OPP posts $50K reward for help in solving decade-old hit and run

Anthony (Antz) Mandamin died in roadside mishap on Sept. 16, 2006

WIKWEMIKONG—It was 10 years ago, on September 16, 2006, that Anthony 'Antz' Samuel Mandamin was struck and killed by a vehicle in the early morning hours while he was walking the Kaboni Road, near the Odawa Valley Road, in Wikwemikong. Mr. Mandamin had just left a house party.

The driver of the unknown vehicle responsible for his death failed to remain at the scene. Mr. Mandamin was just 25-years-old and was described by his family as a gentle, light-spirited young man with a great sense of humour.

The Government of the Province of Ontario is offering a reward in the amount of $50,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person(s) responsible for the death of Mr. Mandamin.

The Wikwemikong Tribal Police Service and the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) Criminal Investigation Branch (CIB) are continuing their investigation under the direction of OPP Detective Inspector Gilles Depratto.

Detective Inspector Depratto told The Expositor that he and Wikwemikong Tribal Police Chief Gary Reid had been discussing the possibility of a reward and put a request into the office of OPP Commissioner Vince Hawkes. When the police have exhausted all leads, a reward is one way of making a public appeal for information, the detective added, noting the billboard along Wikwemikong Way which also urges people to come forward with information on the case.

Little Current Lions start 'Catch the Ace' progressive jackpot

by Alicia McCutcheon

LITTLE CURRENT—On September 1, the Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario (AGCO) gave the nod for municipalities to grant 'chase the ace,' or in Ontario 'Catch the Ace,' lottery licences and the Little Current Lions Club, with support of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch #177, was quick to jump on Canada's largest raffle craze.

Last year, news reports described a small Newfoundland town that sparked a huge frenzy. Attempting to raise $5,000 to pay some of its parish bills, the Our Lady of Lourdes parish launched a 'Chase the Ace' lottery. Each Sunday, people would buy 50-50 tickets in a school gymnasium. At the end of the evening, the 50-50 winner was announced, but there was also a draw with the winner getting 20 percent of the pot and getting a chance to cut a deck of cards in the hopes of drawing the ace of spades and winning an accumulated jackpot. Forty-four weeks later, the ace of spades was finally found, earning the winner $329,000 and clearing all of the parish debts.

This new lottery caused a furor, and the Lions Club was quick to take note. After contacting the AGCO, the club learned that this kind of gambling was not permitted in the province; that was until September 1.

After weeks of meetings with municipal officials and the AGCO, the Lions Club was granted its licence last week and is excited to get started. The first Catch the LITTLE CURRENT—Little Current Public Library Librarian Jake Marion says that more municipal funding is needed to maintain the current level of service the library offers.

"When I first started working here nine months ago the library had four staff computers, now we are down to three and none of the three remaining computers work 100 percent properly," explained Mr. Marion. "The problem is that we can't just replace the old computers when they fail. The system that we use is 12 years-old and won't run on a new computer."

Providence Bay's evolving new Village Square, adjacent to the community hall and The Mutchmor and on the way to the beach, was the scene of much activity last week as a group involving members of the Spring Bay-Providence Bay Lions Club, municipal councillor Alex Baran and many other volunteers set out to decorate the new focal point in the fall harvest theme. The group planned to encourage people throughout the community to decorate their homes and businesses so that Providence Bay can be a contender in this year's Harvest Glory Days friendly community decorating competition. This event is organized by The Expositor as a community service.

Northeast Town expects to assume planning authority by new year

by Robin Burrige
LITTLE CURRENT—Northeast Town Mayor Al MacNevin met with representatives of the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing (MMAH) last week to discuss the transition of the municipality leaving the Manitoulin Planning Board (MPB) and becoming its own planning authority, a transition which is estimated to happen by January 2017. “I met with the MMAH and they explained what we should expect and what the transition will look like,” said Mayor MacNevin. “They said that we can expect to become our own planning authority by January 2017 and that the target for the ministry to be done reviewing our Official Plan (OP) is the end of the month. After the minister has reviewed the plan, there is a 45 day period for appeals, but the MMAH said that they aren’t expecting there to be any problems.”

Mayor MacNevin said that the next step for the Northeast Town is to meet with the MPB to discuss the transition.

“I contacted the chair of the MPB, Ken Noland, previously about setting up a meeting, but they wanted to meet with the MMAH first, which they have now done,” explained Mayor MacNevin. “I have contacted him again and hopefully we can set up a meeting to discuss the transition process and plan.”

As for what the makeup or process for review for planning applications will be once the Northeast Town becomes its own authority, Mayor MacNevin said that council has several options.

“I have spoken to other municipalities (that have their own planning board) and some are set up with a smaller committee made up of council members, others are composed of all of council and others have a planning advisory committee,” he said. “We don’t get a ton of applications, maybe six or seven a year, so it might be something that just council as a whole handles,” said Mayor MacNevin. “The MMAH has also offered to host training sessions for council which will be held between now and the new year.”

In 2015, the Northeast Town started the process of developing its own OP as part of its plan to leave the MPB.

In July of this year the Northeast Town was granted permission to leave the MPB and establish its own planning authority, however, the municipality will stay a part of the MPB until its OP is approved.

LHIN and partners collaborate on first phase of non-urgent patient transfers

NORTH BAY—A patient-focused model to help get Northerners to and from their community hospital for non-urgent health care appointments at larger hospital referral centres will begin in the new year.

“Northerners want better coordinated care, especially when they are older and need to travel long distances from their home community hospital to a larger hospital for tests or specialist consults,” says Louise Paquette, CEO, North East Local Health Integration Network (NE LHIN). “After several years of hard work between the NE LHIN and area partners, this new model will help hospitals improve patient flow while getting patients to and from hospital-based medical appointments quickly and safely.”

This made-in-the-North solution addresses a long-standing problem of patients being delayed at larger hospitals as they await a return trip by ambulance to their home community. Currently, across Northeastern Ontario, virtually all long-distance non-urgent patient transfers are done using ambulances, which often means a return ride isn’t promptly available if the ambulance is called out to respond to an emer-

Rainbow District School Board defeats motion to outlaw teleconferences for in camera meetings

by Michael Erskine

SUDBURY—A motion before the Rainbow District School Board (RDSB) board of trustees that would have meant that trustees had to attend in camera meetings in person was defeated at the board’s Tuesday, September 13 strategic planning committee meeting held in Sudbury.

The motions “10.5: Board members who participate in an in camera meeting of a committee of the Board, including a Committee of the Whole Board, shall be physically present;” and “14.8: Members must be physically present to attend in camera meetings;” were both defeated after being opposed by both the Manitoulin trustee Larry Killens and First Nations trustee Grace Fox.

While the business cases for the motions were presented in camera, Mr. Killens read his business case into the record in the open meeting. Mr. Killens supplied his remarks to The Expositor.

Weengushk launches healthy food program with support from Northern Ontario Film Studios and Hideaway Pictures of Sudbury M’CHIGEENG—Weengushk Film Institute, in partnership with Northern Ontario Film Studios and Hideaway Pictures founder David Anselmo, have started a healthy food initiative for all WFI students, which began on Friday, September 16.

Weengushk Film Institute Executive Director Dr. Shirley Cheechoo reached out to the WFI Board of Directors regarding her concerns for the new WFI students. Dr. Cheechoo mentioned that WFI students were ready and eager to start their film training, housed and settled in from First Nations communities across Canada, but had no money for food or groceries.

Mr. Anselmo, who had recently joined the WFI Board of Directors to help make a difference, responded immediately and sponsored $1,000 worth of groceries, which were delivered to WFI students last Friday.

In response to the healthy food initiative Mr. Anselmo stated, “It’s hard enough to be in school full-time, away from your community, family and friends. As students are learning how to make films, a lot of time is spent outside of the home, so the last thing a student needs to worry about is how they will feed themselves.”

With gracious sponsorship from Mr. Anselmo, Weengushk Film Institute anticipates that with continued support from the WFI Board of Directors, the healthy food initiative will become an annual program.

Hideaway Pictures resides at Northern Ontario Film Studios (NOFS), the first professional film and television studio in the region with services ranging from studio rental to grip and lighting equipment rental. Since its inception, NOFS has partnered with Technicolor, William F White, and Screenlinx. All three of these companies have moved operations to Sudbury and through NOFS have serviced 15 films in the Sudbury area last year, attracting over $30 million of film production in 2015.

Canada must act now to fund First Nation children at the same level as all Canadian children, Ontario regional chief TORONTO—Ontario Regional Chief Isadore Day says last week’s Canadian Human Rights Tribunal decision shines a glaring spotlight once again on a government system that neglects First Nation children and destroys families.

“First Nation children have been trapped in a vicious cycle of underfunding, poverty, despair and dysfunction since the days of the residential school system,” said Ontario Regional Chief Day. “There are now more children in care, more children taken from their families, than at the height of the residential schools. It is time to move beyond words to action.”

For the second time this year, the Canadian Human Rights Tribunal has issued a Second Compliance Order Against the Government of Canada on the First Nations child welfare case. In a decision released today, the Canadian Human Rights Tribunal found that the Canadian Government (INAC) has not demonstrated compliance with the Tribunal’s January 26, 2016 order finding Canada racially discriminates against over 163,000 First Nations children by providing flawed and inequitable child welfare services and failing to properly implement Jordan’s Principle.

Since 2007, when the human rights complaint against Canada was first filed, the Chiefs of Ontario participated as an interested party due to the Canada-Ontario 1965 Indian Welfare Agreement, which enables the provision of provincial child welfare programs on-reserve. Ontario is reimbursed by Indigenous and Northern Affairs Canada at a rate of 93 percent.

Cindy Blackstock, executive director of the First Nations Child and Family Caring Society, reported that she was profoundly disappointed that the federal government is failing to comply with repeated legal orders to end its racial discrimination against 163,000 First Nations children. She called on Ottawa to move from “empty rhetoric to meaningful action.”

“This is not another federal budget line item that can be shuffled along until the year 2019. This cannot be another broken promise like the lifting of the two percent funding cap on basic services,” said Ontario Regional Chief Day. “Both the federal and the Ontario governments must take this decision seriously and work with Ontario First Nations to improve conditions on reserves—not only because we now know that the law and the basic idea of equality require it—but because it is the right thing to do if we are going to achieve a positive Nation to Nation relationship and have healthy future generations.”

The federal and provincial government must act now upon the first five recommendations of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission, specifically “providing adequate resources to enable aboriginal communities and child-welfare organizations to keep aboriginal families together where it is safe to do so, and to keep children in culturally appropriate environments, regardless of where they reside.

“These are meant to be exciting times ahead for all peoples living in Canada—whether indigenous or non-indigenous. The CHRT once again shows us that the new government’s promises are well founded in Canadian law, and the time is now to move forward together beyond words and into action,” said Ontario Regional Chief Day. “All of the socio-economic determinants of health need to be addressed in order to build happy, healthy communities. Together, we will build a better country for all our children.”

Welcome back to our summer visitors—please come again

It has been a banner year for resort and tourism operations across Manitoulin Island and the boost comes none too soon for many Island businesses that have been hammered by a perfect storm of bad news for nearly a decade.

The economic downturn in 2008 hit our American neighbours hard, much harder than it did here in much of Ontario and Canada in general, truth be told. But the fallout from the global recession hit the North pretty hard, particularly in regions where the tourism dollar plays a disproportionate role in the local economy.

As any business person on the Island can attest, the high season on Manitoulin is very, very short—six weeks at best, beginning shortly after the beginning of July and ending well before the end of August. During that short high season, the dollars that tourists inject into the local economy play a vital role in making peripheral businesses viable.

Although the jobs the tourism season creates in local resorts, food stands, restaurants, gift shops and marinas may be seasonal, those jobs play an important role in the rural and Northern quality of life. Those seasonal jobs allow students to earn the money they need for school and those jobs also boost the incomes of folks who might otherwise find themselves completely on the margins and having to depend on the bare bones social safety net—anyone who has looked beyond the political rhetoric of the government of the day, or been unfortunate enough to have had to depend on that so-called safety net, quickly finds that net is both very porous and weak.

