The Styles family from British Columbia has been living in Mindemoya for just over a year and has recreated their annual tradition of building a sukkah, a biblical booth structure, as part of the thanksgiving festival of Sukkot. Many friendly Islanders have visited their home to learn about the unique structure and its Hebrew roots and the family is happy to indulge their curiosities. Standing in photo left are Hadassah and Tim Styles behind daughter Ana, son Bennay and neighbour Micah Wilton.

Too late in season for phragmites control

LITTLE CURRENT—Little Current's Zak Nicholls was out for a walk on September 26, picking up garbage along the way, when he made an upsetting discovery. The garbage he had been picking roadside may have been coated in the likely carcinogenic Roundup, which had been sprayed in the area, and with little notice.

"I was out walking along the highway (Highway 6) enjoying the scenery and picking up garbage," Mr. Nicholls told The Expositor. "I saw a small post with a crumpled paper attached to it in the ditch and went to investigate."

Mr. Nicholls found that the crumpled piece of paper was a notification from the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) contractor Emcon Services, stating that Roundup had been sprayed in the area. "The signs I saw indicated spraying from September 21-23. My walk was September 26."

"In the past, pesticide use had to be made publicly known through media such as your publication, and the location of spraying and reported within a week prior to the completion and made available to all who would request it," Mr. Nicholls added. "It was a

CENTRAL MANITOULIN—An online public consultation meeting held Wednesday, September 30 via video conferencing software has resulted in a Central Manitoulin council decision to re-open both the J.H. Burt Memorial Arena in Mindemoya and the Providence Bay War Memorial Community Arena.

A controversial recommendation from the municipality's property committee to only open the Providence Bay facility was defeated at the September 24 meeting of council following a delegation presentation by Mindemoya Thunder Minor Hockey Association president Brian Phelps in which he pointed out the lack of consultation that had taken place before the recommendation was made.

Ontario Fire Marshall takes safety to the kitchen for Fire Prevention Week 2020

TORONTO—To mark Fire Prevention Week 2020, Ontario's Office of the Fire Marshal encourages all Ontarians to take action to ensure they are safe from kitchen fires at home. The theme of this year's Fire Prevention Week is "Serve Up Fire Safety in the Kitchen."

"Fire Prevention Week is an excellent time to teach and remind people what they can do to promote fire safety," said Solicitor General Sylvia Jones. "With more people working at home than ever before, this week will focus on tips and tools for fire safety in the kitchen. I encourage all individuals and families to take the time to review their cooking practices to prevent fires and keep loved ones safe."

Simple steps to stay safe in the kitchen include: Always stay in the kitchen when cooking and turn the stove completely off if you must leave.

Keep a proper fitting lid near the stove. If a pot of oil catches fire, slide the lid over the pot and turn off the stove. Do not move the pot. Never throw water on a burning pot.

Keep anything that burns—plastic utensils, dishcloths, paper towels—a safe distance from the stove.

Cook responsibly.

To prevent cooking fires, you must be alert. You are not alert if you have consumed alcohol or drugs.

Wear tight-fitted clothing or roll up your sleeves when using the stove. Loose, dangling clothing can easily catch fire.

Keep young kids one metre away from the stove. Turn pot handles away from the stove's edge so pots can't easily be knocked off.

If you burn yourself while cooking, run cool water over the wound for three to five minutes. If the burn is severe, seek medical attention.

"For most Ontario families, preparing food at home is part of daily life," said Ontario Fire Marshal Jon Pegg. "Unfortunately, cooking fires occur all too often in Ontario. Making small changes to stay fire-safe can make a big difference in protecting you and your family."

Fire Prevention Week runs from October 4 to 10 in communities across the province.

Commendations for Manitoulin's good doctors and health professionals

We are very fortunate to have such dedicated people here on the Island

To the Expositor:

I would like to recognize the good doctors and health professionals that we have on Manitoulin that serve those of us on our beautiful Island so well. We are very fortunate to have such a dedicated team, especially in this COVID time. They quietly and conscientiously work behind the scenes to keep us healthy and heal us when we are sick. As a community health nurse for M'Chigeeng I support the mums and babies often in their homes. I just wanted to especially thank Dr. Barss and Dr. Quackenbush and midwife Christina Therrien and birth attendant Earlene Angevine for their dedication to safe birthing on Manitoulin. They are giving families the birth experiences they desire as long as all is normal. I am thrilled when I hear this from my mums. We are very fortunate to have such dedicated health professionals on Manitoulin.

Retired police officer offers apologies for office closures

"I never thought I would call shame on the OPP administration"

To the Expositor:

It is sad closing two community towers of strength. I worked, no, served, the residents in both. The new Mindemoya detachment was built when the one room office in the basement of the municipal building would not house the three officers at the time: Larry Beach, Keith Size and Murray Haner. The communities of Manitowaning and Mindemoya/people got together and formulated a business case to justify the expense of their new offices. The communities rolled up their sleeves and volunteered for every community building strategy the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) asked them to support. Both communities had Neighborhood Watch and all the programs that needed full community support to survive. Mindemoya was the birth of Victims Services along with Little Current.

A huge plus and bargain point for new improved detachments in those communities was reduced response time (now sadly gone) and officers living in those communities (who through time will live closer to Little Current contributing to community-building).

My sincere apologies to those two communities who gave so much to, in the end, receive so little. You supported me and my colleagues year in and year out. Remember the old saying 'A police force is only as good as the community it serves.' This is a sad day that the OPP has blindsided those two communities and left town. Those community people are entirely responsible for what the OPP is today on Manitoulin. Even sadder was the silence from community leaders in pushback who, to my knowledge, did not put our MPP to work his magic. I never thought I would call "shame" on the OPP administration.

Store signs should read "no shoes, no shirt, no mask, no service"

Kudos to the parents helping their kids through these trying times

To the Expositor:

Since we made our harrowing trip home from Mexico in March, I have had a lot of time to reflect on the pandemic that prompted our hasty departure. Right now I am concerned about the unavailability of testing for COVID-19 and the long wait for results in some areas of Ontario, especially as the number of cases is rapidly rising.

Fortunately for us, my husband and I have already been able to very quickly get appointments, tests and results twice on the Island, the luck of being an Islander, I guess, in a region less affected by the virus.

We were asymptomatic, but wanted to know that we were free of the virus before going to a small family reunion at a resort in the Sault area and before a camping trip to a park in the French River area. The last thing we wanted to do was infect our family or friends.

We won't be doing that again, obviously, if tests are hard to get for people with symptoms. We intend to continue to follow the guidelines regarding mask wearing in all stores, handwashing and distancing, as well as the newest one being recommended because of the surge in cases in Ontario. That is, "if you don't live in the house, don't go into the house."

We also have two items in our home that we use before we go out into the world that give us the confidence that we will not infect anyone we might run into on the street or in a store. One is a thermometer to make sure our temperature is below 37 degrees and an oximeter to make sure that our oxygen levels don't fall below 95 percent.

If the numbers indicate a fever or diminishing breathing capacity, we will call our doctor. It occurred to me that a thermometer and oximeter might help parents to determine daily whether their kids are safe to go to school. It might be worth it to check with your own doctor about whether he or she would recommend it for your family.

