms of capturing spawning females for the fish hatchery. Of approximately 50 fish captures in hoop nets, only four were female and only two of those females had eggs.

"I don't know if it's because of the late year," Mr. Strain said. "Perhaps they spawned out on the shoals."

The club has a little less than three litres of fertilized eggs this year. Normally that figure would be around 15 litres.

National Day of Mourning observed in Aundeck Omni Kaning

by Michael Erskine

AUNDECK OMNI KANING—A small and sombre group of Island elected officials, union representatives and organization heads joined members of the Manitoulin Injured Workers Group (MIWG) for an April 28 candlelight memorial observance of the National Day of Mourning held in the board room of the Manitoulin Legal Clinic. The National Day of Mourning is held each April 28 to remember those who have died, were injured or made ill from their work and to make the commitment to protect workers and to prevent further workplace tragedies.

“Today being the National Day of Mourning, there are many observances taking place,” said Colin Pick, master of ceremonies for the afternoon. “This is the fifth year this ceremony is being held on Manitoulin Island.”

Mr. Pick called for the recognition of Northeast Town Mayor Al MacNevin and Central Manitoulin Mayor Richard Stephens, as well as Manitoulin OPP Detachment Commander Staff Sergeant Kevin Webb, MIWG President Gary Hrytsak, UNIFOR rep Kevin Bailey and Pastor Martin Garniss, thanking them for their attendance at the memorial.

Manitoulin Legal Clinic Executive Director Mike Shain was the first speaker and he recalled one of the most shocking revelations he found while reading the book ‘Working Class War,’ a book on the American involvement in the Vietnam War. “Same number of soldiers died in 1968, the year of highest casualties in the Vietnam conflict,” he said. “There were 100,000 people dying each year from industrial accidents and diseases.” The Vietnam War casualties resulted in massive protest marches and opposition, yet for those lost to workplace tragedy there was, and continues to be, “relative silence.” He was left wondering about the worth placed on workers’ lives—“there have never been nation-wide protests, workers’ names have never been inscribed on a black granite monument. You are left with the impression that workers’ lives don’t matter, they don’t count—if they did matter they would continue to die.”

Although politicians are often heard to utter words of support and assurances that they have passed laws to protect workers “it obviously has not been enough, workers continue to be injured and killed in the workplace.”

Mr. Shain called for a national inquiry into why so many workers continue to be killed on the job. “These are not numbers in the abstract,” he said.

“These are fathers and mothers, these are our brothers and sisters, our children—not lines on the spreadsheet denoting the cost of doing business. We need to understand that there are things in our society that need to be fixed.”

MIWG President Hrytsak recalled the working life of his father, who passed at age 95 in relatively robust health. “He took care of himself,” he said, noting that in the days before hearing protection equipment, his father and co-workers would stuff wet toilet paper wads into their ears to ward off the impact of the loud industrial machinery.

In conversation following the official statements, President Hrytsak noted the challenge that organizing injured workers into an effective lobbying voice has proven daunting, made even more challenging by a social reticence to push back against the system and an odd reluctance of people to recognize that it could so easily happen to them or their own loved ones, but that something has to be done. “We go to work to earn a living,” he said. “We don’t go to die.”

UNIFOR rep Mr. Bailey spoke of some of the industrial issues that he has faced locally, including the propensity for industrial companies to pressure employees to not file WSIB (Worker’s Safety Insurance Board) claims when injured and to retaliate when they do.

“But we have seen it so many times; a company pays an injured worker their wages while they are off injured, but then later, when the consequence of that injury comes back, the company has gone bankrupt, moved on, and the worker is left without recourse,” he said. Mr. Bailey said that such abuse of authority is all too commonplace and needs to be stopped. Too often in the past both a company and the union representing their workers have been complicit in preventing the filing of claims.