With the North American economies on the rebound, particularly south of the border, people are once again returning to Manitoulin Island and bringing with them some very welcome economic benefits.

Even those whose livelihoods do not seem to be directly connected with the tourism industry benefit greatly, if indirectly, from those tourism dollars. The tax income from recreational properties and commercial businesses that depend on the tourism dollar help to offset the property taxes paid by local residents, their annual boost to the Island's population makes possible services that communities our size would never be able to sustain (to the satisfaction of government bean counters at least). Those services, particularly in health, play a large role in allowing residents to stay in their homes and communities rather than having to move to larger centres.

With the boost to the local economy provided by tourism dollars, grocery stores, service stations, and hardware stores are there when we need them, most staying in business all year round.

So a very heartfelt "thank you" goes out to our summer visitors, both tourist and resident, for helping to make Manitoulin Island a better place for all of us to live, work and play. We look forward to your return next season and we encourage you to bring your friends and family so they too can discover this jewel we call home.

A faux socialist suggestion for the classroom

A great opportunity to teach the wonders of socialism and equality

To the Expositor:

Re. "Questions of inequality..." letter in the Sept. 14 2016 edition.

A great letter by Shane Desjardins. This presents a great opportunity to teach our youth the wonders of socialism and equality in our classrooms and being so early in the new school year, why not start immediately?

It's very simple, there need be no change to the current curriculum at all. Teachers will continue to grade assignments, tests, exams, quizzes as they normally would. Each will be scored out of 100, and the marks for all students will be totalled, then divided by the number of students originally enrolled in the class, regardless of how many students actually submitted the work, so if only 20 students attend and complete assignments, the total is still divided by 30, and each student receives this as a mark which will not reflect individual effort. As more students decide not to participate and still receive a mark, they can demand and harass the productive ones to perform better and submit extra work, take no recess or lunch break, ensure they stay after school then maybe even demand some spare marks from those waiting for the crossing guard.

I'm sure any school implementing such a program will receive a gold star from Queen's Park.

Ronald Kay
Assiginack and Brampton

Writer unimpressed by government assistance with energy bills

Aboriginals and whites need to work together against this goliath

To the Expositor:

A majority of citizens do not agree with the help this government is offering. I can understand why, we will continue to see our hydro rates going up. I have proven now that rural hydro hills and suburban households will pay less for their hydro. This is just another one of these government's schemes again. Citizens should take this very seriously.

Hydro One is a public asset and cannot be sold, especially when citizens are saying no to this. This government is not above the law, but I have seen them breaking so many laws already. Hydro One is not above the law either and citizens do have a pretty strong case against them too. They have 99 percent of winning this case and the courts have the power to repeal the selling of Hydro One and also have the power to force Hydro One to lower their rates. Also, the delivery rates should be capped, especially after learning the pain and suffering that the government and Hydro One are causing to citizens.

And furthermore, Canada is an Indian country so aboriginals and whites need to work together against this goliath (Hydro One). If they do not act now they will be sorry, after this is just a sinister plot for what this government is doing that they have to deal within the courts. I believe that is the only answer to this problem.

To the Expositor:

In my opinion, the late Dr. Kenneth Tipper should have a spot reserved in the Manitoulin Hall of Fame. I was fortunate enough to serve on the Manitoulin Hospital Board with him. He was the driving force behind saving the Mindemoya Hospital. There are many examples of how he helped farmers and pet owners, along with other organizations. Echo the call for invasives action

Phragmites must be dealt with

To the Expositor:

Sounds like our provincial government and also local authorities responsible for our environment should be heeding Ms. Jones timely warning (Expositor September 14, page 4) regarding the invasive species known as phragmites. Let us hope that her message is received and acted upon swiftly by the powers-that-be. I certainly hope that MPP Michael Mantha is listening.

All who care about this wonderful Island will be surely be watching for an effective programme to deal with the phragmites threat!

Eagle feather presented by community to a very brave young man

by Michael Erskine

AUNDECK OMNI KANING—For most of the five years since the accident that left Gabe Abotossaway paralyzed from the neck down, he has been laying in his bed—mostly just waiting to die. That's waiting, not wanting, even though much of those years were spent in excruciating pain. But despite the normal prognosis for people with his kind of injuries, despite the statistical odds, Gabe has survived.

But it hasn't been easy.

Many people believe that when a person is paralyzed by such an accident, unable to use their limbs, that everything is numb, a blank. Not so. There may not be any bodily control, but Gabe can assure you, there is plenty of pain.

It's easy to succumb to depression if you are locked in a prison made up of your own body. Your life is caught in stasis, largely unchanged from day-to-day while your friends move on with their lives, go to school, start careers, and begin to raise families of their own.

But Gabe is an engaging young man and while he still wrestles with the mental challenges of his situation he has met those challenges and has his eyes focussed on the future. He does have some important help in meeting his challenges, every couple of weeks a social worker comes to visit to assist him with building the mental tools he needs to cope and he has a very supportive family.

During the annual Aundeck Omni Kaning (AOK) Traditional Powwow, Gabe was presented with an eagle feather by his community. Chief Patsy Corbiere referenced Gabe's bravery during that presentation.

"He has a very special kind of courage," noted Chief Corbiere. "The community wanted to present him with the eagle feather and to let him know that we are behind him and his family."

"I wasn't expecting it," said Gabe of the presentation, "I actually didn't know they were going to do that."

This was actually the fourth eagle feather that Gabe has been gifted with since his accident and he said that he has been tremendously honoured to receive each and every one.

For those who don't know the significance of an eagle feather, it is usually referenced as the highest honour that can be bestowed upon an individual, the symbolic embodiment of the teachings of the Seven

Gabe Abotossaway poses with a quilt he was gifted with following being presented with an eagle feather at the Aundeck Omni Kaning Traditional Powwow in June.

Grandfathers and more. Those teachings are love, respect, bravery, honesty, humility, wisdom and truth. But the eagle feather also stretches from the head to the heart, a pathway along which the wisdom of those teachings travel to provide guidance and support to an individual as they make their way through life's trials and challenges. That is why it is so often given to those who are embarking on an important undertaking, why an eagle feather is so often given to those in the community who are becoming leaders—or so the elders have told me.

The eagle feathers, therefore, do not only recognize bravery and great deeds, but act also as guides for following a good path.

Gabe has spent a fair bit of time over the past half decade playing video games, engaging his X-Box in virtual worlds and communities where his physical challenges are invisible. But after five years of basically just putting in time, Gabe is now making plans for the future.

"I am thinking about starting up a small business," he said. "Maybe an Internet café and gift store," his mother supplies, although the idea was one he came up with on his own.

Thanks to technology and some innovative interfaces, Gabe is able to manipulate the computer himself, so an online store will actually be well within his reach. He has some savings that he can invest in the venture and he said he is excited about exploring the possibilities.

But despite the connectivity the computer and Internet can provide, Gabe still finds himself isolated and well, frankly, lonely. It is hard, if not impossible, to imagine the impact that the isolation of quadriplegic paralysis has on a young man who was, and still is, so gregarious.

Asked if he had one message he would like to get out there, he doesn't hesitate, not so surprising for a guy with a lot of time to think about things.

"I am still me," he says with a steady gaze. "My mind is still here. I am still the same person, just a little different on the outside." Gabe said he would like to get more visitors. "Just drop on by," he says. His mother Beverly interjects "maybe call first." Mothers, what are you going to do? She is concerned that Gabe still has some bad days. Gabe doesn't seem to be as worried about that.

It is easy to understand why Gabe's friends might have a hard time making that call, or knocking on the door. It wasn't that easy for The Expositor, jaded veteran journalist and all that, to work up the courage to make the call. Questions and insecurities stand before you, self-doubt slowing your hand as it reaches for the telephone. "How do I act? What do I say? What if I say the wrong thing?" these thoughts beset us, even when the person is essentially a stranger, let alone a friend we grew up with and still care about. So putting off making the call becomes the path of least resistance and time goes on, making that chasm of the unknown even deeper and adding in a gulf of guilt for not having called sooner, or stopped by. Our lives go on and thoughts fade.

We know in our hearts that isn't right—but summoning the courage seems to become more difficult with each passing day, and so the years grow.

Perhaps we could all use our own eagle feather, something to help us to build that pathway from our hearts to our minds that will allow us to muster the courage needed to pick up the phone and make that call.

Cruisers' Net guest speaker series explores the Children of Hope charity work

LITTLE CURRENT—Karen Kerr Goodyear, M.S.M. has dedicated a good portion of her life to assisting the devastated country of Haiti and its children, and this summer Ms. Goodyear delivered a seminar on the work of the Children of Hope Foundation she helped found in 2002 as part of the Cruisers' Net lecture series.

For her work overseas, Ms. Goodyear has been awarded the Meritorious Service Medal-Civil Division (MSM). The award was something Ms. Goodyear downplayed somewhat in giving her presentation, but knowing a bit about the MSM helps put the scale of the work she and her compatriots have accomplished into perspective.

Meritorious Service Decorations (Civil Division) are presented to outstanding Canadians through the office of the Governor General "to recognize remarkable contributions in many different fields of endeavour, from advocacy initiatives and health care services, to research and humanitarian efforts."

The Meritorious Service Medal (Civilian).

Past recipients have tackled poverty in their community, improved education opportunities for children in Canada and abroad, or raised awareness of important causes and issues. The Civil Division form of the award that has been presented to Ms. Goodyear "recognizes a deed or an activity that has been performed in a highly professional manner, or according to a very high standard; often innovative, this deed or activity sets an example for others to follow, improves the quality of life of a community and brings benefit or honour to Canada."

"I really have a passion for people in Haiti," said Ms. Goodyear, who first visited that country in 1998 in order to assist in medical clinics and work in an orphanage. While she was there, Ms. Goodyear was struck by the immense need she saw all around her. Over the past 18 years she has been in a community about 15 miles north of the city of Port Au Prince. "In 2002 I took on the role of Canadian Coordinator of the Children of Hope Haiti (COHH)." Together with her four other committee members, Ms. Goodyear has taken on the challenge of helping to raise the next generation of Haitian leaders. "Children are Haiti's greatest resource," she said.

Over the intervening 12 years, COHH has continued to develop, grow and expand to the present day, where the organization is involved in numerous projects including providing goats for rural families, distributing rice and beans and lanterns in tent cities, providing medical assistance in the form of clinics and family medical packs throughout various communities, working with sponsored schools, working in an orphanage, preparing land and assembling of two soccer fields in 2011 and a playground completed in January 2013. The mission statement of the organization is to meet the essential needs of the impoverished children of Haiti—"our goal is to provide physical, educational and emotional care for every child so that each one will become a responsible and productive citizen of Haiti."

Ms. Goodyear's dedication to the people, and especially the children, of Haiti might be best understood when she begins to talk about a typical trip to the village, an arduous journey that involves packing medical supplies and food up a steep mountain pathway through an arid countryside. The group has found that apple boxes (two 50-pound containers) loaded into hockey bags make great reusable packs for carrying the supplies—but they are not insect proof.

"We have to bring our own food, and because there is no refrigeration we bring peanut butter and jelly sandwiches," she recalled. On the one trip a number of the sandwiches became infested with ants. The clinics start at 7 am in the morning and the team sets out for the clinic at 7:30 in the morning. So great is the need for medical services that there are long lines of patients waiting to be seen.

"Noontime came and there were still people waiting outside," she recalled. "About half of the sandwiches had ants, but about half didn't. We asked ourselves 'what are we going to do with the ones with all the ants.'" One of their local advisors suggested they just leave them outside.

They divided the sandwiches in half and gave them to the people outside. "I gave half a sandwich to a young boy about 21-22 (all things are relative)," she said. "He split it into four and gave three of the pieces to the people around him—I froze. Here was one of the poorest of the poor giving to another poor person."