We find it disturbing that some stores are serving people who are not wearing a mask. If you want to avoid confrontation, the sign that stores effectively use to motivate people to wear shoes and shirts might include masks: "no shoes, no shirt, no mask, no service."

Now it is also true that, for some people, wearing a mask is decidedly problematic. For the sake of the health and welfare of others, I would appreciate those people considering options we ourselves have tried. We have friends who will pick up some things we need when they do their own shopping. Alternatively, many stores offer curbside service. Though we have no problem wearing a mask, we have sent an order by email to a store and picked it up at the store's door, and if the COVID situation does not improve, we may go back to it.

It appears more and more younger people who flout the guidelines, besides posing a real risk to those who follow the guidelines, are getting sick themselves, putting a strain on our healthcare system.

If push comes to shove, fairness would dictate that the flouters, who become ill, be moved to end of the line when decisions need to be made about the use of resources that have become limited because of the thoughtless actions of irresponsible people.

Finally, kudos to the many parents we have witnessed, helping their kids through this difficult time, by modeling for the children the kind of behaviour that will best ensure the good health of others, especially all the selfless essential service providers we all come in contact with in grocery and hardware stores, pharmacies, dental offices, etc., etc. Be safe, and keep safe, everybody.

Recent studies contradict doom and gloom scenario for polar bear populations

Longer open water seasons mean more seal pups to feed upon the following spring

To the Expositor:

My last note regarding the bears indicated that there were positive indications that they are doing quite well as opposed to the narratives presented in most of the news media. At that time the results from the Chukchi Sea subpopulation were released with encouraging news. The bears were thriving in terms of body condition and number of cubs produced. The longer open water season meant ringed seals could feed longer resulting in more pups for the bears to feed on the following spring.

There are now two more studies available covering the Kane Basin and the M'Clintock Channel. Details from the M'Clintock Channel have not been released for some reason but the authors have revealed that the bears are healthy and the subpopulation is increasing. The Kane Basin study shows a population increase from 224 at last count to 357. Improved body condition and stable reproductive performance are also reported. It is interesting to note that Norwegian Bay, Viscount Melville and parts of Northern Beaufort all will have the same conditions as the Kane Basin so this should result in healthy bear populations in these areas as well.

Here is a quote from the study, "These changes may reflect the shift from thick multiyear ice to thinner seasonal ice with higher biological productivity." Interesting change from the assumptions made for the models that have been presenting us with doom and gloom forecasts for far too long.

People in Northern Ontario are doing okay with the pandemic

Hefty fines need to be applied to a first offence

To the Expositor:

We might see another shut down and its because of these idiots in southern Ontario having their wild drinking parties and it just might affect the whole province. At least here in Northern Ontario I think people are a little more sensible not to have big wild drinking parties. What might happen is these people from southern Ontario just might travel up North just to party then bring the disease into our communities. We cannot let that happen here in Northern Ontario.

We are doing okay with the coronavirus, it's not affecting us too hard. Toronto and Ottawa are major hubs for international travellers and Toronto is also the finance capital for our country too. If we want to kill this coronavirus in our country the federal government needs to put in very strong restrictions on international travel. There are loopholes that people are using to get in and out of the country. This needs to be addressed within the government and close these loop holes that citizens are using. These people having their wild drinking parties have to face hefty fines too, like $5,000 right off the start for the first offence. If they can afford to have their wild drinking parties, they can afford to pay for these fines too. These fines should increase if they keep doing it.

Central Manitoulin defers noise bylaw for construction company

by Michael Erskine

CENTRAL MANITOULIN—A concern over noise generated by a local aggregate company in the early morning hours led to an application for exemption from the Central Manitoulin noise bylaw and a spirited debate at the Central Manitoulin council table, despite general consensus on providing the business with some relief from the bylaw's provisions.

The original motion was to provide C. Pearson and Son Excavating and Haulage with a six-month exemption to the noise bylaw (2020-13, section 6.1.1.) allowing them to start business earlier in the day than the bylaw permits. Under section 2.2 the motion would have the bylaw in force only from 11 pm to 6 am.

Councillor Dale Scott said he was unsure the 6 am start would be effective for the business' needs, noting that farmers often have to start their farm equipment in the winter at least an hour-and-a-half before starting work. "I would like to see it set at 5 am," he said.

Councillor Derek Stephens voiced his opposition to dictating to any business owner as to how they operate their business. He noted that during the past construction season, with high temperatures involved during the afternoon, many businesses started work very early in the morning to avoid the heat. He said he was disturbed that a business with 50 years' experience in the community would be hamstrung by complaints from two neighbours. He noted that the neighbour close to the company's yards, which he described as bitter business rivals, had no complaints and suggested that council should not be poking their noses into private business operations.

Councillor Rose Diebolt said she had to agree with Councillor Stephens and questioned the time constraint.

Some confusion was cleared up over whether a time restriction was called for. Asked for clarification by Councillor Steve Shaffer, CAO/Clerk Ruth Frawley indicated that her reading of the noise bylaw only required a set time of duration for the exemption, not specific times.

Councillor Stephens interjected that the Foodland operation in Mindemoya had been given a blanket exemption.

Councillor Al Tribinevicius said he was concerned about the time restrictions as well, particularly if there were to be a significant cold snap.

In the end, council passed a motion "that council grant C. Pearson and Son Excavating and Haulage an exemption to bylaw 2020-13 (noise bylaw) under section 6.1.1. for the duration of six months, with the condition under section 2.2 being waived and no restrictive time be set."

Manitoulin OPP investigates fatal collision

On October 3 at approximately 7:57 am, members of the Manitoulin detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), with the assistance of Manitoulin-Sudbury emergency medical services, the Tehkummah Fire Department and the Tehkummah First Responders responded to a single motor vehicle collision on Government near the 15th Concession Road in Tehkummah Township.

Investigation revealed a vehicle left the roadway and struck a tree.

The driver of the vehicle (and lone occupant), Jeffery McKay, 41 years old from Cambridge, was pronounced deceased at the scene.

The investigation is continuing with the assistance of an OPP collision reconstructionist, an OPP technical collision investigator in conjunction with the Office of the Chief Coroner and Ontario Forensic Pathology Service.

Manitoulin OPP charges 45th impaired driver

On September 22 at approximately 1:58 am, members of the Manitoulin detachment of the OPP were conducting traffic enforcement within Little Current.

Police stopped a vehicle and determined the driver had consumed alcohol. The driver was arrested for impaired driving and brought to the Little Current detachment for further testing.

As a result of the investigation, Brandy Crawford, 25 years old, from Little Current, was charged with: operation while impaired, alcohol and drugs; operation while impaired, blood alcohol concentration (80 plus); driving while under suspension; and driving motor vehicle with open container of liquor.

The accused was released by way of an appearance notice and a provincial summons and is scheduled to appear at the Ontario Court of Justice on November 4 in Gore Bay.

The accused was issued a 90-day Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension (ADLS) and the vehicle was impounded for seven days.

This incident marks the 45th driver charged under the criminal impaired driving laws in the Manitoulin OPP Detachment area in the year 2020.