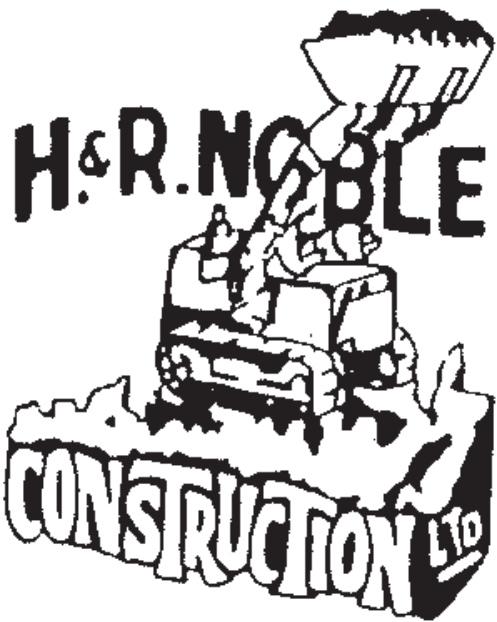

Staff Sergeant Webb said that it was “humbling to be a part of this important event, remembering those who lost their lives as a result of workplace incidents, also the many individuals who have suffered injuries which altered their personal and professional lives. No one goes to work with the intention of not coming home safely at the end of the day,” he stated.

Staff Sergeant Webb noted that, in his capacity as a police officer, “specifically when I was a detective, I investigated serious injury and death occurrences related to the mining industry, the logging industry, construction industry, commercial transport industry and, of course, emergency services employees.” All of the victims in these cases had intended to come home safely to their families.

The staff sergeant took the opportunity to memorialize fallen officers, in particular Constable Lloyd Lackey. Although he did not personally know Const. Lackey, who died in 1972, he did have the opportunity to meet some of his family during a bridge dedication ceremony held not far away from where that day's ceremony was being held. Constable Lackey was killed while returning from a domestic call. Travelling down Highway 540 late at night an oncoming car swerved into their lane. Although his partner survived the head-on collision, both Const. Lackey and the driver of the other car were killed.

Today, Const. Lackey's name graces the OPP Wall of Honour at its headquarters, but is also memorialized by the bridge over Graham Creek in Honora on Highway 540, dedicated to his memory in a ceremony held in August, 2013.

Staff Sergeant Webb said it was "very gratifying for me to see that we have events such as this to recognize and remember all those who lost their lives or made significant sacrifices through serious injury in the workplace." He went on to publically thank the organizers of the memorial event and family members of those who lost their lives for allowing him the opportunity to honour their loved ones. He concluded his remarks by saying "we will not forget."

Mayor MacNevin and Mayor Stephens together lit a candle in memory of the fallen on a table decked with icons of the mining industry, including a vintage mining helmet, an old miner's lamp and a canary cage (symbolizing the canary in the coal mine concept, where miners would use a canary as an early warning of poison gas).

Pastor Martin Garniss read out the names of the Manitoulin Island workers who had been lost to workplace injuries and members of the MIWG who had passed on in the last year (five).

MIWG member Herne Steelgrave noted that the organization is not just a group that deals with injured workers, but is also a support group and he urged those suffering from the isolation of workplace injury to reach out to the group.

Providence Bay News and Notes

The Providence Bay Park is open for business. It's been a slow start all over with the extended cold weather but we've seen campers and Winnebagos passing through town and just know that they've chosen a great destination. Welcome back to all of our seasonal residents. We've sure missed you.

Huron Sands has still not opened and there are many rumours floating about that they won't be opening this summer. We'd like to take this opportunity to thank them for their years of dedication to our community and for providing lodging and services to tourists and locals alike. There have been many great changes to your business over the years and it's been a pleasure to see them and we are very sorry to see you go. We wish you nothing but the best in any future endeavours.

The township was in and swept all of the sidewalks. It's amazing how much sand can accumulate over an unpredictable winter like we just experienced but we appreciate that you keep our roads open all winter and that you come and clean up after it's over.