This was a theme she saw repeated constantly, everywhere she turned in the country. "The children in the orphanage are fortunate, they receive meals every day," she said. "As they walked down a pathway separated from the outside by a fence, you could see them passing food to the children outside." The children inside the orphanage knew that they would get another opportunity to eat, unlike the children outside the walls.

On another occasion she brought shoes for a young child, the shoes turned out to be too large for his small feet. "Do you think my friend could have them?" the child asked. "I said 'of course,' who am I to say no?" she said. "He will eventually get shoes, but his friend outside might only get to eat once a day and will remain barefoot."

Most of the work being done by COHH is focussed on providing education and a better future for the children they work with. "We don't want them to be dependant on us," she said. The organization refurbishes laptops for the school and accepts donations of those that are no more than five-years-old.

"Over 98 percent of our funds go to our programs," she said. "We are all volunteers. There are no paid staff." In an odd quirk of the system, however, the organization actually has to spend some funding, one dollar out of $34, on administration in order to be able to maintain its charitable status.

It takes about $408 a year to sponsor one child in school, but smaller donations are gratefully accepted. Each donation over $20 receives a tax receipt. For those wishing to learn more about COHH or to make a donation the charity has a website at www.childrenofhopehaiti.com.

Seniors Information Fair hosted by Senior's Drop-in and OACAO held in Gore Bay

by Betty Bardswich

GORE BAY—The Gore Bay Seniors Drop-In Centre teamed up with the Older Adult Centres' Association of Ontario (OACAO) September 1 to host an information fair at the town's community hall.

Welcomed by senior volunteer Lou Addison and Gore Bay Mayor Ron Lane, the event was held to provide information for senior adults concerning health, financial matters, aging safely and Crimestoppers.

OACAO Executive Director Sue Hesjedahl provided information on what the organization is all about and what it can do for seniors.

"Eight different communities are represented here today," she said. "We hold four of these seminars each year and OACAO board members are from all over Ontario. We are the voice of older adults and represent 200,000 adults throughout Ontario in eight regions across the province."

The first guest speaker at the information fair was Jocelyn Lalonde representing the Ministry of Finance with information titled 'Get your Money!' He began his presentation by speaking about Ontario Tax Credits. "There are a lot of tax credits and services for adults," he told the audience. "Know the programs and how to apply for them. Most are income-based and are administered by the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA). Fill out the forms and add Ontario forms to your main income tax form. There are benefits for everyone, for seniors and for seniors with disabilities. There is the Ontario Trillium Benefit and energy and tax credits such as the Ontario Sales Tax Benefit and the Ontario Energy Tax Credit to reduce the high cost of energy. There are medical expenses and a guide for that aspect can be ordered from the CRA."

Mr. Lalonde also spoke about the Tax Free Savings Account (TFSA) which does not affect one's income tax credits and the Registered Retirement Savings Plan which raises income and is therefore taxed on that income. As well, there are healthy homes credits for modifications, he explained, that make a home safer such as stair lifts, grab bars, changing flooring to non-slippery products, raised toilets and walk-in tubs and showers as well as medical expenses such as canes and wheelchairs. A caregiver can also apply for these credits. There is a Homeowners Property Tax Grant of up to $500 for seniors to help with the cost of property taxes and the Ontario Guaranteed Annual Income System and Drug Benefit Plan.

Mr. Lalonde also talked about the Disability Tax Credit for which a person has to have a severe disability and the form for this saving must be completed by a physician and is usually good for five years.

Josee Milijours was the next guest speaker with a topic titled 'Aging Safely in the New Millennium' and represented Elder Abuse Ontario, which is situated in Toronto but has offices in Sudbury and Thunder Bay. Elder abuse can take many forms including financial, physical, sexual, psychological abuse or neglect. The organization was set up in 1992, but more money was put towards elder abuse in 2002 so that there would be more public education and the hiring of a Service Coordinator. Support people and volunteers who work with seniors can access The Tea and Talk Tool Kit to learn how to facilitate elder care and stop abuse. The Ontario association also works closely with ACE, the Advocacy Centre for the Elderly which is a legal clinic for low income seniors. The 10th anniversary of the worldwide Elder Abuse Awareness Day was held June 15.

The final speaker for the day was Deborah Rousseau, representing Crime Stoppers. In fighting crime, Ms. Rousseau said, "Finger printing, DNA and Crime Stoppers are three of the most important things we have." She went on to say that the organization's board of directors is comprised of 22 volunteers and it is not funded by the government, but rather relies on monies from the public, fundraising events and grants.

"We never take your name or phone number," Ms. Rousseau added, "and there is no caller ID. A person will answer the phone 24/7 and will not take personal information. It is 100 percent completely anonymous. The reward is awarded through a third person."

Crime Stoppers has been in Sudbury and area for 29 years and tips can be sent online or through texting.

Several exhibitors were present for the information fair including Aging at Home Transportation, Alzheimer Society Sudbury-Manitoulin, Healthy Sciences North-Senior Mental Health Program, Manitoulin-North Shore Victim Services, Elder Abuse Ontario, Keep Sharp, the Canadian Red Cross, the OPP, Sudbury and District Health Unit, the Victoria Order of Nurses, Home Instead Senior Care, Robertson's IDA Drug Store and the Northeastern Manitoulin Family Health Team.

The event was sponsored by the Ontario Seniors Secretariat.

Ramsey Tour winner makes history!

On the significant milestone of the venerable Ramsey Tour in Sudbury there was another reason to celebrate on the race's 40th. For the first time ever, a woman won the hilly half-marathon! Not just any woman, but Manitoulin's own Kaitlyn Toohey (nee Tallman) who rocketed through the course in just 1:22! In fact the race may be even more significant because Kait's training partner Megan Kuikman took the overall silver medal. On such a momentous occasion, certainly the 4th place overall finisher should not be overlooked. James Scott, a Grade 11 phenom who hails from Big Lake, ran an amazing race on this tough course. Congratulations all!

Muskoka at night anyone?

While my headline may conjure up dreamy thoughts of a glassy, moonlit rowboat ride in cottage country for some, last weekend two brave local racers may be excused if they differ. Nick Head-Peterson and Nick Jeeves entered the ultra-marathon canoe race, the Muskoka River X (130 km, 24 hour, non-stop and no GPS). The pair faced torrential downpours most of last Saturday and with a wild head wind on Lake of Bays slowed them down too much to make their second checkpoint. In all they completed 80km in 15 hours but surprisingly enough, they are planning on beating the "X" next year. Thank goodness for short memories, right guys?

Island Ex-Patriots still active!

Former outstanding MSS Mustangs' runner Mary Mitchell, who now lives in Barrie, has two sons playing elite soccer at the post-secondary level. Nick suits up for the Laurentian Voyageurs while brother Curtis boots the ball for the Fanshaw Falcons out of Hamilton. Mary herself runs a very successful personal trainer business in Barrie.

Meanwhile, former Wikwemikong resident Kieran Peltier is now a prominent member of the Nipissing Lakers University Lacrosse squad. Unfortunately, his squad lost a heart-breaker to Queens University (12-11) in North Bay this past weekend.

The son of former Manitoulin Panthers forward Sladen Peltier (Parents Alex and Katie) is a rep hockey and lacrosse player. However, his latest claim-to-fame is recently as an actor. Sladen has been selected (following an audition call) to play the lead role in a new movie entitled "Indian Horse." The story is set in a residential school. Saul Indian Horse (Sladen) attends the school and becomes well-known for his hockey abilities. Movie actor Adam Beach acts as Sladen's agent. Sladen was scouted for this part at last year's Little NHL tournament when he played for the Wiky Jr. T-Birds.

Panthers back on prowl

Two Manitoulin Panthers teams had a good start to their season this past weekend. The Atoms played three exhibition games in Espanola Saturday and Sunday and came away with 2 wins and a tie. On Saturday they were down to the Sudbury Major Atoms AA but rallied in the third to pull off a 6-6 tie. Sunday was even better as they downed the Nickel City Sons Major AA twice to complete an awesome start to their season.

Meanwhile, the Manitoulin Pee Wees travelled to the Owen Sound area to take in a tournament. Although they weren't the Champions they were so close to making it to the semi-finals. In the round-robin they downed Collingwood (9-2) and Burlington (2-0) but bowed out in the Semi-final to Owen Sound. Nonetheless it was an encouraging start to their season. Good show, teams!

Off their rock hockey

Wikwemikoong's Carson Shawana picked up the Hustler of the Game award in a tournament win in Sudbury on the weekend. Carson is a defenseman with the AAA Nickel City Sons' Peewees who downed Timmins AAA by a 5-2 count.

Gregory Trudeau Paquet had an outstanding game for the French River Rapids of the NOJHL Jr. A loop. Greg popped in two goals in a 10-5 loss to the undefeated Cochrane Crunch. Paquet-Trudeau now has 4 points in 5 games; not bad for a Rookie!

Three Pitch, pitch

With such great competitive adult softball players on Manitoulin it is great to see that Island elementary schools are keeping the tradition alive. Next Tuesday (rain-day Thursday) is the annual Island 3-Pitch Championships. The Grade 6 and lower set will take to the diamonds in Gore Bay while intermediate hopefuls will play in Mindemoya. Games usually run from 10 am till 2 pm if parents and fans would like to take in the fastball-future!

Little Current Terry Fox Run surpasses $80,000 mark as it celebrates 36th year

Silver Water raises over $800 this year

by Robin Burrige
 MANITOULIN—The Little Current Terry Fox Run celebrated its 36th annual run this past weekend, marking the occasion by raising $4,541.80, with the total raised to date surpassing $80,000. The Silver Water run did very well also, raising over $800.

"Last year we had raised a total of around $77,000 as a run site over 35 years," said Little Current Terry Fox Run organizer Joanna Rosenbaum. "This year we raised $4,541.80, bringing the total we have raised as a site to over $80,000."

Ms. Rosenbaum said that she was pleased with the number of runners this year as well, noting that the run always has a good turn out and that this year was no exception with over 80 runners.

"We have often had runners in the past from other areas who were on vacation or visiting family on Manitoulin, but this year we had a whole team from the Elliot Lake Family Health Team that participated in the Little Current run as they wanted the 10km option that we offer," said Ms. Rosenbaum.

Ms. Rosenbaum thanked the Northeast Town for hosting and Mayor Al MacNevin for starting the race. She also thanked the Manitoulin Amateur Radio Club for patrolling during the run, the Little Current Lions Club for donating water, K and T Confectionery for donating ice, The Expositor for advertising the event and all the volunteers including: Charlene MacNevin, Marcel Gauthier, Cathy Jeffery, Cindy Campbell, Roslyn Taylor, Charlene Corbiere, Nelson Rochefort-Wood, Mackenzie Cortes, Quintus Wood and Kyler Fletcher.

"Thanks also to all contributors to our elaborate bake sale table, all businesses that let us put up a poster or a pledge form holder and all the participants that came to Low Island to join in support of cancer research," concluded Ms. Rosenbaum.

"We had an amazing day yesterday at the Silver Water site," said organizer Jessica Sampson. "We had 15 participants and two dogs. Of these participants, we even had one of the red shirt brigade, also known as Terry's team—someone who is currently fighting or has survived a battle with cancer. We raised just over $800 this year."

Bike peddler explores Canada with a bicycle-canoe combination, destination London, Ontario

MANITOULIN— “There was this man, peddling his bike—and towing a canoe behind it!” That’s what an Expositor scribe encountered on Highway 6, midway between Little Current and Sheguiandah, last Saturday afternoon.

The bike peddler, whose name is Mitchell Nelson, took a break from his labour to talk about his Sisyphus-like undertaking.

Mr. Nelson said he’d put his canoe (another one, not the green one he was presently towing) and his bike and camping gear into the North Saskatchewan River in Edmonton on Canada Day, “after I’d seen the holiday fireworks.” He said he’d been living in Alberta for “about eight years.”

That first journey took him easterly to North Battleford, Saskatchewan and then he was on his bike for a ride across Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Biker Mitchell Nelson, with canoe in tow, paused for a brief conversation on Saturday during the Manitoulin leg of his canoeing and biking expedition that began in Edmonton on July 1 and whose destination is London, Ontario.