OPP enforcing COVID-19 gathering restrictions

The OPP wants to ensure everyone is aware of how it is supporting efforts to limit transmission of COVID-19.

Frontline OPP members will be enforcing provisions of the Reopening Ontario Act (A Flexible Response to COVID-19; ROA), 2020 and will encourage the public to follow the direction of their local Public Health Units (PHUs).

Since September 19, 2020, the new gathering limits are:

- indoor events or gatherings: 10 people (previous limit of 50)
- outdoor events or gatherings: 25 people (previous limit of 100)

This applies to social gatherings in private residences, backyards, parks and other recreational areas. This includes functions, parties, dinners, gatherings, barbecues and wedding receptions.

The new limits do not apply to events or gatherings in staffed businesses and facilities since they must already follow specific public health and safety guidelines to minimize risk and limit the spread of COVID-19.

Additionally, police officers now have the authority to temporarily close any premises where they have reasonable grounds to believe that a gathering or event is in violation of any gathering limits.

Individuals will be required to leave the premises if they have been temporarily closed and will not be permitted to return/re-enter on the same day unless re-entry is authorized by an officer. This does not apply if it is their place of residence.

Individuals who refuse to leave may be ticketed or charged.

Anyone who believes a gathering is not adhering to the Reopening Ontario Act should report it to their municipal bylaw enforcement authorities or police service.

The OPP encourages everyone to do their part to support our health care system and workers at this difficult time and minimize the impact of COVID-19 in all our communities. For all non-emergency police matters, including allegations of non-compliance, contact your municipal bylaw office, call the OPP non-emergency number at 1-888-310-1122 or your local detachment.

The OPP continues to provide public safety services to the communities we serve and supports the efforts of federal, provincial and local health authorities during the current situation involving COVID-19. We appreciate the public's ongoing support of these measures.

with them leading up to the Throne Speech, the eventual support of the NDP was apparently brokered by an agreement to raise the pandemic relief funds from $400 to $500 and instituting paid sick leave provisions.

Thus it was that the actual first test of confidence came in the form of the government's proposed legislation authorizing new benefits for workers left jobless or underemployed by the COVID-19 pandemic. All electoral sabre-rattling was put aside when that legislation passed through the House unanimously. Although the bill was delayed by procedural wrangling on the part of the Conservatives and the Senate had its own stumbling blocks set up to delay the final passage due to the senators' unhappiness with not being able to conduct their normal work, the measures were in place in time to backstop those struggling with the pandemic economic fallout.

As a parliamentary motion, failure to gain the confidence of the House demonstrates to the head of state (in Canada, the governor general) that the elected parliament no longer has confidence in (one or more members of) the appointed government. In some countries, if a no confidence motion is passed against an individual minister they have to resign along with the entire council of ministers.

Among Canadian prime ministers who have fallen in confidence votes were Pierre Trudeau in 1974, in a loss of confidence supply (confidence supply refers to budgetary matters, ie the spending of money); Joe Clark in 1979, also a loss of confidence supply; Paul Martin in 2005 through an opposition motion and Stephen Harper in 2011, also to an opposition-triggered motion resulting from a finding of contempt of Parliament. In Mr. Martin's case the Liberal government was decimated, in Mr. Harper's case he was returned with a majority.

Opposition parties are cautious when looking to trigger an election, and the mood of the country as measured by numerous polling firms was not rosy towards an early election outside of the western provinces.

When it comes to the mood of the provincial premiers generally, none of them seem inclined to throw a monkey wrench into the federal machinery right now either, as the need to keep federal health dollars flowing outweighs any partisan considerations—especially as the potential result would be the Liberals returning with a stronger, if not majority, mandate. (The latest 338Canada projection shows the Liberals within two seats of a majority if an election were held October 4.) Electors have not generally looked well upon those whom would trigger an early election without a very good reason. Without key support from their provincial counterparts the opposition leaders' trigger fingers would be expected to hesitate.

Even when an opposition party votes against a confidence motion that does not necessarily result in the government falling. Careful adjustments of which legislators are actually in the house to vote can allow the government to stand, while at the same time signalling the opposition's displeasure.

The next confidence vote will likely take place when the Liberals deliver their next budget.

pandemic. Toronto has paused contact tracing to focus on directly notifying those who test positive.

"Public health can't do this alone. We absolutely have to do this together," she said.

She acknowledged the "grim milestone" of the world recently surpassing more than one million deaths due to COVID-19.

"We've seen some increases in our health unit area but it's too early to say we're in wave two," said Dr. Sutcliffe, adding that Northeastern Ontario will inevitably become overrun with cases unless everyone abides by the policies in place.

"I know we're tired of hearing about it and doing it, but the actions we need to take are relatively simple and relatively easy, in particular when we think about the cost of not doing them," she said, noting the potential damages to schools, the economy, businesses, workplaces and the health of the population.

"I thank all of you in our area for the measures that you have been taking, the patience you have shown and the kindness that you've shown to each other as we work through this together," said Dr. Sutcliffe. "I wish you a really good fall and I thank you all for your ongoing commitment to our collective safety."

...Sheguiandah remembers MMIWG at Sisters in Spirit Day

"This year, on Sisters in Spirit Day, the Chiefs of Ontario and I will be honouring the families, survivors and the thousands of missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls. We ask that Canadians from coast to coast, stand in solidarity and remembrance as we call for justice and immediate action to ensure the safety and security of our sisters, aunts, and mothers," said Ontario Regional Chief RoseAnne Archibald.

In June 2019, the National Inquiry into missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls (MMIWG) released its final report titled, 'Reclaiming Power and Place.' The report included 231 calls for justice to address the systemic racism and colonial violence Indigenous women and girls have faced for decades and indicate the clear steps Canadians need to take to be a part of that change. Since its release, the federal government has committed to developing a national action plan to prevent and address violence against Indigenous women and girls by June 2020. (Due to COVID-19, this commitment has not been met.)

"By allowing Barbara Kentner's murderer to have his charges downgraded from second-degree murder to manslaughter, the Superior Court Justice proves that this type of violence will be permitted without the full repercussions of the law," Chief Archibald said in a press release. "I strongly call on both levels of government to develop a strong joint action plan with First Nations to ensure that our Indigenous women are safe, protected and respected."

"The Canadian government is continuing to show that the lives of Indigenous women across the country are not a priority," the regional chief continued. "This week, we heard the nation's outcry for justice following the death of Joyce Echaquan after nurses verbally assaulted her because she was a First Nation woman. The abhorrent words and contempt shown to a dying mom were tragic and hurtful for everyone who watched the video online. The government must act now to protect the lives of our Indigenous women and girls."

"We ask each and every one of you, whether you are a parent, are in any of the four levels of government, are a police officer, a judge, a teacher, how are you contributing to eliminate violence and death of Indigenous women and girls?" Chief Archibald continued. "We urge you to assess and determine how we can all work together to address the patriarchal systems, policies, laws, and attitudes that contribute to systemic racism, discrimination and injustices. We have many people at grassroots levels who have raised their voices, only to fall on deaf ears. This must change; we must commit to the efforts and proceed with action."

The marchers at Sheguiandah's Sisters in Spirit Day travelled along Highway 6 as part of their route through the community.