The work down at the parking lot of the beach has been completed. What an amazing combination of financial contributions and work contributions to be able to accomplish the finished product. Thank you to all involved for providing the barrier between the parking lot and the playground area.

The annual beach clean-up that is sponsored by the Community Centre Board who provided a barbecue lunch of jumbo hot dogs and fried onions was held on Saturday, May 12. The volunteers set to work cleaning areas not done by the township last week. They had rakes in hand and did a lot of hard work. Know that the beach is beautiful, so if you see any garbage while out walking, please pick it up and put it

May has lots of flowers and lots of events and activities for the MSS Mustangs.

After months of planning, SHARE/Go Green had a very successful WE Day Manitoulin on May 11. The day started with Grade 7/8s from every elementary school on Manitoulin arriving at MSS. As the students and their teachers entered the cafeteria, they watched a video about WE Day as a global event. Isaac Gosse and I welcomed everybody to WE Day Manitoulin. There were two videos shown, one was of Spencer West who sent a video to Manitoulin to thank everyone for the change they make in the world. The second video was from the Kenyan Boys' Choir to wish WE Day Manitoulin a great day. After these inspiring videos, Jacob Maxwell taught the crowd the WE Day dance. The first performer of the day was Danny Lamb, who had done a workshop with 20 of the Mustangs in September 2016. He spoke about how having spina bifida/hydrocephalus has led him to a positive life. The next speaker was rapper A! Persona who spoke about mental health and that music helped her deal with her depression. Ellie Maxwell took to the stage, and after dedicating her performance to everyone who is struggling with poverty, she shook the audience with her beautiful voice. When Ashley Rose Murphy began speaking, she put out the message that the best way to fight any issue is through the support and love of family and friends. The next speaker was Ashley Quackebush, aka DJ Scratchley Q, who addressed Mental Health and spoke about Worth Living, an organization that she works with to use music as a healing technique. Errol Lee was well received by the audience as he came onto the stage, singing his song We Care, to inspire everyone to show empathy. He welcomed his son Shay out onto stage, and together they made the audience cheer and dance. After their performance, I welcomed ultra-marathoner Patrick Voo to the stage. He spoke about overcoming any obstacle one small step at a time and not letting personal value be determined by clothes or outer appearance. His presentation spoke to many of the audience members including parents and teachers who were there. Em Jordan is a 13-year-old girl who spoke about her experiences living with spina bifida through her recently released single House of Cards. The audience clapped along with Em, and she came off stage looking elated. Marnie Brown, the executive director at the Manitoulin Family Resources, spoke to the audience about what MFR does and the importance of creating sustainability. The final performer of the day was Bryce Mastelko, who sang, full of energy and closed off WE Day Manitoulin. After an Indian taco lunch provided by Ms. McGraw and the Three Fires Confederacy, the performers and volunteers prepared to do the same show for the MSS student body in the afternoon, with the addition of alumni singer Jessica Jordison.

Avery Byce, a Grade 11 volunteer, said, "It was important to have WE Day Manitoulin because especially in today's society youth need to be motivated and inspired to accept everyone, no matter what they are going through."

Carissa Holliday, a Grade 12 WE Day organizer, said "At first everyone was concerned that audience participation wouldn't be there, but the audience was so into the performance and it warmed my heart to see everybody."

MSS students Tyson Otsuquaiob, Pierre Debassige, Avery Byce and Larissa Chevette attended the Rainbow District School Board Student Senate Stand Up for Mental Health conference. The group travelled with Mr. Theijsmeijer to Cambrian College on May 9 for the first day of workshops. The speakers on day one were Ian Tyson, a comedian and motivational speaker, as well as Ryan Benoit, the founder of Positive Inception. The second day featured speakers Connor LaRocque, author of

'Life is Motivation,' Will Morin, a politician in the First Peoples National Party; Ashley Rose Murphy, a WE Day Ambassador and HIV/AIDS activist; and Wali Shah, a Poet Laureate, rapper and motivational speaker. The Mustangs had the opportunity to discuss what they feel needs to be better about their school-focusing on acceptance. With new plans and inspiration, Tyson, Avery, Pierre and Larissa headed back to Manitoulin on May 10 to take steps as leaders.