Somehow, there was a mishap with the original canoe during this leg of the trip so he purchased another one in Thunder Bay and continued the biking-towing trip to the town of Red Rock, near Nipigon on Lake Superior.

It was Mr. Nelson, his bike and gear back into the canoe for a paddle down the Lake Superior coast as far as Terrace Bay at which point he once again took to the road, admitting there had been some long stretches of the Trans Canada Highway along Lake Superior where the diminutive and wiry 57-year-old had been forced to walk his bike and its entourage up steep and lengthy hills.

Saturday, he was on his way to South Baymouth, to catch the Chi-Cheemaun to Tobermory where his plan was to put his canoe into Lake Huron and paddle to Grand Bend and then bike across to London where, he said, he has friends and family “and decide what I’m going to do next.”

“Well,” he was asked rhetorically by The Expositor, “this trip was a good idea, wasn’t it?”

“Was it?” Mr. Nelson responded, setting out again.

Northern Credit Union barbecue to benefit Community Living Manitoulin

by Tom Sasvari

MINDEMOYA—The Northern Credit Union branch held a very successful fundraising barbecue last month raising nearly $1,500 in funds for Community Living Manitoulin (CLM) to help purchase a lifting device for their handicapped accessible van.

Tammie Molenaar, executive director of CLM noted that, “we are always fundraising for needed equipment, and we are grateful to have the tremendous support we have from the local community.”

The Northern Credit

Union held the barbecue, (manned by Manitoulin delegates to the board) in Mindemoya last Friday and Saturday to raise funds for CLM, bringing in over $1,200 which was then topped up with a donation from Northern Credit Union.

Ms. Molenaar explained, “we are fundraising for a wheelchair accessible vehicle, which will cost approximately $60,000. We have two large wheelchair accessible vehicles and be looking for a smaller model. One of the two vehicles we have is 10 years old and the other is 11-years-old. Unfortunately, they don’t last forever.”

As well as the Northern Credit Union, other community sponsors included Island Foodland, Jake’s Home Centre and Manitoulin Meats.

A blizzard of cash flows from 25th annual Blizzard Open

A last minute cheque presentation from the organizers of the Blizzard Open took place recently. There were 84 golfers playing in the 25th year for the tournament and a total of $2,000 was donated to MHC’s telemetry (cardiac) equipment campaign.

...Lions start 'Catch the Ace' progressive jackpot

Ace draw date is next Wednesday, September 28 with tickets on sale that same day.

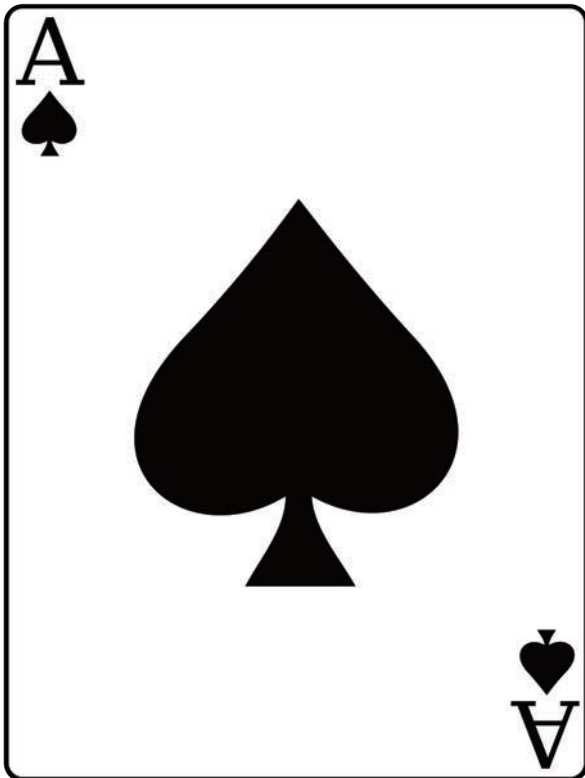

While the jackpot will never get as big as the one in Newfoundland, upwards of $50,000 cash prizes can be won.

Each Wednesday, from 12 noon to 7:30 pm, tickets will go on sale at the Legion hall in Little Current, 15 Vancouver Street East. Tickets are $5 each and there is no limit on how many can be purchased at one time, but there will only be 500 on offer each week.

Each week, the Lions will take a fresh deck of cards, shuffle them thoroughly, then place each card in a manila envelope. The envelopes are again shuffled and numbered from one to 52 and ready for the Wednesday draw.

Once a ticket is purchased, the purchasee will write their name and phone number on the ticket, as well as choosing a number from one to 52 (these numbers will become limited as the weeks progress).

All of the tickets stubs sold that week will be placed into a drum with one winner pulled at 8 pm sharp. The winner not only receives a 20 percent take from that week's sales (the most that can be won is $500 each week), but they will also have their corresponding envelope number opened in the hopes that it will contain the ace of spades. If it's not the ace of spades, that card will be destroyed and that number struck from the raffle (for instance, if the number chosen was 17, no one can choose that number for the remainder of the raffle). Thirty percent from that draw will then go toward the following week's jackpot, and so on.

Who will catch the first ace of spades?

The raffle will continue until either the ace of spades is drawn or until 40 weeks is reached. If the 40-week mark comes without a winner determined, then ticket sales will be limited to five per customer and an elimination draw will take place immediately following the regular draw. That lucky winner will claim

The Lions Club reminds the public that those purchasing tickets must be 18-years-old, as per Ontario rules and regulations.

"All payouts will be issued by cheque from the Little Current Lions Club and in Canadian funds," Little Current Lions Club secretary Lori Draper states.

Once that draw ends, another will begin as soon as possible, adds Lion President Bruce Burnett.

The proceeds from the endeavour will be split with the Little Current Legion with the Lions Club's share going to various Manitoulin charities.

"We really hope the public is excited about this as we are," enthused Lions President Bruce. "By supporting the Catch the Ace lottery, you will be supporting the Manitoulin community at large, and with a great chance to win big."

Tickets for the first draw go on sale at 12 noon on Wednesday, September 28 in the upstairs hall of the Royal Canadian Legion in Little Current, 15 Vancouver Street East until 7:30 pm that night.

For more information, contact Lion Lori at 705-348-051, Lion Alicia at 705-368-2744 or Linda Bowerman at 705-368-2465.

...proposals for seniors' housing on donated land

land title, we will put a call out for request for proposals (RFPs) for affordable senior housing and/or assisted living."

When asked if the town would be considering the assisted living proposal Dr. Roy Jeffery presented to the Manitoulin Centennial Manor board, Mayor MacNevin said that he hopes the doctor submits his proposal during the RFP as he knows it is a not-for-profit model which would be focused on the community first.

Earlier this year, Dr. Jeffery brought a proposal to the Manor board, asking the board to consider partnering with some of the Manor's property and donating it to a not-for-profit organization that would seek funding to build an assisted living facility.

He explained that he approached the Manor board about donating a portion of the land because the home is using less than a third of the property it's built on and he also felt that there could be shared benefits.

The new facility would in turn work with the Manor, contracting services such as meals, nursing and housekeeping.

The Manor board members took the proposal back to their councils, seeking support for the board to investigate the proposal, but not all the Island municipalities would give their support, leaving the board unable to move forward.

At the Manor board meeting last week the board discussed Dr. Jeffery's proposal, noting that it had been six months and they had not responded to him.

"With the donation of the land (from the Fielding family) I think people are thinking there is no need for the land donation from us now," said board member Pat MacDonald.

"I think each should be dealt with separately," said fellow board member Dawn Orr.

"My job is to do what the boards or municipalities I represent want and not all of them support the proposal," said Bill Baker. "The request was for a donation of land and not all the municipalities are in favour of it, but we haven't received all of the letters."

"We owe it to Dr. Jeffery to respond," said Ms. Orr. "It's been six months."

The board discussed how there was some confusion over whether Dr. Jeffery would still like the land donation and if not, how the Manor fit into his proposal.

The board directed Manor staff to invite Dr. Jeffery to come to the October Manor meeting as well as VON (to discuss assisted living).

The Expositor spoke with Dr. Jeffery following the meeting to question if he was still requesting a land donation from the Manor board.

"I don't think so," said Dr. Jeffery. "The donation (Fielding) property might be an easier location to build on and it was donated for senior housing. I would like to put a proposal into the town."

Dr. Jeffery noted that the Fielding property was also close to the Manor and that he would like to work with the board in the future on elements like possible shared services that he outlined in his original proposal to the ...Library budget concerns Northeast Town librarian

Mr. Marion said that the library needs to update to a new system before the three remaining computers fail.

"To make matters worse, our server is nine years-old and, in my opinion, could fail any time," continued Mr. Marion. "When that happens, we will be immediately reduced to using just one computer at a time. This is just one more problem to add to the list. These small projects, which are not difficult to handle individually, have been allowed to pile up. For example, the printer for our microfilm reader no longer works, the library could use new carpets and the lease on our photocopier is up. We need to start engaging with our capital projects and dealing with them before our service becomes seriously impacted."

Over the next few years the province will be reducing funding for public libraries and especially grants, Mr. Marion explained. "Many of our services are paid for by the province." He said this reduction could mean the loss of magazine subscriptions and access to e-books.

"If the public wants to maintain the current level of library service, we will need the necessary funds to maintain our equipment, maintain our collections and pay our staff," he said.

Mr. Marion said he has met with town staff to discuss the need for more funding and plans on making a deputation to council.

"I don't have staff to run senior or children's programs," Mr. Marion told The Expositor. "Our staff have no benefits or sick days, which is a problem as well. I am also looking for sufficient funds to complete pressing capital projects and maintain services."

He also noted that compared to neighbouring municipalities, the Little Current Public Library is underfunded.

The Little Current Public Library, Billings Public Library, Central Manitoulin libraries (Providence Bay and Mindemoya) and Assiginack Public Library are all operated by boards. Budgets are created by the boards and operating funds are approved and provided by the municipalities, and part of those funds are used to pay staff. All four municipalities also maintain the municipal buildings that house the libraries.

According to the Ministry of Tourism Culture and Sport's 2014 Ontario Public Library Statistics the local operating funding for area municipalities include $14,000 for Billings, $59,835 for the Northeast Town, $68,744 for Central Manitoulin (between the two libraries) and $35,600 for Assiginack.

The Expositor called local municipalities to find out the municipal contributions to the libraries for 2016: Billings, $15,000; Central Manitoulin (between the two libraries), $78,902; Assiginack, $36,685; and the Northeast Town $64,937.

Northeast Town Mayor Al MacNevin said that Mr. Marion's conversation with town staff was "the first that I have heard that the library was in need of more funding."

"I will be attending the October library board meeting to find out more information about what the library needs," said Mr. MacNevin. "Last year they (the library board) asked for a six percent increase to their budget and council gave it to them. Their operating fund from the municipality was $64,000, with an additional $20,000 for the building—and we replaced the roof. I'm not sure where it is coming from that we don't want to support the library—I think there is a disconnect."

The Expositor connected Little Current Public Library Board Chair Karen Nesbitt who would only comment that Mr. Marion was speaking as a staff member of the library, not on behalf of the board.

As for whether the board would be requesting an increase in funding from the municipality for 2017, Ms. Nesbitt said that it was too early in the budget process to comment.

Central Manitoulin Public School celebrates Fall Fair

MINDEMOYA—Central Manitoulin Public School held its 104th Fall Fair on Monday, September 12 and Tuesday, September 13.

The students worked very hard to prepare artwork, crafts, baking, and other exhibits in the lead up to this annual fall tradition. The parade featured a police car driven by OPP Community Services Officer Steve Hart and a float beautifully decorated for the students by Sharon and Lyle Dewar and driven by Willis Hallet. Perry Keller was also kind enough to bring along a fire truck.

Students paraded to the arena to look at the exhibits and then returned to the school to enjoy a feast.

Entertainment at the arena and at the school was provided by The Islanders, featuring Lyle Dewar, Harold Dewar, Geordie Greenough, Norm Hore and Peter Tilston.

