BACK ON THE ICE—Coaches NHL greats and Stanley Cup winners Reggie Leach and Jamie Leach, along with American and European Hockey league pro goalie coach Alfie Michaud, are all originally from Manitoba's Berens River First Nation. The hockey legends held a Shoot to Score hockey camp at the Little Current arena last weekend to launch this year's season of the puck.

Addictions program focussed on youth hits funding stage for Island campus

Magnet centre for province

by Robin Burrige
M'CHIGEENG—The United Chiefs and Councils of Mnidoo Mnising (UCCMM) has developed a youth mental health and addictions program and is currently working with provincial and federal branches of government to obtain operating and capital dollars to build the facility on Manitoulin.

mittee explored various youth mental health and addiction programs, eventually discovering the Pine River Institute.

The committee felt that the institute's model was similar to what they wanted to create on Manitoulin and reached out to Pine River Institute founder Karen Minden.

"The original concept was born out of a need seen here on Manitoulin and throughout the North three years ago," Sam Gilchrist, Gwecwaadziwin program manager for the developmental phase, explained to The Expositor. "The development steering committee consists of UCCMM CEO Hazel Recollet, (past) UCCMM Tribal Chair Joe Hare, Roger Beaudin of M'Chigeeng Health Services and Kenjgewin Teg Education Institute Executive Director Stephanie Roy."

"Karen came to Manitoulin two years ago to speak and the committee developed a relationship with her," continued Mr. Gilchrist. "They then applied for the funding for the development phase and I was hired in June of this year."

"We knew we wanted a four pillar program, founded on education, therapeutic intervention, culture and wilderness programming," added Mr. Gilchrist. "Something that was missing in outpatient care or sending patients away to off-island facilities."

Fisheries and Oceans staff monitors sediments beneath aquaculture cages

Industry-initiated testing to improve water quality controls

by Michael Erskine
WABUNO CHANNEL—A team of scientists from the federal Department of Oceans and Fisheries are conducting studies of the sediment and waters beneath local fish farm cage operations to find more efficient and practical ways to determine what, if any, impact those operations are having on the ecosystems in the vicinity of those operations.

"This is my project," explained Blue Goose Aquaculture manager and aquaculture pioneer Mike Meeker, stressing that the project design and parameters far exceeds that required for the operating licence of the aquaculture operation. "We are seeking a way to simplify the testing we have to do."

If successful, the project, which has been ongoing for the past two weeks and will continue for another two or three weeks, will not only provide better science to determine what, if any, impact those operations are having on the ecosystems in the vicinity of those operations.

Public elementary teachers threaten rotating board strikes on one-day basis in October

by Michael Erskine
TORONTO—The impact of the current work-to-rule strike by the Elementary Teachers' Federation of Ontario (ETFO) reached onto Manitoulin Island earlier this September, when the Central Manitoulin Public School Fall Fair was truncated and modified to accommodate the strike action.

"Our fall fair was much smaller and we made a last minute decision to hold it at our school this year instead of the arena," said a staff member on background. "That's because public elementary school teachers across Ontario are taking part in a lawful job action. Teachers have been directed by their provincial union to not plan, organize or participate in any field trips. Under the circumstances, out of respect for our teachers, we modified the format of the fair. We hung students' art in the gym, had some livestock entries and held our annual fall feast."

According to a news release from the union, the ETFO escalated its work-to-rule strike action on Monday because the terms offered by the provincial government and the Ontario Public School Boards' Association (OPS

Debate topics sought... Give it some thought!

MANITOULIN—"Debate topics sought...give it some thought!" is the theme The Expositor Office has adopted in asking Manitoulin voters to come up with relevant ideas for candidates to debate at the Thursday, October 1 All Manitoulin Candidates' Night.

The format for this event has been modified to allow the candidates to debate issues on a one-on-one basis.

The debate topics will be limited to four and moderator Jim Van Camp will choose this number from the submissions received over the next week.

The popular "questions from the floor" part of the event will, of course, carry on as usual.

This is your opportunity to have something that concerns you publicly debated by the participating Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing riding candidates.

There is a deadline for submissions: 4 pm on Wednesday, September 30. You can email your idea for a topic to editor@manitoulin.ca. You can fax it to (705) 368-3822 or you can bring it into The Expositor Office in Little Current or to the Recorder in Gore Bay.

The Expositor Office (organizer of the event) looks forward both to your submissions and to seeing you at the October 1 event.

All-Manitoulin Candidates' Night scheduled for Thursday, October 1

MANITOULIN—The All-Manitoulin Island Candidates' Night and Debate for the upcoming Federal General Election is scheduled for next Thursday, October 1. The event starts at 7 pm and will be held at Manitoulin Secondary School.

There is a change in format this year: following the candidates' presentations of their parties positions, the next part of the event be a debate between New Democratic Party incumbent candidate Carol Hughes and Liberal Party candidate Heather Wilson. (This debate format replaces the "rebuttal" by candidates of the positions their colleagues had just previously stated.)

What will they debate? Well, "Debate topics sought... give it some thought!"

The Manitoulin Expositor, the organizer of the candidates' night event, is asking you, the public and the voters, to suggest topics that the moderator can ask Ms. Hughes and Ms. Wilson to debate. He will choose four topics from your suggestions.

Please think about the issues relevant to Manitoulin Island and email them to editor@manitoulin.ca. You can also bring them to the Expositor Office in Little Current or to the Recorder in Gore Bay or fax your suggestions for a debatable topic to (705)368-3822.

Please include your name and home community with your suggestion. The deadline for submission is next Wednesday, September 30 at 4 pm.

No candidates' night event on Manitoulin Island would be complete without "questions from the floor" and that will be the event's final formal part.

Coffee and doughnuts, another tradition, will again be provided by The Expositor

Office and voters will have an opportunity to talk informally with the candidates at this time.

There has been no mention of the Conservative Party candidate, André Robichaud, and that is because Mr. Robichaud has declined to attend the Manitoulin Island event, saying instead that he plans on focussing on a door-to-door canvas in this part of the riding.

The Expositor also offered Mr. Robichaud and his campaign team the option of participating via Skype for the candidate's convenience but his organizers also declined this suggestion last week. (There will be a chair set for him in case he decides at the last minute to surprise Manitoulin Island with an appearance).

Expositor publisher Rick McCutcheon, who has helped facilitate these events during federal and provincial elections for nearly 40 years, noted that this is the first time a candidate has declined to attend.

"It is surprising, but we have told his team the door remains open," Mr. McCutcheon noted.

He also observed that Mr. Robichaud is participating in similar events in both Hearst and Kapuskasing in the north end of the riding and this week, in both Blind River and nearby Elliot Lake.

"Apparently he had originally committed to Blind River's event but declined Elliott Lake's invitation," Mr. McCutcheon said, "and then last week changed his mind about Elliot Lake so perhaps he'll also surprise us with a special appearance next Thursday," Mr. McCutcheon observed.

Canada Votes ~~2015~~

Continuing this week, The Expositor is posing another weekly question to each candidate in the Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing riding and publishing their responses in our newspaper. We have asked that the candidates restrict their answer to a 500-word limit. Otherwise, they are free to answer in any way they choose.

Just about six weeks after the October 19 federal General Election, whoever forms the government will have the opportunity to send delegates to the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change in Paris, France where climate change policy and practice will be discussed.

If your party forms the government following the upcoming election, what substantive commitments, rather than just speeches, will it bring to this international gathering?

Please also outline your party's plans to address climate change, looking forward 10 years, 25 years and 50 years.

Heather Wilson Liberal

I understand the economy is on everyone's mind. However, we can no longer ignore the real costs of climate change while seeking economic prosperity. The planet's health and all of the creatures living on it is intimately linked to the environment. The economy is directly linked to climate change because the cost of disasters will cripple global economies.

The people I talk to on the doorstep want real leadership on the environment and economy. That means taking advantage of the numerous economic opportunities in the green tech sector that are right here in Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing. Liberals will make smart investments now in initiatives like these so we can give our kids and grandkids a more beautiful, sustainable and prosperous country.

Canadians know that sustainable prosperity is the way forward and new challenges have emerged that we must adapt to. There are real threats to our water and land and climate change is creating environmental volatility locally, nationally and internationally. Liber-

NDP

There's a reason you ask what will be done beyond making speeches because that's all we have seen from any government on climate change. Canadians are still waiting for leadership and it is clear we will have to look past political parties whose only interest is to appear to do something. Decades of inaction have changed global opinion about Canada's environmental commitments, which is a true shame.

New Democrats are ready to act on climate change and to restore our environmental safeguards. Canadians know they can't trust the Conservatives to act. Stephen Harper withdrew Canada from Kyoto. While other industrialized countries are on track to meet their emissions reduction targets, Canada has fallen to dead last.

The Conservatives have handed billions in subsidies to their friends in the fossil fuel industry. The Liberals did nothing but dig a deeper hole for us to climb out of after they signed the Kyoto Accord. It's time for leadership and New Democrats have a plan to get results for Canadians.

André Robichaud
Conservative

When re-elected, the Conservative Government will remain committed to the environment.

Beginning in 2006, many initiatives have been taken to meet and exceed our responsibility as a clean energy superpower, while ensuring economic stability and growth, thereby retaining and creating jobs for Canadians.

Our government is implementing a sector-by-sector regulatory approach to reduce greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. This approach protects the environment and supports economic prosperity.

Under the Copenhagen Accord to reduce global GHG emissions, signed by Canada and 120 other countries in 2009, Canada's target is a 17 percent GHG emissions reduction by 2020, from 2005 levels, and 30 percent by 2030.

The Conservative government has taken many other actions since 2006, such as regulations to introduce tighter emission standards; $1.5 million for the Canada ecoTrust for Clean Air and Climate Change; $250 million for carbon capture and storage research; $10 million for scientific research and analysis on biofuels emissions; rebates for

by Michael Erskine

TEHKUMMAH—Friends, neighbours and colleagues of Island musician Jeff Gilmore gathered at the Tehkummah Triangle Seniors' Club Hall at 7 pm last Sunday, September 20 to celebrate and honour Mr. Gilmore as the Island's latest inductee into the Northern Ontario Country Music Association's Great Northern Opry with an evening filled with laughter, story and song.

The Great Northern Opry itself honours and celebrates those musicians who have made a significant contribution to country music across Northern Ontario and sports a substantial number of Island musicians among its ranks, several of whom were on hand to congratulate Mr. Gilmore and provide entertainment for the evening.

Mr. Gilmore is the 105th inductee into the Great Northern Opry and his elevation to that august post will take place at the Annual Northern Ontario Country Music Awards Weekend Friday, November 6 to Sunday, November 8 in Sault Ste. Marie at the Quattro Hotel and Conference Centre.

But this evening was an opportunity for local country fans and musicians to honour one of their own in a most appropriate fashion, an evening of country music.

Double Barrel bandmates Barry Williamson and Jeff Gilmore take the stage at the Tehkummah Hall at a celebration of Mr. Gilmore's upcoming induction into the ranks of the Great Northern Opry.

"It came as quite a surprise," said Mr. Gilmore while taking a break from the festivities backstage. He described receiving the call last Christmas.

Mr. Gilmore credited his mother, a bad case of gout and the late great Ronnie Gilchrist, with setting him on the road to the country music stage. Mr. Gilmore grew up surrounded by music, his mother Carol is also a local performer. "My mom was always singing," he said. "There was always music at home."