The MSS tennis team is travelling to Blind River on May 17 for NSSSA. The team has been practicing for two weeks. Athletes who perform well at NSSSA will get to move onto NOSSA which will take place in Blind River on May 24.

On May 23, the Grade 8 Shadow day will be taking place. Grade 8 students from LCPS, Assiginack, CMPS, C.C. MacLean and Lakeview will be shadowing senior students at MSS. The partners will be going to one class, and then participating in a lunch with mini games. The goal is to erase intimidation between Grade 9s and Grade 12s.

Whether they are taking leadership, playing tennis, or celebrating change, all of the Mustangs are busy this May.

'Til next time, stay golden, Mustangs.

Farming risks

In farming, there are many risks that come along with the profession, whether it be with crop production or livestock. There is the weather, diseases, and the list goes on. Today there are many ways that we have learned to manage these risks, either through technology, vaccines or the newest methods of operation. But one program that is offered to help farmers control their operational risks is AgriStability. AgriStability is a margin-based program which allows producers across Canada to protect their farm operations against large declines in production. A program payment is triggered when a producer's margin falls below 70 per cent of their historical reference margin. Tehkummah Talk and Times

Some days are longer than others. Just crawled into bed, 4 am on Tuesday. Fell asleep in my layzee-girl chair again. We didn't win any prizes but the after-card game supper (mine anyway) was fabulous. Pizza hot and pizza cold, desserts and they do the best coffee; a fun lunch.

The flowers are coming so fast; aren't the daffodils a treat.

Bub sat up on her tail like a bunny rabbit, her ears pointed towards the bird feeder; and I said, cats are to stay away from the coloured food groups, where an indigo hunting was. They are so beautiful; the Baltimore oriole also came in today as well. Ray helped me pick up some leaves after cribbage and his work. Tara and Sky-lar had gone to Espanola for the day. Of course, I do love my singing cardinals too! Their colourful constancy in our days and the robins have set up housekeeping on the hydro meter again. I was giving the sparrows a lecture to stay clear of the cedar hedge, it's too low and there are too many cats in our yard.

Well, it's four thirty AM, and I woke, my tummy has settled, took a small drink of hot chocolate, seemed to hold it down. I have lately had a once a week incident. I'm not eating anything different to cause these bouts of misery, but I hate getting sick I guess everyone does.

We had eight tables for cribbage, seem to have a good time, and we sure have a great bunch of folks: high hand, Simon, 24; Margaret and Laurie Lee, 952; Cal and Rick, 935; Doris and Sandra, 926; Adele and Ted, 846; door prize, Rick Sharpe, Georgina and Donna. (Thanks for the great lunch and help.)

Nice lightning show during the night and the down-pour. When the rain gently started last evening, it brought the sweet clean smell of new growth and Spring. The snow just is gone about a week and the flowers have come and gone so fast. Loads of beautiful daffodils in bloom. It's pretty down past Pauline's on her roadside.

Tuesday afternoon Noreen Leeson was our hostess for our Sr. U.C.W. meeting. As always, a lovely social get together. Missing a few of our members that day as well. Our roll call was memories or something on Mother's Day. Noreen fed us a lovely lunch before we left. Their place is so nice on the waterfront. It was also Reg's birthday that day. On my way home, I drove on Lakeshore Road. The end of the ice flows was up to the shore in the little bay there and fish flies were coming in the car window! Hey, I see the oriole back in the lilac tree. I guess he found the oranges.

Earl of Carol's and Earl's Restaurant is open every day except Tuesdays. Laurie at Garden Shed opens on May 17. Lots of huge signs for Garden's Gate out and about.