"We use the term 'targeted' instead of 'vulnerable'—Barbara Kentner, Tina Fontaine, Joyce Echaquan were not vulnerable; they were targeted because the existing systems allow them to be; the systems say they are worthy of justice," the chief added. "On Sisters in Spirit Day, we ask you to evaluate and determine what changes you will make."

do have, and to give back and serve others," adds his wife Hadassah Styles.

Long before modern-day Thanksgiving, there was Sukkot, an Old Testament celebration that translates to the Feast of Booths or Feast of Tabernacles (sukkot being the plural of a sukkah). It commemorates Hebrews' exodus from Egypt and is a way of offering thanks to God for their salvation.

The Israelites left Egypt and had to sleep rough in booths such as this. They had few comforts and possessions and relied on their faith in God to survive the hardships.

The sukkah's core purposes are to inspire joy and thankfulness to share with friends, family and neighbours at the end of the harvest, to affirm that God has provided for all of one's needs in the past and will do so in the future, and reminds those who dwell within its walls that life is a temporary journey.

Although Sukkot has Jewish origins, Mr. Styles and his family have incorporated it into their Christadelphian faith. For the past five years, the family has built this structure at their home near Armstrong, BC, where they reuse the same wood every year.

Mr. Styles, who has a degree in architecture, works from home in the computer software industry. They moved temporarily to Manitoulin on Thanksgiving of 2019, around the time of the festival, but they skipped the annual construction for that year. They came to Mindemoya to help care for Linda Wilton, a fellow Christadelphian who was beloved by the global faith community. She faced an aggressive strain of cancer and passed on September 10 of this year.

Upon their arrival, the family was unsure of where they would live, especially given Manitoulin's limited rental housing market.

"We put it to prayer and the next morning we got a call from the people who owned this house, Joan and Willis Sheppard, who said they would be able to rent us this place right across the street from Dan and Linda (Wilton) while we helped take care of her," says Ms. Styles. "The spirit on the Island is incredible. You'd be hard-pressed to find it anywhere else in the world."

This is not their first time on Manitoulin—the Styles first met when they attended the Mindemoya Christadelphian youth camp some years ago.

The tough circumstances surrounding Ms. Wilton's death were all the more reason to bring their tradition to Ontario, especially to support members of their faith community.

"We wanted this to be a reminder of God's commitment to us and our families during this hard time," says Ms. Styles.

Fellow Christadelphian Joe Cooper of Cooper Wood Products donated the lumber for the sukkah. Willow branches make up the roof; it is the only sacred plant in Sukkot (as described by Moses) found locally.

Ms. Styles sourced the branches from Deb's Unisex Hairstyling at the end of their street. They serve as a reminder of the impermanence of life as they slowly wilt during the week.

The Styles have adapted the tradition to the local climate from its traditional Mediterranean roots.

"In Israel today, people eat and sleep in their sukkahs. However, it is much colder in Northern Ontario so we just have our meals and visit in our sukkah," Mr. Styles says.

Sukkot is not a ubiquitous celebration but Mr. Styles says some Jewish neighbourhoods in Michigan, his birthplace, feature sukkahs in nearly every yard.

The Styles have added a small heater for when visitors stop by and their children have become fast friends with the Wilton kids across the street. They spend many hours running around their homes and going on adventures around the Island.

As Christadelphians, the Styles say this tradition offers perspective on the values of their own faith. "The kids love it when it's time to build the booth; we make challah bread every year, build the booth and collect branches for it ... it's a great opportunity to teach our kids some important principles," said Ms. Styles, adding that teachings are not necessarily religious in nature.

"I grew up in a large family and we didn't have a lot of money but we had great traditions every holiday. As kids, having money doesn't really matter that much as long as you can make a holiday special and perform traditions consistently every year. They can really grow to mean something to your children and make memories for their whole lives," she said.

The spirit of Sukkot is perhaps more important than ever in a season when the Styles and their fellow siblings in Christ have said a final goodbye to the late Ms. Wilton.

She completed international missionary work and was a major organizer of gatherings and celebrations both locally and on a broader scale, including a virtual youth camp for some 400 children in her final summer.

"It's been a hard time for us with Linda having died, but we're very thankful for all that God has provided to us in the past and we have confidence that he will continue supporting us in the future and that we'll see Linda again," says Mr. Styles.

"There's that old saying that grief is the price you pay for love. We're so thankful for Linda's example and what she gave to us," adds Ms. Styles.

The sukkah draws a considerable amount of attention from passers-by who are curious and supportive of the effort. The family says they enjoy explaining their tradition to strangers over a shared cup of tea or coffee.

Their children have made a series of informative posters on the street-facing wall to explain their practice when they are not present.

Sukkot ends on Friday, October 9 this year (its dates are based on the Hebrew calendar and always fall in the September-October timeframe). After the festival, the family says they are not sure what they will do with the wood but will find a good home for it.

They will keep one board, however; a rough-sided piece with white paint on which visitors are invited to sign their name. The Styles plan to bring it back to BC when they return and add those names to their home collection—memories of a difficult but important year in their family's fall tradition.

Wiikwemkoong hunters donate moose to food bank

by Michael Erskine

WIKWEMKOONG—A group of hunters from Wiikwemkoong had a great hunt this season, bagging three bull moose over the course of their hunt. The hunters decided to donate one of their moose from their bounty to the Wiikwemkoong food bank.

“We did good,” confirmed Wiikwemkoong Ogimaa Duke Peltier, who was one of the lucky hunters who made up the party of six. “We were able to harvest three bull moose.”

Ogimaa Peltier explained “a group of us decided to go out and see if we could be successful in the hunt, as it turned out we were really lucky as it turned very cold that night with frost, it was only five or six degrees when we woke up.”

The hunters entered the hunters’ sights shortly thereafter. “As soon as we went out they were there,” he said. “I’d like to say we had skill,” he laughed.

The hunters decided to donate one of their moose to the food bank, which has a program running to encourage donations of wild game for distribution to families as part of a land-based program.

“The lands department put the program together,” noted Ogimaa Peltier. In return for one third of a hunting party’s harvest, the lands department will not only assist with the butchering and packaging of the meat, but also kick in for some of the cost of gas.

“The program encourages those who have the ability to go out, who are willing and able to hunt and successful, to donate one third of their harvest.”

While the Island sometimes hosts an accidental moose or two, hunting parties from the Unceded Territories, as well as United Chiefs and Councils of Mniidoo Mnising have traditionally hunted for moose further afield, travelling a wider range to harvest moose.

The program dovetails neatly with the Wiikwemkoong Lands Department vision: “To reclaim our rightful stewardship for the lands, waters, environment and natural resources consistent with the traditional beliefs and practices of the Anishnabek people of Wikwemikong Unceded Indian Reserve.”

One very happy group of hunters bagged three bull moose during this year’s hunt. The hunters followed traditional generosity after a successful hunt by donating one of their moose to the Wiikwemkoong food bank.

...Most displays ever celebrate autumn in Manitoulin communities which we are posting addresses: the net result is that a drive up and down the streets of most of our communities means that you'll be impressed by the time and talent that has gone into making sure our towns reflect the fall harvest theme just in time for the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

Even if you only check out the efforts in your own home community, it will be well worth a drive around.