...Decorate your community in friendly competition

The Manitoulin Expositor started Harvest Glory Days four years ago to encourage fall/harvest themed decorating in every Island community and created a friendly community rivalry to help inspire everyone to decorate to the fullest.

There are two categories: large communities, which include Gore Bay, Mindemoya, Manitowaning, Wikwemikong and Little Current; and small communities, which includes all other Island communities.

The overall best autumn-themed town in each category is awarded a large roadside 5' by 8' roadside sign (created by Beacon Images in Tehkummah) and bragging rights as a prize.

Both large and small communities have their decorating work cut out for them this year with Manitowaning defending their 'best autumn-themed decorated large community' title (three years running) and Silver Water their 'best decorated small community' title (two years running). Honourable mentions have included Aundeck Omni Kaning in 2013 and Gore Bay in 2014. Rumour has it that Spring Bay is planning some great decorations to earn back their best decorated small community title they won in 2013. Expositor staff have also spotted Providence Bay residents starting to decorate the village square.

The judges are looking for the overall best decorated communities, encouraging individuals to decorate their homes, businesses their store fronts and institutions such as community halls, municipal offices, churches, hospitals, libraries, museums and parks to show their harvest pride.

Participants are asked to contact The Expositor Office to register the particular address that is decorated, for both the judges' use and so that the address can be included in a map that will be featured in the Thanksgiving week paper, allowing Island residents and visitors to explore the decorated communities across Manitoulin.

Assiginack CAO Alton Hobbs said that his municipality is gearing up for this year's competition. "We are planning to defend our title vigorously," said Mr. Hobbs. "We are also planning to do something special when we win for the fourth year," he added confidently.

There is a full-page advertisement on Page 14 of this paper that gives full details, plus a clip-out registration form.

The deadline for registrations is before midnight on Friday, September 30.

FASD event highlighted prevention with music and fun

by Michael Erskine
WIKWEMIKONG—There are a group of entirely preventable birth defects that continue to wreak havoc in society and although the battle against Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders (FASD) has made a lot of progress, there is still a long way to go. The FASD Awareness Day entertainment showcase hosted at Thunderbird Park by the Wikwemikong Health Centre's Children's Services (Naandwechige-Gamig) harnessed the musical talents of a number of Anishinabe rising stars to shine light on the issue in an innovative September 9 event.

The free event followed the unveiling of a new high visibility FASD billboard on Wikwemikong Way whose winning design entry was created by Kira Dowdall. Ms. Dowdall used what she has learned about FASD during her high school years from presentations at conferences and displays to graphically depict what she thought being afflicted with FASD must be like. Ms. Dowdall is currently studying animation at Sault College. Runner ups in the billboard contest were Alissa Flamand, who came second, and Gordon Wemigwans, who came third.

The information campaign focusses on the importance of complete abstinence from alcohol in the critical first three weeks of conception, which presents some key challenges.

"If you are trying to become pregnant, it is really important," said Judy Black, program manager of the Children's Services Department. But it is also important to steer clear of alcohol throughout the pregnancy and beyond, which runs counter to the old medical advice that many health professionals grew up on. "It's true, we used to advise half a beer a day," she noted, but that advice has proven to be complete anathema with what is known about FASD today.

The FASD Awareness Day Entertainment Showcase was coordinated by FASD events coordinator Shanna Peltier, for whom the event was the culmination of her position. Throughout the evening, which ran from 6 pm to 9 pm, speakers such as Wikwemikong Health Centre director Mary Jo Wabuno, Amanda Mishibinijima, FASD worker in the high school and Anna Kaboni, Healthy Babies, Healthy Children Worker delivered messages between musical acts.

The acts themselves were outstanding, beginning with Brittany Manitowabi, who was later joined onstage by JW Stevens. Pat Peltier brought his musical stylings accompanied by friends and Leah Belle closed out the individual performances.

Headliners were the incredible Metis jigg-trio Sagkaang's Finest, whose intricate footwork and enthusiasm earned them the title of 'Most Improved' and 'Biggest Risk Taker' from the Canada's Got Talent judges. In addition to winning prizes from across Turtle Island, the trio have been honoured by the Province of Manitoba with the Order of the Buffalo Hunt, making them among the youngest to ever receive the honour. The Order of the Buffalo Hunt recognizes "outstanding and distinctive contributions to the life of Manitoba."

The Thunderbird Park grounds were filled with an appreciative audience that spanned generations and provided an opportunity to not only get the message on FASD awareness out in the community, but showcased some of the finest Anishinabe talent in the North.

Falun Gong activists visit Manitoulin

by Michael Erskine
LITTLE CURRENT—It sounds like something out of a futuristic sci-fi horror flick, an oppressive government uses an overblown pretext to imprison a large number of its population and then harvests their organs for use in transplants for fun and profit. It is simply too outrageous to ity coincided with increased prosecution and imprisonment of Falun Gong practitioners in China.

Two years ago, Anne Tamara Lorré, the Canadian representative on human rights to the United Nations, raised the issue of organ harvesting in China saying, “We remain con-nificant source of revenue.

The latest edition of the Kilgour-Matas-Gutman reports estimate 60,000 to 100,000 transplants a year. None of these allegations have been proven in court, either domestically or through UN or US investigations. Chinese investigations have universally refuted the allegations.

ed the practice with some tolerance, and even some support during the early 1980s and 90s.

A large number of the proffered reasons for the Chinese government’s antipathy to Falun Gong do not stand up well to close scrutiny, but students of the historical methodology of the Chinese Communist be believed, isn’t it? Not according to a small group of determined Falun Gong activists who held an information protest in front of the Little Current Cenotaph September 7.

For Canadian citizens Hongyan Lu and her husband Jay Brauneisen the issue is deeply personal. “At the end of June I learned that my mother, who is a Falun Dafa practitioner in Shijiazhuang City, China, had been arrested along with nine other practitioners,” said Ms. Lu. Her mother, she explained, had been visiting friends who are fellow travellers on the Falun Gong path when she was picked up in the sweep.

“When my mother was first abducted we were told she refused to offer up her identity,” said Ms. Lu. “This is a strategy used to protect relatives and friends, but also made it much more difficult for us to find her.” Even though Ms. Lu has relatives in the Chinese justice system (her uncle is a judge and a cousin is a police officer) she spent many worried weeks wondering about her mother’s fate. “They both tried and failed to gain access to my mother,” she said. “This situation was scary for me as I feared she would disappear and be killed for her organs.”

That fear was not completely without foundation.

Former Canadian Liberal MP for Edmonton East David Kilgour along with human rights lawyer David Mates and journalist Ethan Gutman have produced reports that, although relying somewhat heavily on inference and extrapolated estimates rather than directly verifiable evidence, was enough for organizations ranging from the US Congress to the United Nations to ask questions, particularly since an increase in organ availabil-cerned that Falun Gong practitioners and other religious worshippers in China face persecution and reports that organ transplants take place without free and informed consent of the donor are troubling.”

The Chinese government and medical establishment categorically deny the allegations of forced organ donation or that imprisoned donors have been targeted without informed consent. Following the release of the Kilgour report, China declared they abided by World Health Organization principles that prohibit the sale of human organs without written consent from donors and denounced the report.

The Chinese government maintains that 90 percent of China’s organ transplant sources come from executed prisoners, with a rise in organ availability surging even as the number of executions has dropped 10 percent annually since 2002 and the number of potential executions falls far short of the number of transplants taking place. Only 130 people signed up to donate their organs between 2003 and 2009.

Ms. Lu noted that cultural mores in China still run strongly against organ donation despite generations of government effort to eradicate superstition and religious opposition. “The body is not supposed to be desecrated,” she noted. That ongoing cultural taboo, deeply engrained in the Chinese psyche, is a lens that also calls into question government assurances that all organs are willingly and freely given.

There is a lot riding on the transplant industry. A heart or a liver can cost up to $160,000, according to state-run hospital websites, making transplants a sig-

So what is Falun Gong (Falun Dafa et al)?

Based on an ancient Chinese spiritual practice combining meditation, exercise (think Tai Chi) and a moral philosophy that emphasizes truthfulness, compassion and forbearance and a detachment from attachments to the material world to achieve spiritual enlightenment. It also has a strong “moralistic” bent and some controversial views on race. Homosexuality and promiscuous sex are considered contrary to the generation of positive karma and different races are assigned separate heavens, with mixed race children products of “a chaotic situation brought about by mankind” and indicative of “the Dharma-ending period,” a time when people will no longer be able to follow the teachings of Buddha. Another odd aspect of the religion is the assertion by its leader that aliens have invaded the earth and are using television and technology to subvert the human race.

Even taking the homophobic and racist attributions far past the boundaries where the practitioners of the practice say they lie, those facets can easily be sourced in many of the world’s mainstream religions in comparable levels and the whole “alien” thing is fairly common amongst conspiracy theorists of any faith base. On the balance, to an outside observer, Falun Gong seems pretty benign amongst the world’s religious and spiritual practices.

But the Chinese Communist Party has claimed Falun Gong “is a menace to society—a superstitious, foreign-driven, tightly organised, dangerous group of meditators.” This after having initially greet-

Party, particularly taking into account the Maoist assertion that “China is governed through the mouth of the gun,” know that the party is completely antithetical to any other potential power base rising to challenge the supremacy of the party (think Tiananmen Square). That historically has been reason enough to come down hard. With 10,000 members of Falun Gong coming together to protest the beginnings of a crackdown, that tendency would only have been exacerbated.

With Canada seeking a closer rapprochement with the Chinese economically, the human rights aspects of the Falun Gong allegations are likely to prove problematic for the Canadian government as activists such as Ms. Lu and her family seek to shine a light on the less savoury aspects of who Canada is seeking to do more business with—and perhaps bring about pressure on China to loosen its grip on its media and religious freedoms. History, however, does not appear to be on their side.

First UCCM Anishinaabe Police Safety Symposium tacks proactive

by Michael Erskine
M'CHIGEENG—"Slam it!" isn't the usual advice one might expect on how to deal with your $14 drink when you need to go to the bathroom, but when Julie Lalonde of Draw the Line points out that most assaults come from someone known to the victim and the other options available (ie taking it with you into a gnarly bar bathroom), that simple option has kind of a practical ring to it.

Draw the Line coordinator Julie Lalonde delivered an informative presentation 'Engaging Ontarians in a dialogue about sexual violence' on dealing with sexual assault from a variety of perspectives.

Ms. Lalonde ('Engaging Ontarians in a dialogue about sexual violence') was one of three presenters who addressed the day-long UCCM Anishinaabe Police Safety Symposium (Naag-Doo-Wend-Debaah) on September 15, bringing practical advice and strategies on how to deal with the issues that commonly face people in the community. The other two presenters were social media maven Chris Vollum, who presented on Social Media Fitness, and Nookmis Roberta Oshkabe-wisens of PACT ('Preventing and Reducing the Trafficking of Women and Girls Through Community Planning').

Mr. Vollum concentrated on the positive uses of social media and how students and youth can use the various media to enhance their career potential and further their own goals in life, with the negative potential more inferred that explicit.

The grandmother presentation from Ms. Oshkabe-wisens dealt with a wide range issues including Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls and the issue of human trafficking and how communities can come together help prevent trafficking and the forcing of young women into the sex trade.

"We are looking at increasing the partnerships in the communities," said organizer Daughness Migwans, the UCCM Anishinaabe Police social navigator (a civilian position with the UCCM). She noted that the symposium was aimed at "the community members in general" and that the topics chosen were based on the incidents and issues that police on the ground in the community see most often. Sexual assault ranks well near the top of those complaints.

"We need to get people educated," noted UCCM Anishnaabe Police Community Services Officer Sr.

Constable Murray Still. The officer had heard Mr. Vollum speak at a conference he attended earlier this year and liked what he heard. "He provides practical advice on how to use social media safely and sensibly."