His first public performance gave little foreshadowing of the future. "I was so nervous," he laughed. "I had a guitar and it sat in my closet for about a year. But the first time I got up to sing, it was acapella (without instruments). I swore right then that would never happen again."

It just so happened that Mr. Gilmore found himself laid up with a serious case of gout, sidelining him from work for quite some time. He put that time to good use, took the guitar out of the closet and taught himself to play. "I just sat down and played, and played, and played," he said.

His next public appearance was during one of the Gore Bay Airport Days when Ronnie Gilchrist called him up on stage. "Ron called me up on stage and said to me 'you're a guitar player now,'" he recalled. "I was so nervous I didn't even plug in." But from that moment on, Mr. Gilmore never looked back and he eventually began playing with his own band Double Barrel.

"I have to say that Ronnie Gilchrist was

Lions Club asking for public input in form of Hawewater Weekend online survey MANITOULIN—The Little Current Lions Club is reaching out to the Manitoulin community for ideas on revamping its beloved Hawewater Weekend.

Last week, in collaboration with this newspaper, the Club launched the first in a series of online polls with the initial survey asking for thoughts solely on the Saturday night Hawfest dance. The response was swift and encouraging with over 320 people taking the time to answer the questions over the course of only a few days.

"It shows that people care about the future of Hawewater," Lions Club President Bruce Burnett told The Expositor.

The launch of the next poll, which will deal with the location of the weekend events, will take place this week and the club is asking the public to please take the time to visit www.manitoulin.ca to provide their feedback and answer the brief survey.

"The information we glean from these surveys will help us develop and even better Hawewater Weekend in the years to come, especially with the lead-up to the event's 50th anniversary in 2017," Lion Bruce added.

Parking ticket regime status quo is unacceptable

There is no doubt about it. The fallout from the parking tickets issued to people shopping, dining and sightseeing in downtown Little Current this past summer is not in the best interests of the businesses located there.

This came to a head with the publication, on this page in the September 16 edition, of a letter to the editor ('Welcome to Little Current, now please leave') and the online comments relating to it.

But the accusations of the four retired professionals who came to the community one day to lunch and to shop, all of whom received tickets, were not the first time local retailers had heard these complaints.

They have been having to hear them all summer long from their customers, ever since town council hired an outside security firm (CanCom Security from Wikwemikong) to enforce the two hour parking bylaw that has been in place for some time, but had previously seen more warnings than tickets issued.

The letter to the editor and the public discussion on the topic it unleashed indicates that, under the present circumstances, the downtown merchants have a problem that needs to be solved with the cooperation of the town council.

This is a public relations battle in which those who conduct their business in the downtown, and pay taxes to do so, have no direct say, except through their elected officials in who rests the sole authority to amend the bylaws, suspend it, choose not to enforce it or in any other way come to the aid of the business people who now feel they are directly impacted with each new ticket issued.

Over the past decade, the Little Current Business Improvement Area (BIA) has spent its own money to erect and maintain a series of large and attractive highway signs that invite visitors to come to Manitoulin Island and to visit their "unique downtown waterfront," as the signs say.

Two of them are on the TransCanada Highway (one east and one west of the Espanola turnoff) and the other is located at the corner above the Little Current LCBO store, inviting visitors to turn here and come downtown.

For these downtown retailers, their cost of maintaining these welcoming signs must be seen by them with real irony just now in light of the contrary publicity they're being handed.

It is clear there must be a change made in the parking ticketing regimen in downtown Little Current.

At the very least, the two hour parking limit, when it is enforced, puts this particular group of retailers at a disadvantage in comparison with other local Island communities where no such restrictions prevail.

But on its face, the two hour time limit that the bylaw is based on really does not make much sense in a downtown waterfront area where marketing dollars encourage tourist visitors to come, enjoy a meal, do some shopping in the considerable variety of shops and to enjoy a stroll along the front street docks, to admire the boats there (perhaps chat with some of the boaters), have an ice cream cone or other seasonal snack and then return to the front street where they've left their vehicle.

For someone on vacation, enjoying a variety of new experiences, the two hour time is an unreasonable one that has led to the ill will associated with these parking tickets.

The situation, as it presently stands, is not going to get any better and this, unfortunately, will be on the backs of the people who, so far, have done a good job of keeping downtown Little Current viable and interesting.

The businesspeople and the elected officials must come to an understanding of what is reasonable and do so as quickly as possible. The status quo is clearly unacceptable.

Farmers invest a lot of time and money into their crops

Perhaps if consumers had to pay a fee to help farmers recoup they would see things differently

To the Expositor:

This is a letter to those opposed to farmers who are trying to manage the exploding populations of wildlife, which are destroying crops and livestock.

Canada geese were very rare on the Manitoulin when I was growing up. They rarely stopped here on their migratory routes and never stayed here in the summer. Now they are hatching in most lakes, swamps and wherever there is water around. They have closed down many beaches and are messing up lawns and parks, which people like to use and enjoy.

Sandhill cranes were unheard of here and now look at the crops they destroy. In my younger years, raccoons were never seen here. As farmers know they are very destructive to crops. Bears were also rare here, but with the help of MNRF relocating nuisance bears to the Island in the past their population has flourished. They destroy crops and kill and maim livestock.

If our governments sit back and do nothing, with these wildlife population explosions, where is our food going to come from in the future when all crops are destroyed? Farmers invest a lot of time and money putting these crops in the ground and to have them destroyed by wildlife is very disheartening and costly. Insurances never cover the total loss of crops in the ground. Perhaps if consumers had to pay a fee to help farmers recoup some of their losses they would have a different understanding of this issue. Remember what cormorants did to our fish populations, which are slowly recovering.

Food for thought!

The NDP might be a change for the better

Technological catastrophe is going to sent us back to the stoneage

To the Expositor:

I have seen some campaign ads that suggest to me that having an NDP government for a change might be better. Their plan for creating jobs sounds good. Giving tax breaks to small businesses will help create more jobs. Right now this technology we have is taking a lot of jobs away. Back in my days of working I used to see a lot people working and it was manual labor that they were doing. It did keep us a little bit healthier because of that hard work. With this technology it's too easy, that's why people are having problems with obesity. It's because they are sitting on their butts all day behind their computers, that's not healthy. This technology is bad for people, it teaches how to be lazy and the NDP is saying that they will put money into the health care system.

We need that this Harper government took away and they mention about old age pension, that they are going to bring it back down to the age of 65 so anyone who wants to collect a pension. This should be freedom of choice for the citizens to make instead of being ordered around.

Furthermore with this technology, it will cause mankind to bring catastrophe into this world and that scientists are already talking about this. When this happens it will be like back into the stone-age and I could see this coming, it's just a matter of time before it happens. That's why I hate this technology, I know what it is and it's like evil.

Seeking information on Flying Cloud

1957 visitor to Manitoulin wants to learn more

To the Expositor:

I have only ever been to Manitoulin Island once and that was a very long time ago. It would have been about 1957 that I was there on a camping trip with my parents and three sisters.

Memory likes to play tricks with us but it seems to me that the man I am photographed standing next to was called Flying Cloud.

Is there anybody on up your way who remembers the man? He could be somebody's grandfather or uncle.

more lettersHarper's surplus is built on the backs of Canada's aboriginal communitiesMore than $1 billion was left unspent in the Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development BudgetTo the Expositor:

Harper keeps stepping in "cow-pies." In a recent televised debate he talked about "ordinary" Canadians, "new" Canadians, and "old-stock" Canadians. Let's remind him that anybody who arrived in North America after 1492, 1534, 1763, 1812 or 1867 is "new stock" in Anishinaabe eyes. When the treaties were signed between "Indian" peoples and the British Crown, promises were made that were to be kept "as long as the waters flow, the sun shines, and the grasses grow." Guess Canada doesn't need to adhere to the treaty promises anymore because of the drought in the west—grasses aren't growing; the sun obscured by smoke from out-of-control wildfires—the sun doesn't shine. Will the waters continue to flow? Great Lakes water levels fluctuate and people south of us are eyeing up our fresh water lakes to counter their drought. How are these conditions tracked and monitored? Who knows? Harper muzzled the scientists and cancelled the long form census. Canada did not honour the treaty promises anyway, as demonstrated by the $1 billion that it did not spend in the Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development department of the federal government. Guess that's where Harper got his "surplus" from.

There are land claims being negotiated here and there in Indian country including one that affects Whitefish River people. There is a big problem with that land claim however, and it has to do with what people are calling it. It's supposed to be a land claim—it's become a money claim. The way I figure it, if Whitefish River's council and the federal government agree to settle the claim by accepting cash money, then it's a money claim. A land claim is a land claim. Land for land is what it should be.

As it is, there are people closeted together on postage-stamp sized plots of land called reserves. This makes it all the easier for governments to count, contain, corral, and control the people. Anishinaabe social structure consists of families, nuclear and extended; clans; communities; and nations. When you glom them all together in one or two neighbourhoods, it's easy for things to get out of control, as in drive-by drug dealers making their rounds; as in dogs roaming free despite dog bylaws; as in kids roaring around in ATVs without helmets, and so on. No elbow room—big social tension. On the other hand, if a land claim is settled on a land-for-land basis, this will free up territory so that Anishinaabek can spread the people back out on the land again. When someone has elbow room, it's easier to think about how to make a living in a culturally appropriate and inclusive way.

There was an announcement just recently about 150 people losing their jobs in a Northeastern Ontario hospital. It doesn't take a great leap of imagination to think that some of those folks will be at risk of homelessness. Some of them are in economic or housing situations that are precarious—just think of how the banks get nervous at the prospect of someone possibly missing a mortgage payment.

Then there was the lady who was found in Mindemoya—homeless. This is called provisionally accommodated. Examples are those who are in short-term, temporary accommodations such as hospitals, motels, institutions, prisons, or places without permanent housing arrangements. These are places without security of tenure.

There's another type of homelessness called emergency sheltered. This includes folks staying in homeless shelters or shelters to escape family violence, to escape natural disasters, fires, or floods. Then there's unsheltered which refers to people who are absolutely homeless, who live on the streets, or live in places that are not intended for human living. Unsheltered includes those who live in public places, or private places without permission or contract. Unsheltered are also those who live in places not meant for permanent human living.

How big is the issue? In 2013, the Native Women's Association of Canada stated that more than 1 million people in Canada experience difficulty keeping their housing. CBC News reported in 2014 that 30,000 Canadians are homeless every night. Fifty-five percent of those living on the streets in Thunder Bay are aboriginal. The Homelessness Partnering Secretariat has estimated that between 150,000 and 300,000 persons experience homelessness in Canada in a given year. In 2009, 147,000 people stayed in an emergency shelter at least once, this is a rate of about 1 in 230 Canadians. Women and children at 546 shelters in 2010 constituted a 74 percent occupancy rate. Structural causes include inadequate income, lack of affordable housing, lack of access to health supports, and discrimination. Systems failure happens when care and support systems fall apart, as in not planning well for hospital discharge, or lack of support for immigrants and refugees. Individual and relational causes are traumas from house fires, job loss, family break-up or domestic violence, and extreme poverty. Oh, Canada—your home on Native land.

Harper's unrecognizable Canada*Little did we know it would make the one percent richerTo the Expositor:

In 2006, Stephen Harper said "You won't recognize Canada when I'm through with it."

What could have been a rallying cry for reforms that would benefit all Canadians turned out to be more threatening to the lives of ordinary citizens than reassuring.

Little did we know that he would start by making the wealthiest one percent even wealthier, at the expense of a vital and thriving middle class.