If you can go further afield and see what individuals in neighbouring Island communities have done, that will be even better.

The guide of registered decorated spots on Page 19 is a good guide and the communities with the most listings tend to also boast that many more besides that haven't been officially registered.

But it's all worthwhile: There are a half-dozen registrations on the Bidwell Road in Assiginack Township. They all happen to be south (the Manitowaning side) of the little Hamlet of Bidwell and while they are relatively few in number, they are all really well done.

And the Bidwell Road, for example, leads you one way south to the town of Manitowaning where citizens have again gone all out and lovingly embraced the Harvest Glory Days theme, and the other way takes you in the general direction of the village of Sheguiandah that is decorated from end to end.

That would be a nice regional tour.

This year's breakthrough community, the Harvest Glory Days judges have determined, is the town of Mindemoya where clever people have festooned the Highway 542/ King Street corridor with an enormous array of clever characters and while they might not scare away crows, they definitely bring delight to the spectator visiting this central Island community.

The judges have decided to call these effigies scarecrows, benign ones, and they are sitting, standing, turning a cartwheel, getting married, posing as a clergyperson, looking pretty at the intersection of Mindemoya's two main streets, Highway 542/King Street and Highway 551/Yonge Street. There is a running gag through many of these installations: the Toronto Maple Leafs. These characters also live in hope.

But wait: there's more! A drive (or a walk) through the core residential area of Mindemoya shows that many homeowners have also decorated this year, many more than usual.

All of this taken together means that Mindemoya will receive a large Harvest Glory Days sign attesting to its citizens' community spirit in 2020 ... with spaces to add more winning years, in the future.

Mindemoya is a new 2020 winner in this year's Harvest Glory Days friendly Manitoulin Island Harvest Glory Days competition in the large community category.

But others have continued to impress and will also continue to be recognized.

Perennial decorating winning town Manitowaning has done it again in the large community category with consistent community buy-in all over town so Manitowaning, for the eighth consecutive year, will receive a 2020 "leaf" for their Harvest Glory Days sign.

So will Gore Bay, the town the Harvest Glory Days judging panel recognized last year for the first time as a championship decorated community.

Like Mindemoya, clever scarecrows adorn the front street, mainly in front of businesses and often the characters mimic something about their nearby businesses: there's a bank robber running away from the Bank of Montreal, there are diners at a table for two near Codmothers Restaurant (and a character is catching a very large fish there to boot).

A second leaf will look good on Gore Bay's Harvest Glory Days winner's sign.

In the large town/community category, honourable mention goes this year to Little Current where both the municipality and individual citizens have really stepped up their games to make their town much more Harvest Glory themed.

Several businesses (including two real estate offices) have done outstanding and innovative decorating and the United Church's maple tree, in full splendor just now, provides a canopy for a huge display of the harvest bounty that Canada and Manitoulin Island are fortunate to be able to produce in abundance.

In the mid-sized town category, the village of Sheguiandah has taken the honours for the third straight year.

There is the usual fun display at the Bass Creek fish viewing platform but throughout the community, on both sides of Highway 6, homeowners have stepped up to a greater than usual extent to show their full colours.

Congratulations, Sheguiandah. There's another winning leaf coming your way.

Honourable mention in this category goes to Providence Bay in recognition of the great decorating efforts on the Highway 542 corridor through the community and on down towards Providence Bay Park.

In the small community category, Silver Water has pulled it off for the seventh consecutive year with virtually every home along the Highway 540 corridor through town celebrating the season. Silver Water will be receiving yet another leaf to commemorate its citizens' pride of place.

The fall colours are approaching their peak now, the communities are artfully decorated in variations on nature's autumn palette and so just now is the time to explore Manitoulin, before we have to concern ourselves with digging out our snow tires!

For an extensive photo gallery of almost all of the Harvest Glory decorating done in each Manitoulin community, please see manitoulin.com.

Northeast Town Notes

Grader for sale

Northeast Town staff is confident in the work of its new grader, purchased this year, meaning that it's time to declare the old one surplus. At its September 29 meeting, Northeast Town council declared surplus its 1989 Champion grader. The piece of heavy machinery will then be placed for sale. "It served us well, now it's time to move it out of the fleet," said CAO Dave Williamson.

Halloween

The topic of Halloween was placed on council's agenda for conversation.

Mayor Al MacNevin noted to council that Public Health Sudbury and Districts (PHSD) has not taken a direction on Halloween as they are waiting to hear from the province on the beloved holiday. PHSD did, however, remind everyone to continue to follow physical distancing protocols, wear a mask and wash your hands.

Councillor Barb Baker said she has had conversations with numerous constituents who have expressed concern that, should they choose not to participate in Halloween this year, that they may be subject to Halloween devilry in the form of vandalism and smashed pumpkins.

Councillor Bill Koehler said he has also received similar phone calls from ratepayers.

"If there is concern around vandalism, we can contact the local police," said Councillor Al Boyd, recalling the days of the volunteer efforts of the 'goblin patrol' headed up by the fire department.

...Central agrees to open both Prov and Mindemoya arenas

taining four fire halls and community centres. "Arenas are an easy target," he said, especially given their cost of maintenance, but "we have to look at the benefits they bring to our community."

Mr. Lockyer stressed the health and safety of hockey officials in his presentation, noting that his concerns were not linked to the location of each arena, but rather to the size of the ice surfaces involved. "If the Providence Bay arena had the larger ice surface and Mindemoya was to be opened I would be here with the same concerns," he said. But he did point out that the Providence Bay arena would involve greater costs for the minor hockey associations due to mileage and travel costs.

He pointed out that the upcoming hockey season was to proceed with a three-on-three format. Referees were instructed to call penalties if players came within a stick length of another player, unless that player had the puck. "This is why the smaller ice surface makes no sense," he said. "Thirteen percent is a big difference," he said of the ice surface. "Especially when trying to maintain the optimum distance."

Mr. Bridgeman noted that most of the points he wished to bring to council's attention had already been covered by previous presenters, but he wished to speak of the plight of youth in the community. "They have had so much taken away from them this year," he said. "Our kids don't have many avenues; they are very limited in what they can do." He also pointed out that the Mindemoya arena has four times the amount of usage seen by the Providence Bay facility.

Ms. Anning spoke about the important role the Mindemoya arena plays in the Manitoulin Special Olympics' annual softball tournament, particularly since the adjacent community hall in Mindemoya is not fully accessible. The softball tournament was cancelled for this year, but should the Mindemoya arena remain closed through next summer, it would severely hamper her organization's planning for 2021.

She also noted that the Providence Bay facility plays an important role in the annual Bluegrass in the Country festival that functions as Manitoulin Special Olympics' main fundraiser.

Ms. Anning pointed out that there are more interests in the arenas than just hockey players and their families.

Ms. Mielonen brought forward concerns regarding the farmers' market and her own challenges as a ballet teacher. While she agreed that the expense involved in keeping the arenas open impacted taxes and in turn the viability of businesses in the community, and that keeping only one arena open was a sensible exercise in fiscal responsibility, she made the argument that keeping the Mindemoya arena open makes the most community sense—floating the idea of selling the Providence Bay arena to the agricultural society board.