What might make the "slam it" advice on drinks seem counterintuitive is the prevalence of alcohol in nearly all police calls for service or investigations. "It is probably around 96 percent," admitted Constable Still. But the approach of the speakers at the symposium isn't on stopping people from the activities that they engage in, but rather focussed on harm reduction with practical advice.

That might mean finishing your drink before you head to the bathroom, but it also means knowing your limit and staying well within those lines.

"We have all seen the girl at 2 am who always seems to have lost her shoes and can't find her friends," said Ms. Lalonde. "She is the one sitting on the sidewalk crying with one shoe in her hand." Predators know how to spot the vulnerable, noted Ms. Lalonde and will swoop in to take advantage.

Much of Ms. Lalonde's focus in her presentations was on enlisting her audience in making unacceptable to take advantage of someone who is under the influence of drugs or alcohol. "That's not how we party at my place," she recites as a mantra.

She also noted that society gives far too much leeway, enabling behaviour that normally would never condone. "He's a really great guy, but he turns creepy when he is drinking" is something you hear a lot," she said. "No, he's not creepy at parties, he's abusive to women. He just controls it better when he is sober."

She exhorted her audience to reflect on their own social circles. "If you would not want your sister hanging out with someone because of their attitude," she said, "why would you be friends with them?"

The UCCM Anishnaabe Police intend to make the safety symposium an annual event and expressed gratitude to the host community M'Chigeeng First Nation, cultural supports and police leadership that helped make the symposium possible, including Sgt. Heather Debassige, the presenters and the symposium's community partners, Manitoulin Family Resources, UCCMM Justice Program, Suicide Prevention Assist facilitators, M'Chigeeng Hub Centre, Manitoulin North Shore Victim Services, Lil Sisters, Kina Gbezhgomi Child and Family Services, Noojmowin Teg Health Centre, M'Chigeeng Mental Health, Probation and Parole, Endaagdawaab-Jig Civilian Oversight Committee, Dreamer's Cove and the Ojibwe Cultural Foundation. Each of the community partners had a booth set up at the symposium.

The coordinating team for the symposium consisted of Ms. Migwans, Ann Ziegler and Sr. Constable Still.

that provision was grabbed up to support/alleviate one of the problems posed by amalgamations. Difficulty of reaching meetings so far away. Live streaming of meetings is commonplace, even in our board and the entire OPSBA world."

Although the object of the motions was not directly identified, Mr. Killens said that he was approached by members of the audience suggesting it was clearly aimed at him.

"There was a poll vote taken at my request and both motions were defeated by a five to four vote," said Mr. Killens. "Results of poll vote by name are available through board secretary, Mrs. H. Thirkill."

Mr. Killens made a spirited defence of trustees' ability to attend meetings by teleconference, particularly those coming from remote regions of the board, Manitoulin chief among them. He noted that First Nation trustee Ms. Fox also spoke in opposition to the motion, noting that she should not be forced to travel into a meeting if she was suffering from a cold.

Although the motions were defeated, Mr. Killens said that he was not celebrating it as a victory. "It makes me sad that it has to go this far," he said. "This should not be happening."

Mr. Killens, who had already been barred from certain in camera meetings of the board for nearly a year, said that he felt the motions were directed largely towards him. Mr. Killens spends part of the winter in Florida each year and the motion to require in person attendance at meetings would have impacted him significantly.

"Sure, I go to Florida for three months during the winter, but I have never missed a meeting," said Mr. Killens, referencing his status as a snowbird. He added that his telephone and email keep him in touch with his constituents throughout the winter months and insists that his trip south in no way hinders his effectiveness as a trustee.

But the trustee did not tackle the issue on a personal or out of country position, focussing instead on the general impact such a policy change would have on trustees from regions outside the City of Sudbury. The ability to teleconference into RDSB meetings, he asserts, was clearly put in place to alleviate some of the negative impacts of the amalgamation of the Manitoulin School Board into the RDSB.

"This may have been aimed at me, I can't say, but it isn't about me," he said. "This is about the people who elect a trustee to represent them being able to have representation from the person they elected at the board meetings, even if the weather doesn't cooperate."

As to the allegations against him that led to his exclusion from in camera meetings, Mr. Killens shared a letter from the Ontario Ombudsman.

That letter read, in part, "You complained that your removal from certain in camera discussions should have been dealt with under the code of conduct enforcement pro-

Manitoulin Island Rainbow District School Board Trustee Larry Killens battled against motions to ban attendance at committee and board meetings by teleconference. Mr. Killens pointed out that teleconference attendance at meetings is a critical part of meeting the challenges of an amalgamated board.

visions of the Education Act and the School Board policy." That letter noted that the Ombudsman's investigation had determined that "The agenda for the April 14, 2015 special in camera meeting did not indicate that a notice of a motion respecting you or your conduct would be considered."

The letter went on to say that "the chair told our office that the April 14, 2015 motion was prompted by your response to a confidential email sent to all trustees by the Director of Education a few days before the meeting. The chair stated that this response raised a red flag for her given past incidents in which you were involved. The chair therefore brought her concerns to the attention of board members at the April 14, 2015 meeting. She stated that, in bringing the motion, she was trying to protect the school board.

"With respect to the timing of the motion, the chair told our Office that the motion was brought on April 14, 2015, because there would not have been time to address it under the code of conduct, as time was of the essence. She stated that no board members at the meeting suggested that the motion be deferred or reconsidered."

From the Ombudsman's Office letter, it is clear that the board's own procedures were not followed.

Further, when efforts were made to rectify matters, errors continued to dog the issue.

"In an effort to restore procedural fairness in the circumstances, you were given the opportunity to speak in camera to the April 14, 2015 motion during the July 5, 2016 meeting of the board of trustees," noted the letter. "The motion was then voted on in open session by the board of trustees. The chair acknowledged to our office that the premature adjournment of the July 5, 2016 regular meeting, which resulted in no members of the public being present for the vote, was an error."

In the final analysis, the Ombudsman's response was somewhat less than inspiring: "Our office has encouraged the school board to be vigilant in adhering to its obligations under the Act and its own policies and procedures."

Mr. Killens has a number of complaints and challenges to the board's actions remaining, including harassment, which is involving a dispute as to whether trustees are in point of fact "employees" of the board. Mr. Killens maintains that he should be considered as such and therefore protected from harassment the same as any other employee, the board, he maintains, does not accept that definition. That challenge has now drawn in the Canadian Revenue Agency, noted Mr. Killens.

...LHIN and partners collaborate on first phase of non-urgent transfers

gency.

Non-urgent patient transfers are not new to the people of Manitoulin, as the Manitoulin-Sudbury District Services board has offered this service from both Manitoulin Health Centre sites for over three years, thanks to a pilot project that saw retired ambulances refitted to become non-urgent transfer patient vehicles.

Fern Dominelli, DSB CAO, is pleased with the NE LHIN's announcement.

"It's great news," he told The Expositor. "We're looking forward to a permanent model, not just six-month extensions to the pilot project."

"If we're interested, we'll likely apply," he said, noting that the DSB would have to review the request for proposals when it becomes available.

"We've been waiting for this (announcement) for awhile," the CAO added. "It's about right time, right place, right service," Mr. Dominelli said of the service, adding that the delivery of a patient should be based on that patient's condition, "not expediency."

The initial routes to be phased in were selected based on a number of factors including the readiness of the area providers. Starting in early 2017, dedicated multi-patient vehicles will operate to and from both Timmins and District Hospital and Health Sciences North in Sudbury, including: Elliot Lake to Espanola to Sudbury (165 km); Mindemoya to Little Current to Espanola to Sudbury (163 km); Kapuskasing to Smooth Rock Falls to Timmins (166 km); and Cochrane to Iroquois Falls to Matheson to Timmins (224 km).

The model is being put in place by the NE LHIN's Non-Urgent Patient Transportation Leadership Working Group, which has worked to analyze the scope of the challenge, test pilots, like the DSB's, and develop a new model.

Next steps will focus on finalizing the plan between the LHIN, participating hospitals and Emergency Medical Services (EMS); selecting a transportation service provider; designing and establishing dedicated non-urgent patient waiting areas in Timmins and Sudbury; and setting up the central non-urgent patient transportation dispatch function for the region.

Assiginack Agricultural Society plants trees for 140th

Two crimson maple trees now flank the historic Agriculture Society gates at the Assiginack Fair Grounds in celebration of the 140th Annual Manitowaning Fall Fair. The trees have been planted to honour past agriculture farmers in the area and were purchased by the Assiginack Agricultural Society and planted by the township. The stone gates in the background that the new trees flank were originally built in honour of the fair's centenary 40 years ago. Island students wear pink for 9th annual Stand Up Against Bullying Day

MANITOULIN—Staff and students in Rainbow Schools wore pink on Thursday, September 15, as the Rainbow District School Board marked its ninth 'Stand Up Against Bullying Day.'

"Once again, this small gesture will go a long way in demonstrating our collective commitment to safe schools," said Director of Education Norm Blaseg in a press release. "By nurturing a strong partnership between the school, the home and the community, Rainbow Schools ensure that students receive an education that includes personal, social and citizenship development. We are leaders in learning, inspiring success for all students by reaching minds and touching hearts."

Ten character traits, which are modeled, taught and expected in Rainbow Schools, provide the foundation for ongoing character development and the values of the board – honesty, respect, empathy, responsibility, integrity, courtesy, resilience, acceptance, courage and co-operation. The many character development programs and activities in Rainbow Schools complement the board's Code of Conduct, which promotes responsibility, respect, civility and academic excellence in a safe learning and teaching environment.

'Stand Up Against Bullying Day' began in Nova Scotia where secondary school students Travis Price and David Shepherd arranged for dozens of their classmates to wear pink shirts in support of another student who had been bullied for wearing pink. The province of Nova Scotia subsequently declared the second Thursday at the start of every school year to be Stand Up Against Bullying Day.

"The actions of these two young men, along with their fellow students who wore pink to school in support of another student, reverberated across Canada and here in Rainbow Schools," said Board Chair Doreen Dewar. Rainbow District School Board's Parent Involvement Committee championed the cause. Trustees unanimously endorsed the following motion in 2008 and continue to support and encourage this positive initiative.

"That Rainbow District School Board declare the second Thursday of each new school year commencing September 11, 2008 as 'Stand Up Against Bullying Day.' Further, we encourage all Rainbow students and staff to conduct activities that day to increase awareness and to support action and, to wear something pink to demonstrate their support and commitment to ending bullying in our schools and communities."

DEBASSIGE--In memory of Lloyd Debassige, September 19, 2007.

His weary hours of days and pain,
His troubled nights are past,
And in our aching hearts we know
He has found sweet rest at last.
Gone from us, but leaving us memories,
Death can never take away,
Memories that will always linger

While upon this earth we stay,
God knows how much we miss him,
Never shall his memory fade,
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where he is laid.
Sadly missed by Lillian, Billy, Patty, Georgia, Billie Jean, and Jolene.