And then go on to undermine the future of the next generation by reducing the number of protected lakes and rivers from 2,500,000 to a paltry 159, practically giving corporations a licence to pollute our pristine waters.

And who thinks there is anything fair about forcing 100 percent of workers to pay

Employment Insurance, and then telling more than 60 percent of unemployed workers who apply for it they can't have it? How is this a part of an economic plan that helps those people?

If any of these decisions affected Mr. Harper or his family, he would never vote for the person that brought them to the table. Clearly he no longer has any idea of what most Canadians have to deal with, as a result of his reckless disregard for their welfare and their children's future.

Why would anyone vote for a party that no longer relates to us and/or no longer even cares to do so?

Time to go, Mr. Harper. You are not one of us...

Sincerely,

Deborah Wilson

No sympathy for the ticketed*A wish that other towns would enforce their rules tooTo the Expositor:

To the people that received their parking tickets, it's about time the town started issuing parking tickets ('Little Current parking tickets shock and dismay retirees,' September 16, Page 4). I just wish the other towns on the Island would enforce the laws they have on the books. Parking in fire lanes, parking in wheelchair parking when not qualified, smoking in banned areas (our halls and arenas) the list goes on forever. People have been abusing any of the bylaws we have because no one enforces those laws until some one complains. Good example is the people around Morrow's Road (Central Manitoulin) complaining about a trailer being parked where it is not allowed according to the bylaws. How about we get the laws on our books enforced before making up new ones!

As for the people who do get tickets in the downtown of Little Current, looks good on you. Those parking signs have been there for awhile now, you got complacent and it caught up to you. So many times I have had a hard time finding parking during the winter (which is off season) that I have changed my plans and went else where with my business so it is to the benefit of all businesses that someone does enforce the parking.

Our bylaw enforcement officer should be a bylaw enforcement officer not a building inspector and dog catcher at the same time so the officer can enforce the laws.

An analysis of Stephen Harper's economic stewardship*"His government will likely be remembered as Canada's worst economic manager"To the Expositor:

Sound economic stewardship, Mr. Harper?

The Harper School of Management is that of big business, big oil or simply put: that of the corporate elite that is dominated by what is more and more referred to as the one percent. It is an ideology steeped in the marginalization of the public good in favour of self-interest and fear of the other. It rewards self-interest at the expense of the public good.

Here's how it works:

Corporations tell governments, such as Harper's, that increases in corporate taxes, will cause their country problems. That they may simply have to relocate their operations and/or move their investments to other countries with lower corporate tax rates.

They also claim that lower taxes could actually bring growth to the whole national economy and thereby create the possibility for the government to finance and improve the services it offers to its citizens.

They, and their lobbyists, suggest that decreasing the corporate tax revenue a government collects is good because it grows the economy. This in turn provides a base for more taxes, so that government ends up with more revenue, with which it can do more for its citizens, particularly those who are in need.

Sounds like an all round win-win to disciples such as Harper. Definitely the one he has been spinning to Canadians at the behest of deep-pocketed corporate interests who play one country off against the other...right across the world.

Well there's an even stronger argument to be made that it is in fact a lose-lose approach to our country's economic governance. That it is little more than a race to the bottom that really only benefits the rich. That widens the income disparity between the rich and the poor (and brings on the gradual yet steady disappearance of our middle class).

A good example is what has factually happened to Canada under Harper's rule.

When the Harper Conservatives came to power in 2006, they ate up Canada's hard-earned surplus as well as the $5 billion in reserve that had been set aside for the implementation of the long negotiated Kelowna Accord unanimously agreed upon by the AFN, the federal government and all of the provinces and territories.

The corporate tax rate of the day was set at 21 percent.

By the end of 2011, the Harper Conservatives had lowered that corporate tax rate to 16.5 percent.

In January 2012, the Harper government lowered the corporate tax rate yet again, to 15 percent.

The annual cost of these corporate gifts (aka corporate welfare) is more than $13 billion. That's $13 billion less in government's coffers: revenue that is, in principle, intended to provide an improved range of services to Canadians.

So the "win-win" that big business that Harper would have us believe it is actually plays out as the following "lose-lose":

Short of the lost revenue it needed as a result of these corporate tax cuts, the Harper government went on to cut all federal government department budgets by 10 percent. (Since the costs of public services are easier to measure than their benefits, politicians of Harper's ilk can cut those costs with no obvious immediate effect on the benefits; benefits that can often take years to show up, not so much as numbers as in the experiences of people who suffer the consequences; i.e. the ill effects of deregulation, self-regulation, the dismantling of environmental protection laws, the loss of scientific research, the effect on veterans services, etc.)

This renders government departments less able to provide the range and the quality of the services they do/did. What a superb way of rendering our government services as inept as its critics like to claim. What a superb way of justifying the sale and privatization of a number of public services. Harper gets to put the revenue generated from their sale (or give away) into the government's coffers to reduce the size of his year after year deficits. (An often unmentioned but very real side effect of "privatization" is a little something called "kickbacks" be they in brown envelopes or in political party contributions.)

Meanwhile, the cost of it all is borne disproportionately more by the 99 percent while the one percent get exponentially richer.

The interests of the people and the environment take a backseat to the economic interests of the few.

To make a long story short, under Harper we have seen all our eggs put in the same (tar sands) basket.

The only real growth we have seen in the non-petroleum export sector of our economy is in our export of military related equipment, weaponry and supplies (i.e. over $14 billion in sales to Saudi Arabia alone in 2014).

It's no coincidence that while Harper openly criticizes Cuba on its human rights, he has nothing to say when it comes to Saudi Arabia's far worse human rights record on both the domestic front or the foreign front (i.e. Yemen). Our military sales see us ranked as the world's sixth greatest merchant of death.

Harper's government led us into debt and devoted the rest of its time in power to trying to get us out of debt by more cuts to government programs.

Under Harper we have faced a deficit year after another during each of his years in power, and this year will be no different.

Canada has racked up a full 25 percent of its $633 billion national debt under Harper's tenure yet he continues to maintain his is government led by good economists and good financial managers. Since the proof is not in the pudding that this is so, the best I can say is that he is a so-so bookkeeper (no offence intended to bookkeepers.) His government will likely be remembered as Canada's worst economic manager; a classic example of what can happen when one rules in the belief that might is right. His lack of compassion is evident as is his utilitarian approach to governance. He rules by fiat, cares not about the environment our children will be obliged to contend with and wants us to stay the course. What he is doing is tantamount to the deckhands who busied themselves rearranging the chairs on the Titanic's deck as it was sinking. Think about it. Vote ABC (Anything But Conservative).

"A hole-in-one on Manitoulin, what away to bring this home," enthused co-organizer Ray Francis of Little Current. "Thanks, Dave."

"It was quite a surprise," admitted Mr. Shawanda, a finance director at Whitefish River First Nation. Mr. Shawanda used a 6-iron to drive his ball the 163 yards from the pin to the flag and a rangefinder to gauge the distance. "I got it at the gift shop," he said of the laser rangefinder. "It's a handy little gadget."

The tournament's previous 11 outings were held in Thunder Bay, where the late Rick Francis of Wikwemikong, Ray's brother, lived and worked. This is the first time the tournament has taken place on Manitoulin and although the weather was iffy at the start, things soon brightened up.

"Although the day started out pretty miserable, albeit mother nature or as one sponsor put it 'maybe Rick himself helped with the weather'," said organizer Ray Francis of Little Current. "The rain stopped and the wind came with some intensity—one golfer passed by me and said 'now we know how they feel when they play the British Open'—the flag was almost bent half over from the wind, but that wind was soon parting the clouds and letting in the sun."

Mr. Francis was two holes in under the newly revealed sun when his daughter called him and told him the news that golfer David Shawanda made a hole-in-one on the 11 hole to win the Dodge Dart.

"A huge thank you to Wayne Legge and Manitoulin Chrysler for their support time and effort with both the Dodge Journey and the Dart," said Mr. Francis. "The evening was enjoyed with a wonderful meal and video of past events with Rick's family."

"This was my first tournament as a co-chair with my brother Kerry and a huge thank you to all those volunteers," continued Mr. Francis. Mr. Francis noted that there were 70 attendees at the dinner and that some 60 golfers had signed up for the tournament.

Mr. Shawanda was to pick up the car yesterday (Tuesday). "I could have picked it up yesterday," said the golfer on Monday morning, "but we had already made plans to go to Toronto today."

The 13th Annual Rick Francis Memorial Golf Classic is booked at Rainbow Ridge Golf Course for August 6, 2016 with a practice round to be held on August 5, 2016.

Scrapbook project scores goal with Kickstarter campaign

by Isobel Harry

GORE BAY—In the August 19 edition of this paper, we reported on a Kickstarter online campaign that was 'crowdfunding' to produce a limited edition of an illustrated art memoir, entitled "Scrapbook: a story of art" by Gore Bay artist Jack Whyte. Designed by Jack's son Dylan and daughter-in-law Ashley Whyte, who provided technical, editing and promotional expertise, the campaign to raise funds was a risk they felt was worth taking. The fact that 'The Tragedy of the Asia,' a previous book produced by Jack and Dylan Whyte is now on the Great Lakes Marine History curriculum of Bowling Green University in Ohio provided an added impetus.

With a deadline of September 7 to reach their goal of $14,000 to produce the 456-page "Scrapbook" in an edition of 100 copies, the nail-biting had started in earnest by the time they had their 'Scrapbook Party' two days before.

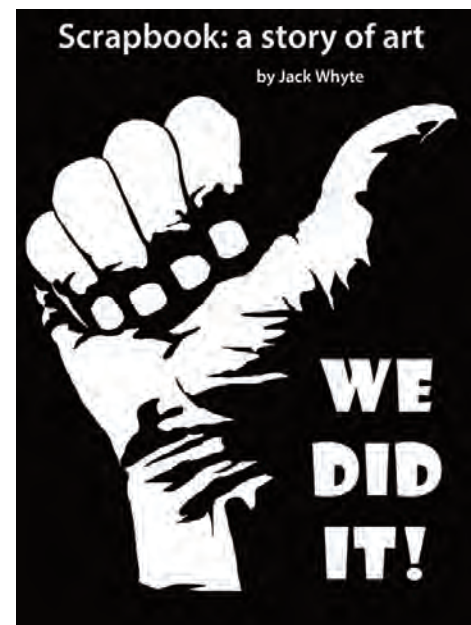

The Whytes' shop in Gore Bay's Harbour Centre was full on Saturday afternoon, September 5, as people came to view a slide show about the making of the book, to browse the gallery of Jack Whyte original paintings and paper collages and to meet the artist. "We got lots of pre-orders for the book," says Ashley. "It was crowded in here, with the spillover milling in the hallway."

"The Island can be a challenge," continues Ashley, "in terms of promotion and marketing. We did lots of advertising, we promoted the "Scrapbook" campaign to hundreds of people, in person and often by phone, but the major work was done through networking and on social media, on Facebook and on our Kickstarter site. Sharing is a big part of how we get the word out."

By the afternoon of the party, the funding goal had been 35 percent met. "We knew it would be difficult to meet our target, but we still felt every potential was possible," adds Ashley.

"I was talking to a lot of people, and so was Dylan, showing the book, the original work, and making the presentation, so I didn't even spend any time with a woman who said she was "a big fan" of Jack's."