"I would like to see a clear vision," she said. "I would encourage council to think of the big picture."

The meeting then moved to an open mic format to allow councillors to ask questions and seek additional information from the presenters.

In the ensuing discussion it was revealed that the Mindemoya arena footprint was 17,000 square feet in size, while the Providence Bay facility was only 10,750 square feet. Mayor Stephens expressed surprise at that information, saying "I had no idea."

After some discussion on the proposed timing of the opening it was revealed that the Mindemoya Thunder would not object to ice being available by October 30 and that their season operations would start November 1.

It was questioned whether the motion to keep both facilities open was necessary, as that would essentially be the status quo, but CAO Ruth Frawley suggested a motion would provide clarity for staff and the community.

In a polled vote only Councillor Stephens voted against the motion, with councillors Scott, Tribinevicius, Johnston, Diebolt, Shaffer and Mayor Stephens voting in favour to carry the motion.

Going forward, both the Mindemoya and Providence Bay arenas will open for the 2020-2021 season.

Wiikwemkoong Arts and Music Festival, Six Foot Festival

by Warren Schlote

MANITOWANING—Debajehmujig Storytellers have concluded their virtual Six Foot Festival and Wiikwemkoong Arts and Music Festival, a pair of three-day events that challenged the team to reimagine the festival experience for a pandemic-gripped world.

The Six Foot Festival turned 11 this year and organizers chose rhythm as their 2020 theme. The festival is a celebration of the land, art and food that allows all people to unite over art, collaborate on projects and learn about traditional ways of life.

Its signature element is the use of six-foot frame cubes around the community in which artists create installations. The cubes served as stages for virtual, pre-recorded engagement sessions that aired live on Facebook during the festival.

“During these COVID times we have adapted to keep moving on with our festival in an online engagement,” said Richard Ashley Manitowabi, sustainable program facilitator at Debaj and one of the co-hosts of the virtual Six Foot Festival.

“Thanks, COVID; you helped us come up with something new and, you never know, we may be able to do something like this next year,” added co-host Bruce Naokwegijig, artistic director of Debaj.

In their virtual opening remarks at the start of the festival, both reflected on the things they missed this year, such as the crowds at the Debajehmujig Creation Centre in Manitowaning and the delicious foods that are a favourite among hosts and visitors alike. They added that shared lunches are often a source of collaboration and brainstorming, a significant loss this year.

Kerri Latimer created this six-foot cube installation on wheels, using the back of her unique Mercedes-Benz Unimog truck as a platform.

The two performed live hosting duties from an anchor desk. They introduced the segments and offered commentary, while their live feed went to Chris and Justin Deforge in the neighbouring control room. The mixers output a live feed of the hosts and the pre-recorded content and the pair had spent upwards of 18-hour days getting ready for the event.

The pre-taped content was in abundance. This year's festival featured 27 unique segments, some repeated on multiple days, which included engagements with the cube creations and explanations of other installations in the event.

Much of the festival was pre-recorded by design—in case COVID-19 numbers spiked and strict lockdowns would have prevented any in-person programming, the pre-shot video would have allowed the festival to continue. By the end of the weekend, more than 1,500 people had viewed the live feeds of the festivals.

For those who attended in person, Debaj crews set up a physically distanced theatre space in the Creation Centre that held up to 20 people to watch the live feed and see some of the creations.

There were also some drive-by performances in the six-foot cubes throughout Wiikwemkoong and Manitowaning, at which viewers could pull up to the site at a scheduled time and see a live performance from within their cars.

The action continued into the evenings when Wiikwemkoong Arts and Music Festival took over, highlighting some local and farther-afield acts in addition to some workshops.

The evening festival also featured pre-taped performances but many aired live from the Debaj studio or over video calls.

Debaj music and audio department lead Jason Manitowabi hosted the festival alongside Cree-Métis multidisciplinary artist Veronica Johnny, who fronts the band The Johnnys.

Performers and artists at the arts and music festival included Elijah (Manitowabi) and the Back Burners, Leonard Sumner, Tasha Sipllet-Sumner, David Osawabine, Leland Bell and Dylan Shigwadja, Stephanie Pangowish, Adrian Sutherland, Digging Roots, Perry Bebamash, Zigz Gaud, Kuzzins of Leon, Leslie McCue and Lindy Kinoshameg, Logan Staats, Crystal Shawanda and Everette Morrison.

Starting the program on the final day was young classical pianist Mason Animikwan who performed a medley of classical compositions that was especially impressive considering his one-and-a-half years of piano experience. He also played an original composition and shared some stories in between tunes.

The Debaj house band closed off the final night after a round of thanks for the event's sponsors and the many people and groups who supported this year's virtual festival.

"I'm feeling very thankful for the artists that participated in the Six Foot Festival, considering it's COVID times," said Richard Ashley Manitowabi, adding that the organizers may continue the hybrid model in the future and invest in wireless camera technology for more flexibility.

"Chi-miigwetch to all of you out there for supporting Debaj and all of these things we do here," added Mr. Naokwegijig.

The Sonny O Trio performs a set within one of the six-foot cubes stationed in the Manitowaning-Wiikwemkoong region. They played a live drive-by performance at Buzwah lookout on Friday afternoon, October 2.

Tehkummah Council Notes

September 1 Marina fishing

Councillor Rick Gordon asked if the marina docks could be reopened for September perch fishing, as has been traditional for years before a recent fishing ban. Clerk-administrator Silvio Berti said council could take down the signs but that it would create safety and liability concerns.

Cheque registry

Councillors completed the regular review of the cheque registry. One of the line items was a late fee to McDougall Energy in the amount of $108.47. Mr Berti said this arose during cash flow constraints with the 10th Sideroad project but staff is aware of the issue and had since caught up.

Sea container request

South Shore Volunteer Fire Fighters Association requested to install a sea container at the ball diamond for storage. Tehkummah is in the process of updating its zoning bylaw with respect to travel trailers and sea cans.

The township's current regulations do not address sea cans; Manitoulin Planning Board prohibits trailers outside of trailer parks.

Councillor McKenzie said Tehkummah ultimately has to follow the Planning Board's statues and the township may fall out of compliance. He also said trailers and sea containers are eyesores and he encouraged landowners to put up tax-eligible storage buildings.

"People have to build in this township. We need progress in this township, we need development," he said.

Mr. Berti said the township may be able to tax sea cans or travel trailers in the form of a permit to have the building on a property at a rate similar to taxes.

Councillor Lorie Leeson agreed that space has run out and the group needs storage, suggesting a possible clause to revisit the township's approval when bylaws change in the future.

Council approved one sea container next to the ballfield for storage, pending any changes to the township's zoning bylaw that may change the status of the approval. The firefighters' association had to get approval on the placement from the roads superintendent. Councillor McKenzie voted against the motion in a recorded vote.

Water system report

Tehkummah received a 100 percent score on its water system, though the Ministry of the Environment, Conservation and Parks offered some recommendations.

These included changing the piping from the raw water feed into the flocculation tank and the pressure tank. The present design has no way to flush and clean the line and adding an elbow with a valve would allow direct drainage to the waste tank rather than the floor. This would reduce wear and tear and improve health and safety.