It was much appreciated. Pastor Dan Thompson for the service which gave us comfort in the loss of our loved one, as well as a time to celebrate Willard's life. The ladies for providing the lovely lunch, to everyone for the food brought to the house, cards, phone calls, floral tributes, donations to various charities, Spring Bay Pentecostal Church. The pallbearers, honorary pallbearers, Brent for his reading of Psalm 23. Bonita for the eulogy, Leslie and Bonita for the special music and singing. To the many people who travelled a long way to be at the wake and funeral. To anyone else whom we may have forgotten to mention. spirituality

- The biggest problem facing Christianity is false doctrines.
- The only standard whether a doctrine is sound or not is the bible.
- There is no subject where the New Testament spends more space on than on warning against false doctrines (heresies).
- All false doctrines are lies from Satan. (Not all lies are false doctrines, a person may simply say I did not do it. He is not advocating a heresy.)
- Believing false doctrines always produces negative results. (Including spiritual blindness, confusion, wrong thinking, failure to enter the Kingdom of God, GAL 5:19-21 and bondage to Satan.)
- Conflict on doctrine is God's way to guide you into truth and so set you free.
- Accepting the truth (what the bible says on the subject) and obeying it is the only way to real freedom, John 8:31-44.
- All false doctrines are the result of rejecting what the bible says on the subject.
- The only attitude that can deliver you is: Thy word is truth, John 17:17, every word of God is pure, there is nothing that is perverse in them, PROV 8:8, I consider all your precepts right, PS.119:128, every word of God is pure, PROV 30:5.
- In the bible, God says what he means and means what he says. Letters, words, communication were all God's idea. Every word has a specific meaning; a chair is something to sit on, a hand is a part of the body you do things with, etc. The moment you change the biblical meaning of a word, you get a false doctrine. That is exactly what is done by people who sprinkle infants. The word baptism means to immerse in water, in MAT. 3:16, it says: "When Jesus was baptized he came up out of the water. The example that Jesus set was that of immersion. You can only come up out of the water when you are in it first. When Phillip baptized the Ethiopian, ACTS 8-38+39, they both went down into the water and came up from the water. Baptism is an essential part of spiritual birth. There has never been a human born who was not first completely enveloped in water (the bag with amniotic fluid). Do not be deceived by infant sprinklers, Satan, or those who change the meaning of the word baptism.
- What part of "the 7th day is the Sabbath," do you not understand? The first day of the week is the day after the 7th day (Sabbath). Sunday is not God's Sabbath, but the day after the Sabbath. The day of resurrection is the day (morning) after the Sabbath, MAT 28:1, MARK 16:1, LUKE 23:56, 24:1, it is the day of first fruits, 1 COR 15:20, and the day of first fruits is the morning after the Sabbath, LEV 23:11. The day of first fruits is an annual event, the Sabbath is a weekly event, the Passover is an annual event. The annual events don't change any part of the weekly events. It was not God who changed the Sabbath from the 7th day to the first day of the week, but Satan (the fourth beast of DAN 7:25) and he did it to deceive you and so steal the blessings God offers to those who sanctify God's Sabbaths. You will never enter God's millennial Sabbath of which the weekly Sabbath is a shadow, COL 2:16+17, if you do not obey God by sanctifying his Sabbaths (Friday sunset till Saturday sunset). When you don't sanctify God's Sabbaths, you do not obey God's commandments, EX 16:27+28. And when you do not obey God's commandments, one of the curses is confusion (Babylon), DEUT 28:28. The only way to come out of "Mystery Babylon" is by confessing that not sanctifying God's Sabbaths is sin and repenting of this sin. "Come out of her my people!" REV 18:4.

Wkwemikong celebrates the installation of a water refill station

by Robin Burrige

WIKWEMIKONG—Noojmowin Teg Health Centre Healthy Kids Community Challenge, in partnership with the Wkwemikong Health Centre, celebrated the launch of the Water Does Wonders theme, encouraging youth to consume water versus sugar sweetened beverages in Wkwemikong with a special event and the installation of a water refill station at the community's arena.

The event started with a water song performed by Tabitha Peltier of Wkwemikong.

Wkwemikong Chief Duke Peltier welcomed everyone who was in attendance and thanked Noojmowin Teg for organizing the event.

"It is important to protect our water and that safe drinking water is available," said Chief Peltier. "Thank you to Bridging Finance for connecting us with the Canadian Space Agency and providing our youth and community members with the opportunity to learn from astronaut Jeremy Hansen."

Champion for the Healthy Kids Community Challenge, Grand Council Chief Patrick Madahbee.

"This is an awesome program, encouraging the health of our people," said Chief Madahbee. "Our last theme was 'Run Jump Play,' promoting physical activity. This theme, 'Water Does Wonders,' is so important because water is life—we can't live without water. We enter the world through birth water and as we go through our lives it is so critical."

"Our people have high levels of diabetes and heart disease so we need to be careful about what we eat and drink and sugar drinks aren't good for us," continued Chief Madahbee. "I commend Noojmowin Teg on their work encouraging our traditional healthy living."

Throughout the morning there was a bouncy castle, free water bottles handed out, face painting and a presentation from Canadian astronaut Jeremy Hansen.

Mr. Hansen spoke about following his dream to become a pilot and eventually an astronaut. He also encouraged youth in the audience to set goals and work towards obtaining them.

He explained how the astronauts drink water in space and use warm water added to dehydrated food to create the meals they eat.

with me everywhere," said Mr. Hansen. "I want to stay healthy and I don't want to litter the planet with plastic. We all need to work as one to take care of our planet."

Chief Peltier presented Mr. Hansen with a quill box for visiting the community and speaking. He also presented David Sharp and Ian Bale of Bridging Finance with gifts for funding the visit from Mr. Hansen.

After lunch, the ribbon was cut on the new water bottle station at the arena that was funded by the Noojmowin Teg Healthy Kids Community Challenge and by the Wkwemikong Health Centre, while the sign around the new station was paid for by the Sudbury & District Health Unit in partnership with Noojmowin Teg.

Northeast Town Council Notes

Monitoring report

The Northeast Town council reviewed the annual 2015 monitoring and operations report for the Northeast Town waste disposal site.

Town CAO Dave Williamson was pleased to point out to council that the report states the landfill's life span of 40 years has been expanded to 70 years due to diversion practices such as recycling.

Mr. Williamson also reviewed with council recommendations in the report for 2017. One recommendation was for the Smith property to be designated as a continuation zone for the landfill. "That was the town's intention when they purchased the Smith property and we are going through the process with the Ministry of Environment and will come to council for the zoning change in the near future," said Mr. Williamson. The other recommendation was to change the monthly sampling to quarterly.

Councillor Laurie Cook said that she would like to see council encourage more diversion programs. Councillor Michael Erskine agreed and inquired about composting.

Mr. Williamson explained that composting has been explored in the past at council's request but that the set up costs would be very high. He noted that town staff have been speaking with an individual in the private sector who is interested in picking up compost.

Council approved the report as presented.

Campground taxation

Council carried a motion forwarded to council from Renfrew-Nipissing-Pembroke MP Cheryl Gallant regarding small campgrounds that could be disqualified from the small business tax deduction because they have less than five year-round employees.

Prostate cancer

The Northeast Town council reviewed a letter from Prostate Cancer Canada requesting that the municipality carry a motion supporting Prostate Cancer Awareness Month.

"One in eight Canadian men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer in their lifetime, which makes for 24,000 expected new cases in 2015," explains the letter to council. "Early detection saves lives. When detected early, the survival rate for prostate cancer is over 90 percent."

Council carried a motion declaring September Prostate Cancer Awareness Month.

Lottery licence

Mr. Williamson explained to council that the municipiality currently takes three percent of the prize board of lotteries in the Northeast Town. The Little Current Lions Club and Little Current Legion are working on a lottery that would have a $50,000 prize board and which would make the Northeast Town's three percent take $15,000. Mr. Williamson recommended council amend the three percent take to include a cap of $500, as to not disadvantage local groups.

Councillor Erskine said he agreed with the recommendation, as the money raised from most of the lotteries in the municipality go back into the community.

A motion was carried to amend the three percent municipal take on lottery prize boards to include a $500 cap.

Planning board

Mr. Williamson and Mayor Al MacNevin discussed how staff would be working with the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing (MMAH) in the upcoming weeks to develop a transition plan for the Northeast Town withdrawing from the Manitoulin Planning Board and establishing its own planning authority. They noted that they are still waiting on having the Northeast Town's Official Plan approved, but that it has gone to the minister's office for final review and approval.

Accounts receivable

Treasurer Sheryl Wilkin went over the accounts receivable with council. She noted that for water/sewer there was $34,464.09 made in payments. She added that there were 24 accounts over $400, five of which had been disconnected, two were due to penalty applied for August, eight account holders had made payment arrangements and nine account holders had received disconnection notices.

For taxes, Ms. Wilkin said there were $375,169.88 made in payments, with the next due date September 30.

M.S.S. Kids in the Halls

After only a week of school, staff and students of MSS have already begun making positive changes in the community and becoming better leaders.

On September 15, the staff and students of MSS wore pink to stop bullying. This tradition was started in 2007 by two students and their friends who witnessed a student being bullied for wearing a pink shirt. The group of students wore pink to school the next day and stood up for the boy who had been teased. Now every year, students and staff wear pink to support the No Bullying campaign.

Also on September 15, Chris Vollum spoke to the students and staff of MSS about how social media can be used in a positive way. Vollum showed the audience how they can use their Twitter, Snapchat, Facebook, Instagram, and even Pinterest to reach out to future employers, explore educational opportunities, and pursue personal passions. Using a Circle of Life parody, Vollum showed how the world uses social media today. Then he showed the audience what different aspects of a person's social media can affect their career, education and personal life. Students and staff were told stories about people who faced severe consequences from posting a tweet on Twitter or a picture on Facebook.

Audrey Sampson, a Grade 11 student, said, "The presentation inspired me to make a Twitter page that can help my future. It really made me think about what I post online. It helped me realize that I don't want what I post online to affect my future negatively."

Ms. McCann has another Europe trip planned to take place over the March Break of 2018. Anyone who goes on the trip will get to travel to Spain and see Barcelona, Valencia, Granada, Costa del Sol, Seville, Cordoba, Madrid, and get to experience the culture. The group will be doing a City Challenge scavenger hunt in Granada, getting to experience the city through the eyes of a local while seeing many amazing sites. This is a once in a lifetime opportunity, and any students interested may see Ms. McCann.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the SHARE/Go Green, Three Fires Confederacy, and other student leaders participated in the Sacred Circle program facilitated by Me to We. The program aims to build community, develop leadership skills, and empower students to make a contribution to the local and global community. Stay tuned as the group takes steps to put their plans into action.

Students are looking forward to the many athletics, community events, and school group activities planned for the year. "Til next time, stay golden, Mustangs."

Sheg 'Pride in Home Life' Fall Fair brings community together

by Robin Burrige

SHEGUIANDAH—The sixth annual Sheguiandah Fall Fair brought out over 350 community members, Islanders and visitors to take in the many wonderful exhibits, vendors and entertainment hosted by the Centennial Museum of Sheguiandah and the Manitoulin Genealogy Club.

"It went very well," said Lisa Hallaert, museum manager and events coordinator, of the fair held last Saturday at the museum. "We had great feedback from the vendors, which was new this year, and the event was well attended, up from last year, despite the weather."

Ms. Hallaert said that there were 48 individuals that entered exhibits in the fair this year, which included a wide range of entries such as baking, vegetables and photography, to name a few.

The overall winners of the most first place prize ribbons for adults was Bev Morphet and a tie for children between Kristen and Casey Bowerman.

Entertainment for the day was provided by Bryce Mastelko.

The vendors were set up throughout the museum property selling their wares. There was also a large display of antique tractors on display highlighting the area's agricultural history. The hand-churned ice cream was a popular stop for young and old fair goers alike, so much so that the station sold out.

"Manitoulin Genealogy Club is the driving force of this event with some help from the museum committee," added Ms. Hallaert, commending all the volunteers on their hard work in making the fair a success.

Keira Akvar, age 9, and her little brother Adreian Adejobi, 8 months old, of Welland have fun at the photo booth at the fall fair.

There were lots of great entries from youth at the fair such as fall drawings and scarecrows.

This pumpkin entry from Casey Bowerman placed first in its division. He and Kristen Bowerman tied for the most first place ribbons earned at the fair in the children's category.

Zach Carr, 13, of Kagawong, a vendor at the fair, takes a break to enjoy hand-churned ice cream from volunteer Beverly Hill.

There was also a large display of antique tractors on display highlighting the area's agricultural history.

The Café returns with a vengeance

After a two-year hiatus, the popular Café in the Woods roots music series has returned to the Nordic Ski Club chalet. The incomparable Wendall Ferguson, seven-time Canadian Guitar Picker of the Year (he refused nomination after the seventh) and Kathryn Wheatley wowed the crowd with a night of original music, with Mr. Ferguson's hilarious songs acting as a marvelous counterpoint to Ms. Wheatley's soulful ballads. The full house crowd enjoyed the delicious creations baked by Isla Gieselmann and settled in for an entirely enjoyable evening of music. The next offering in the series will take place October 14.