The woman looked at an original Jack Whyte piece hanging on the wall of the shop. Entitled "It's Only a Paper Moon," it is a collage of hundreds of intricate indigo paper cuts illustrating an old cabin illuminated by a high yellow moon. It is also the work that was being offered as a reward for the top level of backer, what the Whytes called their "Cornerstone Contributor," in the Kickstarter campaign.

The number of backers climbed to 43. With only twelve hours to go, another backer stepped up. The pledge took the project above the set goal, for a total of $14,313. It was the "big fan." Suddenly, they were very successfully 102 percent-funded.

"We're an example for others," enthuses Jack. "We showed people it can be done! We had the proof to show them, the book was real." New to social media and Kickstarter, Jack Whyte is a convert: "This is democracy in action!" he crows. "Crowdfunding allows artists to pursue what they want to do without having to rely on the grant system that has been crippled by misuse."

"We will publish 100 books and then our job will be to fill the pre-orders and sell the others online and in the shop, and to create other books. The book is $119 plus shipping, which adds in most cases another $20. The Kickstarter funds allow us to cover all production costs, and the cost of the Kickstarter campaign itself," says Ashley.

Donations to the "Scrapbook" campaign averaged $125, higher than average for a contribution to Kickstarter. "The project could not have happened without the contributions of each and every one of our 44 backers. We are grateful to each backer, each amount of generosity is equally important to the success of the "Scrapbook" project."

"Scrapbook: a story of art" will be available for sale at Whytes Art Gallery and Cultural Gift Shop in Gore Bay's Harbour Centre at the end of October. For more information, visit www.whytesonline.com.

Terry Fox Run raises over $6K Island-wide

by Michael Erskine

MANITOULIN—The weather was nigh onto perfect for the 35th annual Terry Fox Run for the Cure as supporters lined up at the starting line to run, walk and cycle in support of cancer research.

This year's event in Little Current was held as usual at Low Island and featured a Zumba dance warmup for participants, a silent auction featuring many donated items, a colouring station and numerous hula hoops from Gazoo Hoops, along with plenty of healthy food and snacks and water to keep the troops' energy up and well-hydrated.

Little Current organizer Joanna Rosenbaum reported that proceeds from this year's event will likely exceed $5,000. "We have more than $4,600 in now and there are more pledges coming in today," she said. "I think it is safe to say we will have raised more than $5,000 this year when everything has come in."

One of the most popular items on the silent auction table was a curried chicken dinner (valued at "priceless") prepared and served at your home by North-east Town Mayor Al MacNevin. Mayor MacNevin also served as the official starter for the event, pulling an air-powered horn from his pocket to launch the runners off their marks.

As is traditionally the case, the Manitoulin Amateur Radio Club's ARES (amateur radio emergency services) group was on hand to man checkpoints along the route and to ensure that the participants were kept safe and sound throughout the run.

Algoma-Manitoulin MPP Mike

Colleen Mailloux teaches a Zumba lesson to an enthusiastic group before the Terry Fox Run on Sunday.

Mantha was on hand, complete with team MantaRays T-shirts (one of which he presented to starter Mayor MacNevin). Although Mr. Mantha begged off running ("I am a bit too curvaceous," he quipped), the MPP did walk the route with a green-shirted team from M'Chigeeng First Nation.

A concurrent run in Silver Water organized by Jessica Sampson was blessed with the same clear blue skies and reported $1,315 raised and 18 participants.

'I'll hold my nose to vote,' says Grand Chief Madahbee

NIPISSING FIRST NATION—Anishinabek Nation Grand Council Chief Patrick Madahbee says that he'll hold his nose to vote in the October 19 federal election.

"Some of our people say they feel uncomfortable voting to elect candidates for other governments than our own. I respect their choice," says Chief Madahbee. "We all look forward to the day when Canada lives up to the words of its own Constitution and respects a nation-to-nation relationship with us. But, until then, and because the federal government has virtually abandoned First Nations for the past decade, I am personally prepared to 'hold my nose' and cast my ballot."

Chief Madahbee says he would rather not participate in Canada's elections, but is concerned that "not taking advantage of a right won by our warriors who fought under Canadian flags could condemn our communities to more legislative assaults against our treaty and inherent rights."

One of the factors that influenced Chief Madahbee's decision is the lengths to which the Harper government has gone to make it difficult for eligible First Nations citizens to vote on October 19, he states.

Voters are supposed to be able to check online to see if they are registered to vote October 19, but we have heard of situations where the system is not recognizing on-reserve postal codes.

"New election legislation requires voters to have a piece of government-issued ID that has a photo and address," he continues. This excludes Status Cards. Voters without photo ID must present two pieces of identification, one of which includes their address. "But many on-reserve homes don't have street addresses, and lack of adequate housing means some of our citizens don't have a fixed address of their own."

Elections Canada says First Nations governments can issue letters to their citizens which can serve as one of the two pieces of ID required to vote.

"We are concerned that these kind of barriers could discourage our citizens from voting, and urge Anishinabek leaders to be pro-active about ensuring that community members are included on voters' lists and supplied with letters of identification from their band offices," says the Grand Council Chief of 39 First Nations in Ontario.

Before October 19, Chief Madahbee says "it is important for Anishinabek leaders to help community members know the positions taken by local candidates and their parties on issues important to First Nations, such as equity in education funding, our rights of consultation and accommodation for resource projects in our territories, a national inquiry into murdered and missing indigenous women, and measures to reduce the risk of environmental damage to our lands and waters."

This information can be found in local media election coverage, and is available from analysis developed by the Chiefs of Ontario and Assembly of First Nations. It can be distributed by band newsletters and websites, and social media platforms. Some First Nations have arranged for area candidates to hold round-table discussions in their community halls which will be streamed live on the Internet.

"National party leaders have never before paid so much attention to First Nations issues. They believe there will be a larger-than-ever First Nations turnout at the polls, and have seen statistics that indicate our voters could have a major influence in 51 ridings across Canada."

"I encourage all Anishinabek leaders to do what they can to help community members who decide they want to vote to be able to cast informed ballots October 19," says Chief Madahbee.

LCYC racing season comes to an end with the Bousquet Challenge, Anchor Classic

by Greg Wright

NORTH CHANNEL—The Little Current Yacht Club (LCYC) completed their season of racing this past weekend holding two races. On Saturday, the Bousquet Challenge, and on Sunday, the Anchor Inn/Labatt Fall Classic. The Club hosts a total of five races with two race weekends of two races each and the Centis Cup (ladies at the helm). The Cooper Cup and Eaton Cup are held in June each year.

All of the funds generated by the club races are used to support the youth sailing program offered in July and August to kids of all ages. This summer's program was a great success thanks to Tracey Chapman who coordinated the program supported by other LCYC volunteers. For information about youth sailing and club activities visit www.lcyc.ca.

For many years the club had one boat from Lions Head skippered by Tim Matheson. This weekend the club had two boats Aquila and Elusive with Aquila skippered by Tim's son. The Lions Head boys enjoy their time in Little Current racing and vow to be back for next year's racing.

The competitors in Saturday's Bousquet Challenge in Spinnaker Class: Aquila, Blue Jacket, Elusive, In the Jib and Main class: Escape Plan and Sojourn. Jessie and Moonshadow.

The crew of Elusive came first in all four races this season and won the Little Current Yacht Club Boat of the Year Award, which was awarded following the weekend events.

The starting line of the Anchor Inn/Labatt Fall Classic is awash in sails.

Spinnaker class was won by Elusive with a corrected time of one hour 58 minutes and 11 seconds. Blue Jacket second with two hours five minutes and 31 seconds and Aquila third at two hours six minutes and 54 seconds.

In Jib and Main, Jessie came first at two hours 11 minutes and 20 seconds with second going to Moonshadow at two hours 47 minutes and 46 seconds.

Presentations were made at the Anchor Inn by Chris Bousquet.

On Sunday all boats in the Anchor Inn/Labatt Fall Classic raced against each other in one class. The boats from Saturday were joined by Knotty and Temptress bringing the fleet to nine boats racing for the Cup. Elusive won the race and the Boat of the Year Award with a corrected time of two hours 33 minutes and four seconds. Second place was picked up by Escape Plan with a time of two hours 23 minutes and 40 seconds. Third went to Blue Jacket at two hours 25 minutes and 59 seconds.

The weather was great for racing with good breezes and decent weather. The Club would like to thank all the Race and Club sponsors, supporters and they look forward to racing next season.

...Addictions program focussed on youth hits funding stage

...continued from page 1 ties was the after care, so we wanted to ensure that element was also there. We developed two programs to service youth ages 13 to 30. The Four Directions program was developed for youth 13 to 19, while the Seven Grandfathers program is for 19 to 30-year-olds. We've been working closely with Karen developing the programs to ensure best practices and to address the unique needs of indigenous youth. We have also been working closely with the (UCCMM) communities."

Mr. Gilchrist explained that both programs are designed in three phases centered around the four pillars.

"The first phase of Four Directions is wilderness stabilization, which is eight to 12 weeks in length," said Mr. Gilchrist. "Through wilderness stabilization the individual is removed from triggers and is able to reset and focus on health and wellness while starting to develop a treatment plan. The second phase is residential treatment. This step is six months to a year, but the entire program is client centered, so it will depend a lot on the individual."

The individuals will live in apartment settings on the Gwecwaadziwin campus, which Mr. Gilchrist said they hope to build behind the Kenjgewin Teg Education Institute.

"It would be the perfect location as part of this phase if the individual is working, volunteering or going to school," continued Mr. Gilchrist. "The final phase is outpatient after care. We work with the family and community to reintegrate the patient. It might just be a weekend visit at first, but once they have successfully transitioned we follow up with another six months. Research shows that the longer patients have a connection to the treatment program, the higher success they have."

"For the first phase of the Seven Grandfathers program, the entirety of the treatment is conducted in the wilderness for three months," said Mr. Gilchrist. "The second phase is residential aftercare."

This phase is similar to the Four Directions program with individuals working, volunteering or going to school while living in an apartment style setting.

"It gives patients a level of independence, but also consistency and the support if they have a bad day and need to speak to a councillor," noted Mr. Gilchrist.

"The final phase of the Seven Grandfathers program is community after care," he said. "We help the patient transition back into the community, arrange referrals and work with the family—it is a holistic approach."

The UCCMM has been working with an architect and developed a concept for a facility and is in conversation with various ministries to obtain the funding for the next phase of the program.

Though the facility and program will initially just service UCCMM youths, Mr. Gilchrist said that it has been developed in such a way as to allow for a broader service area in the future.

"We see time and time again a gap in youth services in the North," said Mr. Gilchrist. "We are moving forward on this full force. We have developed a solid program and there is a need and we are exploring a lot of promising avenues for funding."

BA) in earlier September "are inadequate and ignore elementary school issues."

"On September 7, after insisting ETFO accept terms designed for secondary teachers, the Liberal government and OPSBA abruptly left the bargaining table," said ETFO President Sam Hammond in the release. "ETFO has waited more than a week for the government and OPSBA to return to the bargaining table. We have heard nothing from them."

A notice from the OPSBA noted that "on September 11, OPSBA and the Crown tabled a comprehensive proposal to ETFO teachers. The settlement offer mirrors the deal reached with OSSTF, the union representing English public secondary school teachers, with whom OPSBA also has a bargaining relationship. We are focused on reaching an agreement and hope that ETFO will seriously consider the offer on the table."

But the union has insisted that the provincial government is attempting to foist a cookie cutter approach to settling labour contracts that is not appropriate to realities in the classroom and the workplace.