The ministry also suggested that Tehkummah should add a secondary chlorine analyzer as a backup.

ICIP COVID-19 resilience funding

Mr. Berti said the Investing in Canada Infrastructure Program was taking funding applications for COVID-19 costs. Possible changes included expanding the council chambers for physical distancing and storage, improving air quality in the municipal building, and work to enhance health and safety in the garage.

Details had not yet been released at the time but Mr. Berti said he was trying to get ahead of the funding.

Shared EDO contract

Tehkummah approved the terms of reference between the two other townships for the shared economic development officer (EDO). Assiginack will employ the individual and the two other townships will pay Assiginack for the work the EDO does in their area.

August 11 Fire hall use

Fire crews allowed council to use the fire hall for all council meetings until COVID-19 is no longer an issue and the large space is no longer required.

Winter sand

Council approved a tender from C. Pearson and Son Excavation and Haulage for $17.26 per cubic metre, plus tax.

Nuisance seagulls

After receiving complaints, township staff drafted a letter to property owners to stop feeding seagulls as they pose health and safety risks, in addition to being nuisances.

Animal control exemption

The Allum-Harter family sent a variance request for Tehkummah. The new property owners have six dogs but Tehkummah's animal control bylaw limits households to three dogs. Council made an exemption for this household to have a maximum of six dogs, "until the demise of three dogs reduces the property owners to three dogs maximum per property and (is) in compliance with the township's animal control bylaw."

Donation requests

Tehkummah approved donations of $50 each to the Manitoulin Phragmites Project and Manitoulin Navy League Sea Cadets.

New docks

Work continued at the South Baymouth marina to replace floating docks that sustained damage last fall with the high water levels and winds. Insurance covered the costs of the docks and part of the boardwalk.

July 8 Fuel tenders

Council approved a four-year tender from Manitoulin Fuels for coloured diesel fuel ($70.12), clear diesel ($85.71), premium ethanol-free fuel ($110.45) and furnace oil ($70.12). The prices were all lower than another tender from McDougall Energy except for premium fuel. The two companies have since merged.

They also discussed tenders for two fuel tanks with an electric pump. They accepted one tank from Manitoulin Fuels at a price, including HST, of $6,311.20 and elected to buy out their existing Manitoulin Fuels-owned tank already on site for $1,500 plus tax.

Asset management plan

Tehkummah voted to reapply for funding to refresh its asset management plan, something it had previously approved but had not heard back on its funding application. The township committed $5,449 in its budget to cover its share; Public Sector Digest will make the application on Tehkummah's behalf.

Property standards bylaw

Tehkummah received a signed, written complaint about property standards in the township and it formed a property standards committee as per its bylaw. The committee contained two members of public, the reeve, clerk-administrator, secretary and bylaw enforcement officer.

Councillor Michael McKenzie suggested having one member from the village of Tehkummah and one from South Baymouth because of concerns of discrepancies between the two areas.

Reduced Sixth Concession loads

This was slated as an information update on negotiations with the Township of Assiginack regarding heavy trucks on the road from a quarry in Assiginack, and Councillor McKenzie requested a closed session because of possible future litigation.

Fire truck temporary relocation

Council endorsed the temporary relocation of a fire truck to South Baymouth during the 10th Sideroad construction to reduce response times on the days when the road would be closed.

Wastewater funding update

Tehkummah was not successful for a federal infrastructure funding application for work on its water treatment facilities in South Baymouth.

Lifebreath air system

Staff shut down the Lifebreath air system in the municipal building. It circulates outside air but had been shut down because it brought excessive humidity, so there was no air circulating in the building—a potential health hazard. Staff were working to find ways to circulate air without the humidity concerns.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Janice Mitchell is a veterinarian with Island Animal Hospital and Little Current Veterinary Services, and a beekeeper too!

The Nose Knows
by Janice Mitchell

A friend recently shared an article about detection dogs being used in an airport in Helsinki, Finland to sniff out COVID-19-positive travellers through a swab from their armpit sweat. Immediately I thought, 'if this pilot study proves effective, what a more cost friendly and gentler approach than the current nose-pithing PCR swab test?' Apparently the dogs are very good at it and are being found to detect the disease five days before the patients get any clinical symptoms. A similar program started at Dubai International Airport over the summer. If research is successful, detection dogs could be deployed in airports or other venues to screen large numbers of people. According to Medical Detection Dogs, a charity in the UK, it is speculated that a single dog can screen up to 250 people per hour.

This is yet another skill on a dog's curriculum vitae proving how amazing their nose is, and how they continue to help humans out. We know the list is long—from the conventional tracking, search and rescue, drug and banned foods detection, to the medical side of things, including detecting cancer, malaria, impending seizures in epilepsy, and low sugar levels in diabetics. Heck, they are even being used to detect bed bugs and invasive zebra mussels and are being used in conservation methods to identify floating whale poop.

How do they do it? Dogs possess up to 300 million olfactory receptors in their noses, compared to about six million in us. And the part of a dog's brain that is devoted to analyzing smells is about 40 times greater than ours. Their long muzzles (sorry, boxers) contain a labyrinth of thin bones, called turbinates, which are all lined by tissue containing these receptors. This provides a very large surface area for the air breathed to pass over. The dog also has a different site for a second separate sense of smell. It consists of two elongated fluid-filled sacs above the roof of the mouth. It is named the vomeronasal organ and it detects body scents or pheromones.

Dog's snot—the classic

Smelling burnt toast or a rat, Molly's nose knows best!

doggy wet nose—is also an essential feature. The moisture caused by a covering of mucus assists in the collection of odour molecules. Odour molecules dissolve in the mucus and are transported in the air breathed in up to the olfactory receptors in the top of the dog's nose. If there is not enough mucus the dog licks its nose. The average dog produces about two cups of mucus a day.

Dogs use sniffing to maximize the detection of odours. Sniffing consists of a series of rapid inhalations and exhalations, normally three to 10, but possibly up to 30, during which the normal breathing mechanism is disrupted. Each nostril sniffs air from separate areas so that during sniffing there is a bilateral scent intake. To maximize the efficiency during sniffing the dog needs each sniff intake to be unobstructed. Consequently, the expired air is passed out through the slits at the side of each nostril creating an air turbulence and allowing new odours to be inhaled directly into the centre of each nostril.

All these amazing features in dogs make them more aware of smells in a way that humans cannot understand. And while theoretically all breeds of dogs should have this better sense of smell than humans, in practice, certain breeds and individuals of dogs are better candidates for scent detection work. Generally, the longer nosed breeds tend to be much better with their sense of smell. The breeds commonly seen as fit for scent detection work include German shepherds, Labradors, poodles, and spaniels, partly because they have that better sense of smell, but they're also dogs that are really trainable and really happy to work with humans.

What makes a scent? We constantly emit an aura of hundreds of volatile chemicals from our skin, our breath, and potentially even our gut microbes. Every smell is made up of a complex cocktail of compounds, like a recipe with multiple ingredients. Generally, these scents are too faint for us to detect, but to animals we are clouds of smells on legs, and they can detect when our odour is different from usual. This is vital, because scientists suspect that when we're unwell our unique aroma changes; each disease could even have its own smell signature.