A nod to agricultural roots

Councillor Hugh Moggy made note to his fellow members of council that in the lead up to Manitowaning Agricultural Society's 140th fall fair, two trees were planted at the Agriculture Society's stone gates at the fairgrounds to honour the municipality's past farmers.

Community Policing review

Following a review of the Community Policing Advisory Committee (CPAC) minutes, Councillor Leslie Fields asked Councillor Moggy, who represents Assiginack on the committee, about the Espanola detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) and whether or not Manitoulin will welcome it under its umbrella. Councillor Moggy replied that Staff Sergeant Webb said that it would at least be a year.

Councillor Fields also asked about the digital speed sign on Cardwell Street, which Assiginack had requested be posted there some time ago.

Grader repairs

There was much discussion on the topic of needed repairs to the Assiginack grader, which is currently out of commission. The estimated cost of repairs is $60,000.

When asked if that amount will add years on to its life, roads superintendent Ron Cooper replied that no, it would just put them back at square one. He also noted that Assiginack operators put approximately 500 hours on the grader each year. The municipality is currently renting a grader and using it as minimally as possible to keep costs down.

Before spending the $60,000 on repairs, it was decided to have staff look at all options, including prices for year-long rental or inter-municipality rental, for the following meeting.

Canada 150

Following a delegation from the Burns Wharf Theatre Players, asking that Assiginack consider making a Canada 150 Fund grant application on its behalf to see the Burns Wharf Theatre restored up to code, council discussed the pros and cons of the application.

As the fund is a 50 percent, 'non-stackable' fund (meaning they cannot apply other grants toward it, just the municipality's own money), the 50 percent share of the Burns Wharf project would come in at $300,000.

"If we apply to Canada 150 and get 50 percent, let's face it, we won't be paying for it," Mayor Paul Moffatt said. "This municipality can't afford it."

Councillor Fields suggested using the Canada 150 Fund to apply for acoustic tiles for the arena.

CAO Alton Hobbs explained that as the community survey looking for suggestions for Canada 150 Fund applications did not include acoustic tiles, it probably isn't a good idea, with Councillor Fields agreeing.

Councillor Brenda Reid said she doubted the municipality could afford to apply for anything.

"It's like buying something on sale when you don't really need it," Councillor Fields added.

"We don't have the money, we can't bolster $300,000," the mayor said, referring to the Burns Wharf restoration. "We're still paying for the arena, fire truck, snow-plow."

Council decided not to apply for the Canada 150 Fund application.

Accounts payable

Council authorized the following accounts for payment: general, $216,782.61; payroll, $49,807.66.

Bylaws

Council passed Bylaw 16-11 to exit the tax capping program for the commercial, industrial and multi-residential property classes for the year 2016 and for subsequent taxation years.

The council also passed Bylaw 16-12 regarding remuneration and expenses for members of council. Mr. Hobbs explained that there is no change to the remuneration, it is simply a 'dumbed down' version of the bylaw for the benefit of the government.

The mayor still receives a flat rate of $750 per month with council members receiving $450 a month.

Recipes from Rose's Kitchen

Breakfasts can be such a disjointed affair. You either have time to sit and eat, or you wake up a bit late with no time and you are out the door running on empty. I believe breakfast is the most important meal of the day, it fires up your brain and stops binge eating throughout the day. I have found two recipes that are quick and will make you feel much better if you are running out that door!

Creamy Overnight Oats

Coconut-derived ingredients are rich in lauric acid, a medium-chain fatty acid that may have antibacterial properties. Coconut meat and coconut products are also rich in antioxidants, which may have a protective effect against aging and disease. I am a big fan of anything to do with coconut, I use it whenever I can. The recipe calls for light coconut milk but I used the full fat, which made it more creamy. I upped the texture by adding pumpkin seeds, sunflower seeds, and hemp seeds. A total of one cup, which adds more protein, will make you less hungry between breakfast and lunch.

- 1 can (400ml) light coconut milk, plus more if needed
- 1 large ripe banana
- 3 large Medjool dates, pitted
- Small pinch of fine sea salt
- 1 cup Loon Song oats
- 3 Tbsp chia seeds
- 1 cup of a mixture of sunflower, hemp, and pumpkin seeds (optional)

1. In a blender or magic bullet, combine the coconut milk, banana, pitted dates, and salt. Blend until smooth.
2. Pour the coconut milk mixture into a medium-size food storage container with a lid.
3. Stir the oats, chia seeds and mixture of the other seeds into the coconut milk mixture until thoroughly combined. Cover and refrigerate overnight. The oat mixture will thicken and soften.
4. If the mixture is too thick, thin it out with a bit of coconut milk or almond or water.
5. Portion the oats into a bowl and add fresh fruit of your choice or put some in a small container and pack it with you for a later breakfast or snack.

Green-Orange Smoothie

This is perfect drink for an early morning start or take along for a mid-morning snack. The full fat coconut milk will make the drink even smoother.

- 1 (400ml) can light coconut milk, chilled
- 1 1/4 cups orange juice (the best kind)
- 1 cup baby spinach or kale
- 3 Tbsp avocado (I just put in half of a whole avocado)
- 1/2 tsp pure vanilla extract
- 4 or 5 large pitted Medjool dates, to taste
- 6 ice cubes, or as needed

1. In a blender or magic-bullet, combine all the ingredients and blend until smooth.
- spinach and avocado will add nutrient power
- if your dates are dry soak them in boiling water for 20 minutes before making the smoothie

Tehkummah Talk and Times

Just read my last week's long column in the Expositor. I'm getting more rambly and disjointed all the time! I'm going to have to quit writing, I think! That did cover eleven days though, and my friends name is LAURENE (not Lawrence). My writing is awful, I guess. I often jot down stuff as it comes to me so the themes of some stories are lost in translation (or my mind). I apologize to my readers!

I really can blame old age, chemo residue and my numb and fumbly fingers. I had made up my mind I was going to wear my fancy and flashy earrings when I lost all my hair, but then I couldn't handle the earring backs so I only have one pair that are easy for me. Was there frost last night? The house is cool this Thursday AM.

Went to Sandfield euchre with Betty Jean, Dorothy and Laurene. Ladies' high was Rose. Men's high and door prize winner was Bruce. That's all I remember.

Happy birthday wishes to Florence and Raymond

Providence Bay News and Notes

It's wonderful to see that the annual salmon spawn has started again. There have been a lot of fishermen spotted down at the mouth of the Mindemoya River and on the beach. Or should we say fisher people, because there have been a lot of families spotted out enjoying this pastime together. With the full moon out this past weekend lighting up the beach it led to some great fishing if you're to believe the fish tales. The warmer than usual weather has also brought out lots of swimmers to our beach. What a novel idea: "swimming with the salmon," not quite a dolphin, but just as cool!

Don Tonery, formerly of Providence Bay and now residing in Keswick, was up for a visit staying with Ingrid Blay and her husband. He was here to visit with Jaylyn who is the late Sadie Debassige's granddaughter and who was celebrating her birthday in M'Chigeeng. Happy Belated Birthday to Jaylyn.

Harry Liscumb and partner Charlene Sullivan are here visiting with Gary McFarland. They've been spotted out and about visiting just about everyone in the village and surrounding area. It's great to see them visiting.

The Providence Bay Village Square has had some more work done and is looking fantastic. Trees have been planted and some fall decorations have been added giving the community a festive fall look. This is coinciding with the annual Harvest Glory Days which is a fall theme community decorating contest that is hosted by The Manitoulin Expositor each year. The overall "best decorated" community is awarded a large roadside 5' x 8' metal roadside sign as a testament to community spirit. The idea is for people in their communities to decorate in such a way that the entire place is attractively themed so this would include homes, business, and institutions (such as community hall and churches). The theme we are using this year is scarecrows, so please decorate so we can win the plaque and show the great community spirit that is alive and thriving in Providence Bay. The judging will be held the week after Thanksgiving.

Anna Orford will be celebrating a birthday on September 22 the first official day of fall. Everyone be sure to wish her well on her special day.

This year, the autumnal equinox falls on September 22 at 10:21 am EDT. This equinox occurs when the Sun appears to cross the celestial equator from north to south.

The monthly Twilight Seniors club monthly euchre tournament is again being held on the last Tuesday of the month. This month it falls on September 27. Grab a partner and head on down. The games begin at 8 pm.

If you have any news, information, birthdays or special events that you would like to see printed in The Providence Bay News and Notes, please let us know. We know that there is a lot going on in our little village but we need the information to be able to submit it. We kindly ask that you let us know by each Sunday by 3 pm for submission in the following Wednesday's paper. You can email prov_chick@hotmail.com or you can call Cheryl at 705-377-7511. Have a great week everyone!

(Chatwell) and Raymond (SBM).

On Tuesday noon, our Senior UCW group met at the home of Diane McLean. She fed us good soup and chili, then we had our first meeting since last June. Eight members (a couple missing).

I've been playing cards pretty well every day with Mum. She's been winning some. Saturday evening at Cal's a few close games of cribbage with Gib and Florence. We always finish with a cup of tea. Well what a wonderful celebration at the Triangle Hall on Saturday afternoon to commemorate Reg and Noreen Lesson's 60th wedding anniversary. Their nephew Rick Crouch emceed the occasion. Presentations from the dignitaries read by family members, plus one from our township presented by Reeve Eric Russell. Background music on the keyboard by Jan Carsgallen, a delicious lunch by Jr. UCW. Family members introduced and Rick Crouch's daughter April was here from Hawaii. The tables were beautifully decorated in autumn theme, and a special huge 60 was created by Nancy and Grant, centered on the table with the photographs. A bouquet was presented by Bev and Pauline on behalf of our Tehkummah Sr. UCW group. Noreen has been a long-standing hard working member. I saw the other 60th anniversary celebrants there, Floyd and Lila, and wished them well, too!

Thursday euchre tournament winners. 11.5 tables, Laurene and Dave, 87; Shirley and Dave, 86; Graham and Sheila, 85; Judy and Bill, 84; low, Bert and Joy, 47; Laurene and Dave, 8 lone hands; skunks, Marg and Marlaine; door, Graham.

Thundershower, moist air, foggy dewy mornings, gardens still doing well, flowers and veggies. Beautiful harvest moon and balmy weather! Enjoy.

The restless syndrome is still working in me. On Thursday I received the most wonderful letter, the button popping kind, from Faye Stevens that made me pretty emotional, so a drive I took to South Baymouth to watch folks on the move. Shared a table at Pierside with Jane and Elaine, and had a most delicious chicken wrap and salad. They say it is still quite busy (yes, I watched all the traffic). Watching the Chi-Cheemaun leave and flagging down Rick, Julia and Kerrene who had had a picnic and walk on the boardwalk in Providence Bay with Diane Sims and her hubby. (They were waving her goodbye.) Diane worked a few years back at The Expositor.

Met Fran and Joe at Carol's and Earl's on Sunday, Marg Reckahn's friends and/or neighbours. One thing about this column, it seems to be read! I forgot all about the Down Yonder fundraiser for Burns Wharf. The crew at the next table said it was wonderful!

Wednesday cribbage, 7.5 tables. High hand, Dorothy A, 24; first, Dorothy and Joy, 951; second, Jean and Mary, 941; third, Cal and I, 932; low, Joy and Bert, 849; door, Audrey, Jean and Bert. There was enough food for our delicious lunch to feed a threshing crew!

Two nights in a row of cards at Cal's and except for a slight(?) smell of skunk, we came out pretty equal. The gals held their own better this weekend! We had supper at Carol's and Earl's first (sympathy to Martha Estok, family and friends). Church Sunday in Tehkummah. We met the nice new Mindemoya (3-point charge) minister, Rev. Joshua (sorry, forgot the last name) on study leave. It was nice to have him with us. Our sermon today was on Good Neighbours, and I'm sure that's what God expects us to be always. Today at Carol's and Earl's, Pauline, Wayne Martin, Lynda, Mum and I. Mum beat me at cards after!