Most Wednesday mornings I manage a drop in at the library's coffee group get together, always a fun time and the faces change from week to week. I met Keith Cranston who, it sounded like, may volunteer there.

Brad Parkinson told me he had one rose breasted grosbeak at his place, usually don't see just one, but I had one at my feeder Thursday. The American redstart was here today too.

I did get myself rounded up and over to the hall for the supper that was provided obviously from the fines we've complained about, after taking wild chances at bid euchre. Well only if you are a gambler. Supper was delicious, lasagna and baked beans, fancy desserts, five tables for euchre.

I took Lori (well actually I met her there) to Carol's and Earl's for her late birthday lunch on Friday. We had a nice visit. Her birthday was May 2nd. I went card shopping after, drove to Wiki. Saw adder tongues in bloom. It usually blooms for Mother's Day! My one red trillium only has 15 blooms this year, one new large patch has one bloom.

Kim gave me an early Mother's Day call that evening too, I finally asked him where their new house/home was. They are still renovating.

A call tonight too, from Derek and Jodi way out in Mackenzie BC. They sound well and happy.

Simon is having a yard sale this week. Joan said she had a great Saturday with her son Mark at her place.

Bid euchre results: first, Laurene, 190; second, Shirley, 184; third, Dave James, 173; low, Jan McMurray; 50/50, Donna, door prize?

I gave Bubs heck when I got home on Saturday night, but when I went to the bedroom, I realized she had brought me a live Mother's Day gift. So, I opened a window and closed the door. I'm surprised it made the night with three cats in the house. A cute little brown bird?

Sherry picked me up on Saturday and we went to Little Current to the Manor. We did make it in time for their fancy bites and tea. Marion, I think, was happy to see us. She has a room with a lovely view of the harbour.

We were invited to sit with Barb and Evelyn, Bewlah, Mildred and one little lady who I didn't get the name of. Good to say hello to Jean and Ken. They each had family members beside them, I guess. Gloria works and volunteers there as well. Nice to see lots of familiar faces.

It was sad to see at the grocery store all the beautiful flowers that were on their way out, for lack of water? We all need a drink. Got my Mother's Day flowers for church there this year in the outdoor section. On the way home we stopped at Green Acres to find the reserved table behind our booth was for our family: Susan, Simon and Paula, and Pauline and Wayne. Sherry and I both got home in time to get our bedding off the line.

Had an early morning wakeup call from a good friend, knowing that we are missing Mum from our Mother's Day entourage this special day.

I must go and pick a bouquet of daffodils for church this morning.

Hey, the wild strawberry blossoms were in bloom in front of the church and Heather's lawn was a pretty purple with violets and wild flowers. Now everything seems to be so fast, it's not two weeks since the ice melted from my front steps. June McDougall was our minister of the day. All the Mama's took a petunia plant home. I was pleased to hear Lloyd Thomas's sister Norma was going to be his full-time neighbour. Everybody finds their way home eventually.

Sherry and I tried out the Kick Ass Cookhouse and the food was wonderful. Hospitality tops. They are sure doing a lot of work there, Doug and Bonnie LeBrocq are operating Kicking Mule Ranch. Doug says he has 16 horses, all sizes, and will be doing wagon rides twice a week as well as the regular trail rides. I had a most delicious wrap for my lunch, we met up with Susan and Paula there as well. All the mothers got a chocolate rose there. We also took in Rainbow Gardens and JD's Garden Centre. The warmest Mother's Day in a long time. My arse/ hip/ butt went into spasms at the last stop and I had to have help (nephew Pete came along in time) to get out of the car and into my chair. The pain was horrible, but a pain pill removed from the bathtub (that's another story) I don't know why they laughed at me. Anyway, it was gone thank goodness when I woke later. Hope everyone had as lovely a Mother's Day weekend as mine. Tara brought a lovely plant too.