"The government is trying to cut corners by offering elementary teachers a deal designed for secondary teachers," noted Mr. Hammond in the release. "Elementary teachers and students have different needs than secondary teachers and students."

Mr. Hammond challenged the government's position on the negotiations. "Despite what the government is implying, it has not offered our members the same conditions as secondary teachers," he said. "There is a significant disparity in how elementary and secondary schools are funded. That funding gap results in larger class sizes, fewer student supports and poorer working conditions in our elementary schools. The deal the government insists ETFO accept does absolutely nothing to close that gap."

The release indicated that the ETFO will continue its escalated work-to-rule "until a fair agreement can be reached." Until such an agreement, teachers will continue to provide instruction and other supports to students, notes the ETFO, but the union has also indicated it will begin rotating one-day strikes in October "if sufficient progress has not occurred at the central bargaining table."

The union has assured that "parents and the public will be provided with adequate notice should these one-day rotating strikes proceed."

"If the Liberal government had stayed at the table and not walked away, it's possible we could have reached a deal by now, and the escalation of ETFO's work-to-rule could have been avoided," said Mr. Hammond. "We need to get back to the bargaining table as soon as possible and negotiate a fair deal for elementary teachers and students. That's the best way of ending the WTR and averting one-day rotating strikes in October."

ence on the impact the operations are having on the water and sediment beneath the fish farm operations but will assist in designing more efficient and accurate testing regimes. That goal has the potential to not only improve knowledge of what is going on beneath the waves, notes Mr. Meeker, but also to introduce better and more efficient and cost-effective testing that will benefit the industry. A win-win situation. "This isn't regulatory," he said. "It is research to try and to do a better job of the work we do and the dollars we spend on monitoring."

Under the direction of Supervisor Cheryl Podemski, known affectionately as "the bug lady," the team has been assisted in their work by Mr. Meeker, who is a trained commercial diver.

"I have been working with her for close to 20 years," he said. Mr. Meeker had high praise for Ms. Podemski and the skill of her team. "They are one of the top groups of researchers," said Mr. Meeker. "They are as good as anywhere in the world."

Ms. Podemski earned her nickname for her expertise in the realm of phytoplankton and zooplankton (microscopic plants and animals) that live in the sediment on lake bottoms and has been leading a major study at the famed Freshwater Institute in Winnipeg, Manitoba and the Experimental Lakes Area, which holds 58 small lakes in a forested region of north-west Ontario.

The results of the testing at the Blue Goose fish farm sites, posits Mr. Meeker, will add considerably to the science and knowledge involving an agricultural industry that holds great potential for meeting the healthy nutritional needs of a world whose supplies of fish have been in a steady decline in the wild for several decades.

Mr. Meeker said that he held out little hope that the project and the science it discovers will have any impact on critics of the fish farming industry who have already made up their minds, but he said he did hope that it would suit to inform those who wish to learn more through the application of solid science.

"I believe it will make a difference to anyone who has an open mind and will look at the evidence," he said. "Not only those who have the scientific training to analyse the data, there are lots of intelligent people who are not necessarily trained in science, but who can look at the knowledge gained and learn more about the facts unclouded by emotions. Those are the people I want to do this for; they may not understand the technical details, but it (the analysis of the data) can help inform them—not the crap that some people put out there."

Mr. Meeker pointed out that both the commercial and sports fishery on the Great Lakes has been under severe strain in recent years from a near perfect storm of invasive species that have severely impacted the food supply of indigenous wild fish.

"Any ecosystem is a complex system and it is not just one issue that is causing the decline (in the wild fisheries)," he noted. He agreed that part of the challenge facing the fisheries may even be linked to the more positive practices in terrestrial farming and nutrient conscious landowners near water bodies. Thirty or 40 years ago fertilizer was cheap, now farmers are applying their fertilizers in a much more targeted manner and landowners beside waterways are not fertilizing their lawns the same way, he noted. "They are being far more conscious of the potential impact they may be having."

"The result is that there are far fewer phosphates going into the water than back in the '60s when the Great Lakes were turning into pea soup," he said. "Now there may not be enough." This has been a consensus of the Great Lakes fisheries industries for some time, noted Mr. Meeker. "But the general public has not been made aware of that."

Algae provides the food source for plankton and plankton form the core food source for fish in the wild. "Plankton is the key," he said. "Every species in the Great Lakes needs that plankton."

There does not seem to be any quick fix or solution to the phosphate conundrum or the decline of the fisheries, making farmed fish an increasingly important source of global nutritional needs.

Mr. Meeker's project has the potential to help to make the fish farming industry more efficient in tracking and/or rectifying any potentially negative impact it might be having on the Great Lakes ecosystems while at the same time reducing the costs to producers—a win-win situation.

an inspiration to me," he said, noting that the local musician acted as a mentor and provided a blueprint on becoming more than just a musician, a true entertainer.

Mr. Gilmore's mother joined him onstage during the evening, singing a Merle Haggard song ("I don't know anyone who can sing a Merle Haggard song better," he said.) Ms. Gilmore sang a number of songs with son before telling him how proud she was of him and sealing her comments with a kiss.

The evening's entertainment was largely provided by Down Yonder, itself containing several inductees, including the redoubtable fiddling barber Doug Hore, who launched into a lively fiddle tune to start the evening off and his fellow bandmates Glen McDougall (bass), Tim Shaw (drums who will also be inducted into the Great Northern Opry along with Mr. Gilmore), Debbie Robinson (vocals), Jeff Pyette (lead guitar) and Jan Carscellan (keyboard) soon joined him in delivering a number of old country standards.

A melancholy moment was introduced to the proceedings by Ms. Robinson, who sang a rendition of 'Silver Wings' dedicated to the late (Anne) Elaine McGauley who had passed away earlier that morning.

In a more humorous moment later in the evening, Ms. Robinson relayed an inspirational short story she had received that spoke of the importance of savouring life's joys while one is able. Look out Stuart McLean, Ms. Robinson has definitely established herself as a consummate storyteller.

Great Northern Opry inductee Ben Lentir was one of the musical guests who took part in the evening along with Mr. Gilmore's Double Barrel bandmate Barry Williamson, who took over on bass while Mr. McDougall strapped on a guitar.

As the bands launched into 'Waltz Across Texas' couples began to drift onto the dance floor, pair by pair, much to the gratification of the musicians.

"People ask me all the time 'what are you going to play?'" said Mr. Gilmore. "I tell them that I really don't know for sure until I get up on stage." It is important as an entertainer to gauge your audience and to tailor your song list and repertoire to what gets the toes tapping. "When people are headed out onto the dance floor, you know you are on the right track," he said.

There will be eight buses from across Northern Ontario pulling into Sault Ste. Marie for the Great Northern Opry Show and Dance on Friday, November 6, from 9 pm to 1 am. That show will feature Back in Time from North Bay, along with special guests.

"There will be two events held on Saturday evening, running back to back," noted Mr. McDougall. "The first will be The Northern Ontario Country Music Awards Show from 6:30 to 9:30 pm. Afterwards, from 10 pm to 1 am, there is the weekend's second event, the Great Northern Opry Show and Dance."

The awards show on Saturday evening will feature music by White Stallion and Friends from Sault Ste. Marie and the Master of Ceremonies for the event will be Glen McDougall and Scott Infanti.

Inductees into The Great Northern Opry this year will be: Robert Sabovitch, Cochrane District; Chantal Delorme; Cochrane District; Ervil Boreland, Nipissing District; Kevin Russell, Sudbury District; Dana Lee Hebert, Cochrane District; Tim Shaw, Manitoulin District; Jeff Gilmore, Manitoulin District; and Debbie Rivard, Algoma District.

The 2015 Northern Ontario Country Music Hall of Fame inductees will be Don Brose and Al Mooney. The Saturday evening Great Northern Opry Show and Dance will feature Yvan Nadeau and The Bandidos from Timmins, along with more special guests. The weekend will wind up with the "Great Northern Opry Country Gospel Show" on Sunday morning, from 10 am until noon. This show will feature NOCMA recording artist Scott Infanti and friends. "This show is second to none across Ontario," said Mr. McDougall. "I really believe they could take this show touring across the country."

The weekend ticket package for all four shows is just $65 and can be obtained by calling Dave at 705-257-9650. "We also have bus packages available from the outlying districts to Sault Ste. Marie that include tickets and accommodations," said Mr. McDougall, but he cautioned to call early for tickets as they sell out quickly. For information about these bus packages please contact Beth or Glen at 705-377-4643.

als have a plan to invest in green infrastructure, create clean jobs, and protect our environment right across the country.

A Trudeau-led government will invest in the green infrastructure projects that so many Canadian communities desperately need—projects like local water and wastewater facilities, climate resilient infrastructure, energy efficient buildings, and systems to protect against changing weather.

In 2010, at the International Convention on Biodiversity, a number of countries including Canada committed to meet the Aichi Biodiversity Targets to protect freshwater, marine and coastal habitats. At that time Canada committed to protect at least 17 percent of terrestrial and inland water, and 10 percent of coastal and marine areas. At this point, Australia has protected 33.2 percent, the US 16.6 percent and Russia 11.6 percent. Canada has protected 1.3 percent. Contrary to popular belief, water is Canada's most valuable resource and should we fail to protect generations to come will pay the heaviest price.

A Liberal government would meet international commitments and invest in ocean science that would protect the health of fish stocks and monitor pollutants. We would strengthen laws, restore oversight and ensure thorough environmental assessments of projects that could impact fragile areas. We would review amendments to the Fisheries Act to incorporate modern safeguards to protect our oceans and freshwater habitat.

Canada has the potential to be a world leader in environmental protection, innovation and security. The Liberals understand that and has the plan to make it happen.

...Carol Hughes

We will meet our climate obligations by building a clean economy starting by eliminating the subsidies to the fossil fuel industry. New Democrats will invest in transit to help cities reduce emissions; implement a revenue-neutral cap and trade system; and, show up at the Paris climate meeting with targets and a plan.

We shouldn't have to choose between a strong economy and a clean environment. But in the last 10 years, the Conservatives have dismantled the laws protecting our air, land and water. New Democrats recognize that environmental debt is every bit as dangerous and real as fiscal debt, but for too long governments have allowed environmental debt to build without considering who inherits it.

The New Democrat plan will build sustainable prosperity. That includes making polluters pay, starting with cap-and-trade for carbon, rebuilding

Canada's gutted environmental assessment rules, and restoring our international reputation on climate change.

To say how far that takes Canada over 50 years is a guessing game, but imagine where will be if we continue to do nothing.

During this campaign Tom Mulcair said a New Democrats government will go to Paris in December and get us on track to work with the world and for the planet.

...André Robichaud

fuel-efficient vehicles and levies on fuel-inefficient vehicles; $36 million to get older vehicles off the road; $250 million carbon capture and storage research in the coal-fired electricity sector.

In 2008, the Conservative government announced that $100 million for international climate change adaptation through the World Bank to assist vulnerable countries. We are contributing an additional $300 million.

The 2009 budget provided $1 billion over five years for clean energy technologies.

In 2010, the Conservative government issued regulations for an average renewable fuel content of five percent in gasoline. This will result in reduction of greenhouse gas emissions by four megatons per year, equivalent to taking one million vehicles off the road.

Bill C-22, the Energy Safety and Security Act, enacted in February 2015, enhances safety and security in Canada's offshore petroleum and nuclear energy industries.