As a result, from studying the dog's amazing smell power and the chemical signatures of diseases, scientists are working on developing electronic noses, or e-nose for short. This could be a future patch that you wear on your skin, or a wristband that changes colour when it detects chemicals in your sweat. Very Star Trek Dr. McCoy-like.

When researching this article, I also discovered a group in the US called K9 Nose Works. Essentially, ...continued on page 32

thank you

The family of the late Orma Ferguson would like to express their sincere thanks to all who expressed their condolences, gifted food and donated to special causes in her memory. Losing a loved one in the time of COVID-19 is not easy, but the caring staff at the Manitoulin Centennial Manor repeatedly went above and beyond to help as we watched over Mom in her final days. Thanks to the Island Funeral Home for assisting with arrangements and the lovely graveside service. Special thanks to the Reverend Faye Stevens for her lovely remembrance. We are blessed to be surrounded by a community of supportive friends and we thank you for your generosity during this difficult time.

Thank You

We, the family of the late Susan Ward, wish to express our deep appreciation of all your devoted support and contributions that you all have offered during this most difficult time of loss.

We are so grateful to you for all you have done, including the cards, phone calls, e-mail messages, flowers, food, donations, visits, prayers, and especially the beautiful flower memorial at the store.

We are deeply grateful to all of those who took the time to travel to be with us.

We extend our special thanks to the staff at Mindemoya Hospital and to the paramedic workers for their constant help that they provided.

We also thank all who assisted at the graveyard service, especially with the music and the kind words expressed to honour the life of Susan. We appreciated the support and the service of Rev. Martin Garniss.

Our heartfelt thanks go to the Island Funeral Home for their empathy and professional commitment in handling the arrangements.

BROWN -- In loving memory of Joyce Brown, January 21, 1936 to September 30, 2018. It's been two years since you had to leave us and not a day goes by that I don't think of calling you. I have so much to say. You could have been a great-grandma this year, the part you loved so much, holding the wee babies. Fall leaves are changing and look absolutely beautiful, the wind hasn't blown them all away. Your roses bloomed this year like I've never seen before, your apple tree was absolutely loaded with big red apples. There's so much I can't share with you in person anymore, but I get the satisfaction of knowing you're always with me, looking over our family. Love and miss you very much Gram, Melissa, Craig, Alicia, Mason, Tamara and Meadow (our newest addition)

BAILEY -- In memory of a loving husband and devoted dad, Glendon Grant Bailey, March 15, 1939 to October 8, 2005.

We do not need a special day to bring you to our mind, A day we do not think of you is very hard to find. They say time heals all sorrow and helps us to forget, But time so far has only shown how much we miss you yet. If love could build a stairway and heartaches make a lane, We would walk up to Heaven and bring you back again. Forever loved and missed, Betty Jean and Valerie

MUSQUETIER -- My darling Lady Brenda Joy Musquetier, it has been seven years since you left me and "The Valley of Tears." I miss you so dearly. Thank you darling for all the love and companionship for nearly 50 years. Dankjewel met mijn hele hart. Miigwetch, merci beaucoup! Your always loving husband, Alex

NANCY ELAINE BELL

June 8, 1944 - September 28, 2020

Nancy Elaine Bell was born in Lindsay, Ontario on June 8, 1944 to parents George Arnold and Phoebe (Burtchael) Bell. In time she was joined by two younger brothers. The Bell family soon relocated to Windsor where Nancy completed both her public and high school education. She was a natural caregiver from an early age and this was further realized in her teenage years when she became a camp counsellor. Following high school, she enrolled in the Nursing program at Queen's University in Kingston. She had found her true calling and graduated in 1966. Nancy specialized in pediatrics and soon took a job opportunity at SickKids in Toronto. She loved her time at SickKids and was always trying to make the life of a sick child just a little bit better! In the early 1970s Nancy moved to Cambridge to become the Head Nurse of the Pediatrics Department at Cambridge Memorial Hospital. It was here, in 1974, that she was introduced to RuthAnn Bastert, a Ward Clerk. Over the next few years, the friendship and relationship flourished and RuthAnn and her daughter Peggy moved in with Nancy. It was around this time that Nancy went to work for Schneiders in Kitchener, where she joked she did her fair share of sewing! Around 1980, Nancy and RuthAnn headed north to a friend's cottage on Manitoulin Island. The women fell in love with the Island immediately, the people, the wilderness, and the scenery! By 1981, they had left the city life behind and called the Island home. They settled in the village of Sheguindah, and never looked back. Nancy soon found work on the Wiikwemkoong First Nations Reserve as a nurse. She loved her time there and became a true member of the community. She enjoyed her job so much, she saw no reason to retire or stop and continued working until 2014, retiring at the age of 70. In her free time, Nancy enjoyed figure skating, swimming, gardening, and who could forget fishing. The daily catch usually ended as a fabulous dinner with RuthAnn. Nancy was an active member of the Lion's Club, beginning in Kitchener in the late 70s. She truly lived a life following their motto, "We Serve" and remained active on the Island in the Little Current Lions Club. If she could do something for someone else, Nancy would! Nancy enjoyed the winter months, loved crosswords and had an eclectic taste in music. Just ask RuthAnn and Peggy about Nancy's fascination with Much Music video back in the day, it won't disappoint! She enjoyed Halloween, and absolutely loved dressing up for the occasion. Nancy was also very fond of her four-legged friends, K9's Max and Emily. They were like her children and she loved them dearly. Nancy was a loving, caring woman, who always put the needs of others, especially RuthAnn's, before her own. Nancy's girls and finally one grandson were very dear to her heart. She always went above and beyond the duties of a mom, grandma and great-grandmother. Her nickname was "Gan". Gan was our best friend, confidant, personal medical advisor, protector and "our rock," that we could always lean on. She was fun-loving, happy and loved joking with those around her. As a caregiver, she drew people in and was blessed with many friends. These friends, as well as her family, have many fond memories of this remarkable woman. Thankfully, Nancy's life and memory will live on in the many memories and stories we share of her. She will be missed! Nancy and RuthAnn had just moved to Port Elgin, to be closer to family, when she passed away suddenly at Hanover & District Hospital on Monday, September 28, 2020 in her 77th year. Beloved partner and best friend of RuthAnn Bastert. Loving mother of Peggy and her husband David Carter of Chesley. Cherished grandmother of Shawna MacDougall (Josh Carden), Krystal (Dave) Desjardins, Leah MacDougall (Mustaf Omar) and great-grandmother of MacKenzie, Ella, Madelynne, Samantha, Savannah and Mason. Nancy was predeceased by her mother Phoebe Bell. In respecting Nancy's wishes, private family services will be held. Memorial donations to SickKids Foundation would be appreciated as expressions of sympathy. Funeral arrangements entrusted to Rhody Family Funeral Home, Chesley. RhodyFamily.com.

Baby cardinals

"We are visited almost daily now by the juvenile cardinals belonging to our resident pair of adult cardinals. The youngsters are now quite capable of feeding themselves, so we rarely see mom and dad at the same time as the kids. Here are a young female and a young male, both with partial feathering colouring, and both with mainly greyish beaks—far from the bright orange that they will become in a few more weeks."