This builds on partnerships such as the 2012 Canada-Alberta Implementation Plan for scientifically rigorous and transparent environmental oil-sands monitoring.

The Conservative government has invested in clean energy projects that also strengthen the economy and create jobs. The government's $6.3 billion loan guarantee supports the Lower Churchill River Project, which will reduce GHG emissions, result in 1,500 jobs during each year of construction, and generate $1.9 billion in earnings for Newfoundland and Labrador.

This balanced approach taken by the Conservative Government for protecting the environment and the economy has proven effective. In 2013, Canada's GHG emissions were 3.1 percent lower than 2005 levels, and the economy grew by 12.9 percent.

A re-elected Harper government will continue its strategy of strong environmental commitment together with strengthening the economy and creating jobs for Canadians.

Three Northeast Town residents look to tribunal for final appeal of Ashley Drain

by Robin Burridge
LITTLE CURRENT—Northeast Town residents Michael Bailey, Mike Lecuyer and Edward Eadie have appealed the Ashley Drain to the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs (OMAFRA) Appeal Tribunal, with the hearing date set for next Tuesday, September 22 in Little Current.

“In the matter of the Drainage Act, R.S.O. 1990, C.D.17 as amended, and the matter of: appeals to the OMAFRA Appeal Tribunal by Michael Bailey, Little Current, Ontario under sections 48(1) and 54(1) of the Drainage Act from the Report of the Engineer and the decision of the Court of Revision; by Mike Lecuyer, Little Current, Ontario under section 48(1) of the Drainage Act from the Report of the Engineer; and by Edward Eadie, Little Current, Ontario under section 54(1) of the Drainage Act from the decision of the Court of Revision on the Ashley Drain in the Northeast Town,” states the Tribunal Order from OMAFRA. “The notices of appeal have identified proposed modifications to the drainage works, benefits of the drainage works are not commensurate with the estimated costs and changes to the assessment of costs of the drainage works.”

Mr. Bailey, Mr. Lecuyer and Mr. Eadie all appealed the drain at the Court of Revision for the Ashley Drain on Thursday, July 2, however none of the appeals were granted leading the proponents to file appeals with the tribunal (their last opportunity to appeal the project).

Keith Ashley originally petitioned for the drain, which will run from the Boozeneck Road, west to Ted Eadie’s property to Keith Ashley’s, running parallel to North Channel Drive and coming out at the Catholic Cemetery.

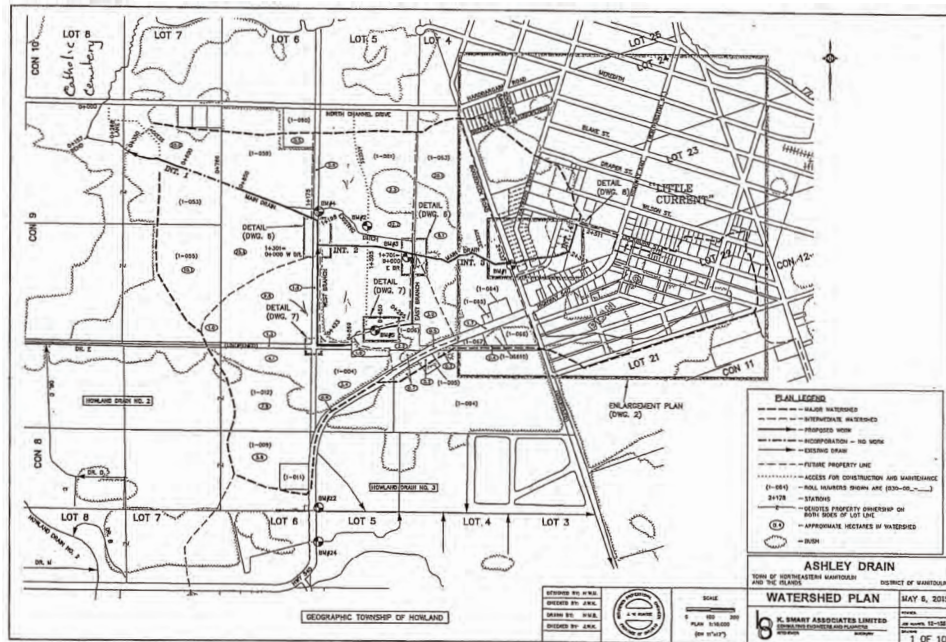

The drain includes a large watershed including properties from the top of Wilson Street out to Highway 540.

The cost of the drain (an estimated $240,000) will be split amongst all property owners within the area, with the cost allocated based on how much each property will benefit from the new drain.

The Northeast Town will bear the largest portion of the cost due to the municipal roadways and subdivision, totaling $101,000.

Mr. Bailey, in his appeal to the Court of Revision, stated that the drain will not benefit his property.

“I am on the south side of Highway 540, and unless the culverts on Highway 540 are lowered and ditching done to connect the Ashley Drain, there is no benefit to my property,” stated Mr. Bailey.

The Ashley Drain will run from the Boozeneck Road, west to Ted Eadie’s property to Keith Ashley’s, running parallel to North Channel Drive and coming out at the Catholic Cemetery.

The drainage engineer for K Smart agreed with Mr. Bailey that the Ashley Drain is of no benefit when considering the definition of benefit in the Drainage Act and the fact that Mr. Bailey’s property is a distance away from the Ashley Drain.

“However, indirectly the outlet liability assessment is actually a benefit to the Bailey property,” stated a report from K Smart filed for the Court of Revision. “Now that the Ashley Drain will create a proper outlet for drainage in the watershed, a ditch connection could be made between the Ashley Drain and the culvert under Highway 540. Mr. Bailey and others in the subwatershed, through their outlet assessment, will have paid for the right to have their drainage flow in the Ashley Drain. If the Ashley Drain is constructed there is a possibility that the conditions shown in the photographs (submitted with Mr. Bailey’s appeal) could be resolved. Without the Ashley Drain there is little chance to resolve the drainage problem shown in the photos. In my opinion the assessment of the Bailey parcels should not be changed.”

Mr. Lecuyer, whose parcel is located at the outlet of the Ashley Drain, appealed technical issues with the Ashley Drain report, not assessment, which K Smart explained was beyond the scope of the Court of Revision and would be more appropriate before the Drainage Tribunal.

Edward Eadie, who owns various parcels throughout the upper watershed, stated in his appeal that he felt that the benefit portion of the drain assessment was too high.

K Smart addressed Mr. Eadie’s appeal, saying, “The Eadie appeal makes references to the benefit portion being too high. For parcel 1-004 there is a $500 benefit assessment on the West Branch. The West Branch is within the north side of an unopened road allowance. The Eadie parcel is on the south side of the unopened road allowance and therefore reasonably close to have a direct outlet into the West Branch for drainage form the parcel. The $500 direct benefit is at the low end of the direct benefit assessments on the drain which range from $500 to $10,000.”

“Parcel 1-063 has a benefit assessment of $2,000 on the East Branch,” the K Smart report continues. “Three hundred metres of the East Branch is located along the west limits of this parcel. Ditch improvement will provide some improved drainage to the adjacent land. The main drain benefit which is a $10,500 assessment is in two parts; $2,500 for improved direct outlet, applied to interval 2 in Appendix A (of the engineering report), 436m of ditch improvement across the property, and $8,000 for benefit for improved drainage along the ditch.

Both these assessments are reasonable and not high when compared to similar assessments on the Ashley property which are higher.”

“The vacant or idle land use on the Eadie property is not a basis for a reduced benefit assessment,” the report also notes. “The reason the benefit assessment is somewhat lower than for the Ashley property is that the Eadie property has greater slope when compared to the Ashley property, which is very flat. The drain provides slightly greater benefit to the flatter land. In my opinion the benefit assessments to the Eadie parcels are reasonable and should not be changed.”

The tribunal hearing for the Ashley Drain will take place on Tuesday, September 22 in Little Current at the Northeast Town Recreation Centre at 9 am. This will be Mr. Bailey, Mr. Lecuyer and Mr. Eadie’s final opportunity to appeal their assessment.

Wikwemikong partners with Welland and District SPCA mobile clinic chief and council subsidized the cost making it more affordable to community members.

“The mobile clinic has been accredited by the College of Veterinarians of Ontario and is a fully equipped mobile surgical clinic designed to travel where veterinarian services are limited,” explained Mr. Greer.

Mr. Greer said that the Welland and District SPCA saw a need for this type of service and facility and that it was made possible thanks for a grant from the Pet Smart Charities of Canada.

The first of its kind in Ontario, the mobile clinic made its first visit earlier this summer to the Six Nations of Grand River. The Wikwemikong clinic last week was the second visit the clinic has made.

“We have been in talk with 12 other communities,” said Mr. Greer. “The demand is there, we are just trying to coordinate the visits.”

“The reception in Wikwemikong has been great,” he added. “We have had a lot of very positive support and it is great that the community has been so involved.”

The staff of the Welland and District SPCA mobile crew took a moment from their busy day to pose for a photo outside the operation room on wheels—the only one in the province. The staff spayed and neutered over 60 cats and dogs.

Wikwemikong residents, led by Jenni Manitowabi and Jean Flamand, began an initiative earlier this year to help community members spay and neuter their pets.

Ms. Manitowabi previously told The Expositor that she and Ms. Flamand have been working with the community, band council and the SPCA to try and develop a solution to the problem of free and roaming dogs in Wikwemikong.

The mobile unit team consists of two veterinarians, five veterinary technicians and 15 volunteers who assist with everything from registration to recovery.

Dr. Johanne Paquet of the Island Animal Hospital in Mindemoya also lent her services to the mobile clinic during its stop in Wikwemikong.

The mobile unit’s mandate is to only make enough profit in order to run the unit, making the cost $80 for cat spay or neuters and $140 for dogs.

For the All-Manitoulin Candidates Night

A debate element is a new aspect of the upcoming (Thursday, October 1) Candidates Night event for the upcoming federal General Election.

Manitoulin voters’ ideas for debate topics can be sent to: editor@manitoulin.ca, delivered to the Expositor Office in Little Current or to the Recorder in Gore Bay or they can be faxed to 705-368-3822.

Deadline to submit your topic is 4PM on Wednesday, September 30th. Please include your name and home community.

The event moderator, Jim Van Camp, will choose four representative topics for debate from those submitted.

ALL-MANITOULIN CANDIDATES NIGHT

for the upcoming October 19th federal General Election is

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1
at MANITOULIN SECONDARY SCHOOL
Starting at 7pm

Come and meet the candidates, hear their positions, see them debate and ask them your questions.

NDP incumbent candidate Carol Hughes and Liberal Party candidate Heather Wilson will be there. Conservative Party candidate André Robichaud has said he cannot attend, but the organizers have left him a standing invitation to participate.

The event will be moderated by Jim Van Camp, retired CAO of the Manitoulin Health Centre.

Coffee and donuts will be provided for a social time with the candidates following the formal program.

THE EVENT IS ORGANIZED BY THE MANITOULIN EXPOSITOR AS A PUBLIC SERVICE

MINDEMOYA—Manitowlin can boast another year round restaurant as the Mindemoya Grill and Chill has opened in the old Happy Moose eatery. James and Angie Moggy have wanted to open a restaurant for some time and with the sale of the building, the dream became a reality.

The Moggys are very grateful to everyone who helped them with the opening from their children, Corey and Cassie, who helped with naming the business, to Angie’s parents Jennifer and Bill Orford, to her sister Amanda Gibbons.

“We appreciate the help of everyone,” Ms. Moggy said, “including Karen Wyman, Vicki and Darryl Kennedy and Dean Tipper who helped with everything, Barb Moggy and Kathy Graham who made pies, Charlene Van Horn who did dishes, and Bob Pearson of Beacon Images who made our signs and also a special thank you to Don and Lou Arnold and Perry and staff at Keller’s Garage for the beautiful flowers and plants.”

“We had a good first week,” Mr. Moggy added. “We appreciate the fact that so many people came out and we hope it continues.”

The menu for the new restaurant is extensive, ranging from veggie egg rolls and jalapeno poppers as two of many appetizers, a soup of the day, salads as a side or meal dish and a sandwich called the grandwich, which includes thick sliced bread, ham, salami, tomato, lettuce, mayo and cheese. There are all kinds of hamburgers offered including the works which is a double patty burger with bacon, cheddar and Swiss cheese, fried onions and mushrooms. Pickerel is served at the Grill and Chill as well as hot sandwiches and pork chops, chicken and roast beef dinners. The entrees come in either a regular or a seniors’ portion. People will be happy to learn that the Moggys have kept Eugene’s famous pork schnitzel on the menu with plain, Jager and Hawaiian pork cutlets offered. There is also a children’s menu and a variety of desserts will be served daily including pie with ice cream, banana splits, sundaes and ice cream floats. Cinnamon buns will be coming soon and other items will be added to the menu.

The hours of the new restaurant are from Tuesday to Thursday from 11 am to 9 pm and 11 am to 10 pm on Fridays. Saturday sees a 10 am to 10 pm opening and 10 am to 9 pm on Sundays. The weekend will see a brunch served on both days from 10 am until 2 pm and a supper buffet from 5 to 8 pm. The restaurant is closed on Mondays and patrons are reminded that the meals are cash only.

Sending a special thank you to all my family, friends and relatives for the great 80th birthday party they gave me on August 15th at the Spring Bay hall. Thank you for all the food, cards, gifts and to all the musicians who came and made the afternoon an enjoyable one. Thanks again to my family for planning and preparations. Thank you all for just being there to help celebrate my special birthday. It was great. I hope everyone enjoyed themselves as much as I did. Elwood said he didn't know I had so many friends. Thanks again, and God Bless, Love, Bernice Lewis

Sheguiandah Fall Fair celebrates community heritage

by Michael Erskine
SHEGUIANDAH—This year's Sheguiandah Fall Fair held Saturday, September 18 at the Centennial Museum of Sheguiandah provided a marvelous celebration of all things agricultural and heritage for residents to peruse.

A battalion of local volunteers gathered to adjudicate and tag the hundreds of submissions made to this year's event. As the first, second and third place ribbons were tacked to the tags, recorders followed along behind writing down the hidden names.

Susan Hart cards wool in step one of the cloth creation process.

On Saturday the doors opened on the exhibits as well as a number of displays featuring live action demonstrations. Inside the museum members of the Manitoulin Weavers and Spinners were plying their skills, moving wool through the three phases of production into cloth just as our ancestors would have done when settlers first arrived on Manitoulin's shores. Manitoulin Island's only master spinner Linda Noble was spinning the wool combed and carded into readiness for the wheel by Susan Hart while weaver Jane Little turned the resulting yarn into cloth on a small loom, while rancher Richard Lathwell (whose alpacas supplied the raw materials) looked on.

Meanwhile, outside the museum carpenter Detlef Heiser was planing rough boards into finished lumber, utilizing a series of hand tools and clamps that would have been familiar to tradesmen more than a 150 years ago. This year's overall adult winner for the most entries was Carol Sheppard, while the youth (school-aged) winner for the most entries was Joshua Harley.

Joshua Harley's first prize flower in a bowl was just one of the many entries that secured the most entries title in the school-aged category.

One of the most popular displays each year is the fleet of vintage tractors displayed on the front lawn of the museum, but this year also featured a vintage 1917 Excelsior motorcycle owned by Pat Julig.

The Sheguiandah Fall Fair is sponsored by the Manitoulin Genealogy Club and the Centennial Museum Advisory Committee.

Assiginack Public School students learn about monarch butterflies

ASSIGINACK—In the fall of 2014, Mrs. Peltier and Mrs. McCarville's Kindergarten class at Assiginack Public school cared for and raised monarch caterpillars and released them as butterflies.

The students became concerned when they learned about the loss of habitat and decline in milkweed (the butterflies' sole food source) available for the monarchs.

In an effort to help the monarch population the Kindergarten class planted a butterfly garden in front of their classroom windows. With the assistance of the VanDenHeuvel family, the students planted butterfly-friendly flowers and milkweed.

Just before school started, Mrs. Peltier, Mrs. McCarville, Mrs. Bouwmeester, Madison McCarville and Zoe McCarville found 11 monarch caterpillars in the school butterfly garden. The caterpillars were in their fifth instar (a phase between insect development) and ready to make their chrysalises. One of the caterpillars was already contorting into a "J" form, which happens right before the chrysalis is formed.

When the students arrived at school on the first day, there were 11 chrysalises waiting for them. The new students wondered about the 'green things' and what might be inside, while the year two Kindergarteners kept the secret safe. On Tuesday, September 16, the first butterfly emerged, followed by another the next day. On Thursday, nine monarchs had emerged!

While watching the butterflies emerge, Arabella Otosquaib observed "The wings are getting bigger and bigger," and Dexter Mailloux described the scene as a "monarch wonderland."

Keenan Duval explained that the monarchs need to go to Mexico. The Kindergarten students decided to release the monarchs in their butterfly garden. Before the release they paraded around the school wearing monarch hats and singing "Goodbye butterfly, goodbye." During the release, students got the opportunity to hold the butterflies. Levi Moggy liked holding the butterfly because they tickled his fingers.

As the Kindergarten students watched the butterflies fly away they sang "Baa maa pii memengwaa!" They will be planting a second garden this fall to further help the monarch cause.

The Kindergarten students got up close and personal with their monarchs before setting them on their continent spanning journey.

Lakeview Powwow Electro Bounces into the school year

by Betty Bardswich

M'CHIGEENG—There was a great deal of energy at Lakeview School on August 28 as the electronic music artist Joshua DePerry of Classic Roots rocked the gym along with The Outer Spacerz and a local performer for Pow-Wow Electro Bounce.

Mr. Deperry is a producer, disc jockey and dancer who was at Lakeview school for the week to do cardio and dance moves with the students. He was originally from Thunder Bay and now lives in Toronto and was one of the aboriginal groups to open the recent Pan Am games.

Lakeview literary resource assistant Candi Kaiser organized the event with partners M'Chigeeng Family Resources, M'Chigeeng Community Support and youth workers Eyndil Corbiere and Cher Panamick-Ense as well as Rob Migwans. "We came at midnight to set up the stage," Ms. Kaiser said, "and it was so much fun." Ms. Kaiser is the powwow group head at Lakeview, which has 17 members including her son Shade, a grass dancer. He told the Expositor that he has been dancing since he could walk and that he dances at powwows and explained that the group has fun and also does different things such as talent shows and the Lake-

There was plenty of high energy electronic dance music at the Pow Wow Electro Bounce held at Lakeview school in M'Chigeeng recently. view powwow.

The concert at the school started with singing by Grade 5 student Katryna Bebonang who entertained the audience with the Johnny Cash songs 'Ring of Fire' and 'Folsom Prison Blues' with great stage presence. "I like singing," Katryna said, "and I joined the powwow group because I like dancing." She was followed by Mr. DePerry and his friend David Mooney, who drove up from Toronto especially for the Lakeview event. Mr. DePerry explained that he teaches kids powwow dance and urban movement and also talks to them about his life being a drug and alcohol-free Native man. He recently finished the Live Free Live Righteous concert at the Fort William Historical Park in Thunder Bay for fighting racism, hatred and bullying and stated that "we have to try to keep everyone saying, we are all in this together."

According to Mr. DePerry, the electronic dance music that he is proficient at came out some years ago and includes house dance, tropical dance, electro house, Melbourne bounce and several other genres. Mr. Mooney is part of the Outer Spacerz group, and like Mr. DePerry, is high energy and does electronic vocals and DJ music and had the gym rocking.

"Initially," Ms. Kaiser said, "we were just going to do a dance, but then said, 'let's do a concert, how awesome would that be?' So we called ourselves Pow Wow Electro Bounce and put a Bluetooth speaker outside and invited everyone in."

Community support brings canine advocates and caretakers together

by Sharon Jackson

KAGAWONG—Bark in the Park is more than dogs and their owners meeting once a year. It is an opportunity for advocates, caretakers and community to come together.

Members of the Billings Recreation Committee, led by Carol Corneau, welcomed pet owners and their four-legged friends, close to 50 of them, to the fifth annual event.

What started out as a one-year pilot project in 2011 has become an overwhelming success. "Regulars" meet each Sunday at 1 pm to socialize 'man's best friend' and catch up on what is going on in their lives.

Play time and games for the pets is just one great thing about Bark in the Park. Recreation Committee member and Master of Ceremonies Jill Ferguson thanked everyone for coming and made special mention of the vendors and breeders in attendance who offer their knowledge as advocates and caretakers.

Ms. Ferguson also noted the strong community support of the (Island's only off leash) dog park in maintaining great opportunities, stating dogs "shouldn't spend their lives on a leash."

Trees have been donated by former Recreation Committee member Roger Lloyd and will be planted next spring. True to his word, MPP Mike Mantha donated three crab apple trees and two decommissioned fire hydrants. Unfortunately, due to another commitment Mr. Mantha was unable to participate in this year's event. He was in attendance at the leash cutting ceremony (to kick off the pilot project) along with MP Carol Hughes at 2011's Summer Fest.

Julie McDermid, coordinator of Magical Paws Pet Therapy, was on hand with River Girl and Muddy Waters to bring awareness and information about an organization whose motto is 'giving unconditional love to all those they touch.'

Eight dogs and their owners participated in the 'laundry game.' First place went to Paige and eight-year-old 'Cricket.'

photos by Sharon Jackson

Labradoodle Jackson and his human Jamie compete in the coconut relay taking the prize in the final heat. Fierce competition was given by Bear and Simba.

A therapy dog is trained to provide affection and comfort to people in hospitals, retirement homes, nursing homes, group homes, day centres, schools, people with learning difficulties and stressful situations. Magical Paws recognizes the community need for pet therapy as they provide unconditional love and affection.

Ms. McDermid also had emergency alert wallet cards for sale. Information on it makes people aware there is a pet at home that will require care should its owner be hospitalized or for some other reason, become unable to care for it.

Ms. McDermid volunteers for Golden Rescue, SAINTS, Manitoulin Island Pets Needing New Homes and is an advocate for the safety of pets especially during the hot summer months by partnering with businesses to purchase and post a sign 'Please do not leave your dog in the car, temperatures rise fast. Call 911 if you see a dog is in distress.' These signs are posted at several Island businesses.

Dog breeder Molly Denton of Arcreya Registered Chihuahuas lives on a farm in Evansville along with several other dogs besides the chihuahuas. Certified with the CKC (Canadian Kennel Club), Ms. Denton has been in business since 1998.

Her puppies and grown dogs were a hit with everyone who visited her display.

Ms. Denton's puppies are "happy, healthy, socialized and raised in-home." With champion bloodlines, her chihuahuas come with a three year written health guarantee. For more information, visit www.arcreya.weebly.com fenced in area during a social time, followed by the larger dogs and any smaller ones who felt they could hold their own.

Small dogs took to the

Musical chairs, coconut relay and dress up races drew enthusiastic participation from the dogs and their owners. Winners were miniature huskie Simba, labradoodle Jackson and black Lab Cricket. Fierce competition was offered by Bear, a nine-month-old chocolate Lab. Sondra Corneau won the scavenger hunt receiving a pet first aid kit, generously donated by Dr. Johanne Paquette of the Island Animal Hospital.

2016 will mark the fifth anniversary of the dog park. For more information visit

Sheep seminar

OMAFRA, with support from the Ontario Sheep Marketing Agency (OSMA), is organizing another excellent Sheep Seminar, titled "Grow the market with more pounds of lamb: a profitable choice?" - the emphasis this year will be on encouraging sheep producers to consider whether they can expand the availability of lamb by growing lambs to heavier weights profitably. Dr. Joyce Van Donkersgoed will be speaking on feedlot lamb health. She operates a consulting feedlot practice in Picture Butte, Alberta where she provides herd health and research services to several large feedlots, including one lamb finishing feedlot and one large ewe flock. She is currently involved in a feedlot lamb mortality project and in the development of a sheep respiratory vaccine. The Algoma cattlemen have been informed that Dr. Grandin will be in the Soo on January 24, 2016 to make an evening presentation to the Sault Autism Foundation. Dr. Grandin is also speaking at the beef symposium in Guelph the day before. She will arrive in the Soo around the noon hour, and will be able to make a presentation to producers at approximately 3 pm. The specific site will be Quattro Inn (formerly Comfort Suites, formerly the old Ramada Inn). If anyone is interested in attending this opportunity, please contact me at 705-282-1638.

M.S.S. Kids in the Halls

Sandy Kuntsi

This week has been full of fun activities for the Grade Nine Welcome Week. Monday was Ultimate frisbee, Tuesday was a Skittles guessing contest. The winners of the Skittles jars were Jason Quackenbush who won the small jar and Skyler Danville who won the big jar. Wednesday was MSS trivia, Thursday was a Rock-Paper-Scissors battle, and on Friday it was school colours day and face painting. At the end of lunch, the student council could be seen prowling the halls and slashing black and yellow stripes on unsuspecting students. Throughout the course of the week there was also a photo scavenger hunt for the Grade 9s. Hopefully, the Grade 9s participated in the various activities.

Thursday, September 17 was Stand Up Against Bullying Day. MSS students wore pink to support a safe, bully-free environment. The initiative started in Nova Scotia when a student was being bullied for wearing pink to school. Two of his peers stood up for him by wearing pink and encouraging others to do the same. Thank you to all the students and staff who wore pink to support this important cause.

The students' council is being re-organized and is planning some fun activities, including the magazine drive. The co-presidents this year are Max Chapman, Ali Cosby and Rebecca Dawson. Staff reps are inviting students to fill out applications for the following executive positions: audio-visual technician, secretary, spirit rep., treasurer, public relations, and junior representative for Grade 9 and 10 students. There will be interviews for the positions later in the week.

The boys' hockey team tryouts are starting this week. Good luck to all the guys trying out. The senior and junior girls' basketball teams are decided. The junior team consists of Hannah Woestenenk, Kayla Greenman, Maggie Eadie, Ryann Hudson, Maddy Niven, Ashlyn Hare, Cassandra Bisson, Sarah Hovingh, Elena Hovingh, Beth Wiwchar, Sarah Bayer and Sandi Kuntsi. They are being coached by Connor Croft and David Scott. The senior team is coached by Ms. Toner and includes Honor Esquimaux, Kylie Cranston, Michelle Campbell, Nea Saunders, Courtney Oswald, Kristina Renwick, Meaghan Wall, Jackie Cooper, Ali Cosby and Kennedy Lanktree. The teams are both training hard for their first home games on October 8. The junior and senior boys' volleyball teams are also practicing hard, getting ready for their first tournament. The members of the golf team are Roger Beaudin Jr., Justice Corbiere, Chris Cooper, David Scott, Dylan Francis, Cole King, Logan Debassige, Ronson Odjig, Connor Croft, Brad Sayyae and Mackenzie Turner. They are getting in as many holes as possible in preparation for their Pre-NSSSA on September 23. The coach of the golf team is Mrs. Addison.

Whether they play on a school team, wear pink to stand up against bullying, or vote in a Skittles guessing game, MSS students know the value of participation. 'Til next time, stay golden, Mustangs.

Providence Bay News and Notes

This weekend was rather interesting with a power outage that was caused by a hydro pole on fire in AOK. This prompted lots of people to come out and try their luck fishing on Saturday at the Mindemoya River. Nothing better to get people outside than the TV and Internet being off!

There was also a film crew in Providence Bay filming at the Auberge Inn about people who live on Manitoulin. The show is a French language show about people who live by the Great Lakes and this included interviews with some guests at the Auberge Inn who are Great Lakes surfers. Yup, you heard right...surfers who surf right here on Manitoulin island. This time of year is great for them with the waves coming from the southwest.

Sunday was a spectacular fall day with the sun shine and many visitors for the day at the beach from Sudbury who got in some nice weather! It was also the last day at the Discovery Centre for the season as well as Huron Island Time ice cream shop. Thank you to all the very loyal customers in Providence Bay who supported Nathalie and Alain and Léa for the past three years. This was their last season operating the ice cream shop. They've enjoyed the many encounters with locals and visitors to the area and being ambassadors for Providence Bay and Island. There was a great big moose on the loose! There have been numerous reports of moose sightings. The bull was spotted on Monday, September 14 in the area. Then numerous people saw it again on Thursday evening, including Nathalie on her way to Mindemoya. She thought there was an accident with about 10 cars pulled over, but then spotted the moose. How exciting! The moose is loose and is definitely the talk of the town throughout the Island.

Donations from refundable empties continue to be collected by Matt Young in Providence Bay and at Buie's LCBO in Spring Bay for the civic/village square. It continues to be a work in progress.

Visitors to Providence Bay were Dan and Alexia Gilchrist and their daughter Ceilidh. They were here visiting family before they move back to Toronto from Sudbury. We wish them all well as they embark on their new careers.

Looking for something to do over the winter? Why not try your hand at the Providence Bay Curling Club? It is a fun and social time and gets you out of the house over the winter for a very affordable membership fee. New members welcome! No experience required. Call Helene at 705-377-4962 or email cgr@vianet.ca

In her many years of dance she has participated in numerous dance competitions, recitals, other community performances and assisted many dance classes. She also ran a dance club at the elementary school Jeanne-Sauvé in Sudbury, as well as choreographed many end of the year pieces for the school. In February 2015 she became the Head Dance Instructor here in Wiikwemkoong. She has never turned down an opportunity to share her passion and help others discover theirs!

NEW FUN CLASSES:

2015/16 Classes Offered:

Class A: 4:30-5PM - Pre-Dance (AGE 3-5)
Song, dance and basic tumbling are used to help engage the students' attention and imagination. Through this program, students gain a sense of joy and accomplishment. Sharing this positive experience with their peers, students gain an understanding of teamwork that positively benefits and influences their everyday lives.

Class B: 5:15PM-6PM - BALLET/JAZZ (AGE 6-8)
Ballet uses a series of formalized steps and gestures set in intricate, flowing patterns to create a beautiful expressive composition through movement. Ballet is the basis of all dancing and improves strength, posture, balance and flexibility. Jazz dance is a motivating, fun, upbeat class with a lot of movement and involves a broad range of styles.  Please note that this is combined class that features both forms of dance will alternate week to week, from ballet to jazz.  Some weeks of hip hop style will be incorporated into the dance routine.

Class C: 6:15PM-7PM - BOYS HIP HOP (ALL AGES)
Street dancing, also known as hip-hop, is normally performed to hip hop music and is influenced by a style of jazz called jazz-funk. Tehkummah Talk and Times feast, it was good. (I couldn't eat much, darn it). We had six tables at cribbage on Wednesday afternoon. First place, Pat and Laura, 930; second, Audrie and Del, 915; third, Cal and I, 910; high hand, Lyla Chatwell, 24; low, Lyla and Hugh, 709; door, Lori and Glenn. Del had some bear stories.

Our lunch as always terrific folks! NOTE: starts at 1 pm Wednesday the 23rd. We went to Carol's and Earl's and shared table space with Gib and Florence. It was her birthday (pretty low key.) Later back down at Cal's, about six more games of cribbage- some pretty exciting finishes!!

After the birthday party on Tuesday Mum had visitors- Pauline came along with her grandson Wayne, who I can't believe it, has kids in high school too? Time is so fleeting. Susan took Mum for her needle in the eye on Wednesday, they met up with Paula (in Sudbury). Mum and Paula had lunch together. Well I smelled skunk when I stopped at Mums. Went in, said to her you must have been playing cards? But I really did stir the skunk up while I was there. I had just come from Cal's where he skunked me good- pass it on!

I like going down to Barney's Barn- The social aspect- Good lunch too- It's definitely a family affair- check out those red T shirts!

Just about midnight- had a bit of a visit with Mum after euchre. I put a drop (or two) in her eye. Dorothy usually does this for her. Thank you very much.

Ten tables for the tournament (Sept 17) First, Dennis and Dorothy, 77 and 6; lone hands; second, Simon and Marg, 74 and 6 lone hands; third and fourth, tied, Rick and Edgar and Irene and Marg, 72; low, Marilyn and Pat, 42; door, Reta Parkinson. Lunch provided by Margaret!

Don't you think last week's column must have got dropped on the floor and broken? Very disjointed and confusing?

Today while I was in Mindemoya I popped into the hospital and visited Elaine McGauley and Helen Oswald- Helen's roomie is Ann from Gore Bay- "The Foot Room". Fresh corn from Tara's garden. A friendly bee sting on my chin- didn't realize it was on my collar.

My pen is at a loss for words! I'm trying to wrap my mind around the death of Elaine (my niece through marriage). What a gift to Tehkummah this girl has been at the counter of Ward's Store, her always friendly smile, our church organist (Tehkummah and South Baymouth) the organizer of the Jr UCW group in our Fairview Church. Did we assume she would always be there? I guess so, as she was a major part of the back bone of our little village and area. When Heather phoned Sunday morning (I was in the tub, I'd been up since four) I wasn't long getting down to her place where Dale and Lori were with her- A short stay as they had messages to deliver etc. The girls, Debbie, Heather and Christina, had kept a bedside vigil with their mother since she came from Sudbury on Wednesday. Barely all having time to contend with the dreaded tumor let alone now her/their loss. Sympathy to her kids, grandkids, and to us all who will feel her loss so deeply, (family and extended family). September 23, Wednesday wake at Fairview Church Tehkummah 2-4, 7-9 and September 24, Thursday Funeral there 1 pm.

Mum wanted to sing "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" for Elaine at church (next door) Sunday- it was difficult. We went to C&Es after, Joan went with us. Mary and Justin, Marten and Lynda. A lady called Anne Shillon (not sure of the spelling last name) presented a $2,000 award to Justin Coutts from the Eastern Star, to help him further his studies as he just started down a three year trail to the Ministry. Ann touched briefly in her Manitoulin roots, Clover Valley, Campbells/Watsons connection. Mum whipped me at cards again. Back down to C and E's with Cal for supper, we shared table space with Joan and Borden. Elaine Bosje is home again after a hip replacement! Monday morning- in the sun- Two Marys, McGauley and Johnston, stop for a visit with Tara and I.
